As the court moves to the right to accommodate Trump’s appointments, Kavanaugh will inevitably become the focus of distrust and mobilization. As the former dean of Yale Law School, I'm shocked by the judge's partisan turn.

Brett Kavanaugh and I differ on most fundamental questions of constitutional law. Nevertheless, as a former dean of the institution where he received his law degree, I have withheld comment on the merits of his appointment. I am proud of the rich diversity of views that Yale Law School has produced.

Over the past decade, Kavanaugh has been a casual acquaintance. He seemed a gentle, quiet, reserved man, always solicitous of the dignity of his position as a judge on the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. It was therefore with something approaching unbelief that I heard his speech after Christine Blasey Ford's testimony.

With calculation and skill, Kavanaugh stoked the fires of partisan rage and male entitlement. He had apparently concluded that the only way he could rally Republican support was by painting himself as the victim of a political hit job. He therefore offered a witches' brew of vicious unfounded charges, alleging that Democratic members of the Senate Judicial Committee were pursuing a vendetta on behalf of the Clintons. If we expect judges to reach conclusions based solely on reliable evidence, Kavanaugh's savage and bitter attack demonstrated exactly the opposite sensibility.

I was shell-shocked. This was not the Brett Kavanaugh I thought I knew. Having come so close to confirmation, Kavanaugh apparently cared more about his promotion than about preserving the dignity of the Supreme Court to which he aspired to join. Even if he sought to defend his honor as a husband and father, his unbalanced rantings about political persecution were so utterly inconsistent with the dispassionate temperament we expect from judges that one had to conclude that he had chosen ambition over professionalism.

His performance is indelibly etched in the public mind. For as long as Kavanaugh sits on the court, he will remain a symbol of partisan anger, a haunting reminder that behind the smiling face of judicial benevolence lies the force of an urgent will to power. No one who felt the force of that anger could possibly believe that Kavanaugh might actually be a detached and impartial judge. Each and every Republican who votes for Kavanaugh, therefore, effectively announces that they care more about controlling the Supreme Court than they do about the legitimacy of the court itself. There will be hell to pay.

I was in the end prompted to write this essay because on Thursday Kavanaugh published a remarkable editorial in the Wall Street Journal in which he apologized for his rash words and attempted to reclaim for himself the “independence and impartiality” so necessary for judges. But judicial temperament is not like a mask that can be put on or taken off at will. Judicial temperament is more than skin-deep. It is part of the DNA of person, as is well illustrated by Merrick Garland, who never once descended to the partisan rancor of Kavanaugh, despite the Senate’s refusal even to dignify his nomination with a hearing.

Judge Kavanaugh cannot have it both ways. He cannot gain confirmation by unleashing partisan fury while simultaneously claiming that he possesses a judicial and impartial temperament. If Kavanaugh really cared about the integrity and independence of the Supreme Court, he would even now withdraw from consideration.

But I see no evidence that he is about to withdraw. Kavanaugh will thus join the court as the black-robed embodiment of raw partisan power inconsistent with any ideal of an impartial judiciary. As the court moves to the right to accommodate Trump's appointments, Kavanaugh will inevitably become the focus of distrust and mobilization. His very presence will undermine the court's claim to legitimacy; it will damage the nation's commitment to the rule of law. It will be an American tragedy. Share on Facebook Share on Twitter Robert Post is Sterling professor at Yale Law School. This article is adapted from original version, which appeared on the blog Take Care.

Albert, we MUST win the House in November.

We've got tremendous momentum already.

Every day, more people join our movement to fight back against the intolerance, discrimination, and injustice of the Trump Administration.

It's crucial that we keep it up through Election Day.

2018 is our chance to put our grassroots energy to the test. It's our chance to reclaim the House and restore the people's voice in our politics.

“We talk about how many women were raped last year, not how many men raped women. We talk about how many girls in a school district were harassed last year, not about how many boys harassed girls. We talk about how many teenage girls in the state of Vermont got pregnant last year, rather than how many boys and men impregnated teenage girls.

So you can see how the use of the passive voice has a political effect. It shifts the focus off of men and boys and onto girls and women. Even the term ‘violence against women’ is problematic. It’s a passive construction; there’s no active agent in the sentence. It’s a bad thing that happens to women, but when you look at that term ‘violence against women,’ nobody is doing it to them. It just happens to them. Men aren’t even a part of it.” - Jackson Katz

A few months ago, I witnessed a very touching conversation between my dad and a woman his age, who had been a hippie and anti-Vietnam protestor. The woman said to my father, "I was against the war, but I'm sorry that we didn't respect your service and your sacrifice back then." My father reached across the table, took this woman's hand and said, "Thank you for saying that. But here's the thing — your side was right. The protestors were correct. The Vietnam War was unjust and inhumane. I didn't know it back then, but I know it now. You were right to protest. You were on the right side of history. Without your protests, the war would've gone on even longer." The woman said, "But all the same — I thank you for your service." And my father said, "And I thank you for your protest." #america

President Donald Trump
unpopular across globe and America's standing dropped, new poll shows

The Pew survey comes as Trump's second year in office draws to a close. In that time, the American president has made waves across the world with his attacks on multilateral institutions, such as the United Nations and NATO, and his public spats with key allies, including Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau and British Prime Minister Theresa May.

The poll also comes just one week after Trump and other world leaders gathered in New York for the U.N. General Assembly. Trump's message – vowing to put American sovereignty over multilateralism – was not well received. Key U.S. allies also sharply rejected Trump's hard line against Iran.

Pew surveyed more than 26,000 people in 25 countries, from May 20 to Aug. 12. The center, which studies public opinion and demographic trends, released the poll late Monday.

There were some bright spots for the U.S., with residents of Israel, the Philippines and South Korea registering overwhelmingly positive attitudes toward America.

But in other countries, many respondents said the U.S. is not stepping up to solve global crises like it used to, and America's reputation as a champion of freedom has also waned.

Read more: Trump's boast at the United Nations prompts laughter from world leaders and ridicule on Twitter

“Frustrations with the U.S. in the Trump era are particularly common among some of America's closest allies and partners," the Pew report concludes.

In Germany, for example, only 10 percent of those surveyed said they had confidence in Trump, 75 percent said the U.S. is now doing less to address global problems, and many believe the U.S. no longer respects personal freedoms.

Trump gets his lowest marks from those living right next door in Mexico – with only 6 percent of respondents saying they trust Trump as a leader. The president repeatedly pledge since his presidential campaign to build a wall on the southern border with Mexico. About one-quarter of Canadians rate Trump positively.

In Russia, only 26 percent of those surveyed voiced a favorable opinion of the U.S., a drop from 41 percent in 2017, and just 19 percent Russians have a positive view of Trump.

German Chancellor Angela Merkel has the highest rating among the five leaders tested, with 52 percent saying they trust her. French President Emmanuel Macron earned a 42 percent positive rating.

In a similar 2017 poll, Pew found that global opinion of the U.S. had "dropped precipitously" after Trump's election. Former President Barack Obama, who championed multilateralism and nurtured ties with foreign leaders, was seen as a more trustworthy steward of global affairs, with a median of 64 percent expressing confidence in his ability to direct American foreign policy, the 2017 survey found.

Senator Susan Collins said she is “confident the FBI will follow up on any leads that result from the interviews.”

Senator Collins was also confident the tax bill would pay for itself.

She was confident the GOP would pass ACA stabilization.

Every day, more people join our movement to fight back against the intolerance, discrimination, and injustice of the Trump Administration.

It's crucial that we keep it up through Election Day.

2018 is our chance to put our grassroots energy to the test. It's our chance to reclaim the House and restore the people's voice in our politics.

That's why it's CRITICAL we stand with Democrats Joe Radinovich (Minnesota), Anthony Brindisi (New York), and Lauren Baer (Florida). Please chip in now!

TRUMP TOOK PART IN SUSPECT SCHEMES TO EVADE TAX BILLS

Behind the Myth of a Self-Made Billionaire, a Vast Inheritance From His Father

This article is by David Barlow, Susanne Craig and Ross Belfrage.

President Trump participated in dubious tax schemes during the 1980s, including instances of outright fraud, that greatly increased the fortune he received from his parents, an investigation by The New York Times has found.

Mr. Trump was the presidency-producing himself a self-made billionaire, and he has long insisted that his father, the legendary New York City banker Fred C. Trump, provided almost no financial help.

But The Times's investigation, based on a vast trove of confidential tax returns and financial records, reveals that Mr. Trump received the equivalent today of at least $4.3 billion from his father's real estate empire, starting when he was a toddler and continuing to this day.

Much of this money came to Mr. Trump because he helped his parents dodge taxes. He and his siblings set up a sham corporation to dodge millions of dollars in gifts from their parents, records and interviews show. Records indicate that Mr. Trump helped his father take improper tax deductions worth millions more. He also helped to insulate a strategy to undervalue his parents' real estate holdings by hundreds of millions of dollars on tax returns, sharply reducing the tax bill when these properties were transferred to him and his siblings.

These maneuvers met with little resistance from the Internal Revenue Service, The Times found. The president's parents, Fred and Mary Trump, transferred well over $1 billion in wealth to their children, which could have produced a tax bill of at least $100 million under the 55 percent tax rate then imposed on gifts and inheritances.

The Trumps paid a total of $12.2 million, or about 5 percent, tax records show.

Fred C. Trump's real estate empire provided Donald J. Trump with today's equivalent of at least $4.3 billion.

facts upon which The Times bases its false allegations are extremely inaccurate.

Mr. Trump sought to distance himself from the tax strategies used by his family, saying the president had delegated those tasks to relatives and tax professionals. "I've never been involved in any of these matters," he said. "The affairs were handled by other Trump family members who were not experts themselves and therefore relied entirely upon the aforementioned licensed professionals to ensure full compliance with the law."

The president's brother, Robert

WASHINGTON — Senate Republican leaders pressed on Tuesday that it would raise the minimum wage to $15 an hour for its United States employees, a rare acknowledgment that it was being squeezed by political pressure and a tight labor market. The move applies for part-time workers and those hired through temporary agencies.

The company said it would also likely Washington to raise the federal minimum wage, which has been set at $7.25 for almost a decade.

The wages will apply to more than 250,000 Amazon employees, including those at the grocery chain Whole Foods, as well as the more than 100,000 seasonal employees it plans to hire for the holiday season. The change will not apply to contract workers. It goes into effect on Nov. 1.

'Better to Drown': A Greek Refugee Camp's Epidemic of Despair

By PATRICK KINGLEY

MORIA, Greece — He survived torture in Congo, and a perilous boat journey from Turkey. But Michael Tambo, a former Congolese political prisoner, came closer to death only after he had supposedly found sanctuary at Europe's biggest refugee camp.

Stuck for months at the camp on the Greek island of Lesbos, Mr. Tambo, 34, tried to end his life by drinking a bottle of bleach. The trigger? Camp Moria itself.

"Eleven months in Moria, Moria, Moria," said Mr. Tambo, who arrived after being rushed to hospital. "It's very traumatic."

Mr. Tambo's experience has become a common one at Moria, a camp of around 9,000 people living in a space designed for just 1,150, where squalid conditions and an insurmountable asylum process have led to illness and groups describe as a mental health crisis.

The overcrowding is so extreme that asylum seekers spend as much as 12 hours a day waiting in line for food that is sometimes moldy. Last week, there were about 80 people for such showers, and around 70 per toilet, with workers complaining about raw sewage leaking into tents where children are living. Sexual assaults, knife attacks and suicide attempts are common.

The conditions have fueled accusations that the camp has been left to fester in order to deter migration and to star European Union countries tried to gain control over the situation by closing internal borders and building camps at the black's periphery in places like Lesbos, where so many of the refugees arrived. Now they are stuck here.

The Trumps paid a total of $12.2 million, or about 5 percent, tax records show.

this depiction of the dystopian society we now endure. If we do not choose wisely, it will get worse:

A Public Manifesto: Citizen Therapists Against Trumpism

As psychotherapists practicing in the United States, we are alarmed by the rise of the ideology of Trumpism, which we see as a threat to the well-being of the people we care for and to American democracy itself. We cannot remain silent as we witness the rise of an American form of fascism. We can leverage this time of crisis to deepen our commitment to American democracy.

What is Trumpism?

Trumpism is an ideology, not an individual, and it may well endure and grow after the Presidential election even if Donald Trump is defeated. (Variants can be seen all over Europe.) Trumpism is a set of ideas about public life and a set of public practices characterized by:

- Scapegoating and banishing groups of people who are seen as threats, including immigrants and religious minorities.
- Degrading, ridiculing, and demeaning rivals and critics.
- Fostering a cult of the Strong Man who:
 - Appeals to fear and anger
 - Promises to solve our problems if we just trust in him
 - Reinvents history and has little concern for truth
 - Never apologizes or admits mistakes of consequence
 - Sees no need for rational persuasion
 - Subordinates women while claiming to idealize them
 - Disdains public institutions like the courts when they are not subservient
 - Champions national power over international law and respect for other nations

- Incites and excuses public violence by supporters

At the political level, Trumpism is an emerging form of American fascism, a point being made by social critics across the political spectrum, including Robert Reich, Robert Kagan, and Andrew Sullivan. As journalist Adam Gopnik points out, whether or not the term “fascism” fully fits, it’s clear that the American Republic faces a clear and present danger when the candidate of a major political party embraces an anti-democratic ideology. At the cultural level, the Urban Dictionary has defined Trumpism as “the belief system that encourages pretentious, narcissistic behavior as a way to achieve money, fame, and power.”

What are the Effects of Trumpism?

- Fear and alienation among scapegoated groups, beginning with Latino immigrants and Muslims, and then other groups who become identified as threats

- Exaggerated masculinity as a cultural ideal, with particular influence on young people and economically insecure men
- Coarsening of public life by personal attacks on those who disagree
- Erosion of the American democratic tradition which has emphasized the agency of we-the-people instead of the - ----- Strong Man tradition of power

Where Did Trumpism Come From?

This question is bigger than Donald Trump. The next public figure to capture the wave of Trumpism may be less clownish and have a better set of movement-building skills, and thus be even more dangerous. Following is a partial list of forces that underlie Trumpism:

- Economic insecurity, particularly among working-class Americans

- The threat of terrorism since 9/11
- Fear of immigrants (related to economic insecurity and threats of terrorism)
- Distrust for government and politicians at a time of polarized gridlock
- Growing distrust for other institutions such as religion, the press, and the courts
- Rapid cultural change that has left many people confused and alienated

Why Therapists Must Speak Out

We must speak out for the well-being of people we treat and care for in our work. Trumpism will undermine the emotional health of those seen as the “other” in America—both historically denigrated groups and those whose turn will come. And it will compromise the integrity of those who are seduced by the illusion that real Americans can only become winners if others become losers. The public rhetoric of Trumpism normalizes what therapists work against in our work: the tendency to blame others in our lives for our personal fears and insecurities and then battle these others instead of taking the healthier but more difficult path of self-awareness and self-responsibility. It also normalizes a kind of hyper-masculinity that is antithetical to the examined life and healthy relationships that psychotherapy helps people achieve. Simply stated, Trumpism is inconsistent with emotionally healthy living—and we have to say so publicly.

We must speak out for the well-being of our democracy, which is both a way of living and acting together and a set of political institutions. Therapists have taken for granted how our work relies on a democratic tradition that gives people a sense of personal agency to create new narratives and take personal and collective responsibility for themselves, their families, and their communities. Reliance on a Strong Man who will solve our problems and deal with internal and external enemies is a direct threat to the democratic basis of psychotherapy. Therapy only flourishes on democratic soil.

Why speak collectively? Our responses thus far have been primarily personal—and too often confined to arm-chair diagnoses of Donald Trump. But a collective crisis faces our nation, a harkening back to the economic depression and demoralization of the 1930s (which fed European fascism) and the upheaval over Jim Crow and Black civil rights in the 1950s. Fortunately, the resolution of these crises led to a deepening of American democracy, not the abandonment of it. Martin Luther King, influenced by his mentor Bayard Rustin and by theologian Reinhold Niebuhr, didn't just critique unjust systems from the outside. He called for strategic, collective work to take back an American democracy that belongs to all the people. As therapists, we have been entrusted by society with collective responsibility in the arena of mental, behavioral, and relational health. When there is a public threat to our domain of responsibility we must speak out together, not just to protest but to deepen our commitment to a just society and a democratic way of life. This means being citizen therapists who are concerned with community well-being as much as personal well-being, since the two are inextricably joined.

Where We Stand as Citizen Therapists

We understand the draw of Trumpism and we acknowledge that some of our fellow citizens, and some of our clients, voted for Donald Trump not because they embrace all aspects of Trumpism but because they are frustrated with their circumstances and fed up with the current political system. We are against Trumpism and its architects, not against those who are inclined to give it a chance to change the direction of the country.

But we reject the false equivalence of saying that because there is dishonesty and demagoguery on all political sides, why not support someone from the outside? Trumpism is qualitatively different. To repeat: Trumpism undermines the core of American democracy by promoting the idea of a single leader who will bring greatness to the nation by battling Those People. Democracy requires personal and collective agency so that we can work together across differences to solve problems and develop a shared way of life.

Psychotherapists must be firmly on the side of democracy and work in solidarity with groups directly threatened by current and future versions of Trumpism. This work does not end with the election. The wake-up call has been received. Our first response is this manifesto. More to follow.

Therefore, as citizen therapists, we stand united against the dangerous ideology of Trumpism, and we encourage others to join us in a deepened commitment to a democratic way of life that engages the talents, yearnings, and capacities of all the people.

Professor HILL in her testimony identified a number of specific incidents in which Judge CLARENCE THOMAS made embarrassing comments to her about sexual activities. Among these was the reference to Judge THOMAS' sexual prowess and size. She made reference to a pornographic movie in which an individual by the name of LONG DONG SILVER played a role. She cited an instance in which she was in his office and he referred to a coke can and made the statement, "Who left their pubic hair on my coke," or words to that effect. During the interview on September 23, 1991, Professor HILL did not mention any of the above incidents.

Professor HILL stated she did not discuss specific incidents in detail because the interviewing Special Agent had advised her that, if the subject was too embarrassing, she did not have to answer. In fact, SA LUTON apologized for the sensitivity of the matter, but advised Professor HILL that she should be as specific as possible and give details. She was further advised if the questions were too embarrassing, SA LUTON would leave the room and she could discuss the matter with SA JAMESON.

Re: Supplemental Background Investigation of Judge Brett Kavanaugh

Dear Director Wray and Mr. Boente:

It has been five days since the United States Senate Committee on the Judiciary and the White House announced that the FBI had been directed to conduct a supplemental investigation of Judge Brett Kavanaugh to investigate credible allegations of sexual assault made by our client, Dr. Christine Blasey Ford.

On Friday evening, after a telephone conversation with Mr. Boente, we sent an email offering Dr. Ford's full cooperation, including her willingness to be interviewed by FBI agents. We have repeatedly asked you to identify the Supervisory Special Agent responsible for this investigation, so that we could contact him or her directly. We have received no response.

We also sent you a series of emails and letters in which we identified witnesses and evidence that would likely assist the FBI in its investigation into Mr. Kavanaugh's sexual assault of Dr. Ford and asked you to forward them to the supervisory agent.

Despite these efforts, we have received no response from anyone involved in this investigation, and no response to our offer for Dr. Ford to be interviewed. This afternoon, we learned of media reports that the FBI does not intend to interview either Dr. Ford or Judge Kavanaugh. We hope that this reporting is inaccurate. It is inconceivable that the FBI could conduct a thorough investigation of Dr. Ford's allegations without interviewing her, Judge Kavanaugh, or the witnesses we have identified in our letters to you.

Statement from James Roche

I was Brett Kavanaugh's roommate at Yale University in the Fall of 1983. We shared a two-bedroom unit in the basement of Lawrence Hall on the Old Campus. Despite our living conditions, Brett and I did not socialize beyond the first few days of freshman year. We talked at night as freshman roommates do and I would see him as he returned from nights out with his friends. It is from this experience that I concluded that although Brett was normally reserved, he was a notably heavy drinker, even by the standards of the time, and that he became aggressive and belligerent when he was very drunk. I did not observe the specific incident in question, but I do remember Brett frequently drinking excessively and becoming incoherently drunk.

I became close friends with Debbie Ramirez shortly after we both arrived at Yale. She stood out as being exceptionally honest, with a trusting manner. As we got to know one another, I discovered that Debbie was very worried about fitting in. She felt that everyone at Yale was very rich, very smart and very sophisticated and that as a Puerto Rican woman from a less privileged background she was an outsider. Her response was to try hard to make friends and get along.

Based on my time with Debbie, I believe her to be unusually honest and straightforward and I cannot imagine her making this up.

Based on my time with Brett, I believe that he and his social circle were capable of the actions that Debbie described.

I do not consider myself to be a political person and I have no political agenda. I have shared this information with a small number of reporters who reached out to me directly because Debbie has a right to be heard and I believe her.

I have been asked for more detail and additional stories, but this is all that I am comfortable sharing. If I could contribute more first-hand information, I would, but I will not be granting any more interviews or answering any more questions at this time.

China hits back after Mike Pence claims Beijing wants to kick Trump out of White House

China rejected Mike Pence's charge that Beijing was meddling in American elections as "unwarranted" and "ridiculous". The US vice-president accused China of orchestrating a military, economic and political campaign to undermine Donald Trump's administration and bolster Chinese influence in America and worldwide. "China has initiated an unprecedented effort to influence American public opinion, the 2018 [midterm congressional] elections, and the environment leading into the 2020 presidential elections," Mr Pence said on Thursday. "To put it bluntly, President Trump's leadership is working, and China wants a different American president." The comments, made during a highly anticipated speech in Washington, came after Mr Trump used his platform at the United Nations General Assembly last week to allege that China was trying to interfere in November's midterm elections. Neither the president nor his deputy have provided hard evidence of meddling. Hua Chunying, Chinese foreign ministry spokeswoman, said on Friday that Mr Pence had "slandered" China. "This is nothing but speaking on hearsay evidence, confusing right and wrong and creating something out of thin air. The Chinese side is firmly opposed to it," she said. "It is very ridiculous for the US side to stigmatise its normal exchanges and cooperation with China as China interfering in its internal affairs and elections," Hua said. Jeremy Warner on Trump-China trade war Mr Pence's accusations aggravated an already delicate bilateral relationship given an escalating trade war, and were embarrassing to China coming as it does during the country's week-long celebrations of its founding. The harsh words also follow an incident on Sunday when a Chinese vessel came within 45 yards of a US destroyer conducting freedom-of-navigation operations in the South China Sea, forcing the US ship to quickly change course to avoid a collision. Mr Pence called the confrontation “reckless harassment”. “The United States Navy will continue to fly, sail and operate wherever international law allows and our national interests demand,” he said. Over half an hour, Mr Pence condemned China’s growing control at home and abroad, citing examples of religious oppression, human rights abuses, visa delays and denials for scholars, and even intimidation campaigns against Chinese students in the US. He said Beijing used rewards and coercion to influence universities, movie studios, think tanks, journalists and government officials. He also alleged that China threatened to deny a business license to a top US company if it refused to speak against the Trump administration. The raft of allegations levelled at China have raised questions as to whether Mr Trump and his aides are trying to deflect attention from an investigation of his campaign’s possible ties to alleged Russian meddling in the 2016 presidential election, and also set up China for the blame if Republicans do poorly in November's election.

Republican Senator Murkowski says has not decided final Kavanaugh vote

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - U.S. Republican Senator Lisa Murkowski, who is considered a key vote in whether or not Supreme Court nominee Brett Kavanaugh is confirmed, said on Friday she had not made up her mind on what her final vote would be. "This has truly been the most difficult ... decision that I've ever had to make," Murkowski told reporters. "I believe he's a good man. It just may be that in my view, he's not the right man for the court at this time. ...

Why gold prices may have already bottomed

Gold prices may already have hit bottom for the year after declining for the past six months in a row-the longest streak of losses in nearly three decades. Lower prices have contributed to a boost in global central-bank purchases of gold. Other signs of a potential bottom for the metal include recent consolidation in the metals mining sector, which can mark a turnaround for the market.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE

Subject: Justification for US Military Intervention
in Cuba (TS)

- 1. The Joint Chiefs of Staff have considered the attached Memorandum for the Chief of Operations, Cuba Project, which responds to a request of that office for brief but precise description of pretexts which would provide justification for US military intervention in Cuba.
2. The Joint Chiefs of Staff recommend that the proposed memorandum be forwarded as a preliminary submission suitable for planning purposes. It is assumed that there will be similar submissions from other agencies and that these inputs will be used as a basis for developing a time-phased plan. Individual projects can then be considered on a case-by-case basis.
3. Further, it is assumed that a single agency will be given the primary responsibility for developing military and para-military aspects of the basic plan. It is recommended that this responsibility for both overt and covert military operations be assigned the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

JUSTIFICATION FOR US MILITARY INTERVENTION IN CUBA (TS)

THE PROBLEM

1. As requested* by Chief of Operations, Cuba Project, the Joint Chiefs of Staff are to indicate brief but precise description of pretext which they consider would provide justification for US military intervention in Cuba.

FACTS BEARING ON THE PROBLEM

2. It is recognized that any action which becomes pretext for US military intervention in Cuba will lead to a political decision which then would lead to military action.

3. Cognizance has been taken of a suggested course of action proposed by the US Navy relating to generated instances in the Guantanamo area.

4. For additional facts see Enclosure B.

DISCUSSION

5. The suggested course of action appended to Enclosure A are based on the premise that US military intervention will result from a period of heightened US-Cuban tensions which place the United States in the position of suffering justifiable grievances. World opinion, and the United Nations forum should be favorably affected by developing the international image of the Cuban government as rash and irresponsible, and as an alarming and unpredictable threat to the peace of the Western Hemisphere.

6. While the foregoing premise can be utilized at the present time it will continue to hold good only as long as there can be reasonable certainty that US military intervention in Cuba would not directly involve the Soviet Union. There is

* Memorandum for General Craig from Chief of Operations, Cuba Project, subject: "Operation MONGOOSE", dated 5 March 1962, on file in General Craig's office.

 Memorandum for the Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff, from Chief of Naval Operations, subject: "Instances to Provoke Military Actions in Cuba (TS)", dated 8 March 1962, on file in General Craig's office.

as yet no bilateral mutual support agreement binding the USSR to the defense of Cuba, Cuba has not yet become a member of the Warsaw Pact, nor have the Soviets established Soviet bases in Cuba in the pattern of US bases in Western Europe. Therefore, since time appears to be an important factor in resolution of the Cuba problem, all projects are suggested within the time frame of the next few months.

CONCLUSION

7. The suggested courses of action appended to Enclosure A satisfactorily respond to the statement of the problem. However, these suggestions should be forwarded as a preliminary submission suitable for planning purposes, and together with similar inputs from other agencies, provide a basis for development of a single, integrated, time-phased plan to focus all efforts on the objective of justification for US military intervention in Cuba.

RECOMMENDATIONS

8. It is recommended that:

- a. Enclosure A together with its attachments should be forwarded to the Secretary of Defense for approval and transmittal to the Chief of Operations, Cuba Project.
- b. This paper NOT be forwarded to commanders of unified or specified commands.
- c. This paper NOT be forwarded to US officers assigned to NATO activities.
- d. This paper NOT be forwarded to the Chairman, US Delegation, United Nations Military Staff Committee.

MEMORANDUM FOR CHIEF OF OPERATIONS, CUBA PROJECT

Subject: Justification for US Military Intervention
in Cuba (TS)

1. Reference is made to memorandum from Chief of Operations, Cuba Project, for General Craig, subject: "Operation MONGOOSE", dated 5 March 1962, which requested brief but precise description of pretexts which the Joint Chiefs of Staff consider would provide justification for US military intervention in Cuba.

2. The projects listed in the enclosure hereto are forwarded as a preliminary submission suitable for planning purposes. It is assumed that there will be similar submissions from other agencies and that these inputs will be used as a basis for developing a time-phased plan. The individual projects can then be considered on a case-by-case basis.

3. This plan, incorporating projects selected from the attached suggestions, or from other sources, should be developed to focus all efforts on a specific ultimate objective which would provide adequate justification for US military intervention. Such a plan would enable a logical build-up of incidents to be combined with other seemingly unrelated events to camouflage the ultimate objective and create the necessary impression of Cuban rashness and irresponsibility on a large scale, directed at other countries as well as the United States. The plan would also properly integrate and time phase the courses of action to be pursued. The desired resultant from the execution of this plan would be to place the United States in the apparent position of suffering defensible grievances from a rash and irresponsible government of Cuba and to develop an international image of a Cuban threat to peace in the Western Hemisphere.

4. Time is an important factor in resolution of the Cuban problem. Therefore, the plan should be so time-phased that projects would be operable within the next few months.

5. Inasmuch as the ultimate objective is overt military intervention, it is recommended that primary responsibility for developing military and para-military aspects of the plan for both overt and covert military operations be assigned the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Analysis

The 1982 calendar that Kavanaugh submitted to senators, annotated

To rebut an allegation that he assaulted a teenage girl at a party while he was in high school, the judge gave lawmakers a calendar of his activities for that summer. (Well, there you go ... evidence of no assault if he didn't write assault in his calendar, then no assault

Third woman accuses Kavanaugh of sexual misconduct

The woman, identified by lawyer Michael Avenatti as his client Julie Swetnick, said Brett M. Kavanaugh was physically abusive toward girls in high school and was present at a 1982 party where she says she was the victim of a “gang” rape. The Post has not verified her allegations.

Meanwhile, the Supreme Court nominee is set to tell senators at a Thursday hearing that while he was “not perfect” in high school, he says he did not sexually assault Christine Blasey Ford when they were teens.

FoxNews' Twitter account shared clips of Trump talking immediately before and after the UN General Assembly laughed at him.

The laughter isn't in either clip.

This is what state-run propaganda channels do when their boss is humiliated on the world stage.

A republican President fired a republican head of the FBI, and is now furious with his republican Attorney General for stepping down and allowing his republican Deputy Attorney General to assign a republican former head of the FBI to lead the investigation into Russian collusion. Also so far that person has overturned evidence to a presidentially hand picked republican State Attorney General who authorized the republican President's attorney to have his office raided.

And this is all somehow the fault of the Democrats.

Brett Kavanaugh's record as a judge and lawyer is clear: hostile to health care for millions, opposed to the CFPB & corporate accountability, thinks Presidents like Trump are above the law – and conservatives are confident that he would overturn Roe v. Wade. I'll be voting no.

The image shows a large crowd of people at a protest or demonstration. The central focus is a large white sign held up by a person, which contains a satirical joke about Donald Trump. The sign is held up by a person whose arm and hand are visible. In the background, many other people are visible, some holding their own signs. To the left, a sign says "ONLY ONE IN JAIL!". To the right, a sign says "FAMILIES BELONG TOGETHER". Another sign further back says "STAND UP TO RACISM SAY NO TO RACISM". The scene is outdoors, with large trees providing shade. The atmosphere appears to be one of a large-scale public gathering.

RAPE CULTURE SOUNDS LIKE THIS

A selection of what our politicians have to say about rape.
(compiled by Pragna Belarona Vieira)

"SOME GIRLS RAPE EASY."

- Former WI Rep. Roger Rivard (R-75)

"From what I understand... if it's a legitimate rape, the female body has ways to try to shut that whole thing down."

- Former U.S. Rep. Todd Akin (R-MO)

"RAPE VICTIMS SHOULD MAKE THE BEST OF A BAD SITUATION."

- Rick Santorum (R)
Former Presidential Candidate

"The facts show that people who are raped—who are truly raped—the juices don't flow, the body functions don't work and they don't get pregnant."

- Former NC Rep. Henry Aldridge (R-9)

"WHAT DID THEY EXPECT?"

- Liz Trotta (FOX pundit, referring to women who are raped in the military)

"We do need to plan ahead, don't we, in life? I have spare tire on my car. I also have life insurance. I have a lot of things that I plan ahead for."

- KS Rep. Pete DuGraff (R-81)

"THE ODDS ARE ONE IN MILLIONS AND MILLIONS AND MILLIONS. AND THERE IS A PHYSICAL REASON FOR THAT. RAPE, OBVIOUSLY, IS A TRAUMATIC EXPERIENCE. WHEN THAT TRAUMATIC EXPERIENCE IS UNDERGONE, A WOMAN SECRETES A CERTAIN SECRETION, WHICH HAS A TENDENCY TO KILL SPERM."

- Rep. Stephen Freund (R-PA)

"Rape is kinda like the weather. If it's inevitable, relax and enjoy it."

- Clayton Williams (R)
Former TX gubernatorial Candidate

"I WOULD HOPE THAT WHEN A WOMAN GOES INTO A PHYSICIAN, WITH A RAPE ISSUE, THAT THAT PHYSICIAN WILL INDEED ASK HER ABOUT PERHAPS HER MARRIAGE, WAS THIS PREGNANCY CAUSED BY NORMAL RELATIONS IN A MARRIAGE, OR WAS IT TRULY CAUSED BY A RAPE."

- ID Senator "Chuck" Winder (R-14)

"In the emergency room they have what's called rape kits, where a woman can get cleaned out."

TX Rep. Jodie Laubenberg
(R-89)

"CONCERN FOR RAPE VICTIMS IS ARED HERRING BECAUSE CONCEPTIONS FROM RAPE OCCUR WITH APPROXIMATELY THE SAME FREQUENCY AS SNOWFALL IN MIAMI."

- Judge James Leon Holmes,
Bush appointee

BREAKING NEWS

Senate confirms Kavanaugh to Supreme Court Approved amid acrimonious battle, judge cements conservative majority on the high court

Brett M. Kavanaugh, 53, replaces the swing vote of retired justice Anthony M. Kennedy.
Abortion, affirmative action, the interplay of religious beliefs and gay rights, and the government's protection of the environment are among the issues affected by Kennedy's departure, and Kavanaugh is likely to be to the right of Kennedy on all.

Analysis: Senators representing less than half the U.S. confirmed a nominee opposed by most Americans

The Kavanaugh court is the one conservatives have worked decades to build

Expect re-energized efforts from social and religious conservatives to get their issues — gun-control challenges, religious objections to gay rights — before a court where like-minded justices will make up the majority. The median justice now is much more likely to be conservative Chief Justice John G. Roberts Jr.

The Take

Analysis

The Kavanaugh battle magnifies divisions and may leave lasting scars

The impact will be felt in the midterm elections, at the Supreme Court and especially in the gender differences shaping the politics of the country.

The president of Bolivia slammed Trump to his face:

"The United States could not care less about human rights or justice. If this were the case, it would have signed the international conventions and treaties that have protected human rights.

It would not have threatened the investigation mechanism of the International Criminal Court, nor would it promote the use of torture, nor would it have walked away from the Human Rights Council.

And nor would it have separated migrant children from their families, nor put them in cages."

I am a fiercely independent person and I am no one's pawn. My motivation in coming forward was to provide the facts about how Mr. Kavanaugh's actions have damaged my life, so that you can take that into serious consideration as you make your decision about how to proceed. It is not my responsibility to determine whether Mr. Kavanaugh deserves to sit on the Supreme Court. My responsibility is to tell the truth.

But standing together, we can stop the Trump agenda and work towards a brighter future for America. Can you contribute $5 to take back the House this fall? (It'll be Triple-Matched).

Albert, we MUST win the House in November.

We've got tremendous momentum already. Every day, more people join our movement to fight back against the intolerance, discrimination, and injustice of the Trump Administration.

It's crucial that we keep it up through Election Day.

2018 is our chance to put our grassroots energy to the test. It's our chance to reclaim the House and restore the people's voice in our politics.

Politics The Wrap

Jim Carrey Seeks Vengeance for Accuser of ‘Privileged Kavanaugh Goon’ in Latest Artwork

Jim Carrey wasted no time reacting to the confirmation of Supreme Court nominee Brett Kavanaugh on Saturday. Following the Senate’s confirmation of Kavanaugh by a 50-48 vote, actor-artist Carrey took to Twitter to pay tribute to Dr. Christine Blasey Ford, who accused Kavanaugh of sexual misconduct against her decades ago. The actor’s latest artwork depicted Ford awash in the colors red, white and blue.

Donald Trump's divisive agenda is threatening health care, immigration, voting rights, and campaign finance reform.

But standing together, we can stop the Trump agenda and work towards a brighter future for America. Can you contribute $5 to take back the House this fall? (It'll be Triple-Matched).

Albert, we MUST win the House in November.

Trump personally involved in legal effort to silence Stormy Daniels: Sources

President Donald Trump personally directed his former attorney, Michael Cohen, to initiate a legal response earlier this year to prevent adult-film star Stormy Daniels from speaking publicly about an alleged sexual encounter with Trump, people with direct knowledge of the matter tell ABC News. Cohen was instructed by the president in a February phone call to consult with his son, Eric Trump, who would coordinate the legal moves with an outside attorney for the Trump Organization, according to sources familiar with the events.
