A former campaign aide for President Trump, one of 81 people to receive a request for documents this week from the House Judiciary Committee, has already informed the committee that he has no records responsive to their inquiries and he does not plan to testify in front of the panel.

The letter from an attorney for Michael Caputo, who worked for Trump during part of the 2016 campaign, represents the first skirmish in what is likely to be broad resistance from Trump aides and associates to new inquiries issued this week by the Judiciary Committee.

Caputo told The Washington Post that he has already begun coordinating with four other Trump associates who received requests from the committee this week to begin a joint strategy of resisting requests for testimony.

“All four are reluctant to appear because they believe it’s a perjury trap [riiiiight well, if you tell the truth, no trap] designed to move toward impeachment of the president,” he said.

Many of those who received the requests this week have already been interviewed by the House and Senate intelligence committees, as well as special counsel Robert S. Mueller III. But the Judiciary Committee, which has the power to impeach the president, has launched its own wide-ranging probe of Trump campaign aides, business associates and family members as part of what Chairman Jerrold Nadler (D-N.Y.) said was a way to explore whether the Trump administration has abused its power. Nadler took control of the committee in January with the new Democratic majority in the House.

© Chip Somodevilla/Getty Images Former Trump campaign aide Michael Caputo arrives to testify before the House Intelligence Committee in July 2017.

Caputo attorney Dennis C. Vacco indicated in the letter that a committee staffer asked whether he would be willing to testify in front of the committee, a request that has not yet been made publicly of Caputo or other potential witnesses.

Vacco wrote that he told the committee lawyer that Caputo would not commit to appear, given that he already testified in front of other congressional committees.

“We see no reason why the House Judiciary Committee cannot obtain the transcript of Mr. Caputo’s testimony” from the House Intelligence Committee, Vacco wrote.

A spokesman for the committee declined to comment on Caputo’s letter. A person familiar with the exchange said there was no formal request for Caputo’s testimony but only a casual conversation between Caputo’s lawyer and committee attorney Barry Berke.

The Judiciary Committee blitzed dozens of Trump associates with broad requests this week, rather than issuing targeted questions at individuals.

The committee asked Caputo, for instance, to produce documents related to a June 2016 meeting at Trump Tower between Donald Trump Jr. and a Russian lawyer. Caputo did not attend the meeting and, according to his attorney, has no documents about it.

It also asked him to produce records related to any Russian government contact with a long list of other Trump aides and associates. His attorney again indicated he had no responsive documents to the request.

The committee, however, did not ask Caputo about his communications with Trump adviser Roger Stone, with whom he is close. Nor was he asked about his contacts with a Russian national who contacted him in May 2016 to offer information about Hillary Clinton in exchange for money. Stone met with the man at a Miami-area restaurant, but discussions ended after he asked for $2 million for his information. Caputo and Stone have alleged that the man was working for the FBI.

Politics The Independent Michael Cohen unloads on Trump in final testimony as Democrat chairman calls it 'enormously productive' Donald Trump's former personal lawyer - has completed several days of scathing testimony about the president, emerging from a closed-door hearing on Capitol Hill to declare the "committee members were satisfied" with the evidence he gave. On the day he had been due to start a three-year prison sentence after being convicted of paying hush money to two women in violation of campaign finance laws - something he claimed he did to protect Mr Trump - the Cohen completed his fourth and final day of testimony before congressional investigators. "I believe they're happy and I have given them my assurance that any additional information that they need I will continue to cooperate," the man who once bragged he would take a bullet for the president said, as he emerged from a hearing of the intelligence committee of the House of Representatives.

Video provided by Washington Post

A former campaign aide for President Trump, one of 81 people to receive a request for documents this week from the House Judiciary Committee, has already informed the committee that he has no records responsive to their inquiries and he does not plan to testify in front of the panel.

The letter from an attorney for Michael Caputo, who worked for Trump during part of the 2016 campaign, represents the first skirmish in what is likely to be broad resistance from Trump aides and associates to new inquiries issued this week by the Judiciary Committee.

Caputo told The Washington Post that he has already begun coordinating with four other Trump associates who received requests from the committee this week to begin a joint strategy of resisting requests for testimony.

“All four are reluctant to appear because they believe it’s a perjury trap [riiiiight well, if you tell the truth, no trap] designed to move toward impeachment of the president,” he said.

Many of those who received the requests this week have already been interviewed by the House and Senate intelligence committees, as well as special counsel Robert S. Mueller III. But the Judiciary Committee, which has the power to impeach the president, has launched its own wide-ranging probe of Trump campaign aides, business associates and family members as part of what Chairman Jerrold Nadler (D-N.Y.) said was a way to explore whether the Trump administration has abused its power. Nadler took control of the committee in January with the new Democratic majority in the House.

© Chip Somodevilla/Getty Images Former Trump campaign aide Michael Caputo arrives to testify before the House Intelligence Committee in July 2017.

Caputo attorney Dennis C. Vacco indicated in the letter that a committee staffer asked whether he would be willing to testify in front of the committee, a request that has not yet been made publicly of Caputo or other potential witnesses.

Vacco wrote that he told the committee lawyer that Caputo would not commit to appear, given that he already testified in front of other congressional committees.

“We see no reason why the House Judiciary Committee cannot obtain the transcript of Mr. Caputo’s testimony” from the House Intelligence Committee, Vacco wrote.

A spokesman for the committee declined to comment on Caputo's letter. A person familiar with the exchange said there was no formal request for Caputo's testimony but only a casual conversation between Caputo's lawyer and committee attorney Barry Berke.

The Judiciary Committee blitzed dozens of Trump associates with broad requests this week, rather than issuing targeted questions at individuals.

The committee asked Caputo, for instance, to produce documents related to a June 2016 meeting at Trump Tower between Donald Trump Jr. and a Russian lawyer. Caputo did not attend the meeting and, according to his attorney, has no documents about it.

It also asked him to produce records related to any Russian government contact with a long list of other Trump aides and associates. His attorney again indicated he had no responsive documents to the request.

The committee, however, did not ask Caputo about his communications with Trump adviser Roger Stone, with whom he is close. Nor was he asked about his contacts with a Russian national who contacted him in May 2016 to offer information about Hillary Clinton in exchange for money. Stone met with the man at a Miami-area restaurant, but discussions ended after he asked for $2 million for his information. Caputo and Stone have alleged that the man was working for the FBI.

Ann Coulter Hits Back at Trump: 'The Only National Emergency Is That Our President Is an Idiot'

Conservative commentator Ann Coulter responded to President Donald Trump's criticism of her, saying that "the only national emergency is that our president is an idiot." Her comments came after Trump declared a national emergency on the southern border, while distancing himself from Coulter. "Thank God he's relieved me of any responsibility for what he's been doing," Coulter told John Phillips and Jillian Barberie on KABC's "The Morning Drive" Friday. "That was the biggest favor anyone could do [for] me today." Also Read: Bill Maher and Ann Coulter Shout About Trump's Wall - and Over One Another - on 'Real Time' "It was one thing, the promise he made every single day at every single speech. Forget the fact that he's digging his own grave," Coulter continued. "The only national emergency is that our president is an idiot." The White House didn't immediately respond to TheWrap's request for comment. Asked about the influence of right-wing personalities on his views earlier on Friday, Trump mentioned Fox News host Sean Hannity and radio talk show host Rush Limbaugh, adding they did not "decide policy." Also Read: Mike Huckabee: If Ann Coulter Thinks She Can Do Better Than Trump, 'Let Her Run for Office' But when it came to Coulter, one of his biggest supporters, he said he did not to know her. "I haven't spoken to her. I don't follow her. I don't talk to her, but the press loves to bring up the name Ann Coulter,” Trump said the Rose Garden Friday morning. “Probably if I did speak to her, she would be very nice, but I just don’t have time to speak to her.”“She’s off the reservation,” Trump concluded. THE 29 MOST CONSEQUENTIAL LINES FROM MICHAEL COHEN'S CONGRESSIONAL TESTIMONY

ANALYSIS BY CHRIS CILLIZZA, CNN EDITOR-AT-LARGE UPDATED 5:22 PM ET, WED FEBRUARY 27, 2019

(CNN)Michael Cohen, President Donald Trump's one-time personal attorney and fixer, is testifying before the House Oversight Committee Wednesday -- likely the only chance the public will have to hear from him before he is sent to jail in May for a series of tax and campaign finance charges.

Cohen's testimony is one of the biggest moments of Trump's time in office and among the most high-profile hearings on Capitol Hill in modern political memory.

I watched Cohen's testimony throughout the day, plucked out key lines from him and added context and analysis. These lines are in the chronological order in which Cohen said them.

1. "I am ashamed because I know what Mr. Trump is. He is a racist. He is a conman. He is a cheat."

These lines, from Cohen's opening statement, set the tone for the day. And the tone is this: Cohen is not going to be pulling any punches on Trump. A man who spent a decade at the right hand of the current President of the United States is now saying on the record that that man is a "racist," a "conman" and a "cheat." We've grown used to the abnormal in Trump's White House, but even by that standard, this is a "whoa" moment.

2. "He was a presidential candidate who knew that Roger Stone was talking with Julian Assange about a WikiLeaks drop of Democratic National Committee emails."

And boom goes the dynamite. This is a Very Big Deal. Remember that Trump told The New York Times earlier this year that he had never spoken to Stone -- who has been indicted on charges that he lied to Congress about the nature and extent of his dealing with WikiLeaks -- about the DNC emails hacked by the Russians and then released to do maximum damage to Hillary Clinton's campaign. "No, I didn't. I never did," Trump said when asked whether he talked to Stone about the stolen emails. The Times also pressed on whether Trump told anyone, including Stone, to get in touch with WikiLeaks to see when they were planning to drop the emails. "Never did," Trump responded.

3. "A copy of a check Mr. Trump wrote from his personal bank account -- after he became president -- to reimburse me for the hush money payments I made to cover up his affair with an adult film star and prevent damage to his campaign."

Cohen has the receipts -- literally! The check -- for $35,000 -- is dated August 1, 2017, and signed in Trump's very distinctive script. That date is, obviously, after Trump became president. And if Cohen is to be believed, it also directly contradicts Trump's assertions in April 2018 that he knew nothing about where Cohen got the money to keep porn star Stormy Daniels and Playboy model Karen McDougal -- both of whom alleged affairs with Trump -- quiet during the 2016 campaign.

Of course, a check signed to Cohen is not proof that the money was a reimbursement for the hush payments -- although the check is consistent with Cohen's version of events and the version of events that prosecutors in the Southern District of New York seem to believe: That Trump played a role in coordinating and orchestrating the payments to Daniels and McDougal in a clear end-run of campaign finance laws.

4. "Mr. Trump did not directly tell me to lie to Congress. That's not how he operates."

This from Cohen directly disputes reporting from BuzzFeed News that Cohen was instructed to lie by the President. Special counsel Robert Mueller's office released a statement that took issue with the BuzzFeed reporting shortly after it published.

5. "There were at least a half-dozen times between the Iowa Caucus in January 2016 and the end of June when he would ask me 'How's it going in Russia?' -- referring to the Moscow Tower project."

This sheds light on the breadth of Trump's interest in and conversations about Trump Tower Moscow. What we knew prior to today is that Cohen lied to Congress when he told them that all conversations with the Russians about the development had stopped by January 2016. Cohen later admitted that he had lied about that because he was concerned it might hurt Trump's presidential chances if people knew that the conversations had continued all the way into the summer of 2016.

6. "Trump knew of and directed the Trump Moscow negotiations throughout the campaign and lied about it. He lied about it because he never expected to win the election. He also lied about it because he stood to make hundreds of millions of dollars on the Moscow real estate project."

A few things here are relevant. First, Trump lawyer Rudy Giuliani said in January that Trump was involved in discussions about the possible Trump Tower Moscow project all the way through the election. (Giuliani later said he was speaking only hypothetically about what Trump knew when.) Second, both that admission from Giuliani and Cohen's claim seem to directly dispute Trump's repeated insistence during the campaign that "I have nothing to do with Russia. I don't have any jobs in Russia. I'm all over the world but we're not involved in Russia."

7. "Mr. Trump would often say, this campaign was going to be the 'greatest infomercial in political history.'"

No matter how Trump tries to rewrite history, it is a fact that he never, ever thought he would be the Republican nominee -- much less the president. He had walked up to the edge of running a few times before and knew that if he didn't do it this time then people wouldn't cover him when he thought about it in the future. You can dispute Cohen's assertion that Trump's entire campaign was solely to further brand awareness, but you cannot dispute that the billionaire businessman never thought he would win.

8. "Mr. Stone told Mr. Trump that he had just gotten off the phone with Julian Assange and that Mr. Assange told Mr. Stone that, within a couple of days, there would be a massive dump of emails that would damage Hillary Clinton's campaign. Mr. Trump responded by stating to the effect of 'wouldn't that be great.'"

These lines are probably the most important in all of Cohen's opening statement -- and maybe in his broader daylong testimony. Per No. 2 above, Cohen's assertion that he was in the room when Trump talked to Stone about WikiLeaks and its plans to release stolen emails runs directly counter to Trump's public insistence that he had never talked to Stone about WikiLeaks. Directly counter. The timing of all of this is very interesting too. Cohen says in his testimony that the call occurred between Stone and Trump about WikiLeaks in July 2016. Later that month, Trump held a news conference in which he said: "Russia, if you're listening, I hope you're able to find the 30,000 emails that are missing, I think you will probably be rewarded mightily by our press." Either on or right around that day, according to an indictment of a number of Russian officials by Mueller, Russia sent phishing attempts to Clinton staffers.
Ahem.

9. "He once asked me if I could name a country run by a black person that wasn't a 'shithole.' This was when Barack Obama was President of the United States." Impossible to corroborate what Cohen is saying here -- unless there were other people in the room -- but this is consistent with reporting from CNN and others in January 2018 that Trump referred to immigrants coming into the US from "shithole" countries.

10. "He told me that black people would never vote for him because they were too stupid."

Again, virtually impossible to corroborate this. While Trump never said anything like what Cohen alleges in the 2016 campaign, his pitch to black voters was hugely stereotypical -- suggesting that they didn't have much, so why not take a chance on voting for him.

"What do you have to lose by trying something new, like Trump," Trump would often ask. "What the hell do you have to lose?"

11. "He asked me to pay off an adult film star with whom he had an affair, and to lie to his wife about it, which I did."

This runs directly counter to Trump's insistence that he a) knew nothing about the payment to Stormy Daniels and b) never spoke with Cohen about how to handle that situation. It is also runs counter to Trump's repeated denials that he ever engaged in extramarital acts with Daniels.

12. "This $35,000 check was one of 11 check installments that was paid throughout the year -- while he was President. The President of the United States thus wrote a personal check for the payment of hush money as part of a criminal scheme to violate campaign finance laws." The check Cohen is referencing -- from No. 3 above -- could be damning evidence. The problem, of course, is that nowhere on the check does it say that Trump is reimbursing Cohen for the $130,000 hush money payment to Daniels. Which gives Trump plausible deniability. Still, it doesn't look good. At all.

13. "I'm talking about a man who declares himself brilliant but directed me to threaten his high school, his colleges, and the College Board to never release his grades or SAT scores."

If you don't think Cohen is telling the truth here, then you have missed the entirety of Trump's professional and political life -- all of which make Cohen's claim wholly credible.

14. "He finished the conversation with the following comment. 'You think I'm stupid, I wasn't going to Vietnam.'"

Trump received a series of deferments that kept him out of the Vietnam war. He claimed he had a medical condition -- bone spurs -- that would make him unable to serve. Two daughters of the podiatrist who diagnosed Trump with those bone spurs told The New York Times that their father did so as a "favor" to Trump's father, Fred.

15. "Questions have been raised about whether I know of direct evidence that Mr. Trump or his campaign colluded with Russia. I do not."

NO COLLUSION!

16. "Don Jr. came into the room and walked behind his father's desk -- which in itself was unusual. People didn't just walk behind Mr. Trump's desk to talk to him. I recalled Don Jr. leaning over to his father and speaking in a low voice, which I could clearly hear, and saying: 'The meeting is all set.' I remember Mr. Trump saying, 'OK good...let me know.'"

This conversation, which Cohen said happened in early June 2016, is what he believes is a sign that President Trump knew about the June 2016 Trump Tower meeting between Don Jr, Jared Kushner, Paul Manafort and a group of Russians promising dirt on Clinton. Trump and Trump Jr. have denied that the President ever knew about the meeting. And in their defense, Cohen's memory is pure conjecture here; Don Jr. could have been talking about any number of meetings and Cohen has no proof that the President's eldest son was actually looping his father in on the meeting with the Russians.

17. "I have never asked for, nor would I accept, a pardon from President Trump."

This clears up one question I had coming into this hearing. But Cohen's statement doesn't make clear whether a pardon was ever offered -- or even floated by Trump or his allies.

18. "I did not want to go to the White House. I was offered jobs."

Cohen pushed back hard on the idea that Ohio Rep. Jim Jordan put forward that Cohen's willingness to attack Trump was entirely born of his anger that he had not been asked to serve in the White House. Cohen said that Trump wanted him to work in the White House but that he believed it would invalidate their attorney-client privilege and therefore make it impossible to do his other work on behalf of Trump. Donald Trump Jr. disagreed with Cohen's version of events, tweeting: "Hahahaha

Michael Cohen begged to work at the White House and everyone knows it."

19. "[Stone] frequently reached out to Mr. Trump and Mr. Trump was very happy to take his calls. It was -- free service."

This is important. Cohen made clear here that Roger Stone was not an operative of the Trump campaign but rather a sort-of friend who flitted in and out of Trump world. There was, according to Cohen, no codified relationship between the two -- although Cohen did say Trump was more than happy to take Stone's call and any information he offered.

20. "Mr. Trump's desire to win would have him work with anyone."

This was Cohen's response to Florida Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz's question as to whether the President was capable of working with the Russians to help him win an election. This is entirely speculative, of course, but it is worth noting that Cohen did know Trump better than almost anyone for more than a decade.

21. "Everything was done with the knowledge of, and at the direction of, Mr. Trump."

Cohen is speaking specifically here about his allegation that he worked on Trump's behalf to make him look wealthier in order to boost him on Forbes' list of the richest people in the country. For what it's worth, Trump dropped 220 slots on Forbes' list in 2017.

22. "It wasn't our responsibility to be the fact checker for a news agency."

Jordan wanted to know why Cohen's lawyer, Lanny Davis, had not denied the BuzzFeed News story last month which, citing informed sources, said that Cohen had told the special counsel's office that Trump had asked him to lie to Congress. The special counsel's office did dispute the story -- in broad terms -- although BuzzFeed did not retract it. Earlier in his testimony (see No. 5 above) Cohen said under oath that Trump had never directly asked him to lie to Congress.

23. "They want to know what I know about Mr. Trump ... and not one question has been asked about Mr. Trump."

After two hours of questioning and a brief break, Cohen used a question from Jordan to lecture Republicans. Cohen noted that Republicans on the Oversight Committee had spent hours forcing him to confess wrongs he had committed, which he had already admitted, rather than asking questions about his dealings with Trump as it related to either the hush payments to Daniels and McDougal or the President's involvement in the conversations about the Trump Tower Moscow development.

The two sparred several times on Wednesday. In another key moment of the hearing, Cohen said, "shame on you, Mr. Jordan," when arguing that the congressman had mischaracterized his testimony.

24. "I have no reason to believe that tape exists."

Democratic Rep. Jamie Raskin of Maryland kind of, sort of asked Cohen about whether he was aware -- or had ever seen -- what has been called the "pee tape," a rumored video of Trump watching prostitutes urinating at a hotel in Russia. (The allegation was made as part of a broader dossier compiled by former British spy Christopher Steele.) According to former FBI Director James Comey, Trump brought up the tape allegation and asked him to dispute it publicly if he could.

25. "He speaks in a code. And I understand the code because I've been around him for a decade."

One of Cohen's core arguments in his testimony is that Trump never directly told him to, say, lie to Congress because he didn't have to: Cohen, like others who had spent years with Trump, knew exactly what Trump wanted done. Whether you believe Cohen truly understands the "code" that Trump is speaking in -- or whether he is actually speaking in any code at all -- depends on how you view Trump (and Cohen).

Regardless, it seems clear that Trump did not expressly tell Cohen to break the law, although Cohen has clearly stated in his testimony that Trump sought to end-run campaign finance laws in paying off two women who alleged affairs with Trump in the mid-2000s.

26. "I have never been to Prague."

Well, that settles that. The Steele dossier alleged that Cohen traveled to Prague to meet with a Russian official during the 2016 campaign. Cohen denied he went to Prague, and said he instead went to Europe in 2016 but was in London to visit his daughter, who was studying abroad.

27. "I don't believe Mr. Trump ever struck Mrs. Trump, ever."

Cohen made this comment in response to questioning by Democratic California Rep. Jackie Speier about the possible existence of an elevator tape from Trump Tower in which Donald Trump is allegedly seen hitting his wife, Melania Trump. "Comedian" Tom Arnold has spread the idea that such an elevator tape exists, while offering no proof of that fact. Cohen said he believes no tape like that exists and that Trump was never violent with his wife.

28. "What he didn't want was to have an entire group of think tanks run through his tax return ... and then he'll end up in an audit and eventually have taxable consequences."

Asked by California Rep. Jimmy Gomez (D) what Trump had told Cohen about why he didn't want to release his tax returns, Cohen offered up this answer -- which is FAR different from the White House's official line that he cannot release the returns because he is under audit. According to Cohen, Trump was worried about being under audit if his returns were released and picked through. Which would suggest that he is not currently under audit, and that the real reason Trump is afraid of releasing his taxes is because he doesn't want to pay tax fines.

29. "I fear that if he loses the presidential election in 2020, there will never be a peaceful transition of power."

In Cohen's closing statement, he offered this ominous warning about what might happen if Trump loses a bid for a second term in 2020. It's not an idle threat, either. Remember that Trump has argued -- with no evidence -- that 3 to 5 million votes had been cast illegally in the 2016 election. And that was an election he won! Imagine what it would be like if he lost.

MICHAEL COHEN, TRUMP'S FORMER "FIXER," TESTIFIES AT A HEARING ON CAPITOL HILL. By Victor Reklaitis Money & Politics

Michael Cohen, President Donald Trump's former personal lawyer, spent hours on Wednesday taking questions from the House Oversight and Reform Committee.

After his striking prepared remarks came out late Tuesday, political analysts were bracing for fresh revelations in his Q&A with lawmakers.

See live blog and video of Cohen testimony

Here are six takeaways from what we heard in the back-and-forth from Cohen, who is set to serve time in prison for lying to Congress in 2017.

1. New probe of Trump by prosecutors revealed

In response to a question about his last conversation with Trump or Team Trump, Cohen declined to comment as follows: "This topic is something that's currently being investigated right now by the Southern District of New York."

That remark came during an exchange with Illinois Democratic Rep. Raja Krishnamoorthi, who then followed up with this question: "Is there any other wrongdoing or illegal act that you are aware of regarding Donald Trump that we haven't yet discussed today?"

“Yes,” Cohen said. “And again, those are part of the investigation that’s currently being looked at by the Southern District of New York.”

2. A Cohen book or movie could be in the works

North Carolina Republican Rep. Virginia Foxx accused Cohen of using his testimony for his own personal benefit, like getting book or movie deals.

She asked him to promise that he won’t pursue a deal along those lines, and Cohen refused to do so. He also refused to promise he wouldn’t run for office.

In an exchange with Tennessee Republican Rep. Mark Green, Cohen said he could make a note of what actor the congressman wants portraying him. That drew a chuckle from Green during the mostly tense hearing. GOP lawmakers repeatedly said Cohen’s past actions didn’t make him seem like a credible witness.

3. Cohen hints at other payments of hush money

Cohen’s testimony raised fresh questions about Trump ally David Pecker, the CEO of National Enquirer’s parent company. That company, American Media Inc., has admitted to making hush-money payments on Trump’s behalf to Karen McDougal during the 2016 presidential to quash her allegations about an affair.

Maryland Democratic Rep. Jamie Raskin asked if Pecker had done this in “other cases of other mistresses or women.”

“Other circumstances, yes,” Cohen said. “Not all of them had to do with women.”

4. Cohen says Trump-Sater documents probably in a box somewhere

Cohen talked about the Trump Organization’s ties to mob-linked operator Felix Sater, following questioning from California Democratic Rep. Harley Rouda.

Cohen alleged that Trump lied while under oath in 2013 when he said he didn’t know Sater well. He also said business records that show links between Sater and Trump are probably in a box at an offsite Trump Organization storage facility.

5. Cohen's 'Truth in Testimony Disclosure Form' questioned North Carolina Republican Rep. Mark Meadows, a Trump ally and head of the conservative Freedom Caucus, questioned how Cohen had filled out a "Truth in Testimony Disclosure Form" ahead of Wednesday's hearing.

The congressman blasted Cohen for not disclosing dealings with foreign entities on the form, but California Democratic Rep. Katie Hill later said at the hearing that witnesses just need to disclose contracts with a foreign government, not all overseas entities.

6. No trip to Prague

Cohen has faced an allegation, which surfaced in the infamous "dossier" of former British spy Christopher Steele, that he was in Prague in 2016 basically to serve as a liaison between the Trump campaign and Russian operatives.

But Cohen during this hearing said: "I've never been to Prague."

Susan Edelman Blank Trump is a personality disordered malignant narcissist who lacks guilt and empathy. He lives moment to moment; everything he does is all emotion-based behavior. There is no logic or reason or accountability to previous statements or acts. He is extremely impulsive and dangerous and must be removed from office (I am a psychotherapist trained in the diagnosis and treatment of personality disorders and have a Duty to Warn).

Susan Edelman Blank The only thing the Republicans have going for them is to keep repeating that Cohen is a liar and cheat, and they ask why the Democrats didn't get an honest man to testify about Trump? The reason: Trump wouldn't hire or confide in an honest man, and an honest man wouldn't work for Trump. Like the Mafia, made men protect the Don at all costs.

The bigger questions are: Why are supposedly reputable men, serving American citizens in good faith in our country's Congress, protecting a President who the FBI is investigating for being a Russian asset and the Southern District of New York is investigating for bank fraud, tax fraud, and money laundering ? Don't they want to know the truth about the man who sits in The Oval Office and acts as the Leader of the Free World? Talk about blind loyalty. [No, Susan. Your observation is laudable, courageous; but, unfortunately a bit too forgiving and optimistic From direct observation and experience it is self-interest, greed, cowardice, fear, and complicit criminality that perpetuates the likes of trump, or hitler, etc.. Dear Congresswoman Roybal-Allard:

The following is my comment to an LA Times article regarding a Justice Department cover-up! As for your inquiry, all I think about day and night is a long overdue resolution to the RICO litigation as set forth therein:

ATF Chief Melson: Justice Department trying to shield officials (LATimes) Serrano

I believe him!

I truly empathize with the ATF in terms of government cover-ups, notably by even the DOJ. You'll recognize some familiar names (ie., Alito, Trump, Freeh (Louis Freeh now has dual citizenship with Italy), and some familiar crimes (ie., drug money laundering, etc. – real cash cow for gov't ops, bribes, etc.). [Did you know this about the following ATF Agents who were probably viewed as loose ends: Steve Willis, Robert Williams, Todd McKeahan & Conway LeBleu: Died February 28, 1993 by gunfire at Waco. All four were examined by a pathologist and died from identical wounds to the left temple. All four had been body guards for Bill Clinton, three while campaigning for President and when he was Governor of Arkansas. They also were the ONLY 4 BATF agents killed at Waco.]

Here's some real, complicit cover-up / fraud on the part of the federal government, et als:

October 15, 2010 (*see infra {ultimately delivered by UPS})

Steven M. Martinez, Assistant Director In Charge
Federal Bureau of Investigation, USDOJ
11000 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 1700
Los Angeles, CA 90024

Dear Sir:

I enclose herewith 3 copies of the within DVD rom autorun disk (which will open in your computer's browser) as per your office's request as made this day (the disk and contents have been scanned by Avast, McAfee, and Norton which I've installed on my computer to prevent viral attacks / infection and are without threat). I also include 1 copy of the DVD as filed with the subject court as referenced therein (which files are also included on the aforesaid 3 disks in a separate folder named '112208opocoan'). The (civil) RICO action (as you're aware, the RICO Act is a criminal statute which provides a civil remedy, including treble damages and attorney fees, as an incentive for private prosecution of said claims probably owing to the fact that the USDOJ seems somewhat overwhelmed and in need of such assistance given the seriousness and prevalence of said violations of law which have a corrupting influence on the process, and which corruption is pervasive). A grievance complaint against Coan was also filed concurrently with the subject action and held in abeyance pending resolution of the action which was illegally dismissed without any supporting law and in contravention of the Order of The Honorable Robert N. Chatigny, Chief Judge, USDC, District Connecticut. The files below the horizontal rule are the referenced documents as filed. (Owing to the damage to the financial interests of both the U.S. and the District of Congresswoman Roybal-Allard, viz., Los Angeles, the Qui Tam provisions of the Federal False Claims Act probably would apply and I would absent resolution seek to refer the within to a firm with expertise in that area of the law with which I am not familiar).

The document in 5 pages under penalty of perjury I was asked to forward to the FBI office in New Haven is probably the best and most concise summary of the case RICO Summary to FBI Under Penalty of Perjury at Their Request (5 pages) [ricosummarytoFBIunderpenaltyofperjury.pdf <http://albertpeia.com/ricosummarytoFBIunderpenaltyofperjury.pdf>].

The correspondence I received from the Congresswoman by way of email attachment (apparent but typical problem with my mail) along with my response thereto is included on the 3 disks as fbicorrespondencereyes.htm . With regard to the calls to the FBI's LA and New Haven, CT offices: There was one call to the LA office and I was referred to the Long Beach, CA office where I personally met with FBI Agent Jeff Hayes to whom I gave probative evidentiary documents of the money laundering which he confirmed as indicative of same (he was transferred from said office within approximately a month of said meeting and his location was not disclosed to me upon inquiry). The matter was assigned to FBI Agent Ron Barndollar and we remained in touch for in excess of a decade until he abruptly retired (our last conversation prior to his retirement related to the case and parenthetically, Rudy Giuliani whose father I stated had been an enforcer for the mob to which he registered disbelief and requested I prove it, which I did – he served 12 years in prison, aggravated assault/manslaughter? – and no, there is no Chinese wall of separation – Andrew Maloney's the one that prosecuted gotti).

In contradistinction to the statement in said correspondence, there is a plethora of information including evidence supporting the claims set forth in the RICO VERIFIED COMPLAINT (see infra). Such includes and as set forth in the case, inter alia,

- A judgment had been entered in my favor in the case, United States District Court Case #3:93cv02065(AWT)(USDCJ Alvin Thompson), worth approximately now in excess of $300,000 remains unaccounted for and which could be used for payment to creditors, Los Angeles, etc..
- Counsel Robert Sullivan on my behalf documented by way of certification upon investigation that Alan Shiff, USBCJ, had falsely stated a dismissal upon which false statement he predicated a retaliatory and spurious contempt proceeding against me causing substantial damage, and for which he sought Judicial Notice of those and related proceedings as did I in some of my filings.
- The Order of Dismissal With Prejudice by Alan Shiff, USBCJ, owing to Defendant Coan's failure to file anything whatsoever by the court's deadline causing creditors and me substantial damages: [Shiff Order of Dismissal With Prejudice on Coan's Failure to File Page 1 Page 2]
- Defendant Coan had filed an action against me to prevent me from suing him which necessitated me to fly to Connecticut for a hearing before The Honorable Robert N. Chatigny, Chief Judge, USDC, District of Connecticut, who denied Coan's requested relief as to Coan but precluded my action against Shiff (although there is no immunity, judicial or otherwise, for criminal acts, ie., fraud connected with a case under Title 11, USC, etc.) . [transcript in pertinent part - <http://albertpeia.com/crossexamofcoanbyeia.pdf>]

- Newly appointed judge, Maryanne Trump Barry, Donald Trump's sister, was assigned the RICO case despite the conflict of interest in light of hundreds of thousands of dollars of illegal (drug) money being laundered through the Trump casinos by the RICO defendants, and despite my motion to recuse her which motion she heard herself and denied, and U.S. Trustee Hugh Leonard with whom I met personally refused to join or file a separate motion to recuse and not long thereafter left said office for private practice at Cole, Shotz, et als on retainer with the RICO defendants as his primary client.
- Probative and evidentiary documents, affidavits, exhibits, including those turned over to FBI Agent Jeff Hayes in Long Beach, CA, had been given to Assistant U.S. Attorney Jonathan Lacey with whom I met personally at the U.S. Attorney's Office in Newark, N.J., at which time Samuel Alito was U.S. Attorney, and went over said documents and their probative value with him. Within approximately a month thereafter upon inquiry I was told that Jonathon Lacey was no longer with the office, that the file/documents could not be located, and that there was no further information available concerning contacting him or his location. I thereupon delivered by hand, copies of said documents to the office of then U.S. Attorney Alito, addressed to him, with assurance they would go directly to him. In addition to being inept [I looked in on the one mob case he had brought, bungled, lost (accidently on purpose?) since I was suing some mob-connected under RICO and the court (I had known / previously met outside of court the judge Ackerman through a client) was absolute bedlam and a total joke since incompetent corrupt Alito brought in all 20 mob defendants (rather than prosecute one or a few to flip them first) who feigning illness had beds/cots in the courtroom along with their moans during testimony and had the jury in stitches. As much as I hate the mob, it truly was funny, if not so tragic.], Alito is also corrupt (and maybe corrupt because he is inept). After a reasonable (but still rather short) time I called to determine the status and was told that Alito was no longer with the Office of the U.S. Attorney, that he was (appointed) a federal judge, and that neither the documents nor any file or record of same could be located. Alito did parley the same / cover-up into quid pro quo direct lifetime appointment to the Court of Appeals, 3rd circuit, despite the absence of judicial experience or successful tenure as U.S. Attorney (Maryanne Trump Barry as well). This is the same Sam Alito that now sits on the purported highest court in the land. The real application of the illegal rule 'don't ask, don't tell'.

There is applicable insurance / surety coverage and neither LA, nor creditors, nor I should continue to have been damaged by this brazened corrupt and illegal scenario, which should be resolved in accordance with the meaningful rules of law apposite thereto.

Sincerely,

Albert L. Peia

The Recession Will Likely Start This Month

Sovereign Investor Daily, U.S. Economy February 11, 2019February 8, 2019 Michael Carr

In December, business leaders worried about a recession.

According to the Duke University/CFO Global Business Outlook, 48.6% of U.S. chief financial officers believe the nation's economy will enter a recession by the end of 2019.

The Federal Reserve raised interest rates but noted an increase in economic risks. Fed Chair Jerome Powell hinted the Fed might start cutting rates soon.

Somehow, everyone seemed to forget about all that when the stock market rallied in January. But they should remain worried.

Indicators tell us a recession is likely. And it's likely to start this month.

The Triggers for a Recession

In the past, recessions began in the month when the unemployment rate rose 0.4% from its bottom.

Unemployment fell to 3.7% in November. The trigger for a recession is 4.1%.

It was 4% in January.

On average, the trigger follows the bottom by eight months. But it's ranged from as little as two months to as many as 17.

You might wonder why no one at the Fed noticed this. Chances are high they did.

The Fed became concerned about a recession and changed policy in the past few months.

You might wonder why other analysts ignore this indicator. That's probably because it didn't work well recently.

The last three signals were early. Recessions followed unemployment-rate lows by an average of 13 months. But interest rates were in long-term downtrends at those times.

When interest rates are in long-term uptrends, recessions followed the bottom in unemployment by just six months. That's where we are now.

Interest rates bottomed in July 2016. They almost doubled since then.

Of course, this is just one indicator warning of recession. Another one is my Recession Watch Indicator.

The Fed triggered that in December 2016.

The indicator has an average lead time of 17 months. It points to a recession starting by the second quarter of 2019.

Beware the Yield Curve

The yield curve also continues pointing to a recession.

The yield curve shows the price of money over time. It charts the difference between interest rates on bonds with different times to maturity.

A popular yield curve is the 10/2, which compares the yield of the 10-year Treasury to the 2-year Treasury.

Yields on the 10-year are usually higher than yields on the 2-year. That's because there's more risk that things can go wrong over 10 years than there is in two years.

When the 10-year yield falls below the 2-year yield, the yield curve inverts.

In the past, that meant investors were worried about the short-term outlook for the economy, but they were still confident about the long term.

The yield curve is at 0.16% right now, well below its 10-year average of 1.64%.

The chart below shows that every time the curve fell this low, it eventually inverted, and a recession followed.

This cluster of indicators confirms the stock market's message.

Stocks peaked in October. The peak usually occurs about six months before the recession begins. That points to an April start date.

All these indicators only provide approximate forecasts. But they all agree: The next recession is starting soon.

Michael Carr, CMT, CFTe

How Team Trump keeps changing its story in the Russia investigation

By Marshall Cohen, Sam Fossum, Em Steck, Tal Yellin

Videos produced by McKenna Ewen

Published February 13, 2019

Over the past two years, President Donald Trump and his team have offered changing accounts regarding key matters in the Russia investigation. Their denials have been debunked, Trump has contradicted his senior aides and sometimes his team has completely flipped its position.

Special counsel Robert Mueller is investigating Russian interference in the 2016 election along with potential collusion between Trump's campaign and the Russian government. So far, six Trump associates have been charged, but nobody has been implicated in collusion. Trump adamantly denies collusion.

Public contradictions, walkbacks and flip-flops have become a hallmark of how Trump's team has responded to the Russia probe, which was launched in 2016 and is now in its third year.

Here are the most consequential examples of Team Trump changing its story.

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Russian collusion

Did any Trump campaign aides have contacts with Russia?

Then No. There weren't any.

In July 2016, while he was chairman of the Trump campaign, Paul Manafort flatly denied any ties existed between the campaign and Russia, calling the idea “absurd” in an ABC News interview. Two days after Trump’s victory, Trump spokeswoman Hope Hicks said, “There was no communication between the campaign and any foreign entity during the campaign.”

Asked in January 2017 if there had been contacts with Russians, Trump replied, “No, not at all.” These blanket denials were later repeated by Vice President Mike Pence, White House counselor Kellyanne Conway and White House press secretary Sarah Sanders.

Now Yes, there were many.

These adamant denials have been eviscerated in the two-plus years since the election. At least 16 Trump associates had contacts with Russians during the campaign or before the inauguration, according to public statements, court filings, and news reports.

Senior campaign aides and members of Trump’s family were in contact with Russians through in-person meetings, phone calls, emails, Twitter messages and more. Trump now acknowledges that there were contacts but says there was no collusion.

Russian collusion

Did anyone on the Trump campaign collude with Russia?

Then There was no collusion whatsoever.

Trump has said on several occasions that there was “no collusion whatsoever” between his campaign and the Russians, a blanket denial that seems to cover his entire campaign. (He has also said dozens of times that there was simply “no collusion.”) In an interview with Fox News, Trump’s lawyer Rudy Giuliani said that there was no collusion between the “upper levels of the Trump campaign” and the Russians.

Now Trump himself didn't collude.

Giuliani moved the goalposts in January 2019 in an interview with CNN. He said: "I never said there was no collusion between the campaign, or people in the campaign ... I have not. I said the President of the United States." These comments came shortly after unredacted court filings revealed that while Manafort led Trump's campaign, he gave internal polling data to a Russian with intelligence ties.

Sanders said something similar in January after Trump ally Roger Stone was charged with lying about his ties to WikiLeaks, saying, "There was no collusion. There was no wrongdoing by the President."

Russian collusion

What was the purpose of the Trump Tower meeting?

Then To discuss Russian adoptions.

Donald Trump Jr. secretly met a group of Russians at Trump Tower in June 2016, along with his brother-in-law Jared Kushner and Manafort. The meeting wasn't revealed until a series of articles a year later. When the news broke, Trump Jr. put out a statement, claiming, "We primarily discussed a program about the adoption of Russian children that was active and popular with American families years ago."

The adoption issue is closely tied to economic sanctions imposed by the US against Russia after the 2014 Ukraine crisis, and lifting those sanctions is a top priority for Russian President Vladimir Putin. Trump Jr.'s statement about the meeting, which the President had a hand in crafting, gave the false impression that the meeting had nothing to do with the 2016 election.

Now To get dirt on Hillary Clinton.

The New York Times later revealed that the true nature of the meeting was for the Trump campaign to get damaging information about Clinton, the Democratic nominee. Trump Jr. later acknowledged this and released an email chain showing that he was told that the Russian government wanted to help Trump win and that a Russian lawyer could provide him with dirt on Clinton.

The President eventually admitted, “This was a meeting to get information on an opponent,” but said it was “totally legal.” Trump Jr. testified on Capitol Hill that the Russians didn’t actually bring any dirt and the meeting was a bust.

Russian collusion

Did Trump draft the misleading Trump Tower meeting statement?

Then Nope. He wasn’t even involved.

As news was breaking about the Trump Tower meeting, Trump and his lawyers insisted he wasn’t involved in writing the misleading statement issued under his son’s name. Trump lawyer Jay Sekulow told CNN: “That was written by Donald Trump Jr. and I’m sure with consultation with his lawyer. That wasn’t written by the President.” (He repeated this false denial in several interviews that week.)

Sanders later said Trump “certainly didn’t dictate” the statement, but “weighed in as any father would.”

Now Yes. He dictated the statement.

In a confidential letter sent to Mueller in January 2018, the President’s lawyers admitted that Trump dictated the controversial statement but they maintained that it was accurate. According to The New York Times, they wrote: “You have received all of the notes, communications and testimony indicating that the President dictated a short but accurate response to the New York Times article on behalf of his son, Donald Trump, Jr.”

Comey firing

Why did Trump fire Comey?

Then Because of the Clinton email investigation.

Trump's official explanation for firing FBI Director James Comey in May 2017 was that Comey mismanaged the Clinton email investigation and lost the confidence of rank-and-file FBI agents. The White House said this rationale was backed up by letters of recommendation from Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein and then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions

Pence and Conway also echoed these talking points in the days after Comey's ouster.

Now Because of the Russia investigation.

Days later, Trump contradicted the official story. In a now-infamous interview, he told NBC News: "Regardless of recommendation, I was going to fire Comey knowing there was no good time to do it. And in fact, when I decided to just do it, I said to myself, I said, you know, this Russia thing with Trump and Russia is a made-up story. It's an excuse by the Democrats for having lost an election that they should've won."

About a year later, Giuliani similarly linked Comey's firing to Russia. He said Comey was dismissed after refusing to assure Trump that he wasn't a target of the Russia investigation.

Comey firing

Did Trump tell Comey to go easy on Flynn?

Then Absolutely not.

Comey claimed that during a private meeting at the White House in February 2017, Trump asked him to drop the FBI's investigation into Michael Flynn, his former national security adviser. Comey detailed these claims in contemporaneous memos and testified to Congress that Trump said, "I hope you can see your way clear to letting this go, to letting Flynn go. He is a good guy. I hope you can let this go."

Trump has categorically denied Comey's claims. The President also tweeted a denial in December 2017, saying: "I never asked Comey to stop investigating Flynn. Just more Fake News covering another Comey lie!"

Now It's possible.

Shortly after joining Trump's legal team, Giuliani contradicted the President's consistent denials about Comey and Flynn. Giuliani told ABC News that Trump asked Comey to give Flynn "a break," and emphasized that Trump's comments were a friendly request and not an order from the President.

Giuliani later backpedaled from his comments and denied that any conversation about Flynn ever took place between Trump and Comey. "There was no conversation about Michael Flynn," Giuliani told CNN.

Legal process

Will Trump agree to an interview with Mueller?

Then He wants to do it.

The special counsel's office has long sought a one-on-one interview with Trump for its investigation. Trump has publicly expressed interest in doing it. Trump told reporters he was "100 percent" willing to testify under oath about his interactions with Comey. In January 2018, Trump said he was "looking forward to it," when asked about an interview with Mueller's team.

A date was set for an interview at the presidential retreat at Camp David, but Trump's legal team rejected the plan and the interview fell through at the last moment. Even after that, Trump said, "Yes, I would like to" testify.

Now Zero chance.

Trump and Mueller's lawyers battled throughout 2018 over the contours of the President's testimony. Trump lawyers fought with their client as well, trying to tamp down his desire to testify. They eventually submitted written answers to Mueller's questions around Thanksgiving 2018.

CNN later reported that Trump's team rebuffed yet another request for an interview with the special counsel's office. Giuliani said a presidential interview would happen "over my dead body." Giuliani had warned that he opposes an interview because he believes Mueller's prosecutors will try to lure Trump into a perjury trap.

Legal process

Can a sitting US president obstruct justice?

Then No.

Mueller continues to investigate the question of whether any of Trump's actions or statements amounted to obstruction of justice. In December 2017, Trump attorney John Dowd told Axios that a sitting president "cannot obstruct justice because he is the chief law enforcement officer."

One month later, Dowd and Sekulow laid out this legal theory in a confidential letter to Mueller's team, arguing that actions authorized by the Constitution cannot be obstruction, including the official action of firing an FBI director.

Now Possibly.

Months later, Giuliani expressed the opposite view. CNN's Chris Cuomo asked, "You don't think a president can obstruct justice?" Giuliani's answer was, "He can," breaking with the theory that a president can't obstruct justice because he essentially leads the Justice Department.

Still, Giuliani added that he believes firing an FBI director is a constitutionally protected move that can't be obstruction.

Legal process

How do Trump's lawyers view Mueller?

Then He's a respected and focused investigator.

At the outset, Trump's legal team struck a respectful tone when talking about Mueller. White House special counsel Ty Cobb told Reuters that Mueller's investigators were "appropriately focused." In early 2018, Dowd praised Mueller's indictment of 13 Russian trolls who interfered in the US election. After leaving the legal team, Dowd said, "We had a terrific relationship with Mueller... completely open, people trusted each other and we had no misunderstandings."

These lawyers oversaw a period of extensive cooperation with Mueller, providing thousands of documents and making White House aides available for interviews.

Now He's a corrupt partisan on a witch hunt.

Trump shuffled around his legal team in spring 2018 and hired Giuliani to mount an aggressive campaign against Mueller in the press. Giuliani has said Mueller is running the "most corrupt investigation I have ever seen." He also called for an investigation into Mueller's conduct and accused him of hiding anti-Trump bias on his team.

Trump branded the investigation a "witch hunt" and a "disgrace to our nation." He has repeatedly referred to Mueller's team as a group of "angry Democrat thugs." (Mueller is a lifelong Republican and was appointed by Rosenstein, Trump's handpicked No. 2 at the Justice Department. Some members of Mueller's team previously donated to Democrats, which is permitted under department rules.)

Legal process

Is Trump going to pardon Manafort?

Then It's not being considered.

The New York Times reported in March 2018 that Dowd had previously floated the possibility of pardons with lawyers representing Manafort and

Flynn. Cobb swiftly denied the story and said, “No pardons are under discussion or under consideration at the White House.”

Months later, the topic of pardons came up again when Manafort was convicted on eight counts of financial fraud in August 2018. Sanders said from the White House podium, “Once again, that’s not something that has been up for discussion.”

Now It’s still on the table.

One day after Sanders’ denial, Giuliani acknowledged that he recently discussed pardons with Trump. Giuliani told the Huffington Post that they had “a quick meeting” about pardons, and that they agreed “not to pardon anybody during the pendency of the investigation.”

Trump later contradicted Giuliani and claimed that pardons weren’t ever discussed, but also refused to rule one out for Manafort. “It was never discussed, but I wouldn’t take it off the table. Why would I take it off the table?” he said in an interview with the New York Post.

- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Russian business ties

Does Trump have any business ties to Russia?

Then Trump has nothing to do with Russia.

Throughout the 2016 campaign and well into the first two years of his presidency, Trump denied having any business dealings in Russia. He issued blanket denials on the campaign trail, and repeatedly claimed that he had “nothing to do with Russia.” Shortly before taking office in January 2017, Trump said: “I have no dealings with Russia. I have no deals that could happen in Russia, because we’ve stayed away.”

Now Trump pursued Russia deals through 2016.

Trump's company explored a lucrative real estate deal in Russia deep into the 2016 campaign. Trump shifted his story after his former attorney pleaded guilty in December 2018 to lying to Congress about the Moscow project. Trump said, "This deal was a very public deal. Everybody knows about this deal. I wasn't trying to hide anything," despite the fact that the deal was never disclosed before he took office.

Russian business ties

When did discussions end for Trump Tower Moscow?

Then January 2016 before the primaries.

In September 2015, a few months after after Trump launched his presidential campaign, the Trump Organization began discussions for a Trump Tower in Moscow. Michael Cohen, a personal attorney to Trump and a senior executive at the Trump Organization, led the negotiations with a Russian company.

In his September 2017 closed-door testimony to lawmakers, Cohen described it as a "rejected proposal to build a Trump property in Moscow that was terminated in January of 2016; which occurred before the Iowa caucus and months before the very first primary."

Now Possibly as late as November 2016.

In November 2018, Cohen admitted that he lied to Congress about Trump Tower Moscow and pleaded guilty to perjury. Negotiations continued "as late as approximately June 2016," according to court filings. Mueller's team asked Trump written questions about when the proposal fell through, and Giuliani said their answer "covered all the way up to November 2016."

In subsequent TV interviews, Giuliani repeated that conversations could have continued "up until November 2016." Giuliani later backtracked and said his comments were "hypothetical and not based on conversations I had with the President."

Russian business ties

Did Trump sign a letter of intent for Trump Tower Moscow?

Then No, he didn't.

In December 2018, Giuliani told CNN that Trump never signed a letter of intent for the Trump Tower Moscow project, which was pursued by his company during the 2016 presidential campaign. Giuliani said: "It was a real estate project. There was a letter of intent to go forward, but no one signed it."

Now Yes, he did.

Shortly after Giuliani's comments, CNN published copies of the document bearing Trump's signature, confirming that Trump did sign the non-binding agreement for a real estate deal in the heart of Moscow. Giuliani backtracked from his original statement. "I was wrong if I said it," he told CNN. "I haven't seen the quote, but I probably meant to say there was never a deal, much less a signed one."

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing

- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Trump on his associates

How does Trump view campaign aides under Russia scrutiny?

Then They're the best of the best.

Before any of Trump's campaign aides got in trouble, he painted them as the best and brightest people who could be involved on a presidential team. Trump said foreign policy adviser George Papadopoulos was "an excellent guy" when he named Papadopoulos as an adviser in March 2016.

When Manafort resigned from the campaign in August 2016, Trump said he was “very appreciative for his great work in helping to get us where we are today,” and commended Manafort as a “true professional.”

Now They’re irrelevant nobodies.

Papadopoulos pleaded guilty in 2017 to lying to the FBI about his contacts with Russians during the campaign. Trump downplayed Papadopoulos’ role, saying: “Few people knew the young, low level volunteer named George, who has already proven to be a liar.” Others in the Trump orbit said Papadopoulos was a “coffee boy” on the campaign who had no influence.

During Manafort financial fraud trial in summer 2018, Trump distanced himself from his onetime campaign chairman. Trump said, “Manafort has nothing to do with our campaign ... Paul Manafort worked for me for a very short period of time.”

Trump on his associates

What does Trump think of Cohen?

Then He’s a trusted attorney.

Trump and his team praised Cohen countless times, before he flipped. At a closed-door fundraiser in 2017, Trump said, “Michael is a great lawyer ... a loyal, wonderful person,” according to audio leaked by The Intercept. Trump criticized the FBI raids in April 2018 against Cohen and said they were a disgraceful move against “a good man.”

Shortly after that, Trump wrote in a tweet that he “always liked and respected” Cohen, whom he described as a “fine person” who was unlikely to assist investigators. It wasn’t just Trump, either -- Giuliani said Cohen was “an honest, honorable lawyer” after the FBI raids.

Now He is a desperate liar.

Trump’s relationship with Cohen deteriorated as it became clear that his ex-lawyer was open to helping federal investigations into Trump’s company and campaign. Trump and his lawyers said Cohen should not be trusted, despite Cohen’s decade-long role at the Trump Organization.

Giuliani said Cohen was a “pathological liar” and said that Cohen “lied all his life.”

Trump sharply criticized Cohen for secretly taping him. He even called Cohen a “rat” for cooperating with Mueller. Trump also downplayed Cohen’s onetime role as his attorney, saying Cohen “was a PR person who did small legal work.”

THE BIPARTISAN SPENDING BINGE IS NOW WORSE THAN UNDER BUSH AND OBAMA

Daniel Horowitz · February 15, 2019

Bet_Noire | Getty Images

We're now $22 trillion in debt, yet despite all that red ink, the Mexican cartels have control of our border and we're not one bit closer to spending money on our own security. We've gone into deep debt for everything except the core function of the federal government.

It feels like it was yesterday when I was watching the news as a kid with my parents in 1995, listening to Newt Gingrich, during the infamous shutdown fight, warn about the dire consequences of crossing the $5 trillion debt milestone. It feels like it was yesterday when I was writing press releases for candidates in "the year of the Tea Party" on how Obama and the Pelosi Congress took the debt to $14 trillion in such a short period of time. Now, over eight years into varying degrees of GOP control of Congress and the White House, we have crossed the $22 trillion mark, expanding the debt more rapidly than at any time in our history. Whereas the debt exploded by $5 trillion during Bush's eight-year tenure, a shocking figure at the time, it has now increased $8 trillion just since Republicans controlled the House in 2011 and by $4 trillion over the past four years, since they controlled at least two of the three political organs of government.

Now, the only question Republicans have is how many pennies of border security they will fight for, while refusing to challenge any of the nonessential and even harmful programs of the federal government. The GOP platform on debt and spending is a lie from top to bottom, as Republicans plan to pass more budget bills allowing us to blow through the budget caps without any effort to systemically reform the way we budget.

Now that Republicans are planning to cave on border funding, can they at least force a confrontation with Democrats over spending levels for functions of government that are nowhere near as important as border security? Thus, departments like HUD, which were able to completely shut down for a month with nobody noticing, will continue to enjoy record spending. We will continue to provide security for Kabul and Baghdad with the beefed-up military budget since last year's budget deal, but no funding for our border or meaningful use of the military to protect our own sovereignty from the daily incursions by the most brutal cartels on earth.

Why even have a Republican Party any more?

Even more indefensible, unlike during the end of Bush's years and the beginning of Obama's tenure, when we first began accruing trillion-dollar annual deficits, we are not facing a deep recession. In fact, we are enjoying the most robust period of job growth since the late 1990s, and revenue is at a record high baseline.

Let it be known for all of time that dire predictions of revenue slumping as a result of the tax cuts were fake news. The entirety of the current deficit problem is due to increased spending. According to the latest monthly report released by the Treasury Department yesterday, spending was up 9.6 percent for the first three months of fiscal year 2019 relative to the first three months of FY 2018. What about revenues? They actually rose slightly by 0.2 percent, despite some declines in certain revenue categories. This is an important statistic, because it is the first clean metric we have comparing a period of time with the tax cuts in full implementation to a period before the tax cuts.

Moreover, some of the increased tax revenue from more payroll taxes likely would not have occurred without the job creation spawned by the tax cuts. If you isolate the revenue tallies for individual and corporate taxes, the government obviously did lose some revenue in certain categories, but it was made up by a $15 billion increase in payroll tax revenue (FICA, Social Security taxes), in addition to increased revenue from excise taxes.

The annual deficit after just three months stood at $319 trillion, well on pace to smash the trillion-dollar deficit mark for the first time in a booming economy.

Thus, this bipartisan era of debt is worse than anything we've seen this generation, and it is all happening with record revenue and a booming economy – with no world war consuming our economy and budget.

Thanks to Republican-approved budget deals, for the first three months of the fiscal year, outlays for HHS are up 12.5 percent, outlays for the Department of Education spiked 23 percent, and outlays for the Department of Commerce have doubled! Meanwhile, outlays on Homeland Security have actually been down by 30 percent because of less disaster spending under FEMA than last year. But it's not like we went on a spending binge for Border Patrol and ICE. Outlays on military spending are up 8.45 percent, but again, what is the purpose of the military if we use it everywhere else in the world except against those who most directly harm us at our own border?

All of this spending is creating a crisis with interest payments on the debt. Net interest payments for the first quarter are up to $100 billion. That is an annualized pace of $400 billion, almost twice the level it has been in recent years. And this is just the beginning.

What is driving the most debt? The issue where Republicans now agree with Democrats: socialized medicine. House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy, R-Calif., is now bashing the Freedom Caucus for opposing the key element of Obamacare responsible for driving up the cost of insurance, thereby generating the massive spending and the monopoly created by the health care industry.

Health care is the 800-pound gorilla in the room. Federal spending on health care (not including state expenditures) is projected to be $17 trillion over the next 10 years, dwarfing the cost of Social Security and the military. By 2047, health care spending will be about 25 percent greater than the insolvent and crushing cost of Social Security. As such, health care in itself is the largest driver of the other great crisis, as noted: the mushrooming cost of the interest on the debt itself. Health care spending alone will be greater than all the revenue from payroll taxes and corporate income taxes combined and almost as large as individual income tax revenue.

This is all going to the creation of a monopoly in a circuitous death spiral of price inflation and increased government spending. It's no mystery why our national expenditures on health care have popped from $27 billion in 1960 to over $3.3 trillion today. Assuming health care would rise at the same rate as the rest of the economy, that number would be under $250 billion today. If we flushed $1.6 trillion down the toilet every year, we'd come out with a better result because we'd just waste money. Now, we are taking that wasted money and artificially inflating the cost of health care to the point that nobody can afford it without government continuing the death spiral of spending, monopolizing, and price inflation.

Yet Republicans have acquiesced to every degree of this baseline and are only debating how much more socialized medicine they will countenance while fake-fighting the rest. Then they will say we have to agree to the new socialized medicine in order to fight the next plan. Rinse and repeat.

Now, instead of looking to cut spending elsewhere, Republican senators met with Ivanka Trump to see how they can create a new entitlement of paid family leave like they have in Europe, but of course without adding to the deficit and distorting our job market! They will find a "conservative way" to agree to Democrats.

With the deficits for FY 2019 skyrocketing just as much as the illegal immigration numbers, at some point conservatives need to asses their rate of return on the Republican Party.

67 stunning lines from Trump's CPAC speech [trump is so sick, so mentally ill that the future of america, the nation, is very much in question and doubtful]

(CNN)Fresh off an unsuccessful summit with North Korean leader Kim Jong Un, President Donald Trump jetted back from Vietnam just in time to appear at the annual CPAC conference.

And appear he did! Egged on by the red-meat crowd, Trump went on and on (and on) -- rarely staying on script in a speech that amounted to a sort-of greatest hits double album.

Analysis by Chris Cillizza, CNN Editor-at-large

I went through the whole damn transcript -- and it was a doozy. The lines you need to see are below.

1. [Trump comes out on stage, claps, and then bear-hugs an American flag]

And away we go!

2. "What we did in 2016 -- the Election, we call it, with a capital 'E' -- it's never been done before."

Donald Trump, grammar expert. Also, copy editor. Also also, history-maker.

3. "I was probably more of a conservative than a Republican. People just didn't quite understand that. They didn't understand it."

They likely didn't understand it because Trump, prior to running for president as a Republican, had expressed any number of views -- on abortion, same-sex marriage and lots else -- that suggested he was more closely aligned with Democrats than the GOP.

4. "How many times did you hear, for months and months, 'There is no way to 270?' You know what that means, right? 'There is no way to 270.'"

The 2016 election ended 846 days ago.

5. "So I think we're going to do even better in 2020. I think we're going to do numbers that people haven't seen for a long time."

"Numbers."

6. "But I found some very old laws from when our country was rich -- really rich. The old tariff laws -- we had to dust them off; you could hardly see, they were so dusty."

Ah, those rich -- and dusty -- days. Man, they were great. Tough on the allergies. But great.

7. "You know I'm totally off-script, right?"

Oh, yes.

8. "You know I'm totally off-script right now. And this is how I got elected, by being off-script. True."

It IS true. Voters seemed to believe that Trump's often rambling, hard-to-understand speeches were evidence that he was an authentic politician who refused to be stage-managed. And they liked the idea of a guy who just, well, says stuff.

9. "And if we don't go off-script, our country is in big trouble, folks."

So going off-script is the key to future successes ... [sharpens pencil, breaks out new sheet of paper, begins calculations]

10. "When the wind stops blowing, that's the end of your electric. Let's hurry up. 'Darling' -- 'Darling, is the wind blowing today? I'd like to watch television, darling.'"

"When the wind stop blowing, that's the end of your electric." -- The President of the United States. (Also, Trump is talking here about his sarcastic "support" for the "Green New Deal.")

11. "So the Great Tariff Debate of 1888 -- and then we had so much money we could do whatever we wanted."

Trump has taken to citing 1888 in his speeches of late. This will stun you, but his reading of the historical facts misses a few things.

12. "I won't use a certain words because it's not politically -- but everybody knows the word I'd love to use. Should I use it? I won't do it."

Trump has even turned his infamous love for cursing into some sort of anti-elites mantra. Amazing.

13. "If you tell a joke, if you're sarcastic, if you're having fun with the audience, if you're on live television with millions of people and 25,000 people in an arena, and if you say something like, 'Russia, please, if you can, get us Hillary Clinton's emails. Please, Russia, please.'"

HA HA HA ... oh wait, on the same day Trump "jokingly" asked the Russians to get Hillary Clinton's deleted emails, the Russians began a cybercampaign to get Hillary Clinton's deleted emails.

14. "So everybody is having a good time. I'm laughing, we're all having fun."

"I really can't say I guess I laugh to keep from crying." -- Q-Tip

15. "I know there are people in the Republican Party and people -- really, even conservatives -- good conservatives -- they don't like tariffs. I'm not liking or not liking."

Here's the President on tariffs: "I'm not liking or not liking."

16. "So they don't have anything with Russia. There's no collusion."

Here's a few numbers on the ongoing special counsel probe into Russian interference: 199 criminal charges have been brought against 37 people and entities, seven people have pleaded guilty while four have been sentenced to prison.

17. "I saw little Shifty Schiff yesterday."

"Little Adam Schitt" grimaces.

18. "So now we're waiting for a report, and we'll find out whether or not, and who we're dealing with. We're waiting for a report by people that weren't elected."

A terrific window into how much Trump has made the special counsel's report about him. Remember that special counsel Robert Mueller was asked to look into Russian interference in the 2016 election and the possibility that members of Trump's team may have colluded with the Russians. Instead of worrying about what it means that a malicious foreign power sought to influence our election, Trump is entirely focused on what the report -- and its findings -- mean for him.

19. "We had -- think of this: We had the greatest election -- in all fairness, I used to hear Andrew Jackson. This was now greater than the election of Andrew Jackson. People say that. No, people say it. I'm not saying it. Right? This was the equivalent or greater."

Well if "people say that," who am I to argue????

20. "Those red hats -- and white ones. The key is in the color. The key is what it says. 'Make America Great Again' is what it says. Right? Right?"

Wait. So is the key the color of the hats or what they say on them? I NEED TO KNOW.

21. "And unfortunately, you put the wrong people in a couple of positions, and they leave people for a long time that shouldn't be there. And, all of a sudden, they're trying to take you out with bullshit. OK? With bullshit."

I assume Trump is referring to then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions recusing himself from the Russia probe. Or maybe former FBI Director James Comey for launching the probe. Or deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein for forming a special counsel to look into it. Maybe all of the above. Either way: It's total bullshit!

22. "Now, Robert Mueller never received a vote, and neither did the person that appointed him. And as you know, the attorney general says, 'I'm going to recuse myself.'"

Mueller and Rosenstein never received votes because they are career Justice Department officials. Mueller was a registered Republican, while Rosenstein was a Trump appointee. So ...

23. "You take a look at them. One of them was involved with the Hillary Clinton Foundation, running it. Another one has perhaps the worst reputation of any human being I've ever seen. All killers."

First, a fact check. No one on Mueller's team ran the Clinton Foundation.

Jeannie Rhee was outside counsel to the foundation but never worked there on the payroll. Not sure which member of Mueller's teams "has perhaps the worst reputation of any human being I've ever seen" but I know at least one person who could challenge them for their title ... And, no, no one of Mueller's team is a convicted murderer or "killer."

24. "I had a nasty business transaction with Robert Mueller a number of years ago. I said, 'why isn't that mentioned?'"

Trump is referring to an episode in 2011 when Mueller left a Trump golf club because, according to Trump, of a dispute over dues. Mueller says there was no such dispute. And yet, it is mentioned. Regularly.

25. "He wanted the job as FBI Director."

It is true that Trump interviewed Mueller to be FBI director -- a job he held for a decade under Presidents Bush and Obama -- on the day before Mueller was named special counsel. It is not clear if Mueller expressed a desire to be the FBI director in those conversations.

26. "I have one of the great inventions in history. It's called TiVo. I think it's actually better than television, because television is practically useless without TiVo, right?"

"I invented the piano key necktie. I invented it!" -- Jacobim Mugatu

27. "And I fire a bad cop. I fire a dirty cop."

Trump is referring here to Comey, a career Justice Department official. Not to that cop in "The Wire" who was always taking money off of the street hustlers and keeping it form himself. (I see you, Randy!)

28. "So, just to finish -- and I'll tell you, Matt Schlapp is loving this."

He's not even halfway done.

29. "Number one, I'm in love, and you're in love. We're all in love together."

Trump is talking about why he is speaking for so long and so far off-script. It's because of love, obviously.

30. "There's so much love in this room, it's easy to talk. You can talk your heart out. You really could. There's love in this room. You can talk your heart out. It's easy. It's easy. It's easy."

What do you say to a man who has already said everything?

31. "We never had an empty seat."

Trump is claiming there was never an empty seat at ANY rally he held in 2018. Which, uh, isn't accurate.

32. "And from the day we came down the escalator, I really don't believe we've had an empty seat at any arena, at any stadium."

"The day we came down the escalator."

33. "They did the same thing at our big inauguration speech. You take a look at those crowds."

Trump's claims that more people attended or watched his inauguration than any other in history has been repeatedly -- and clearly -- debunked. And yet, here we are.

34. "Remember this also -- not that Obama would ever do this: But we had fencing all the way down to the Washington Monument. And it was raining and it was wet, and the grass was wet."

He's STILL making excuses for why the crowd at his inauguration didn't look bigger. The grass was wet! The fencing! The sun was in my eyes!

35. "We had a crowd -- I've never seen anything like it. And I have to live -- I have to live with 'crowd size.' It's all a phony deal."

This is actually a good illustration of how Trump's world works. From where he was giving his inaugural address, he saw lots and lots of people. Therefore, it must have been the most ever -- even if objective facts don't bear that out.

Those objective facts, in his mind, are just part of the fake news media's attempts to smear him.

36. "But I saw a picture just the other night of practically no people. It was taken hours before our great day."

Trump was inaugurated on January 20, 2017. That was 773 days ago. But "just the other night" he was looking at a picture of his inauguration crowd. Totally normal stuff here!

37. "Then I'll show you where they showed, just the other day, an empty field -- like nobody on it. And you'll see the sun. You know, you can see it's very dark, because the sun is like starting to rise, right?"

In which the President of the United States reveals he has been closely studying pictures of his inauguration crowd in search of evidence that they had been taken very early in the morning and, therefore, missed the big crowds.

Sure!

38. "You know, somebody said, 'Oh, the speech you made, sir, the State of the Union speech was incredible.' They said it was incredible. They said that was so great."

Who is this "somebody"?

39. "I didn't want to get it approved for a certain reason, because I thought somebody treated me very badly. Very badly. Don't get that vote very often. And I said, you know, I don't want to get it."

Trump is making clear here that he is not happy that he helped get drilling in ANWR approved because Alaska Sen. Lisa Murkowski \(R\) wanted it to happen and he didn't want her to get something she wanted. Because she doesn't vote with him enough. Totally fine!

40. "By the way, you know I'm building the wall. We're finishing the wall. We got a lot of money. It's in the thing."

It is, indeed, in the thing.

41. "We have people in Congress that hate our country."

WOW WOW WOW.

42. "We have a lot of people here that are important people in terms of votes. We have some senators. We have some congressmen."

Yes, waiter, I'll have the word salad.

43. "For one thing, they don't respect us. They think we're 'stupido.'"

What were the odds in Vegas that Trump would say "stupido"? One in a million? Higher? Those oddsmakers were stupido.

44. "He called me up. He said, 'You're a great President. You're doing a great job.'"

According to Trump, California Gov. Gavin Newsom (D) told him how great he was doing. I, uh, doubt this is true.

45. "The leaves -- every once in a while, you have to remove the leaves because they are so -- a guy smoking a cigarette, he throws it away, he doesn't mean it."

Donald Trump on forest fires.

46. "He said, 'I just want to tell you you're a great President and you're one of the smartest people I've ever met.'"

So, the liberal governor of California called up Trump to tell him how great he is and how smart he is? Riiiiiiiiight.

47. "But I was told by a general, who I had to fire -- I said, 'General, how long before we get 100% of the caliphate?' He said, 'Sir, two years.' I said, 'I can't take it two years.'"

"I know more about ISIS than the generals do. Believe me." -- Donald Trump

48. "I never saw so many beautiful-looking machine guns. I'd look at that equipment and I'd say, 'Man ...' They sit in the trees. They sit on the lawn."

Words fail.

49. "I have pretty good vision. At least for my age, I have good vision. I guess for my age, I have great vision."

From good to great in two sentences: The life of Donald Trump.

50. "So we changed his name. Called him 'Mad Dog.' But it wasn't working too well. Mad Dog wasn't working too well."

Contrary to this claim, Trump didn't invent the nickname "Mad Dog" for his former Defense Secretary James Mattis. Not even close.

51. "And I said, 'Bring the cameras. I'm going to make a movie. This is the most incredible thing.'"

Trump was in Iraq to meet with generals. His first thought? Bring in the cameras. Let's make a movie.

52. "I mean, you talk central casting. These guys -- you couldn't -- I mean, it's incredible. They had a master sergeant. I could take him right now, bring him to Hollywood, make a military movie, and he's the star of the movie."

Trump reveals, on almost a daily basis, that he views being President as akin to serving as the executive producer for the world's greatest reality show.

53. "The drill sergeant was so incredible that he ended up starring in the movie, and he should have gotten the Academy Award, by the way, but he didn't. That's because Hollywood discriminates against our people. You know the movie I'm talking about, right? What was that movie? You know the movie."

Yes, it's called "Full Metal Jacket."

54. "Nobody has left. I watch those doors. Because a lot of times -- a lot of times -- well, one time, the press said people left. Yeah, you know where they went? To the bathroom. And then they came back."

This speech lasted TWO hours. TWO.

55. "And a certain fake news deal showed a picture on the front page of these two empty seats. They said Trump had empty seats. We never have empty seats."

Back to this then? Wasn't that sort of a first-hour-of-the-speech sort of thing?

56. "See, I don't have white hair. I don't have white hair."

Um, true!

57. "She's like -- she's like a crazed person. What she said about men is so bad. What she said about men is so bad."

Donald Trump on Sen. Mazie Hirono \(D-Hawaii\). Perfectly normal! Nothing to see here folks!

58. "We reject oppressive speech codes, censorship, political correctness, and every other attempt by the hard left to stop people from challenging ridiculous and dangerous ideas. These ideas are dangerous."

If Trump said just these two sentences over and over and over again, he would probably get re-elected. Because this anti-PC rhetoric resonates with lots and lots of people who likely aren't obvious Trump supporters. Of course, as this speech proves, he will never just say these two sentences. Or any two sentences.

59. "Mothers, who love their daughters, give them massive amounts of birth control pills because they know their daughters are going to be raped on the way up to our southern border."

I think this interview with a border patrol agent is where Trump got this idea. It's not at all clear if this was an isolated incident or a common practice.

60. "Not my fault I inherited this mess, but we're fixing it."

Trump is referring here specifically to the situation at the border. But really, he views every issue (and his whole life) through this lens. Someone else is responsible for the problem. But he will fix it.

61. "I did 32 big, fat rallies. And those rallies brought us to a tremendous Senate victory so that we can continue onward with our judges and our approvals."

So, Trump deserves credit for the 2018 election!

62. "One of the commentators -- and I appreciate it -- one of the shows where they were saying how I suffered a defeat, this commentator said, 'Excuse me, he didn't run.'"

So Trump doesn't deserve blame for the 2018 election! (Also: These two sentences were uttered by the President within 20 seconds of each other.

Good times.)

63. "Then he had a tough race against the new star of the Democrat Party -- not Democratic. It's Democrat. We have to do that."

This is the dumbest thing ever. It is the "Democratic" Party. Republicans in the 1990s decided that they would start saying it was the "Democrat" Party because they didn't want people to think only one party was on the side of democratic ideals. Smart move, Republics!

64. "I hate to say in the speech, the 'Democrat Party' because it doesn't sound good. But that's all the more reason I use it, because it doesn't. They should change it because it sounds much better. Rhetorically, it's much better. Much better."

They don't need to change it! It's already called the Democratic Party! Republicans just have to stop saying "Democrat" Party. Come on people. We can do this!

65. "We had a rally at the airport, where 55,000 people showed up to the airport. It was one hangar. They had three other hangars that were full. They went so far back."

The rally for Georgia gubernatorial candidate Brian Kemp was held in one hangar. Not two. And definitely not three. The MOST people who were there? Around 18,500.

66. "Fourth of July -- keep it open. We want to bring millions of people into the city, and we want people to come who love our country. Those are the people we want. The Fourth of July. (Applause.) A salute to America."

[checks calendar] I'm WIDE open on July 4!

67. "By the way, I'm watching those doors. Not one person has left, and I've been up here a long time. ... But not one person. So if you hear tomorrow, when they read 'people left' -- nobody left early. There hasn't been one person that's left."

He is totally and completely obsessed with crowds. And crowds staying. And loving him. This feels like a good place to end.

Conservative commentator Ann Coulter responded to President Donald Trump's criticism of her, saying that "the only national emergency is that our president is an idiot." Her comments came after Trump declared a national emergency on the southern border, while distancing himself from Coulter. “Thank God he’s relieved me of any responsibility for what he’s been doing,” Coulter told John Phillips and Jillian Barberie on KABC’s “The Morning Drive” Friday. “That was the biggest favor anyone could do [for] me today.” Also Read: Bill Maher and Ann Coulter Shout About Trump’s Wall - and Over One Another - on ‘Real Time’ “It was one thing, the promise he made every single day at every single speech. THE 29 MOST CONSEQUENTIAL LINES FROM MICHAEL COHEN'S CONGRESSIONAL TESTIMONY

(CNN)Michael Cohen, President Donald Trump's one-time personal attorney and fixer, is testifying before the House Oversight Committee Wednesday -- likely the only chance the public will have to hear from him before he is sent to jail in May for a series of tax and campaign finance charges.

Cohen's testimony is one of the biggest moments of Trump's time in office and among the most high-profile hearings on Capitol Hill in modern political memory.

I watched Cohen's testimony throughout the day, plucked out key lines from him and added context and analysis. These lines are in the chronological order in which Cohen said them.

1. "I am ashamed because I know what Mr. Trump is. He is a racist. He is a conman. He is a cheat."

These lines, from Cohen's opening statement, set the tone for the day. And the tone is this: Cohen is not going to be pulling any punches on Trump. A man who spent a decade at the right hand of the current President of the United States is now saying on the record that that man is a "racist," a "conman" and a "cheat." We've grown used to the abnormal in Trump's White House, but even by that standard, this is a "whoa" moment.

2. "He was a presidential candidate who knew that Roger Stone was talking with Julian Assange about a WikiLeaks drop of Democratic National Committee emails."

And boom goes the dynamite. This is a Very Big Deal. Remember that Trump told The New York Times earlier this year that he had never spoken to Stone -- who has been indicted on charges that he lied to Congress about the nature and extent of his dealing with WikiLeaks -- about the DNC emails hacked by the Russians and then released to do maximum damage to Hillary Clinton's campaign. "No, I didn't. I never did," Trump said when asked whether he talked to Stone about the stolen emails. The Times also pressed on whether Trump told anyone, including Stone, to get in touch with WikiLeaks to see when they were planning to drop the emails. "Never did," Trump responded.

3. "A copy of a check Mr. Trump wrote from his personal bank account -- after he became president -- to reimburse me for the hush money payments I made to cover up his affair with an adult film star and prevent damage to his campaign."

Cohen has the receipts -- literally! The check -- for $35,000 -- is dated August 1, 2017, and signed in Trump's very distinctive script. That date is, obviously, after Trump became president. And if Cohen is to be believed, it also directly contradicts Trump's assertions in April 2018 that he knew nothing about where Cohen got the money to keep porn star Stormy Daniels and Playboy model Karen McDougal -- both of whom alleged affairs with Trump -- quiet during the 2016 campaign.

Of course, a check signed to Cohen is not proof that the money was a reimbursement for the hush payments -- although the check is consistent with Cohen's version of events and the version of events that prosecutors in the Southern District of New York seem to believe: That Trump played a role in coordinating and orchestrating the payments to Daniels and McDougal in a clear end-run of campaign finance laws.

4. "Mr. Trump did not directly tell me to lie to Congress. That's not how he operates."

This from Cohen directly disputes reporting from BuzzFeed News that Cohen was instructed to lie by the President. Special counsel Robert Mueller's office released a statement that took issue with the BuzzFeed reporting shortly after it published.

5. "There were at least a half-dozen times between the Iowa Caucus in January 2016 and the end of June when he would ask me 'How's it going in Russia?' -- referring to the Moscow Tower project."

This sheds light on the breadth of Trump's interest in and conversations about Trump Tower Moscow. What we knew prior to today is that Cohen lied to Congress when he told them that all conversations with the Russians about the development had stopped by January 2016. Cohen later admitted that he had lied about that because he was concerned it might hurt Trump's presidential chances if people knew that the conversations had continued all the way into the summer of 2016.

6. "Trump knew of and directed the Trump Moscow negotiations throughout the campaign and lied about it. He lied about it because he never expected to win the election. He also lied about it because he stood to make hundreds of millions of dollars on the Moscow real estate project."

A few things here are relevant. First, Trump lawyer Rudy Giuliani said in January that Trump was involved in discussions about the possible Trump Tower Moscow project all the way through the election. (Giuliani later said he was speaking only hypothetically about what Trump knew when.) Second, both that admission from Giuliani and Cohen's claim seem to directly dispute Trump's repeated insistence during the campaign that "I have nothing to do with Russia. I don't have any jobs in Russia. I'm all over the world but we're not involved in Russia."

7. "Mr. Trump would often say, this campaign was going to be the 'greatest infomercial in political history.'"

No matter how Trump tries to rewrite history, it is a fact that he never, ever thought he would be the Republican nominee -- much less the president. He had walked up to the edge of running a few times before and knew that if he didn't do it this time then people wouldn't cover him when he thought about it in the future. You can dispute Cohen's assertion that Trump's entire campaign was solely to further brand awareness, but you cannot dispute that the billionaire businessman never thought he would win.

8. "Mr. Stone told Mr. Trump that he had just gotten off the phone with Julian Assange and that Mr. Assange told Mr. Stone that, within a couple of days, there would be a massive dump of emails that would damage Hillary Clinton's campaign. Mr. Trump responded by stating to the effect of 'wouldn't that be great.'"

These lines are probably the most important in all of Cohen's opening statement -- and maybe in his broader daylong testimony. Per No. 2 above, Cohen's assertion that he was in the room when Trump talked to Stone about WikiLeaks and its plans to release stolen emails runs directly counter to Trump's public insistence that he had never talked to Stone about WikiLeaks. Directly counter. The timing of all of this is very interesting too. Cohen says in his testimony that the call occurred between Stone and Trump about WikiLeaks in July 2016. Later that month, Trump held a news conference in which he said: "Russia, if you're listening, I hope you're able to find the 30,000 emails that are missing, I think you will probably be rewarded mightily by our press." Either on or right around that day, according to an indictment of a number of Russian officials by Mueller, Russia sent phishing attempts to Clinton staffers.
Ahem.

9. "He once asked me if I could name a country run by a black person that wasn't a 'shithole.' This was when Barack Obama was President of the United States." Impossible to corroborate what Cohen is saying here -- unless there were other people in the room -- but this is consistent with reporting from CNN and others in January 2018 that Trump referred to immigrants coming into the US from "shithole" countries.

10. "He told me that black people would never vote for him because they were too stupid."

Again, virtually impossible to corroborate this. While Trump never said anything like what Cohen alleges in the 2016 campaign, his pitch to black voters was hugely stereotypical -- suggesting that they didn't have much, so why not take a chance on voting for him.

"What do you have to lose by trying something new, like Trump," Trump would often ask. "What the hell do you have to lose?"

11. "He asked me to pay off an adult film star with whom he had an affair, and to lie to his wife about it, which I did."

This runs directly counter to Trump's insistence that he a) knew nothing about the payment to Stormy Daniels and b) never spoke with Cohen about how to handle that situation. It is also runs counter to Trump's repeated denials that he ever engaged in extramarital acts with Daniels.

12. "This $35,000 check was one of 11 check installments that was paid throughout the year -- while he was President. The President of the United States thus wrote a personal check for the payment of hush money as part of a criminal scheme to violate campaign finance laws." The check Cohen is referencing -- from No. 3 above -- could be damning evidence. The problem, of course, is that nowhere on the check does it say that Trump is reimbursing Cohen for the $130,000 hush money payment to Daniels. Which gives Trump plausible deniability. Still, it doesn't look good. At all.

13. "I'm talking about a man who declares himself brilliant but directed me to threaten his high school, his colleges, and the College Board to never release his grades or SAT scores."

If you don't think Cohen is telling the truth here, then you have missed the entirety of Trump's professional and political life -- all of which make Cohen's claim wholly credible.

14. "He finished the conversation with the following comment. 'You think I'm stupid, I wasn't going to Vietnam.'"

Trump received a series of deferments that kept him out of the Vietnam war. He claimed he had a medical condition -- bone spurs -- that would make him unable to serve. Two daughters of the podiatrist who diagnosed Trump with those bone spurs told The New York Times that their father did so as a "favor" to Trump's father, Fred.

15. "Questions have been raised about whether I know of direct evidence that Mr. Trump or his campaign colluded with Russia. I do not."

NO COLLUSION!

16. "Don Jr. came into the room and walked behind his father's desk -- which in itself was unusual. People didn't just walk behind Mr. Trump's desk to talk to him. I recalled Don Jr. leaning over to his father and speaking in a low voice, which I could clearly hear, and saying: 'The meeting is all set.' I remember Mr. Trump saying, 'OK good...let me know.'"

This conversation, which Cohen said happened in early June 2016, is what he believes is a sign that President Trump knew about the June 2016 Trump Tower meeting between Don Jr, Jared Kushner, Paul Manafort and a group of Russians promising dirt on Clinton. Trump and Trump Jr. have denied that the President ever knew about the meeting. And in their defense, Cohen's memory is pure conjecture here; Don Jr. could have been talking about any number of meetings and Cohen has no proof that the President's eldest son was actually looping his father in on the meeting with the Russians.

17. "I have never asked for, nor would I accept, a pardon from President Trump."

This clears up one question I had coming into this hearing. But Cohen's statement doesn't make clear whether a pardon was ever offered -- or even floated by Trump or his allies.

18. "I did not want to go to the White House. I was offered jobs."

Cohen pushed back hard on the idea that Ohio Rep. Jim Jordan put forward that Cohen's willingness to attack Trump was entirely born of his anger that he had not been asked to serve in the White House. Cohen said that Trump wanted him to work in the White House but that he believed it would invalidate their attorney-client privilege and therefore make it impossible to do his other work on behalf of Trump. Donald Trump Jr. disagreed with Cohen's version of events, tweeting: "Hahahaha

19. "[Stone] frequently reached out to Mr. Trump and Mr. Trump was very happy to take his calls. It was -- free service."

This is important. Cohen made clear here that Roger Stone was not an operative of the Trump campaign but rather a sort-of friend who flitted in and out of Trump world. There was, according to Cohen, no codified relationship between the two -- although Cohen did say Trump was more than happy to take Stone's call and any information he offered.

20. "Mr. Trump's desire to win would have him work with anyone."

This was Cohen's response to Florida Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz's question as to whether the President was capable of working with the Russians to help him win an election. This is entirely speculative, of course, but it is worth noting that Cohen did know Trump better than almost anyone for more than a decade.

21. "Everything was done with the knowledge of, and at the direction of, Mr. Trump."

Cohen is speaking specifically here about his allegation that he worked on Trump's behalf to make him look wealthier in order to boost him on Forbes' list of the richest people in the country. For what it's worth, Trump dropped 220 slots on Forbes' list in 2017.

22. "It wasn't our responsibility to be the fact checker for a news agency."

Jordan wanted to know why Cohen's lawyer, Lanny Davis, had not denied the BuzzFeed News story last month which, citing informed sources, said that Cohen had told the special counsel's office that Trump had asked him to lie to Congress. The special counsel's office did dispute the story -- in broad terms -- although BuzzFeed did not retract it. Earlier in his testimony (see No. 5 above) Cohen said under oath that Trump had never directly asked him to lie to Congress.

23. "They want to know what I know about Mr. Trump ... and not one question has been asked about Mr. Trump."

After two hours of questioning and a brief break, Cohen used a question from Jordan to lecture Republicans. Cohen noted that Republicans on the Oversight Committee had spent hours forcing him to confess wrongs he had committed, which he had already admitted, rather than asking questions about his dealings with Trump as it related to either the hush payments to Daniels and McDougal or the President's involvement in the conversations about the Trump Tower Moscow development.

The two sparred several times on Wednesday. In another key moment of the hearing, Cohen said, "shame on you, Mr. Jordan," when arguing that the congressman had mischaracterized his testimony.

24. "I have no reason to believe that tape exists."

Democratic Rep. Jamie Raskin of Maryland kind of, sort of asked Cohen about whether he was aware -- or had ever seen -- what has been called the "pee tape," a rumored video of Trump watching prostitutes urinating at a hotel in Russia. (The allegation was made as part of a broader dossier compiled by former British spy Christopher Steele.) According to former FBI Director James Comey, Trump brought up the tape allegation and asked him to dispute it publicly if he could.

25. "He speaks in a code. And I understand the code because I've been around him for a decade."

One of Cohen's core arguments in his testimony is that Trump never directly told him to, say, lie to Congress because he didn't have to: Cohen, like others who had spent years with Trump, knew exactly what Trump wanted done. Whether you believe Cohen truly understands the "code" that Trump is speaking in -- or whether he is actually speaking in any code at all -- depends on how you view Trump (and Cohen).

Regardless, it seems clear that Trump did not expressly tell Cohen to break the law, although Cohen has clearly stated in his testimony that Trump sought to end-run campaign finance laws in paying off two women who alleged affairs with Trump in the mid-2000s.

26. "I have never been to Prague."

Well, that settles that. The Steele dossier alleged that Cohen traveled to Prague to meet with a Russian official during the 2016 campaign. Cohen denied he went to Prague, and said he instead went to Europe in 2016 but was in London to visit his daughter, who was studying abroad.

27. "I don't believe Mr. Trump ever struck Mrs. Trump, ever."

Cohen made this comment in response to questioning by Democratic California Rep. Jackie Speier about the possible existence of an elevator tape from Trump Tower in which Donald Trump is allegedly seen hitting his wife, Melania Trump. "Comedian" Tom Arnold has spread the idea that such an elevator tape exists, while offering no proof of that fact. Cohen said he believes no tape like that exists and that Trump was never violent with his wife.

28. "What he didn't want was to have an entire group of think tanks run through his tax return ... and then he'll end up in an audit and eventually have taxable consequences."

Asked by California Rep. Jimmy Gomez (D) what Trump had told Cohen about why he didn't want to release his tax returns, Cohen offered up this answer -- which is FAR different from the White House's official line that he cannot release the returns because he is under audit. According to Cohen, Trump was worried about being under audit if his returns were released and picked through. Which would suggest that he is not currently under audit, and that the real reason Trump is afraid of releasing his taxes is because he doesn't want to pay tax fines.

29. "I fear that if he loses the presidential election in 2020, there will never be a peaceful transition of power."

In Cohen's closing statement, he offered this ominous warning about what might happen if Trump loses a bid for a second term in 2020. It's not an idle threat, either. Remember that Trump has argued -- with no evidence -- that 3 to 5 million votes had been cast illegally in the 2016 election. And that was an election he won! Imagine what it would be like if he lost.

MICHAEL COHEN, TRUMP'S FORMER "FIXER," TESTIFIES AT A HEARING ON CAPITOL HILL. By Victor Reklaitis Money & Politics

Michael Cohen, President Donald Trump's former personal lawyer, spent hours on Wednesday taking questions from the House Oversight and Reform Committee.

After his striking prepared remarks came out late Tuesday, political analysts were bracing for fresh revelations in his Q&A with lawmakers.

See live blog and video of Cohen testimony

Here are six takeaways from what we heard in the back-and-forth from Cohen, who is set to serve time in prison for lying to Congress in 2017.

1. New probe of Trump by prosecutors revealed

In response to a question about his last conversation with Trump or Team Trump, Cohen declined to comment as follows: "This topic is something that's currently being investigated right now by the Southern District of New York."

That remark came during an exchange with Illinois Democratic Rep. Raja Krishnamoorthi, who then followed up with this question: "Is there any other wrongdoing or illegal act that you are aware of regarding Donald Trump that we haven't yet discussed today?"

“Yes,” Cohen said. “And again, those are part of the investigation that’s currently being looked at by the Southern District of New York.”

2. A Cohen book or movie could be in the works

North Carolina Republican Rep. Virginia Foxx accused Cohen of using his testimony for his own personal benefit, like getting book or movie deals.

She asked him to promise that he won’t pursue a deal along those lines, and Cohen refused to do so. He also refused to promise he wouldn’t run for office.

In an exchange with Tennessee Republican Rep. Mark Green, Cohen said he could make a note of what actor the congressman wants portraying him. That drew a chuckle from Green during the mostly tense hearing. GOP lawmakers repeatedly said Cohen’s past actions didn’t make him seem like a credible witness.

3. Cohen hints at other payments of hush money

Cohen’s testimony raised fresh questions about Trump ally David Pecker, the CEO of National Enquirer’s parent company. That company, American Media Inc., has admitted to making hush-money payments on Trump’s behalf to Karen McDougal during the 2016 presidential to quash her allegations about an affair.

Maryland Democratic Rep. Jamie Raskin asked if Pecker had done this in “other cases of other mistresses or women.”

“Other circumstances, yes,” Cohen said. “Not all of them had to do with women.”

4. Cohen says Trump-Sater documents probably in a box somewhere

Cohen talked about the Trump Organization’s ties to mob-linked operator Felix Sater, following questioning from California Democratic Rep. Harley Rouda.

Cohen alleged that Trump lied while under oath in 2013 when he said he didn’t know Sater well. He also said business records that show links between Sater and Trump are probably in a box at an offsite Trump Organization storage facility.

5. Cohen's 'Truth in Testimony Disclosure Form' questioned North Carolina Republican Rep. Mark Meadows, a Trump ally and head of the conservative Freedom Caucus, questioned how Cohen had filled out a "Truth in Testimony Disclosure Form" ahead of Wednesday's hearing.

The congressman blasted Cohen for not disclosing dealings with foreign entities on the form, but California Democratic Rep. Katie Hill later said at the hearing that witnesses just need to disclose contracts with a foreign government, not all overseas entities.

6. No trip to Prague

Cohen has faced an allegation, which surfaced in the infamous "dossier" of former British spy Christopher Steele, that he was in Prague in 2016 basically to serve as a liaison between the Trump campaign and Russian operatives.

But Cohen during this hearing said: "I've never been to Prague."

Susan Edelman Blank Trump is a personality disordered malignant narcissist who lacks guilt and empathy. He lives moment to moment; everything he does is all emotion-based behavior. There is no logic or reason or accountability to previous statements or acts. He is extremely impulsive and dangerous and must be removed from office (I am a psychotherapist trained in the diagnosis and treatment of personality disorders and have a Duty to Warn).

Susan Edelman Blank The only thing the Republicans have going for them is to keep repeating that Cohen is a liar and cheat, and they ask why the Democrats didn't get an honest man to testify about Trump? The reason: Trump wouldn't hire or confide in an honest man, and an honest man wouldn't work for Trump. Like the Mafia, made men protect the Don at all costs.

The bigger questions are: Why are supposedly reputable men, serving American citizens in good faith in our country's Congress, protecting a President who the FBI is investigating for being a Russian asset and the Southern District of New York is investigating for bank fraud, tax fraud, and money laundering ? Don't they want to know the truth about the man who sits in The Oval Office and acts as the Leader of the Free World? Talk about blind loyalty. [No, Susan. Your observation is laudable, courageous; but, unfortunately a bit too forgiving and optimistic From direct observation and experience it is self-interest, greed, cowardice, fear, and complicit criminality that perpetuates the likes of trump, or hitler, etc.. Sadly, human nature (particularly americana) in a nutshell quite pathetic as is america! Not worth it!]

Susan Edelman Blank February 15 at 8:23 AM · In the first two decades of the 21st Century, the Republican Party brought us a president who began his first term by invading a sovereign nation on misbegotten evidence that destabilized the Middle East and ended his second term by leaving us on the verge of another Great Depression. And they followed that up by bringing us a mentally imbalanced, dangerously impulsive malignant narcissist who thrives on discord and chaos and is under Federal investigation for crimes ranging from colluding with an enemy nation, money laundering, tax fraud, and other despicable and illegal activities. When will the Republican Party finally admit that they don't know what the hell they are doing?

Susan Edelman Blank I am so sick of this embarrassment of a fake president. Trump's Nomination for the Nobel Peace Prize Was Apparently Forged. Twice. Susan Edelman Blank I have to say, for a liar and a cheat, Michael Cohen's comportment, demeanor, and composure in front of Congress is polite, civil, and respectful — and in direct contrast to the bullying, aggressiveness, hostility, and angry outbursts displayed by Brett Kavanaugh during his testimony to Congress. Michael Cohen is going to prison and Brett Kavanaugh is sitting on the Supreme Court. Dear Congresswoman Roybal-Allard:

The following is my comment to an LA Times article regarding a Justice Department cover-up! As for your inquiry, all I think about day and night is a long overdue resolution to the RICO litigation as set forth therein:

ATF Chief Melson: Justice Department trying to shield officials (LATimes) Serrano

I believe him!

I truly empathize with the ATF in terms of government cover-ups, notably by even the DOJ. You'll recognize some familiar names (ie., Alito, Trump, Freeh (Louis Freeh now has dual citizenship with Italy), and some familiar crimes (ie., drug money laundering, etc. – real cash cow for gov't ops, bribes, etc.). [Did you know this about the following ATF Agents who were probably viewed as loose ends: Steve Willis, Robert Williams, Todd McKeahan & Conway LeBleu: Died February 28, 1993 by gunfire at Waco. All four were examined by a pathologist and died from identical wounds to the left temple. All four had been body guards for Bill Clinton, three while campaigning for President and when he was Governor of Arkansas. They also were the ONLY 4 BATF agents killed at Waco.]

Here's some real, complicit cover-up / fraud on the part of the federal government, et als:

Steven M. Martinez, Assistant Director In Charge
Federal Bureau of Investigation, USDOJ

Dear Sir:

I enclose herewith 3 copies of the within DVD rom autorun disk (which will open in your computer's browser) as per your office's request as made this day (the disk and contents have been scanned by Avast, McAfee, and Norton which I've installed on my computer to prevent viral attacks / infection and are without threat). I also include 1 copy of the DVD as filed with the subject court as referenced therein (which files are also included on the aforesaid 3 disks in a separate folder named '112208opocoan'). The (civil) RICO action (as you're aware, the RICO Act is a criminal statute which provides a civil remedy, including treble damages and attorney fees, as an incentive for private prosecution of said claims probably owing to the fact that the USDOJ seems somewhat overwhelmed and in need of such assistance given the seriousness and prevalence of said violations of law which have a corrupting influence on the process, and which corruption is pervasive). A grievance complaint against Coan was also filed concurrently with the subject action and held in abeyance pending resolution of the action which was illegally dismissed without any supporting law and in contravention of the Order of The Honorable Robert N. Chatigny, Chief Judge, USDC, District Connecticut. The files below the horizontal rule are the referenced documents as filed. (Owing to the damage to the financial interests of both the U.S. and the District of Congresswoman Roybal-Allard, viz., Los Angeles, the Qui Tam provisions of the Federal False Claims Act probably would apply and I would absent resolution seek to refer the within to a firm with expertise in that area of the law with which I am not familiar).

The document in 5 pages under penalty of perjury I was asked to forward to the FBI office in New Haven is probably the best and most concise summary of the case RICO Summary to FBI Under Penalty of Perjury at Their Request (5 pages) [ricosummarytoFBIunderpenaltyofperjury.pdf <http://albertpeia.com/ricosummarytoFBIunderpenaltyofperjury.pdf>].

The correspondence I received from the Congresswoman by way of email attachment (apparent but typical problem with my mail) along with my response thereto is included on the 3 disks as fbicorrespondencereyes.htm . With regard to the calls to the FBI's LA and New Haven, CT offices: There was one call to the LA office and I was referred to the Long Beach, CA office where I personally met with FBI Agent Jeff Hayes to whom I gave probative evidentiary documents of the money laundering which he confirmed as indicative of same (he was transferred from said office within approximately a month of said meeting and his location was not disclosed to me upon inquiry). The matter was assigned to FBI Agent Ron Barndollar and we remained in touch for in excess of a decade until he abruptly retired (our last conversation prior to his retirement related to the case and parenthetically, Rudy Giuliani whose father I stated had been an enforcer for the mob to which he registered disbelief and requested I prove it, which I did – he served 12 years in prison, aggravated assault/manslaughter? – and no, there is no Chinese wall of separation – Andrew Maloney's the one that prosecuted gotti).

In contradistinction to the statement in said correspondence, there is a plethora of information including evidence supporting the claims set forth in the RICO VERIFIED COMPLAINT (see infra). Such includes and as set forth in the case, inter alia,

- A judgment had been entered in my favor in the case, United States District Court Case #3:93cv02065(AWT)(USDCJ Alvin Thompson), worth approximately now in excess of $300,000 remains unaccounted for and which could be used for payment to creditors, Los Angeles, etc..
- Counsel Robert Sullivan on my behalf documented by way of certification upon investigation that Alan Shiff, USBCJ, had falsely stated a dismissal upon which false statement he predicated a retaliatory and spurious contempt proceeding against me causing substantial damage, and for which he sought Judicial Notice of those and related proceedings as did I in some of my filings.
- The Order of Dismissal With Prejudice by Alan Shiff, USBCJ, owing to Defendant Coan's failure to file anything whatsoever by the court's deadline causing creditors and me substantial damages: [Shiff Order of Dismissal With Prejudice on Coan's Failure to File Page 1 Page 2]
- Defendant Coan had filed an action against me to prevent me from suing him which necessitated me to fly to Connecticut for a hearing before The Honorable Robert N. Chatigny, Chief Judge, USDC, District of Connecticut, who denied Coan's requested relief as to Coan but precluded my action against Shiff (although there is no immunity, judicial or otherwise, for criminal acts, ie., fraud connected with a case under Title 11, USC, etc.) . [transcript in pertinent part - <http://albertpeia.com/crossexamofcoanbyeia.pdf>]

- Newly appointed judge, Maryanne Trump Barry, Donald Trump's sister, was assigned the RICO case despite the conflict of interest in light of hundreds of thousands of dollars of illegal (drug) money being laundered through the Trump casinos by the RICO defendants, and despite my motion to recuse her which motion she heard herself and denied, and U.S. Trustee Hugh Leonard with whom I met personally refused to join or file a separate motion to recuse and not long thereafter left said office for private practice at Cole, Shotz, et als on retainer with the RICO defendants as his primary client.
- Probative and evidentiary documents, affidavits, exhibits, including those turned over to FBI Agent Jeff Hayes in Long Beach, CA, had been given to Assistant U.S. Attorney Jonathan Lacey with whom I met personally at the U.S. Attorney's Office in Newark, N.J., at which time Samuel Alito was U.S. Attorney, and went over said documents and their probative value with him. Within approximately a month thereafter upon inquiry I was told that Jonathon Lacey was no longer with the office, that the file/documents could not be located, and that there was no further information available concerning contacting him or his location. I thereupon delivered by hand, copies of said documents to the office of then U.S. Attorney Alito, addressed to him, with assurance they would go directly to him. In addition to being inept [I looked in on the one mob case he had brought, bungled, lost (accidently on purpose?) since I was suing some mob-connected under RICO and the court (I had known / previously met outside of court the judge Ackerman through a client) was absolute bedlam and a total joke since incompetent corrupt Alito brought in all 20 mob defendants (rather than prosecute one or a few to flip them first) who feigning illness had beds/cots in the courtroom along with their moans during testimony and had the jury in stitches. As much as I hate the mob, it truly was funny, if not so tragic.], Alito is also corrupt (and maybe corrupt because he is inept). After a reasonable (but still rather short) time I called to determine the status and was told that Alito was no longer with the Office of the U.S. Attorney, that he was (appointed) a federal judge, and that neither the documents nor any file or record of same could be located. Alito did parley the same / cover-up into quid pro quo direct lifetime appointment to the Court of Appeals, 3rd circuit, despite the absence of judicial experience or successful tenure as U.S. Attorney (Maryanne Trump Barry as well). This is the same Sam Alito that now sits on the purported highest court in the land. The real application of the illegal rule 'don't ask, don't tell'.

There is applicable insurance / surety coverage and neither LA, nor creditors, nor I should continue to have been damaged by this brazened corrupt and illegal scenario, which should be resolved in accordance with the meaningful rules of law apposite thereto.

Sincerely,

Albert L. Peia

President Trump is the national emergency

{ El Chapo for president, or any of the heads of the numerous american crime families as trump – what a sick, fraudulent, pathetic, meaningfully lawless nation america surely is:

‘...In his investigative biography, Trump: The Deals and the Downfall, reporter Wayne Barrett wrote that Trump’s life "intertwines with the underworld," and he outlined the real-estate developer’s numerous alleged ties to organized crime, including that Trump:

- Once met Salerno at the Manhattan townhouse of Roy Cohn, the infamous sidekick to Joe McCarthy who represented both men, according to an eyewitness source who talked to Barrett.
- Was very close to Cohn, whom Barrett describes as Trump's "bridge to the mob."
- Had ties to mob associates Shapiro and Sullivan.
- Paid almost double the market price for property in Atlantic City owned by Salvatore Testa, a capo in the Scarfo crime family.
- Evaded New Jersey state laws banning casino owners from making political contributions by channeling donations to Mike Mathews, then-candidate for mayor of Atlantic City, through Shapiro and another mob-tied associate.

- Failed to disclose to state casino regulators that Trump was the target of a bribery probe in 1979 and was questioned in a 1981 racketeering investigation. Neither federal probe led to criminal charges, noted the Philadelphia Inquirer's David Johnston in a review of the book...' } america is without any credibility whatsoever, domestically or internationally america's a cruel joke on this world! Everything america purports to be is a lie, a total fraud; and, the rest of the world is starting to realize what few other nations have discovered as sick mobster trump helms this global disgrace of a nation of predominantly criminals and mentally ill people.

The Recession Will Likely Start This Month

Sovereign Investor Daily, U.S. Economy February 11, 2019February 8, 2019 Michael Carr

In December, business leaders worried about a recession.

According to the Duke University/CFO Global Business Outlook, 48.6% of U.S. chief financial officers believe the nation's economy will enter a recession by the end of 2019.

The Federal Reserve raised interest rates but noted an increase in economic risks. Fed Chair Jerome Powell hinted the Fed might start cutting rates soon.

Somehow, everyone seemed to forget about all that when the stock market rallied in January. But they should remain worried.

Indicators tell us a recession is likely. And it's likely to start this month.

The Triggers for a Recession

In the past, recessions began in the month when the unemployment rate rose 0.4% from its bottom.

Unemployment fell to 3.7% in November. The trigger for a recession is 4.1%.

It was 4% in January.

On average, the trigger follows the bottom by eight months. But it's ranged from as little as two months to as many as 17.

You might wonder why no one at the Fed noticed this. Chances are high they did.

The Fed became concerned about a recession and changed policy in the past few months.

You might wonder why other analysts ignore this indicator. That's probably because it didn't work well recently.

The last three signals were early. Recessions followed unemployment-rate lows by an average of 13 months. But interest rates were in long-term downtrends at those times.

When interest rates are in long-term uptrends, recessions followed the bottom in unemployment by just six months. That's where we are now.

Interest rates bottomed in July 2016. They almost doubled since then.

Of course, this is just one indicator warning of recession. Another one is my Recession Watch Indicator.

The Fed triggered that in December 2016.

The indicator has an average lead time of 17 months. It points to a recession starting by the second quarter of 2019.

Beware the Yield Curve

The yield curve also continues pointing to a recession.

The yield curve shows the price of money over time. It charts the difference between interest rates on bonds with different times to maturity.

A popular yield curve is the 10/2, which compares the yield of the 10-year Treasury to the 2-year Treasury.

Yields on the 10-year are usually higher than yields on the 2-year. That's because there's more risk that things can go wrong over 10 years than there is in two years.

When the 10-year yield falls below the 2-year yield, the yield curve inverts.

In the past, that meant investors were worried about the short-term outlook for the economy, but they were still confident about the long term.

The yield curve is at 0.16% right now, well below its 10-year average of 1.64%.

The chart below shows that every time the curve fell this low, it eventually inverted, and a recession followed.

This cluster of indicators confirms the stock market's message.

Stocks peaked in October. The peak usually occurs about six months before the recession begins. That points to an April start date.

All these indicators only provide approximate forecasts. But they all agree: The next recession is starting soon.

Michael Carr, CMT, CFTe

How Team Trump keeps changing its story in the Russia investigation

Over the past two years, President Donald Trump and his team have offered changing accounts regarding key matters in the Russia investigation. Their denials have been debunked, Trump has contradicted his senior aides and sometimes his team has completely flipped its position.

Special counsel Robert Mueller is investigating Russian interference in the 2016 election along with potential collusion between Trump's campaign and the Russian government. So far, six Trump associates have been charged, but nobody has been implicated in collusion. Trump adamantly denies collusion.

Public contradictions, walkbacks and flip-flops have become a hallmark of how Trump's team has responded to the Russia probe, which was launched in 2016 and is now in its third year.

Here are the most consequential examples of Team Trump changing its story.

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Russian collusion

Did any Trump campaign aides have contacts with Russia?

Then No. There weren't any.

In July 2016, while he was chairman of the Trump campaign, Paul Manafort flatly denied any ties existed between the campaign and Russia, calling the idea “absurd” in an ABC News interview. Two days after Trump’s victory, Trump spokeswoman Hope Hicks said, “There was no communication between the campaign and any foreign entity during the campaign.”

Asked in January 2017 if there had been contacts with Russians, Trump replied, “No, not at all.” These blanket denials were later repeated by Vice President Mike Pence, White House counselor Kellyanne Conway and White House press secretary Sarah Sanders.

Now Yes, there were many.

These adamant denials have been eviscerated in the two-plus years since the election. At least 16 Trump associates had contacts with Russians during the campaign or before the inauguration, according to public statements, court filings, and news reports.

Senior campaign aides and members of Trump’s family were in contact with Russians through in-person meetings, phone calls, emails, Twitter messages and more. Trump now acknowledges that there were contacts but says there was no collusion.

Russian collusion

Did anyone on the Trump campaign collude with Russia?

Then There was no collusion whatsoever.

Trump has said on several occasions that there was “no collusion whatsoever” between his campaign and the Russians, a blanket denial that seems to cover his entire campaign. (He has also said dozens of times that there was simply “no collusion.”) In an interview with Fox News, Trump’s lawyer Rudy Giuliani said that there was no collusion between the “upper levels of the Trump campaign” and the Russians.

Now Trump himself didn't collude.

Giuliani moved the goalposts in January 2019 in an interview with CNN. He said: "I never said there was no collusion between the campaign, or people in the campaign ... I have not. I said the President of the United States." These comments came shortly after unredacted court filings revealed that while Manafort led Trump's campaign, he gave internal polling data to a Russian with intelligence ties.

Sanders said something similar in January after Trump ally Roger Stone was charged with lying about his ties to WikiLeaks, saying, "There was no collusion. There was no wrongdoing by the President."

Russian collusion

What was the purpose of the Trump Tower meeting?

Then To discuss Russian adoptions.

Donald Trump Jr. secretly met a group of Russians at Trump Tower in June 2016, along with his brother-in-law Jared Kushner and Manafort. The meeting wasn't revealed until a series of articles a year later. When the news broke, Trump Jr. put out a statement, claiming, "We primarily discussed a program about the adoption of Russian children that was active and popular with American families years ago."

The adoption issue is closely tied to economic sanctions imposed by the US against Russia after the 2014 Ukraine crisis, and lifting those sanctions is a top priority for Russian President Vladimir Putin. Trump Jr.'s statement about the meeting, which the President had a hand in crafting, gave the false impression that the meeting had nothing to do with the 2016 election.

Now To get dirt on Hillary Clinton.

The New York Times later revealed that the true nature of the meeting was for the Trump campaign to get damaging information about Clinton, the Democratic nominee. Trump Jr. later acknowledged this and released an email chain showing that he was told that the Russian government wanted to help Trump win and that a Russian lawyer could provide him with dirt on Clinton.

The President eventually admitted, “This was a meeting to get information on an opponent,” but said it was “totally legal.” Trump Jr. testified on Capitol Hill that the Russians didn’t actually bring any dirt and the meeting was a bust.

Russian collusion

Did Trump draft the misleading Trump Tower meeting statement?

Then Nope. He wasn’t even involved.

As news was breaking about the Trump Tower meeting, Trump and his lawyers insisted he wasn’t involved in writing the misleading statement issued under his son’s name. Trump lawyer Jay Sekulow told CNN: “That was written by Donald Trump Jr. and I’m sure with consultation with his lawyer. That wasn’t written by the President.” (He repeated this false denial in several interviews that week.)

Sanders later said Trump “certainly didn’t dictate” the statement, but “weighed in as any father would.”

Now Yes. He dictated the statement.

In a confidential letter sent to Mueller in January 2018, the President’s lawyers admitted that Trump dictated the controversial statement but they maintained that it was accurate. According to The New York Times, they wrote: “You have received all of the notes, communications and testimony indicating that the President dictated a short but accurate response to the New York Times article on behalf of his son, Donald Trump, Jr.”

- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Comey firing

Why did Trump fire Comey?

Then Because of the Clinton email investigation.

Trump's official explanation for firing FBI Director James Comey in May 2017 was that Comey mismanaged the Clinton email investigation and lost the confidence of rank-and-file FBI agents. The White House said this rationale was backed up by letters of recommendation from Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein and then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions

Pence and Conway also echoed these talking points in the days after Comey's ouster.

Now Because of the Russia investigation.

Days later, Trump contradicted the official story. In a now-infamous interview, he told NBC News: "Regardless of recommendation, I was going to fire Comey knowing there was no good time to do it. And in fact, when I decided to just do it, I said to myself, I said, you know, this Russia thing with Trump and Russia is a made-up story. It's an excuse by the Democrats for having lost an election that they should've won."

About a year later, Giuliani similarly linked Comey's firing to Russia. He said Comey was dismissed after refusing to assure Trump that he wasn't a target of the Russia investigation.

Comey firing

Did Trump tell Comey to go easy on Flynn?

Then Absolutely not.

Comey claimed that during a private meeting at the White House in February 2017, Trump asked him to drop the FBI's investigation into Michael Flynn, his former national security adviser. Comey detailed these claims in contemporaneous memos and testified to Congress that Trump said, "I hope you can see your way clear to letting this go, to letting Flynn go. He is a good guy. I hope you can let this go."

Trump has categorically denied Comey's claims. The President also tweeted a denial in December 2017, saying: "I never asked Comey to stop investigating Flynn. Just more Fake News covering another Comey lie!"

Now It's possible.

Shortly after joining Trump's legal team, Giuliani contradicted the President's consistent denials about Comey and Flynn. Giuliani told ABC News that Trump asked Comey to give Flynn "a break," and emphasized that Trump's comments were a friendly request and not an order from the President.

Giuliani later backpedaled from his comments and denied that any conversation about Flynn ever took place between Trump and Comey. "There was no conversation about Michael Flynn," Giuliani told CNN.

Legal process

Will Trump agree to an interview with Mueller?

Then He wants to do it.

The special counsel's office has long sought a one-on-one interview with Trump for its investigation. Trump has publicly expressed interest in doing it. Trump told reporters he was "100 percent" willing to testify under oath about his interactions with Comey. In January 2018, Trump said he was "looking forward to it," when asked about an interview with Mueller's team.

A date was set for an interview at the presidential retreat at Camp David, but Trump's legal team rejected the plan and the interview fell through at the last moment. Even after that, Trump said, "Yes, I would like to" testify.

Now Zero chance.

Trump and Mueller's lawyers battled throughout 2018 over the contours of the President's testimony. Trump lawyers fought with their client as well, trying to tamp down his desire to testify. They eventually submitted written answers to Mueller's questions around Thanksgiving 2018.

CNN later reported that Trump's team rebuffed yet another request for an interview with the special counsel's office. Giuliani said a presidential interview would happen "over my dead body." Giuliani had warned that he opposes an interview because he believes Mueller's prosecutors will try to lure Trump into a perjury trap.

Legal process

Can a sitting US president obstruct justice?

Then No.

Mueller continues to investigate the question of whether any of Trump's actions or statements amounted to obstruction of justice. In December 2017, Trump attorney John Dowd told Axios that a sitting president "cannot obstruct justice because he is the chief law enforcement officer."

One month later, Dowd and Sekulow laid out this legal theory in a confidential letter to Mueller's team, arguing that actions authorized by the Constitution cannot be obstruction, including the official action of firing an FBI director.

Now Possibly.

Months later, Giuliani expressed the opposite view. CNN's Chris Cuomo asked, "You don't think a president can obstruct justice?" Giuliani's answer was, "He can," breaking with the theory that a president can't obstruct justice because he essentially leads the Justice Department.

Still, Giuliani added that he believes firing an FBI director is a constitutionally protected move that can't be obstruction.

Legal process

How do Trump's lawyers view Mueller?

Then He's a respected and focused investigator.

At the outset, Trump's legal team struck a respectful tone when talking about Mueller. White House special counsel Ty Cobb told Reuters that Mueller's investigators were "appropriately focused." In early 2018, Dowd praised Mueller's indictment of 13 Russian trolls who interfered in the US election. After leaving the legal team, Dowd said, "We had a terrific relationship with Mueller... completely open, people trusted each other and we had no misunderstandings."

These lawyers oversaw a period of extensive cooperation with Mueller, providing thousands of documents and making White House aides available for interviews.

Now He's a corrupt partisan on a witch hunt.

Trump shuffled around his legal team in spring 2018 and hired Giuliani to mount an aggressive campaign against Mueller in the press. Giuliani has said Mueller is running the "most corrupt investigation I have ever seen." He also called for an investigation into Mueller's conduct and accused him of hiding anti-Trump bias on his team.

Trump branded the investigation a "witch hunt" and a "disgrace to our nation." He has repeatedly referred to Mueller's team as a group of "angry Democrat thugs." (Mueller is a lifelong Republican and was appointed by Rosenstein, Trump's handpicked No. 2 at the Justice Department. Some members of Mueller's team previously donated to Democrats, which is permitted under department rules.)

Legal process

Is Trump going to pardon Manafort?

Then It's not being considered.

The New York Times reported in March 2018 that Dowd had previously floated the possibility of pardons with lawyers representing Manafort and

Flynn. Cobb swiftly denied the story and said, “No pardons are under discussion or under consideration at the White House.”

Months later, the topic of pardons came up again when Manafort was convicted on eight counts of financial fraud in August 2018. Sanders said from the White House podium, “Once again, that’s not something that has been up for discussion.”

Now It’s still on the table.

One day after Sanders’ denial, Giuliani acknowledged that he recently discussed pardons with Trump. Giuliani told the Huffington Post that they had “a quick meeting” about pardons, and that they agreed “not to pardon anybody during the pendency of the investigation.”

Trump later contradicted Giuliani and claimed that pardons weren’t ever discussed, but also refused to rule one out for Manafort. “It was never discussed, but I wouldn’t take it off the table. Why would I take it off the table?” he said in an interview with the New York Post.

- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Russian business ties

Does Trump have any business ties to Russia?

Then Trump has nothing to do with Russia.

Throughout the 2016 campaign and well into the first two years of his presidency, Trump denied having any business dealings in Russia. He issued blanket denials on the campaign trail, and repeatedly claimed that he had “nothing to do with Russia.” Shortly before taking office in January 2017, Trump said: “I have no dealings with Russia. I have no deals that could happen in Russia, because we’ve stayed away.”

Now Trump pursued Russia deals through 2016.

Trump's company explored a lucrative real estate deal in Russia deep into the 2016 campaign. Trump shifted his story after his former attorney pleaded guilty in December 2018 to lying to Congress about the Moscow project. Trump said, "This deal was a very public deal. Everybody knows about this deal. I wasn't trying to hide anything," despite the fact that the deal was never disclosed before he took office.

Russian business ties

When did discussions end for Trump Tower Moscow?

Then January 2016 before the primaries.

In September 2015, a few months after after Trump launched his presidential campaign, the Trump Organization began discussions for a Trump Tower in Moscow. Michael Cohen, a personal attorney to Trump and a senior executive at the Trump Organization, led the negotiations with a Russian company.

In his September 2017 closed-door testimony to lawmakers, Cohen described it as a "rejected proposal to build a Trump property in Moscow that was terminated in January of 2016; which occurred before the Iowa caucus and months before the very first primary."

Now Possibly as late as November 2016.

In November 2018, Cohen admitted that he lied to Congress about Trump Tower Moscow and pleaded guilty to perjury. Negotiations continued "as late as approximately June 2016," according to court filings. Mueller's team asked Trump written questions about when the proposal fell through, and Giuliani said their answer "covered all the way up to November 2016."

In subsequent TV interviews, Giuliani repeated that conversations could have continued "up until November 2016." Giuliani later backtracked and said his comments were "hypothetical and not based on conversations I had with the President."

Russian business ties

Did Trump sign a letter of intent for Trump Tower Moscow?

Then No, he didn't.

In December 2018, Giuliani told CNN that Trump never signed a letter of intent for the Trump Tower Moscow project, which was pursued by his company during the 2016 presidential campaign. Giuliani said: "It was a real estate project. There was a letter of intent to go forward, but no one signed it."

Now Yes, he did.

Shortly after Giuliani's comments, CNN published copies of the document bearing Trump's signature, confirming that Trump did sign the non-binding agreement for a real estate deal in the heart of Moscow. Giuliani backtracked from his original statement. "I was wrong if I said it," he told CNN. "I haven't seen the quote, but I probably meant to say there was never a deal, much less a signed one."

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Trump on his associates

How does Trump view campaign aides under Russia scrutiny?

Then They're the best of the best.

Before any of Trump's campaign aides got in trouble, he painted them as the best and brightest people who could be involved on a presidential team. Trump said foreign policy adviser George Papadopoulos was "an excellent guy" when he named Papadopoulos as an adviser in March 2016.

When Manafort resigned from the campaign in August 2016, Trump said he was “very appreciative for his great work in helping to get us where we are today,” and commended Manafort as a “true professional.”

Now They’re irrelevant nobodies.

Papadopoulos pleaded guilty in 2017 to lying to the FBI about his contacts with Russians during the campaign. Trump downplayed Papadopoulos’ role, saying: “Few people knew the young, low level volunteer named George, who has already proven to be a liar.” Others in the Trump orbit said Papadopoulos was a “coffee boy” on the campaign who had no influence.

During Manafort financial fraud trial in summer 2018, Trump distanced himself from his onetime campaign chairman. Trump said, “Manafort has nothing to do with our campaign ... Paul Manafort worked for me for a very short period of time.”

Trump on his associates

What does Trump think of Cohen?

Then He’s a trusted attorney.

Trump and his team praised Cohen countless times, before he flipped. At a closed-door fundraiser in 2017, Trump said, “Michael is a great lawyer ... a loyal, wonderful person,” according to audio leaked by The Intercept. Trump criticized the FBI raids in April 2018 against Cohen and said they were a disgraceful move against “a good man.”

Shortly after that, Trump wrote in a tweet that he “always liked and respected” Cohen, whom he described as a “fine person” who was unlikely to assist investigators. It wasn’t just Trump, either -- Giuliani said Cohen was “an honest, honorable lawyer” after the FBI raids.

Now He is a desperate liar.

Trump’s relationship with Cohen deteriorated as it became clear that his ex-lawyer was open to helping federal investigations into Trump’s company and campaign. Trump and his lawyers said Cohen should not be trusted, despite Cohen’s decade-long role at the Trump Organization.

Giuliani said Cohen was a “pathological liar” and said that Cohen “lied all his life.”

Trump sharply criticized Cohen for secretly taping him. He even called Cohen a “rat” for cooperating with Mueller. Trump also downplayed Cohen’s onetime role as his attorney, saying Cohen “was a PR person who did small legal work.”

THE BIPARTISAN SPENDING BINGE IS NOW WORSE THAN UNDER BUSH AND OBAMA

Daniel Horowitz · February 15, 2019

Bet_Noire | Getty Images

We're now $22 trillion in debt, yet despite all that red ink, the Mexican cartels have control of our border and we're not one bit closer to spending money on our own security. We've gone into deep debt for everything except the core function of the federal government.

It feels like it was yesterday when I was watching the news as a kid with my parents in 1995, listening to Newt Gingrich, during the infamous shutdown fight, warn about the dire consequences of crossing the $5 trillion debt milestone. It feels like it was yesterday when I was writing press releases for candidates in "the year of the Tea Party" on how Obama and the Pelosi Congress took the debt to $14 trillion in such a short period of time. Now, over eight years into varying degrees of GOP control of Congress and the White House, we have crossed the $22 trillion mark, expanding the debt more rapidly than at any time in our history. Whereas the debt exploded by $5 trillion during Bush's eight-year tenure, a shocking figure at the time, it has now increased $8 trillion just since Republicans controlled the House in 2011 and by $4 trillion over the past four years, since they controlled at least two of the three political organs of government.

Now, the only question Republicans have is how many pennies of border security they will fight for, while refusing to challenge any of the nonessential and even harmful programs of the federal government. The GOP platform on debt and spending is a lie from top to bottom, as Republicans plan to pass more budget bills allowing us to blow through the budget caps without any effort to systemically reform the way we budget.

Now that Republicans are planning to cave on border funding, can they at least force a confrontation with Democrats over spending levels for functions of government that are nowhere near as important as border security? Thus, departments like HUD, which were able to completely shut down for a month with nobody noticing, will continue to enjoy record spending. We will continue to provide security for Kabul and Baghdad with the beefed-up military budget since last year's budget deal, but no funding for our border or meaningful use of the military to protect our own sovereignty from the daily incursions by the most brutal cartels on earth.

Why even have a Republican Party any more?

Even more indefensible, unlike during the end of Bush's years and the beginning of Obama's tenure, when we first began accruing trillion-dollar annual deficits, we are not facing a deep recession. In fact, we are enjoying the most robust period of job growth since the late 1990s, and revenue is at a record high baseline.

Let it be known for all of time that dire predictions of revenue slumping as a result of the tax cuts were fake news. The entirety of the current deficit problem is due to increased spending. According to the latest monthly report released by the Treasury Department yesterday, spending was up 9.6 percent for the first three months of fiscal year 2019 relative to the first three months of FY 2018. What about revenues? They actually rose slightly by 0.2 percent, despite some declines in certain revenue categories. This is an important statistic, because it is the first clean metric we have comparing a period of time with the tax cuts in full implementation to a period before the tax cuts.

Moreover, some of the increased tax revenue from more payroll taxes likely would not have occurred without the job creation spawned by the tax cuts. If you isolate the revenue tallies for individual and corporate taxes, the government obviously did lose some revenue in certain categories, but it was made up by a $15 billion increase in payroll tax revenue (FICA, Social Security taxes), in addition to increased revenue from excise taxes.

The annual deficit after just three months stood at $319 trillion, well on pace to smash the trillion-dollar deficit mark for the first time in a booming economy.

Thus, this bipartisan era of debt is worse than anything we've seen this generation, and it is all happening with record revenue and a booming economy – with no world war consuming our economy and budget.

Thanks to Republican-approved budget deals, for the first three months of the fiscal year, outlays for HHS are up 12.5 percent, outlays for the Department of Education spiked 23 percent, and outlays for the Department of Commerce have doubled! Meanwhile, outlays on Homeland Security have actually been down by 30 percent because of less disaster spending under FEMA than last year. But it's not like we went on a spending binge for Border Patrol and ICE. Outlays on military spending are up 8.45 percent, but again, what is the purpose of the military if we use it everywhere else in the world except against those who most directly harm us at our own border?

All of this spending is creating a crisis with interest payments on the debt. Net interest payments for the first quarter are up to $100 billion. That is an annualized pace of $400 billion, almost twice the level it has been in recent years. And this is just the beginning.

What is driving the most debt? The issue where Republicans now agree with Democrats: socialized medicine. House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy, R-Calif., is now bashing the Freedom Caucus for opposing the key element of Obamacare responsible for driving up the cost of insurance, thereby generating the massive spending and the monopoly created by the health care industry.

Health care is the 800-pound gorilla in the room. Federal spending on health care (not including state expenditures) is projected to be $17 trillion over the next 10 years, dwarfing the cost of Social Security and the military. By 2047, health care spending will be about 25 percent greater than the insolvent and crushing cost of Social Security. As such, health care in itself is the largest driver of the other great crisis, as noted: the mushrooming cost of the interest on the debt itself. Health care spending alone will be greater than all the revenue from payroll taxes and corporate income taxes combined and almost as large as individual income tax revenue.

This is all going to the creation of a monopoly in a circuitous death spiral of price inflation and increased government spending. It's no mystery why our national expenditures on health care have popped from $27 billion in 1960 to over $3.3 trillion today. Assuming health care would rise at the same rate as the rest of the economy, that number would be under $250 billion today. If we flushed $1.6 trillion down the toilet every year, we'd come out with a better result because we'd just waste money. Now, we are taking that wasted money and artificially inflating the cost of health care to the point that nobody can afford it without government continuing the death spiral of spending, monopolizing, and price inflation.

Yet Republicans have acquiesced to every degree of this baseline and are only debating how much more socialized medicine they will countenance while fake-fighting the rest. Then they will say we have to agree to the new socialized medicine in order to fight the next plan. Rinse and repeat.

Now, instead of looking to cut spending elsewhere, Republican senators met with Ivanka Trump to see how they can create a new entitlement of paid family leave like they have in Europe, but of course without adding to the deficit and distorting our job market! They will find a "conservative way" to agree to Democrats.

With the deficits for FY 2019 skyrocketing just as much as the illegal immigration numbers, at some point conservatives need to asses their rate of return on the Republican Party.

Analysis by Chris Cillizza, CNN Editor-at-large

I went through the whole damn transcript -- and it was a doozy. The lines you need to see are below.

1. [Trump comes out on stage, claps, and then bear-hugs an American flag]

And away we go!

2. "What we did in 2016 -- the Election, we call it, with a capital 'E' -- it's never been done before."

Donald Trump, grammar expert. Also, copy editor. Also also, history-maker.

3. "I was probably more of a conservative than a Republican. People just didn't quite understand that. They didn't understand it."

They likely didn't understand it because Trump, prior to running for president as a Republican, had expressed any number of views -- on abortion, same-sex marriage and lots else -- that suggested he was more closely aligned with Democrats than the GOP.

4. "How many times did you hear, for months and months, 'There is no way to 270?' You know what that means, right? 'There is no way to 270.'"

The 2016 election ended 846 days ago.

5. "So I think we're going to do even better in 2020. I think we're going to do numbers that people haven't seen for a long time."

"Numbers."

6. "But I found some very old laws from when our country was rich -- really rich. The old tariff laws -- we had to dust them off; you could hardly see, they were so dusty."

Ah, those rich -- and dusty -- days. Man, they were great. Tough on the allergies. But great.

7. "You know I'm totally off-script, right?"

Oh, yes.

8. "You know I'm totally off-script right now. And this is how I got elected, by being off-script. True."

It IS true. Voters seemed to believe that Trump's often rambling, hard-to-understand speeches were evidence that he was an authentic politician who refused to be stage-managed. And they liked the idea of a guy who just, well, says stuff.

9. "And if we don't go off-script, our country is in big trouble, folks."

So going off-script is the key to future successes ... [sharpens pencil, breaks out new sheet of paper, begins calculations]

10. "When the wind stops blowing, that's the end of your electric. Let's hurry up. 'Darling' -- 'Darling, is the wind blowing today? I'd like to watch television, darling.'"

"When the wind stop blowing, that's the end of your electric." -- The President of the United States. (Also, Trump is talking here about his sarcastic "support" for the "Green New Deal.")

11. "So the Great Tariff Debate of 1888 -- and then we had so much money we could do whatever we wanted."

Trump has taken to citing 1888 in his speeches of late. This will stun you, but his reading of the historical facts misses a few things.

12. "I won't use a certain words because it's not politically -- but everybody knows the word I'd love to use. Should I use it? I won't do it."

Trump has even turned his infamous love for cursing into some sort of anti-elites mantra. Amazing.

13. "If you tell a joke, if you're sarcastic, if you're having fun with the audience, if you're on live television with millions of people and 25,000 people in an arena, and if you say something like, 'Russia, please, if you can, get us Hillary Clinton's emails. Please, Russia, please.'"

HA HA HA ... oh wait, on the same day Trump "jokingly" asked the Russians to get Hillary Clinton's deleted emails, the Russians began a cybercampaign to get Hillary Clinton's deleted emails.

14. "So everybody is having a good time. I'm laughing, we're all having fun."

"I really can't say I guess I laugh to keep from crying." -- Q-Tip

15. "I know there are people in the Republican Party and people -- really, even conservatives -- good conservatives -- they don't like tariffs. I'm not liking or not liking."

Here's the President on tariffs: "I'm not liking or not liking."

16. "So they don't have anything with Russia. There's no collusion."

Here's a few numbers on the ongoing special counsel probe into Russian interference: 199 criminal charges have been brought against 37 people and entities, seven people have pleaded guilty while four have been sentenced to prison.

17. "I saw little Shifty Schiff yesterday."

"Little Adam Schitt" grimaces.

18. "So now we're waiting for a report, and we'll find out whether or not, and who we're dealing with. We're waiting for a report by people that weren't elected."

A terrific window into how much Trump has made the special counsel's report about him. Remember that special counsel Robert Mueller was asked to look into Russian interference in the 2016 election and the possibility that members of Trump's team may have colluded with the Russians. Instead of worrying about what it means that a malicious foreign power sought to influence our election, Trump is entirely focused on what the report -- and its findings -- mean for him.

19. "We had -- think of this: We had the greatest election -- in all fairness, I used to hear Andrew Jackson. This was now greater than the election of Andrew Jackson. People say that. No, people say it. I'm not saying it. Right? This was the equivalent or greater."

Well if "people say that," who am I to argue????

20. "Those red hats -- and white ones. The key is in the color. The key is what it says. 'Make America Great Again' is what it says. Right? Right?"

Wait. So is the key the color of the hats or what they say on them? I NEED TO KNOW.

21. "And unfortunately, you put the wrong people in a couple of positions, and they leave people for a long time that shouldn't be there. And, all of a sudden, they're trying to take you out with bullshit. OK? With bullshit."

I assume Trump is referring to then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions recusing himself from the Russia probe. Or maybe former FBI Director James Comey for launching the probe. Or deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein for forming a special counsel to look into it. Maybe all of the above. Either way: It's total bullshit!

22. "Now, Robert Mueller never received a vote, and neither did the person that appointed him. And as you know, the attorney general says, 'I'm going to recuse myself.'"

Mueller and Rosenstein never received votes because they are career Justice Department officials. Mueller was a registered Republican, while Rosenstein was a Trump appointee. So ...

23. "You take a look at them. One of them was involved with the Hillary Clinton Foundation, running it. Another one has perhaps the worst reputation of any human being I've ever seen. All killers."

First, a fact check. No one on Mueller's team ran the Clinton Foundation.

Jeannie Rhee was outside counsel to the foundation but never worked there on the payroll. Not sure which member of Mueller's teams "has perhaps the worst reputation of any human being I've ever seen" but I know at least one person who could challenge them for their title ... And, no, no one of Mueller's team is a convicted murderer or "killer."

24. "I had a nasty business transaction with Robert Mueller a number of years ago. I said, 'why isn't that mentioned?'"

Trump is referring to an episode in 2011 when Mueller left a Trump golf club because, according to Trump, of a dispute over dues. Mueller says there was no such dispute. And yet, it is mentioned. Regularly.

25. "He wanted the job as FBI Director."

It is true that Trump interviewed Mueller to be FBI director -- a job he held for a decade under Presidents Bush and Obama -- on the day before Mueller was named special counsel. It is not clear if Mueller expressed a desire to be the FBI director in those conversations.

26. "I have one of the great inventions in history. It's called TiVo. I think it's actually better than television, because television is practically useless without TiVo, right?"

"I invented the piano key necktie. I invented it!" -- Jacobim Mugatu

27. "And I fire a bad cop. I fire a dirty cop."

Trump is referring here to Comey, a career Justice Department official. Not to that cop in "The Wire" who was always taking money off of the street hustlers and keeping it form himself. (I see you, Randy!)

28. "So, just to finish -- and I'll tell you, Matt Schlapp is loving this."

He's not even halfway done.

29. "Number one, I'm in love, and you're in love. We're all in love together."

Trump is talking about why he is speaking for so long and so far off-script. It's because of love, obviously.

30. "There's so much love in this room, it's easy to talk. You can talk your heart out. You really could. There's love in this room. You can talk your heart out. It's easy. It's easy. It's easy."

What do you say to a man who has already said everything?

31. "We never had an empty seat."

Trump is claiming there was never an empty seat at ANY rally he held in 2018. Which, uh, isn't accurate.

32. "And from the day we came down the escalator, I really don't believe we've had an empty seat at any arena, at any stadium."

"The day we came down the escalator."

33. "They did the same thing at our big inauguration speech. You take a look at those crowds."

Trump's claims that more people attended or watched his inauguration than any other in history has been repeatedly -- and clearly -- debunked. And yet, here we are.

34. "Remember this also -- not that Obama would ever do this: But we had fencing all the way down to the Washington Monument. And it was raining and it was wet, and the grass was wet."

He's STILL making excuses for why the crowd at his inauguration didn't look bigger. The grass was wet! The fencing! The sun was in my eyes!

35. "We had a crowd -- I've never seen anything like it. And I have to live -- I have to live with 'crowd size.' It's all a phony deal."

This is actually a good illustration of how Trump's world works. From where he was giving his inaugural address, he saw lots and lots of people. Therefore, it must have been the most ever -- even if objective facts don't bear that out.

Those objective facts, in his mind, are just part of the fake news media's attempts to smear him.

36. "But I saw a picture just the other night of practically no people. It was taken hours before our great day."

Trump was inaugurated on January 20, 2017. That was 773 days ago. But "just the other night" he was looking at a picture of his inauguration crowd. Totally normal stuff here!

37. "Then I'll show you where they showed, just the other day, an empty field -- like nobody on it. And you'll see the sun. You know, you can see it's very dark, because the sun is like starting to rise, right?"

In which the President of the United States reveals he has been closely studying pictures of his inauguration crowd in search of evidence that they had been taken very early in the morning and, therefore, missed the big crowds.

Sure!

38. "You know, somebody said, 'Oh, the speech you made, sir, the State of the Union speech was incredible.' They said it was incredible. They said that was so great."

Who is this "somebody"?

39. "I didn't want to get it approved for a certain reason, because I thought somebody treated me very badly. Very badly. Don't get that vote very often. And I said, you know, I don't want to get it."

Trump is making clear here that he is not happy that he helped get drilling in ANWR approved because Alaska Sen. Lisa Murkowski \(R\) wanted it to happen and he didn't want her to get something she wanted. Because she doesn't vote with him enough. Totally fine!

40. "By the way, you know I'm building the wall. We're finishing the wall. We got a lot of money. It's in the thing."

It is, indeed, in the thing.

41. "We have people in Congress that hate our country."

WOW WOW WOW.

42. "We have a lot of people here that are important people in terms of votes. We have some senators. We have some congressmen."

Yes, waiter, I'll have the word salad.

43. "For one thing, they don't respect us. They think we're 'stupido.'"

What were the odds in Vegas that Trump would say "stupido"? One in a million? Higher? Those oddsmakers were stupido.

44. "He called me up. He said, 'You're a great President. You're doing a great job.'"

According to Trump, California Gov. Gavin Newsom (D) told him how great he was doing. I, uh, doubt this is true.

45. "The leaves -- every once in a while, you have to remove the leaves because they are so -- a guy smoking a cigarette, he throws it away, he doesn't mean it."

Donald Trump on forest fires.

46. "He said, 'I just want to tell you you're a great President and you're one of the smartest people I've ever met.'"

So, the liberal governor of California called up Trump to tell him how great he is and how smart he is? Riiiiiiiiight.

47. "But I was told by a general, who I had to fire -- I said, 'General, how long before we get 100% of the caliphate?' He said, 'Sir, two years.' I said, 'I can't take it two years.'"

"I know more about ISIS than the generals do. Believe me." -- Donald Trump

48. "I never saw so many beautiful-looking machine guns. I'd look at that equipment and I'd say, 'Man ...' They sit in the trees. They sit on the lawn."

Words fail.

49. "I have pretty good vision. At least for my age, I have good vision. I guess for my age, I have great vision."

From good to great in two sentences: The life of Donald Trump.

50. "So we changed his name. Called him 'Mad Dog.' But it wasn't working too well. Mad Dog wasn't working too well."

Contrary to this claim, Trump didn't invent the nickname "Mad Dog" for his former Defense Secretary James Mattis. Not even close.

51. "And I said, 'Bring the cameras. I'm going to make a movie. This is the most incredible thing.'"

Trump was in Iraq to meet with generals. His first thought? Bring in the cameras. Let's make a movie.

52. "I mean, you talk central casting. These guys -- you couldn't -- I mean, it's incredible. They had a master sergeant. I could take him right now, bring him to Hollywood, make a military movie, and he's the star of the movie."

Trump reveals, on almost a daily basis, that he views being President as akin to serving as the executive producer for the world's greatest reality show.

53. "The drill sergeant was so incredible that he ended up starring in the movie, and he should have gotten the Academy Award, by the way, but he didn't. That's because Hollywood discriminates against our people. You know the movie I'm talking about, right? What was that movie? You know the movie."

Yes, it's called "Full Metal Jacket."

54. "Nobody has left. I watch those doors. Because a lot of times -- a lot of times -- well, one time, the press said people left. Yeah, you know where they went? To the bathroom. And then they came back."

This speech lasted TWO hours. TWO.

55. "And a certain fake news deal showed a picture on the front page of these two empty seats. They said Trump had empty seats. We never have empty seats."

Back to this then? Wasn't that sort of a first-hour-of-the-speech sort of thing?

56. "See, I don't have white hair. I don't have white hair."

Um, true!

57. "She's like -- she's like a crazed person. What she said about men is so bad. What she said about men is so bad."

Donald Trump on Sen. Mazie Hirono \(D-Hawaii\). Perfectly normal! Nothing to see here folks!

58. "We reject oppressive speech codes, censorship, political correctness, and every other attempt by the hard left to stop people from challenging ridiculous and dangerous ideas. These ideas are dangerous."

If Trump said just these two sentences over and over and over again, he would probably get re-elected. Because this anti-PC rhetoric resonates with lots and lots of people who likely aren't obvious Trump supporters. Of course, as this speech proves, he will never just say these two sentences. Or any two sentences.

59. "Mothers, who love their daughters, give them massive amounts of birth control pills because they know their daughters are going to be raped on the way up to our southern border."

I think this interview with a border patrol agent is where Trump got this idea. It's not at all clear if this was an isolated incident or a common practice.

60. "Not my fault I inherited this mess, but we're fixing it."

Trump is referring here specifically to the situation at the border. But really, he views every issue (and his whole life) through this lens. Someone else is responsible for the problem. But he will fix it.

61. "I did 32 big, fat rallies. And those rallies brought us to a tremendous Senate victory so that we can continue onward with our judges and our approvals."

So, Trump deserves credit for the 2018 election!

62. "One of the commentators -- and I appreciate it -- one of the shows where they were saying how I suffered a defeat, this commentator said, 'Excuse me, he didn't run.'"

So Trump doesn't deserve blame for the 2018 election! (Also: These two sentences were uttered by the President within 20 seconds of each other.

Good times.)

63. "Then he had a tough race against the new star of the Democrat Party -- not Democratic. It's Democrat. We have to do that."

This is the dumbest thing ever. It is the "Democratic" Party. Republicans in the 1990s decided that they would start saying it was the "Democrat" Party because they didn't want people to think only one party was on the side of democratic ideals. Smart move, Republics!

64. "I hate to say in the speech, the 'Democrat Party' because it doesn't sound good. But that's all the more reason I use it, because it doesn't. They should change it because it sounds much better. Rhetorically, it's much better. Much better."

They don't need to change it! It's already called the Democratic Party! Republicans just have to stop saying "Democrat" Party. Come on people. We can do this!

65. "We had a rally at the airport, where 55,000 people showed up to the airport. It was one hangar. They had three other hangars that were full. They went so far back."

The rally for Georgia gubernatorial candidate Brian Kemp was held in one hangar. Not two. And definitely not three. The MOST people who were there? Around 18,500.

66. "Fourth of July -- keep it open. We want to bring millions of people into the city, and we want people to come who love our country. Those are the people we want. The Fourth of July. (Applause.) A salute to America."

[checks calendar] I'm WIDE open on July 4!

67. "By the way, I'm watching those doors. Not one person has left, and I've been up here a long time. ... But not one person. So if you hear tomorrow, when they read 'people left' -- nobody left early. There hasn't been one person that's left."

He is totally and completely obsessed with crowds. And crowds staying. And loving him. This feels like a good place to end.

Ann Coulter Hits Back at Trump: 'The Only National Emergency Is That Our President Is an Idiot'

Conservative commentator Ann Coulter responded to President Donald Trump's criticism of her, saying that "the only national emergency is that our president is an idiot." Her comments came after Trump declared a national emergency on the southern border, while distancing himself from Coulter. "Thank God he's relieved me of any responsibility for what he's been doing," Coulter told John Phillips and Jillian Barberie on KABC's "The Morning Drive" Friday. THE 29 MOST CONSEQUENTIAL LINES FROM MICHAEL COHEN'S CONGRESSIONAL TESTIMONY

(CNN)Michael Cohen, President Donald Trump's one-time personal attorney and fixer, is testifying before the House Oversight Committee Wednesday -- likely the only chance the public will have to hear from him before he is sent to jail in May for a series of tax and campaign finance charges.

Cohen's testimony is one of the biggest moments of Trump's time in office and among the most high-profile hearings on Capitol Hill in modern political memory.

I watched Cohen's testimony throughout the day, plucked out key lines from him and added context and analysis. These lines are in the chronological order in which Cohen said them.

1. "I am ashamed because I know what Mr. Trump is. He is a racist. He is a conman. He is a cheat."

These lines, from Cohen's opening statement, set the tone for the day. And the tone is this: Cohen is not going to be pulling any punches on Trump. A man who spent a decade at the right hand of the current President of the United States is now saying on the record that that man is a "racist," a "conman" and a "cheat." We've grown used to the abnormal in Trump's White House, but even by that standard, this is a "whoa" moment.

2. "He was a presidential candidate who knew that Roger Stone was talking with Julian Assange about a WikiLeaks drop of Democratic National Committee emails."

And boom goes the dynamite. This is a Very Big Deal. Remember that Trump told The New York Times earlier this year that he had never spoken to Stone -- who has been indicted on charges that he lied to Congress about the nature and extent of his dealing with WikiLeaks -- about the DNC emails hacked by the Russians and then released to do maximum damage to Hillary Clinton's campaign. "No, I didn't. I never did," Trump said when asked whether he talked to Stone about the stolen emails. The Times also pressed on whether Trump told anyone, including Stone, to get in touch with WikiLeaks to see when they were planning to drop the emails. "Never did," Trump responded.

3. "A copy of a check Mr. Trump wrote from his personal bank account -- after he became president -- to reimburse me for the hush money payments I made to cover up his affair with an adult film star and prevent damage to his campaign."

Cohen has the receipts -- literally! The check -- for $35,000 -- is dated August 1, 2017, and signed in Trump's very distinctive script. That date is, obviously, after Trump became president. And if Cohen is to be believed, it also directly contradicts Trump's assertions in April 2018 that he knew nothing about where Cohen got the money to keep porn star Stormy Daniels and Playboy model Karen McDougal -- both of whom alleged affairs with Trump -- quiet during the 2016 campaign.

Of course, a check signed to Cohen is not proof that the money was a reimbursement for the hush payments -- although the check is consistent with Cohen's version of events and the version of events that prosecutors in the Southern District of New York seem to believe: That Trump played a role in coordinating and orchestrating the payments to Daniels and McDougal in a clear end-run of campaign finance laws.

4. "Mr. Trump did not directly tell me to lie to Congress. That's not how he operates."

This from Cohen directly disputes reporting from BuzzFeed News that Cohen was instructed to lie by the President. Special counsel Robert Mueller's office released a statement that took issue with the BuzzFeed reporting shortly after it published.

5. "There were at least a half-dozen times between the Iowa Caucus in January 2016 and the end of June when he would ask me 'How's it going in Russia?' -- referring to the Moscow Tower project."

This sheds light on the breadth of Trump's interest in and conversations about Trump Tower Moscow. What we knew prior to today is that Cohen lied to Congress when he told them that all conversations with the Russians about the development had stopped by January 2016. Cohen later admitted that he had lied about that because he was concerned it might hurt Trump's presidential chances if people knew that the conversations had continued all the way into the summer of 2016.

6. "Trump knew of and directed the Trump Moscow negotiations throughout the campaign and lied about it. He lied about it because he never expected to win the election. He also lied about it because he stood to make hundreds of millions of dollars on the Moscow real estate project."

A few things here are relevant. First, Trump lawyer Rudy Giuliani said in January that Trump was involved in discussions about the possible Trump Tower Moscow project all the way through the election. (Giuliani later said he was speaking only hypothetically about what Trump knew when.) Second, both that admission from Giuliani and Cohen's claim seem to directly dispute Trump's repeated insistence during the campaign that "I have nothing to do with Russia. I don't have any jobs in Russia. I'm all over the world but we're not involved in Russia."

7. "Mr. Trump would often say, this campaign was going to be the 'greatest infomercial in political history.'"

No matter how Trump tries to rewrite history, it is a fact that he never, ever thought he would be the Republican nominee -- much less the president. He had walked up to the edge of running a few times before and knew that if he didn't do it this time then people wouldn't cover him when he thought about it in the future. You can dispute Cohen's assertion that Trump's entire campaign was solely to further brand awareness, but you cannot dispute that the billionaire businessman never thought he would win.

8. "Mr. Stone told Mr. Trump that he had just gotten off the phone with Julian Assange and that Mr. Assange told Mr. Stone that, within a couple of days, there would be a massive dump of emails that would damage Hillary Clinton's campaign. Mr. Trump responded by stating to the effect of 'wouldn't that be great.'"

These lines are probably the most important in all of Cohen's opening statement -- and maybe in his broader daylong testimony. Per No. 2 above, Cohen's assertion that he was in the room when Trump talked to Stone about WikiLeaks and its plans to release stolen emails runs directly counter to Trump's public insistence that he had never talked to Stone about WikiLeaks. Directly counter. The timing of all of this is very interesting too. Cohen says in his testimony that the call occurred between Stone and Trump about WikiLeaks in July 2016. Later that month, Trump held a news conference in which he said: "Russia, if you're listening, I hope you're able to find the 30,000 emails that are missing, I think you will probably be rewarded mightily by our press." Either on or right around that day, according to an indictment of a number of Russian officials by Mueller, Russia sent phishing attempts to Clinton staffers.
Ahem.

9. "He once asked me if I could name a country run by a black person that wasn't a 'shithole.' This was when Barack Obama was President of the United States." Impossible to corroborate what Cohen is saying here -- unless there were other people in the room -- but this is consistent with reporting from CNN and others in January 2018 that Trump referred to immigrants coming into the US from "shithole" countries.

10. "He told me that black people would never vote for him because they were too stupid."

Again, virtually impossible to corroborate this. While Trump never said anything like what Cohen alleges in the 2016 campaign, his pitch to black voters was hugely stereotypical -- suggesting that they didn't have much, so why not take a chance on voting for him.

"What do you have to lose by trying something new, like Trump," Trump would often ask. "What the hell do you have to lose?"

11. "He asked me to pay off an adult film star with whom he had an affair, and to lie to his wife about it, which I did."

This runs directly counter to Trump's insistence that he a) knew nothing about the payment to Stormy Daniels and b) never spoke with Cohen about how to handle that situation. It is also runs counter to Trump's repeated denials that he ever engaged in extramarital acts with Daniels.

12. "This $35,000 check was one of 11 check installments that was paid throughout the year -- while he was President. The President of the United States thus wrote a personal check for the payment of hush money as part of a criminal scheme to violate campaign finance laws." The check Cohen is referencing -- from No. 3 above -- could be damning evidence. The problem, of course, is that nowhere on the check does it say that Trump is reimbursing Cohen for the $130,000 hush money payment to Daniels. Which gives Trump plausible deniability. Still, it doesn't look good. At all.

13. "I'm talking about a man who declares himself brilliant but directed me to threaten his high school, his colleges, and the College Board to never release his grades or SAT scores."

If you don't think Cohen is telling the truth here, then you have missed the entirety of Trump's professional and political life -- all of which make Cohen's claim wholly credible.

14. "He finished the conversation with the following comment. 'You think I'm stupid, I wasn't going to Vietnam.'"

Trump received a series of deferments that kept him out of the Vietnam war. He claimed he had a medical condition -- bone spurs -- that would make him unable to serve. Two daughters of the podiatrist who diagnosed Trump with those bone spurs told The New York Times that their father did so as a "favor" to Trump's father, Fred.

15. "Questions have been raised about whether I know of direct evidence that Mr. Trump or his campaign colluded with Russia. I do not."

NO COLLUSION!

16. "Don Jr. came into the room and walked behind his father's desk -- which in itself was unusual. People didn't just walk behind Mr. Trump's desk to talk to him. I recalled Don Jr. leaning over to his father and speaking in a low voice, which I could clearly hear, and saying: 'The meeting is all set.' I remember Mr. Trump saying, 'OK good...let me know.'"

This conversation, which Cohen said happened in early June 2016, is what he believes is a sign that President Trump knew about the June 2016 Trump Tower meeting between Don Jr, Jared Kushner, Paul Manafort and a group of Russians promising dirt on Clinton. Trump and Trump Jr. have denied that the President ever knew about the meeting. And in their defense, Cohen's memory is pure conjecture here; Don Jr. could have been talking about any number of meetings and Cohen has no proof that the President's eldest son was actually looping his father in on the meeting with the Russians.

17. "I have never asked for, nor would I accept, a pardon from President Trump."

This clears up one question I had coming into this hearing. But Cohen's statement doesn't make clear whether a pardon was ever offered -- or even floated by Trump or his allies.

18. "I did not want to go to the White House. I was offered jobs."

Cohen pushed back hard on the idea that Ohio Rep. Jim Jordan put forward that Cohen's willingness to attack Trump was entirely born of his anger that he had not been asked to serve in the White House. Cohen said that Trump wanted him to work in the White House but that he believed it would invalidate their attorney-client privilege and therefore make it impossible to do his other work on behalf of Trump. Donald Trump Jr. disagreed with Cohen's version of events, tweeting: "Hahahaha

19. "[Stone] frequently reached out to Mr. Trump and Mr. Trump was very happy to take his calls. It was -- free service."

This is important. Cohen made clear here that Roger Stone was not an operative of the Trump campaign but rather a sort-of friend who flitted in and out of Trump world. There was, according to Cohen, no codified relationship between the two -- although Cohen did say Trump was more than happy to take Stone's call and any information he offered.

20. "Mr. Trump's desire to win would have him work with anyone."

This was Cohen's response to Florida Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz's question as to whether the President was capable of working with the Russians to help him win an election. This is entirely speculative, of course, but it is worth noting that Cohen did know Trump better than almost anyone for more than a decade.

21. "Everything was done with the knowledge of, and at the direction of, Mr. Trump."

Cohen is speaking specifically here about his allegation that he worked on Trump's behalf to make him look wealthier in order to boost him on Forbes' list of the richest people in the country. For what it's worth, Trump dropped 220 slots on Forbes' list in 2017.

22. "It wasn't our responsibility to be the fact checker for a news agency."

Jordan wanted to know why Cohen's lawyer, Lanny Davis, had not denied the BuzzFeed News story last month which, citing informed sources, said that Cohen had told the special counsel's office that Trump had asked him to lie to Congress. The special counsel's office did dispute the story -- in broad terms -- although BuzzFeed did not retract it. Earlier in his testimony (see No. 5 above) Cohen said under oath that Trump had never directly asked him to lie to Congress.

23. "They want to know what I know about Mr. Trump ... and not one question has been asked about Mr. Trump."

After two hours of questioning and a brief break, Cohen used a question from Jordan to lecture Republicans. Cohen noted that Republicans on the Oversight Committee had spent hours forcing him to confess wrongs he had committed, which he had already admitted, rather than asking questions about his dealings with Trump as it related to either the hush payments to Daniels and McDougal or the President's involvement in the conversations about the Trump Tower Moscow development.

The two sparred several times on Wednesday. In another key moment of the hearing, Cohen said, "shame on you, Mr. Jordan," when arguing that the congressman had mischaracterized his testimony.

24. "I have no reason to believe that tape exists."

Democratic Rep. Jamie Raskin of Maryland kind of, sort of asked Cohen about whether he was aware -- or had ever seen -- what has been called the "pee tape," a rumored video of Trump watching prostitutes urinating at a hotel in Russia. (The allegation was made as part of a broader dossier compiled by former British spy Christopher Steele.) According to former FBI Director James Comey, Trump brought up the tape allegation and asked him to dispute it publicly if he could.

25. "He speaks in a code. And I understand the code because I've been around him for a decade."

One of Cohen's core arguments in his testimony is that Trump never directly told him to, say, lie to Congress because he didn't have to: Cohen, like others who had spent years with Trump, knew exactly what Trump wanted done. Whether you believe Cohen truly understands the "code" that Trump is speaking in -- or whether he is actually speaking in any code at all -- depends on how you view Trump (and Cohen).

Regardless, it seems clear that Trump did not expressly tell Cohen to break the law, although Cohen has clearly stated in his testimony that Trump sought to end-run campaign finance laws in paying off two women who alleged affairs with Trump in the mid-2000s.

26. "I have never been to Prague."

Well, that settles that. The Steele dossier alleged that Cohen traveled to Prague to meet with a Russian official during the 2016 campaign. Cohen denied he went to Prague, and said he instead went to Europe in 2016 but was in London to visit his daughter, who was studying abroad.

27. "I don't believe Mr. Trump ever struck Mrs. Trump, ever."

Cohen made this comment in response to questioning by Democratic California Rep. Jackie Speier about the possible existence of an elevator tape from Trump Tower in which Donald Trump is allegedly seen hitting his wife, Melania Trump. "Comedian" Tom Arnold has spread the idea that such an elevator tape exists, while offering no proof of that fact. Cohen said he believes no tape like that exists and that Trump was never violent with his wife.

28. "What he didn't want was to have an entire group of think tanks run through his tax return ... and then he'll end up in an audit and eventually have taxable consequences."

Asked by California Rep. Jimmy Gomez (D) what Trump had told Cohen about why he didn't want to release his tax returns, Cohen offered up this answer -- which is FAR different from the White House's official line that he cannot release the returns because he is under audit. According to Cohen, Trump was worried about being under audit if his returns were released and picked through. Which would suggest that he is not currently under audit, and that the real reason Trump is afraid of releasing his taxes is because he doesn't want to pay tax fines.

29. "I fear that if he loses the presidential election in 2020, there will never be a peaceful transition of power."

In Cohen's closing statement, he offered this ominous warning about what might happen if Trump loses a bid for a second term in 2020. It's not an idle threat, either. Remember that Trump has argued -- with no evidence -- that 3 to 5 million votes had been cast illegally in the 2016 election. And that was an election he won! Imagine what it would be like if he lost.

MICHAEL COHEN, TRUMP'S FORMER "FIXER," TESTIFIES AT A HEARING ON CAPITOL HILL. By Victor Reklaitis Money & Politics

Michael Cohen, President Donald Trump's former personal lawyer, spent hours on Wednesday taking questions from the House Oversight and Reform Committee.

After his striking prepared remarks came out late Tuesday, political analysts were bracing for fresh revelations in his Q&A with lawmakers.

See live blog and video of Cohen testimony

Here are six takeaways from what we heard in the back-and-forth from Cohen, who is set to serve time in prison for lying to Congress in 2017.

1. New probe of Trump by prosecutors revealed

In response to a question about his last conversation with Trump or Team Trump, Cohen declined to comment as follows: "This topic is something that's currently being investigated right now by the Southern District of New York."

That remark came during an exchange with Illinois Democratic Rep. ⊗
Raja Krishnamoorthi, who then followed up with this question: "Is there any other wrongdoing or illegal act that you are aware of regarding Donald Trump that we haven't yet discussed today?"

"Yes," Cohen said. "And again, those are part of the investigation that's currently being looked at by the Southern District of New York."

2. A Cohen book or movie could be in the works

North Carolina Republican Rep. Virginia Foxx accused Cohen of using his testimony for his own personal benefit, like getting book or movie deals.

She asked him to promise that he won't pursue a deal along those lines, and Cohen refused to do so. He also refused to promise he wouldn't run for office.

In an exchange with Tennessee Republican Rep. Mark Green, Cohen said he could make a note of what actor the congressman wants portraying him. That drew a chuckle from Green during the mostly tense hearing. GOP lawmakers repeatedly said Cohen's past actions didn't make him seem like a credible witness.

3. Cohen hints at other payments of hush money

Cohen's testimony raised fresh questions about Trump ally David Pecker, the CEO of National Enquirer's parent company. That company, American Media Inc., has admitted to making hush-money payments on Trump's behalf to Karen McDougal during the 2016 presidential to quash her allegations about an affair.

Maryland Democratic Rep. Jamie Raskin asked if Pecker had done this in "other cases of other mistresses or women."

"Other circumstances, yes," Cohen said. "Not all of them had to do with women."

4. Cohen says Trump-Sater documents probably in a box somewhere

Cohen talked about the Trump Organization's ties to mob-linked operator Felix Sater, following questioning from California Democratic Rep. Harley Rouda.

Cohen alleged that Trump lied while under oath in 2013 when he said he didn't know Sater well. He also said business records that show links between Sater and Trump are probably in a box at an offsite Trump Organization storage facility.

5. Cohen's 'Truth in Testimony Disclosure Form' questioned North Carolina Republican Rep. Mark Meadows, a Trump ally and head of the conservative Freedom Caucus, questioned how Cohen had filled out a "Truth in Testimony Disclosure Form" ahead of Wednesday's hearing.

The congressman blasted Cohen for not disclosing dealings with foreign entities on the form, but California Democratic Rep. Katie Hill later said at the hearing that witnesses just need to disclose contracts with a foreign government, not all overseas entities.

6. No trip to Prague

Cohen has faced an allegation, which surfaced in the infamous "dossier" of former British spy Christopher Steele, that he was in Prague in 2016 basically to serve as a liaison between the Trump campaign and Russian operatives.

But Cohen during this hearing said: "I've never been to Prague."

Why the stock market might soon careen down a dangerous 'slope of hope'

Susan Edelman Blank Trump is a personality disordered malignant narcissist who lacks guilt and empathy. He lives moment to moment; everything he does is all emotion-based behavior. There is no logic or reason or accountability to previous statements or acts. He is extremely impulsive and dangerous and must be removed from office (I am a psychotherapist trained in the diagnosis and treatment of personality disorders and have a Duty to Warn).

Susan Edelman Blank The only thing the Republicans have going for them is to keep repeating that Cohen is a liar and cheat, and they ask why the Democrats didn't get an honest man to testify about Trump? The reason: Trump wouldn't hire or confide in an honest man, and an honest man wouldn't work for Trump. Like the Mafia, made men protect the Don at all costs.

The bigger questions are: Why are supposedly reputable men, serving American citizens in good faith in our country's Congress, protecting a President who the FBI is investigating for being a Russian asset and the Southern District of New York is investigating for bank fraud, tax fraud, and money laundering ? Don't they want to know the truth about the man who sits in The Oval Office and acts as the Leader of the Free World? Talk about blind loyalty. [No, Susan. Your observation is laudable, courageous; but, unfortunately a bit too forgiving and optimistic From direct observation and experience it is self-interest, greed, cowardice, fear, and complicit criminality that perpetuates the likes of trump, or hitler, etc.. Sadly, human nature (particularly americana) in a nutshell quite pathetic as is america! Not worth it!]

Susan Edelman Blank February 15 at 8:23 AM · In the first two decades of the 21st Century, the Republican Party brought us a president who began his first term by invading a sovereign nation on misbegotten evidence that destabilized the Middle East and ended his second term by leaving us on the verge of another Great Depression. And they followed that up by bringing us a mentally imbalanced, dangerously impulsive malignant narcissist who thrives on discord and chaos and is under Federal investigation for crimes ranging from colluding with an enemy nation, money laundering, tax fraud, and other despicable and illegal activities. When will the Republican Party finally admit that they don't know what the hell they are doing?

Susan Edelman Blank I am so sick of this embarrassment of a fake president. Trump's Nomination for the Nobel Peace Prize Was Apparently Forged. Twice. Susan Edelman Blank I have to say, for a liar and a cheat, Michael Cohen's compartment, demeanor, and composure in front of Congress is polite, civil, and respectful — and in direct contrast to the bullying, aggressiveness, hostility, and angry outbursts displayed by Brett Kavanaugh during his testimony to Congress. Michael Cohen is going to prison and Brett Kavanaugh is sitting on the Supreme Court. Dear Congresswoman Roybal-Allard:

The following is my comment to an LA Times article regarding a Justice Department cover-up! As for your inquiry, all I think about day and night is a long overdue resolution to the RICO litigation as set forth therein:

ATF Chief Melson: Justice Department trying to shield officials (LATimes) Serrano

I believe him!

I truly empathize with the ATF in terms of government cover-ups, notably by even the DOJ. You'll recognize some familiar names (ie., Alito, Trump, Freeh (Louis Freeh now has dual citizenship with Italy), and some familiar crimes (ie., drug money laundering, etc. – real cash cow for gov't ops, bribes, etc.). [Did you know this about the following ATF Agents who were probably viewed as loose ends: Steve Willis, Robert Williams, Todd McKeahan & Conway LeBleu: Died February 28, 1993 by gunfire at Waco. All four were examined by a pathologist and died from identical wounds to the left temple. All four had been body guards for Bill Clinton, three while campaigning for President and when he was Governor of Arkansas. They also were the ONLY 4 BATF agents killed at Waco.]

Here's some real, complicit cover-up / fraud on the part of the federal government, et als:

Steven M. Martinez, Assistant Director In Charge
Federal Bureau of Investigation, USDOJ
11000 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 1700
Los Angeles, CA 90024

Dear Sir:

I enclose herewith 3 copies of the within DVD rom autorun disk (which will open in your computer's browser) as per your office's request as made this day (the disk and contents have been scanned by Avast, McAfee, and Norton which I've installed on my computer to prevent viral attacks / infection and are without threat). I also include 1 copy of the DVD as filed with the subject court as referenced therein (which files are also included on the aforesaid 3 disks in a separate folder named '112208opocoan'). The (civil) RICO action (as you're aware, the RICO Act is a criminal statute which provides a civil remedy, including treble damages and attorney fees, as an incentive for private prosecution of said claims probably owing to the fact that the USDOJ seems somewhat overwhelmed and in need of such assistance given the seriousness and prevalence of said violations of law which have a corrupting influence on the process, and which corruption is pervasive). A grievance complaint against Coan was also filed concurrently with the subject action and held in abeyance pending resolution of the action which was illegally dismissed without any supporting law and in contravention of the Order of The Honorable Robert N. Chatigny, Chief Judge, USDC, District Connecticut. The files below the horizontal rule are the referenced documents as filed. (Owing to the damage to the financial interests of both the U.S. and the District of Congresswoman Roybal-Allard, viz., Los Angeles, the Qui Tam provisions of the Federal False Claims Act probably would apply and I would absent resolution seek to refer the within to a firm with expertise in that area of the law with which I am not familiar).

The document in 5 pages under penalty of perjury I was asked to forward to the FBI office in New Haven is probably the best and most concise summary of the case RICO Summary to FBI Under Penalty of Perjury at Their Request (5 pages) [ricosummarytoFBIunderpenaltyofperjury.pdf <http://albertpeia.com/ricosummarytoFBIunderpenaltyofperjury.pdf>].

The correspondence I received from the Congresswoman by way of email attachment (apparent but typical problem with my mail) along with my response thereto is included on the 3 disks as fbicorrespondencereyes.htm . With regard to the calls to the FBI's LA and New Haven, CT offices: There was one call to the LA office and I was referred to the Long Beach, CA office where I personally met with FBI Agent Jeff Hayes to whom I gave probative evidentiary documents of the money laundering which he confirmed as indicative of same (he was transferred from said office within approximately a month of said meeting and his location was not disclosed to me upon inquiry). The matter was assigned to FBI Agent Ron Barndollar and we remained in touch for in excess of a decade until he abruptly retired (our last conversation prior to his retirement related to the case and parenthetically, Rudy Giuliani whose father I stated had been an enforcer for the mob to which he registered disbelief and requested I prove it, which I did – he served 12 years in prison, aggravated assault/manslaughter? – and no, there is no Chinese wall of separation – Andrew Maloney's the one that prosecuted gotti).

In contradistinction to the statement in said correspondence, there is a plethora of information including evidence supporting the claims set forth in the RICO VERIFIED COMPLAINT (see infra). Such includes and as set forth in the case, inter alia,

- A judgment had been entered in my favor in the case, United States District Court Case #3:93cv02065(AWT)(USDCJ Alvin Thompson), worth approximately now in excess of $300,000 remains unaccounted for and which could be used for payment to creditors, Los Angeles, etc..
- Counsel Robert Sullivan on my behalf documented by way of certification upon investigation that Alan Shiff, USBCJ, had falsely stated a dismissal upon which false statement he predicated a retaliatory and spurious contempt proceeding against me causing substantial damage, and for which he sought Judicial Notice of those and related proceedings as did I in some of my filings.
- The Order of Dismissal With Prejudice by Alan Shiff, USBCJ, owing to Defendant Coan's failure to file anything whatsoever by the court's deadline causing creditors and me substantial damages: [Shiff Order of Dismissal With Prejudice on Coan's Failure to File Page 1 Page 2]
- Defendant Coan had filed an action against me to prevent me from suing him which necessitated me to fly to Connecticut for a hearing before The Honorable Robert N. Chatigny, Chief Judge, USDC, District of Connecticut, who denied Coan's requested relief as to Coan but precluded my action against Shiff (although there is no immunity, judicial or otherwise, for criminal acts, ie., fraud connected with a case under Title 11, USC, etc.) . [transcript in pertinent part - <http://albertpeia.com/crossexamofcoanbypeia.pdf>]
- Newly appointed judge, Maryanne Trump Barry, Donald Trump's sister, was assigned the RICO case despite the conflict of interest in light of hundreds of thousands of dollars of illegal (drug) money being laundered through the Trump casinos by the RICO defendants, and despite my motion to recuse her which motion she heard herself and denied, and U.S. Trustee Hugh Leonard with whom I met personally refused to join or file a separate motion to recuse and not long thereafter left said office for private practice at Cole, Shotz, et als on retainer with the RICO defendants as his primary client.
- Probative and evidentiary documents, affidavits, exhibits, including those turned over to FBI Agent Jeff Hayes in Long Beach, CA, had been given to Assistant U.S. Attorney Jonathan Lacey with whom I met personally at the U.S. Attorney's Office in Newark, N.J., at which time Samuel Alito was U.S. Attorney, and went over said documents and their probative value with him. Within approximately a month thereafter upon inquiry I was told that Jonathon Lacey was no longer with the office, that the file/documents could not be located, and that there was no further information available concerning contacting him or his location. I thereupon delivered by hand, copies of said documents to the office of then U.S. Attorney Alito, addressed to him, with assurance they would go directly to him. In addition to being inept [I looked in on the one mob case he had brought, bungled, lost (accidently on purpose?) since I was suing some mob-connected under RICO and the court (I had known / previously met outside of court the judge Ackerman through a client) was absolute bedlam and a total joke since incompetent corrupt Alito brought in all 20 mob defendants (rather than prosecute one or a few to flip them first) who feigning illness had beds/cots in the courtroom along with their moans during testimony and had the jury in stitches. As much as I hate the mob, it truly was funny, if not so tragic.], Alito is also corrupt (and maybe corrupt because he is inept). After a reasonable (but still rather short) time I called to determine the status and was told that Alito was no longer with the Office of the U.S. Attorney, that he was (appointed) a federal judge, and that neither the documents nor any file or record of same could be located. Alito did parley the same / cover-up into quid pro quo direct lifetime appointment to the Court of Appeals, 3rd circuit, despite the absence of judicial experience or successful tenure as U.S. Attorney (Maryanne Trump Barry as well). This is the same Sam Alito that now sits on the purported highest court in the land. The real application of the illegal rule 'don't ask, don't tell'.

There is applicable insurance / surety coverage and neither LA, nor creditors, nor I should continue to have been damaged by this brazened corrupt and illegal scenario, which should be resolved in accordance with the meaningful rules of law apposite thereto.

Sincerely,

Albert L. Peia

Trump ordered Justice Department to draft memo advising firing of Comey, former deputy FBI director claims Donald Trump ordered the Justice Department to justify his firing of FBI director James Comey in 2017, according to a new book by Mr Comey's former deputy. The Recession Will Likely Start This Month

Sovereign Investor Daily, U.S. Economy February 11, 2019
February 8, 2019 Michael Carr

In December, business leaders worried about a recession.

According to the Duke University/CFO Global Business Outlook, 48.6% of U.S. chief financial officers believe the nation's economy will enter a recession by the end of 2019.

The Federal Reserve raised interest rates but noted an increase in economic risks. Fed Chair Jerome Powell hinted the Fed might start cutting rates soon.

Somehow, everyone seemed to forget about all that when the stock market rallied in January. But they should remain worried.

Indicators tell us a recession is likely. And it's likely to start this month.

The Triggers for a Recession

In the past, recessions began in the month when the unemployment rate rose 0.4% from its bottom.

Unemployment fell to 3.7% in November. The trigger for a recession is 4.1%.

It was 4% in January.

On average, the trigger follows the bottom by eight months. But it's ranged from as little as two months to as many as 17.

You might wonder why no one at the Fed noticed this. Chances are high they did.

The Fed became concerned about a recession and changed policy in the past few months.

You might wonder why other analysts ignore this indicator. That's probably because it didn't work well recently.

The last three signals were early. Recessions followed unemployment-rate lows by an average of 13 months. But interest rates were in long-term downtrends at those times.

When interest rates are in long-term uptrends, recessions followed the bottom in unemployment by just six months. That's where we are now.

Interest rates bottomed in July 2016. They almost doubled since then.

Of course, this is just one indicator warning of recession. Another one is my Recession Watch Indicator.

The Fed triggered that in December 2016.

The indicator has an average lead time of 17 months. It points to a recession starting by the second quarter of 2019.

Beware the Yield Curve

The yield curve also continues pointing to a recession.

The yield curve shows the price of money over time. It charts the difference between interest rates on bonds with different times to maturity.

A popular yield curve is the 10/2, which compares the yield of the 10-year Treasury to the 2-year Treasury.

Yields on the 10-year are usually higher than yields on the 2-year. That's because there's more risk that things can go wrong over 10 years than there is in two years.

When the 10-year yield falls below the 2-year yield, the yield curve inverts.

In the past, that meant investors were worried about the short-term outlook for the economy, but they were still confident about the long term.

The yield curve is at 0.16% right now, well below its 10-year average of 1.64%.

The chart below shows that every time the curve fell this low, it eventually inverted, and a recession followed.

This cluster of indicators confirms the stock market's message.

Stocks peaked in October. The peak usually occurs about six months before the recession begins. That points to an April start date.

All these indicators only provide approximate forecasts. But they all agree: The next recession is starting soon.

Michael Carr, CMT, CFTe

How Team Trump keeps changing its story in the Russia investigation

By Marshall Cohen, Sam Fossum, Em Steck, Tal Yellin

Videos produced by McKenna Ewen

Published February 13, 2019

Over the past two years, President Donald Trump and his team have offered changing accounts regarding key matters in the Russia investigation. Their denials have been debunked, Trump has contradicted his senior aides and sometimes his team has completely flipped its position.

Special counsel Robert Mueller is investigating Russian interference in the 2016 election along with potential collusion between Trump's campaign and the Russian government. So far, six Trump associates have been charged, but nobody has been implicated in collusion. Trump adamantly denies collusion.

Public contradictions, walkbacks and flip-flops have become a hallmark of how Trump's team has responded to the Russia probe, which was launched in 2016 and is now in its third year.

Here are the most consequential examples of Team Trump changing its story.

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Russian collusion

Did any Trump campaign aides have contacts with Russia?

Then No. There weren't any.

In July 2016, while he was chairman of the Trump campaign, Paul Manafort flatly denied any ties existed between the campaign and Russia, calling the idea “absurd” in an ABC News interview. Two days after Trump’s victory, Trump spokeswoman Hope Hicks said, “There was no communication between the campaign and any foreign entity during the campaign.”

Asked in January 2017 if there had been contacts with Russians, Trump replied, “No, not at all.” These blanket denials were later repeated by Vice President Mike Pence, White House counselor Kellyanne Conway and White House press secretary Sarah Sanders.

Now Yes, there were many.

These adamant denials have been eviscerated in the two-plus years since the election. At least 16 Trump associates had contacts with Russians during the campaign or before the inauguration, according to public statements, court filings, and news reports.

Senior campaign aides and members of Trump’s family were in contact with Russians through in-person meetings, phone calls, emails, Twitter messages and more. Trump now acknowledges that there were contacts but says there was no collusion.

Russian collusion

Did anyone on the Trump campaign collude with Russia?

Then There was no collusion whatsoever.

Trump has said on several occasions that there was “no collusion whatsoever” between his campaign and the Russians, a blanket denial that seems to cover his entire campaign. (He has also said dozens of times that there was simply “no collusion.”) In an interview with Fox News, Trump’s lawyer Rudy Giuliani said that there was no collusion between the “upper levels of the Trump campaign” and the Russians.

Now Trump himself didn't collude.

Giuliani moved the goalposts in January 2019 in an interview with CNN. He said: "I never said there was no collusion between the campaign, or people in the campaign ... I have not. I said the President of the United States." These comments came shortly after unredacted court filings revealed that while Manafort led Trump's campaign, he gave internal polling data to a Russian with intelligence ties.

Sanders said something similar in January after Trump ally Roger Stone was charged with lying about his ties to WikiLeaks, saying, "There was no collusion. There was no wrongdoing by the President."

Russian collusion

What was the purpose of the Trump Tower meeting?

Then To discuss Russian adoptions.

Donald Trump Jr. secretly met a group of Russians at Trump Tower in June 2016, along with his brother-in-law Jared Kushner and Manafort. The meeting wasn't revealed until a series of articles a year later. When the news broke, Trump Jr. put out a statement, claiming, "We primarily discussed a program about the adoption of Russian children that was active and popular with American families years ago."

The adoption issue is closely tied to economic sanctions imposed by the US against Russia after the 2014 Ukraine crisis, and lifting those sanctions is a top priority for Russian President Vladimir Putin. Trump Jr.'s statement about the meeting, which the President had a hand in crafting, gave the false impression that the meeting had nothing to do with the 2016 election.

Now To get dirt on Hillary Clinton.

The New York Times later revealed that the true nature of the meeting was for the Trump campaign to get damaging information about Clinton, the Democratic nominee. Trump Jr. later acknowledged this and released an email chain showing that he was told that the Russian government wanted to help Trump win and that a Russian lawyer could provide him with dirt on Clinton.

The President eventually admitted, “This was a meeting to get information on an opponent,” but said it was “totally legal.” Trump Jr. testified on Capitol Hill that the Russians didn’t actually bring any dirt and the meeting was a bust.

Russian collusion

Did Trump draft the misleading Trump Tower meeting statement?

Then Nope. He wasn’t even involved.

As news was breaking about the Trump Tower meeting, Trump and his lawyers insisted he wasn’t involved in writing the misleading statement issued under his son’s name. Trump lawyer Jay Sekulow told CNN: “That was written by Donald Trump Jr. and I’m sure with consultation with his lawyer. That wasn’t written by the President.” (He repeated this false denial in several interviews that week.)

Sanders later said Trump “certainly didn’t dictate” the statement, but “weighed in as any father would.”

Now Yes. He dictated the statement.

In a confidential letter sent to Mueller in January 2018, the President’s lawyers admitted that Trump dictated the controversial statement but they maintained that it was accurate. According to The New York Times, they wrote: “You have received all of the notes, communications and testimony indicating that the President dictated a short but accurate response to the New York Times article on behalf of his son, Donald Trump, Jr.”

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Comey firing

Why did Trump fire Comey?

Then Because of the Clinton email investigation.

Trump's official explanation for firing FBI Director James Comey in May 2017 was that Comey mismanaged the Clinton email investigation and lost the confidence of rank-and-file FBI agents. The White House said this rationale was backed up by letters of recommendation from Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein and then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions

Pence and Conway also echoed these talking points in the days after Comey's ouster.

Now Because of the Russia investigation.

Days later, Trump contradicted the official story. In a now-infamous interview, he told NBC News: "Regardless of recommendation, I was going to fire Comey knowing there was no good time to do it. And in fact, when I decided to just do it, I said to myself, I said, you know, this Russia thing with Trump and Russia is a made-up story. It's an excuse by the Democrats for having lost an election that they should've won."

About a year later, Giuliani similarly linked Comey's firing to Russia. He said Comey was dismissed after refusing to assure Trump that he wasn't a target of the Russia investigation.

Comey firing

Did Trump tell Comey to go easy on Flynn?

Then Absolutely not.

Comey claimed that during a private meeting at the White House in February 2017, Trump asked him to drop the FBI's investigation into Michael Flynn, his former national security adviser. Comey detailed these claims in contemporaneous memos and testified to Congress that Trump said, "I hope you can see your way clear to letting this go, to letting Flynn go. He is a good guy. I hope you can let this go."

Trump has categorically denied Comey's claims. The President also tweeted a denial in December 2017, saying: "I never asked Comey to stop investigating Flynn. Just more Fake News covering another Comey lie!"

Now It's possible.

Shortly after joining Trump's legal team, Giuliani contradicted the President's consistent denials about Comey and Flynn. Giuliani told ABC News that Trump asked Comey to give Flynn "a break," and emphasized that Trump's comments were a friendly request and not an order from the President.

Giuliani later backpedaled from his comments and denied that any conversation about Flynn ever took place between Trump and Comey. "There was no conversation about Michael Flynn," Giuliani told CNN.

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Legal process

Will Trump agree to an interview with Mueller?

Then He wants to do it.

The special counsel's office has long sought a one-on-one interview with Trump for its investigation. Trump has publicly expressed interest in doing it. Trump told reporters he was "100 percent" willing to testify under oath about his interactions with Comey. In January 2018, Trump said he was "looking forward to it," when asked about an interview with Mueller's team.

A date was set for an interview at the presidential retreat at Camp David, but Trump's legal team rejected the plan and the interview fell through at the last moment. Even after that, Trump said, "Yes, I would like to" testify.

Now Zero chance.

Trump and Mueller's lawyers battled throughout 2018 over the contours of the President's testimony. Trump lawyers fought with their client as well, trying to tamp down his desire to testify. They eventually submitted written answers to Mueller's questions around Thanksgiving 2018.

CNN later reported that Trump's team rebuffed yet another request for an interview with the special counsel's office. Giuliani said a presidential interview would happen "over my dead body." Giuliani had warned that he opposes an interview because he believes Mueller's prosecutors will try to lure Trump into a perjury trap.

Legal process

Can a sitting US president obstruct justice?

Then No.

Mueller continues to investigate the question of whether any of Trump's actions or statements amounted to obstruction of justice. In December 2017, Trump attorney John Dowd told Axios that a sitting president "cannot obstruct justice because he is the chief law enforcement officer."

One month later, Dowd and Sekulow laid out this legal theory in a confidential letter to Mueller's team, arguing that actions authorized by the Constitution cannot be obstruction, including the official action of firing an FBI director.

Now Possibly.

Months later, Giuliani expressed the opposite view. CNN's Chris Cuomo asked, "You don't think a president can obstruct justice?" Giuliani's answer was, "He can," breaking with the theory that a president can't obstruct justice because he essentially leads the Justice Department.

Still, Giuliani added that he believes firing an FBI director is a constitutionally protected move that can't be obstruction.

Legal process

How do Trump's lawyers view Mueller?

Then He's a respected and focused investigator.

At the outset, Trump's legal team struck a respectful tone when talking about Mueller. White House special counsel Ty Cobb told Reuters that Mueller's investigators were "appropriately focused." In early 2018, Dowd praised Mueller's indictment of 13 Russian trolls who interfered in the US election. After leaving the legal team, Dowd said, "We had a terrific relationship with Mueller... completely open, people trusted each other and we had no misunderstandings."

These lawyers oversaw a period of extensive cooperation with Mueller, providing thousands of documents and making White House aides available for interviews.

Now He's a corrupt partisan on a witch hunt.

Trump shuffled around his legal team in spring 2018 and hired Giuliani to mount an aggressive campaign against Mueller in the press. Giuliani has said Mueller is running the "most corrupt investigation I have ever seen." He also called for an investigation into Mueller's conduct and accused him of hiding anti-Trump bias on his team.

Trump branded the investigation a "witch hunt" and a "disgrace to our nation." He has repeatedly referred to Mueller's team as a group of "angry Democrat thugs." (Mueller is a lifelong Republican and was appointed by Rosenstein, Trump's handpicked No. 2 at the Justice Department. Some members of Mueller's team previously donated to Democrats, which is permitted under department rules.)

Legal process

Is Trump going to pardon Manafort?

Then It's not being considered.

The New York Times reported in March 2018 that Dowd had previously floated the possibility of pardons with lawyers representing Manafort and

Flynn. Cobb swiftly denied the story and said, “No pardons are under discussion or under consideration at the White House.”

Months later, the topic of pardons came up again when Manafort was convicted on eight counts of financial fraud in August 2018. Sanders said from the White House podium, “Once again, that’s not something that has been up for discussion.”

Now It’s still on the table.

One day after Sanders’ denial, Giuliani acknowledged that he recently discussed pardons with Trump. Giuliani told the Huffington Post that they had “a quick meeting” about pardons, and that they agreed “not to pardon anybody during the pendency of the investigation.”

Trump later contradicted Giuliani and claimed that pardons weren’t ever discussed, but also refused to rule one out for Manafort. “It was never discussed, but I wouldn’t take it off the table. Why would I take it off the table?” he said in an interview with the New York Post.

Russian business ties

Does Trump have any business ties to Russia?

Then Trump has nothing to do with Russia.

Throughout the 2016 campaign and well into the first two years of his presidency, Trump denied having any business dealings in Russia. He issued blanket denials on the campaign trail, and repeatedly claimed that he had “nothing to do with Russia.” Shortly before taking office in January 2017, Trump said: “I have no dealings with Russia. I have no deals that could happen in Russia, because we’ve stayed away.”

Now Trump pursued Russia deals through 2016.

Trump's company explored a lucrative real estate deal in Russia deep into the 2016 campaign. Trump shifted his story after his former attorney pleaded guilty in December 2018 to lying to Congress about the Moscow project. Trump said, "This deal was a very public deal. Everybody knows about this deal. I wasn't trying to hide anything," despite the fact that the deal was never disclosed before he took office.

Russian business ties

When did discussions end for Trump Tower Moscow?

Then January 2016 before the primaries.

In September 2015, a few months after after Trump launched his presidential campaign, the Trump Organization began discussions for a Trump Tower in Moscow. Michael Cohen, a personal attorney to Trump and a senior executive at the Trump Organization, led the negotiations with a Russian company.

In his September 2017 closed-door testimony to lawmakers, Cohen described it as a "rejected proposal to build a Trump property in Moscow that was terminated in January of 2016; which occurred before the Iowa caucus and months before the very first primary."

Now Possibly as late as November 2016.

In November 2018, Cohen admitted that he lied to Congress about Trump Tower Moscow and pleaded guilty to perjury. Negotiations continued "as late as approximately June 2016," according to court filings. Mueller's team asked Trump written questions about when the proposal fell through, and Giuliani said their answer "covered all the way up to November 2016."

In subsequent TV interviews, Giuliani repeated that conversations could have continued "up until November 2016." Giuliani later backtracked and said his comments were "hypothetical and not based on conversations I had with the President."

Russian business ties

Did Trump sign a letter of intent for Trump Tower Moscow?

Then No, he didn't.

In December 2018, Giuliani told CNN that Trump never signed a letter of intent for the Trump Tower Moscow project, which was pursued by his company during the 2016 presidential campaign. Giuliani said: "It was a real estate project. There was a letter of intent to go forward, but no one signed it."

Now Yes, he did.

Shortly after Giuliani's comments, CNN published copies of the document bearing Trump's signature, confirming that Trump did sign the non-binding agreement for a real estate deal in the heart of Moscow. Giuliani backtracked from his original statement. "I was wrong if I said it," he told CNN. "I haven't seen the quote, but I probably meant to say there was never a deal, much less a signed one."

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Trump on his associates

How does Trump view campaign aides under Russia scrutiny?

Then They're the best of the best.

Before any of Trump's campaign aides got in trouble, he painted them as the best and brightest people who could be involved on a presidential team. Trump said foreign policy adviser George Papadopoulos was "an excellent guy" when he named Papadopoulos as an adviser in March 2016.

When Manafort resigned from the campaign in August 2016, Trump said he was “very appreciative for his great work in helping to get us where we are today,” and commended Manafort as a “true professional.”

Now They’re irrelevant nobodies.

Papadopoulos pleaded guilty in 2017 to lying to the FBI about his contacts with Russians during the campaign. Trump downplayed Papadopoulos’ role, saying: “Few people knew the young, low level volunteer named George, who has already proven to be a liar.” Others in the Trump orbit said Papadopoulos was a “coffee boy” on the campaign who had no influence.

During Manafort financial fraud trial in summer 2018, Trump distanced himself from his onetime campaign chairman. Trump said, “Manafort has nothing to do with our campaign ... Paul Manafort worked for me for a very short period of time.”

Trump on his associates

What does Trump think of Cohen?

Then He’s a trusted attorney.

Trump and his team praised Cohen countless times, before he flipped. At a closed-door fundraiser in 2017, Trump said, “Michael is a great lawyer ... a loyal, wonderful person,” according to audio leaked by The Intercept. Trump criticized the FBI raids in April 2018 against Cohen and said they were a disgraceful move against “a good man.”

Shortly after that, Trump wrote in a tweet that he “always liked and respected” Cohen, whom he described as a “fine person” who was unlikely to assist investigators. It wasn’t just Trump, either -- Giuliani said Cohen was “an honest, honorable lawyer” after the FBI raids.

Now He is a desperate liar.

Trump’s relationship with Cohen deteriorated as it became clear that his ex-lawyer was open to helping federal investigations into Trump’s company and campaign. Trump and his lawyers said Cohen should not be trusted, despite Cohen’s decade-long role at the Trump Organization.

Giuliani said Cohen was a “pathological liar” and said that Cohen “lied all his life.”

Trump sharply criticized Cohen for secretly taping him. He even called Cohen a “rat” for cooperating with Mueller. Trump also downplayed Cohen’s onetime role as his attorney, saying Cohen “was a PR person who did small legal work.”

THE BIPARTISAN SPENDING BINGE IS NOW WORSE THAN UNDER BUSH AND OBAMA

Daniel Horowitz · February 15, 2019

Bet_Noire | Getty Images

We're now $22 trillion in debt, yet despite all that red ink, the Mexican cartels have control of our border and we're not one bit closer to spending money on our own security. We've gone into deep debt for everything except the core function of the federal government.

It feels like it was yesterday when I was watching the news as a kid with my parents in 1995, listening to Newt Gingrich, during the infamous shutdown fight, warn about the dire consequences of crossing the $5 trillion debt milestone. It feels like it was yesterday when I was writing press releases for candidates in "the year of the Tea Party" on how Obama and the Pelosi Congress took the debt to $14 trillion in such a short period of time. Now, over eight years into varying degrees of GOP control of Congress and the White House, we have crossed the $22 trillion mark, expanding the debt more rapidly than at any time in our history. Whereas the debt exploded by $5 trillion during Bush's eight-year tenure, a shocking figure at the time, it has now increased $8 trillion just since Republicans controlled the House in 2011 and by $4 trillion over the past four years, since they controlled at least two of the three political organs of government.

Now, the only question Republicans have is how many pennies of border security they will fight for, while refusing to challenge any of the nonessential and even harmful programs of the federal government. The GOP platform on debt and spending is a lie from top to bottom, as Republicans plan to pass more budget bills allowing us to blow through the budget caps without any effort to systemically reform the way we budget.

Now that Republicans are planning to cave on border funding, can they at least force a confrontation with Democrats over spending levels for functions of government that are nowhere near as important as border security? Thus, departments like HUD, which were able to completely shut down for a month with nobody noticing, will continue to enjoy record spending. We will continue to provide security for Kabul and Baghdad with the beefed-up military budget since last year's budget deal, but no funding for our border or meaningful use of the military to protect our own sovereignty from the daily incursions by the most brutal cartels on earth.

Why even have a Republican Party any more?

Even more indefensible, unlike during the end of Bush's years and the beginning of Obama's tenure, when we first began accruing trillion-dollar annual deficits, we are not facing a deep recession. In fact, we are enjoying the most robust period of job growth since the late 1990s, and revenue is at a record high baseline.

Let it be known for all of time that dire predictions of revenue slumping as a result of the tax cuts were fake news. The entirety of the current deficit problem is due to increased spending. According to the latest monthly report released by the Treasury Department yesterday, spending was up 9.6 percent for the first three months of fiscal year 2019 relative to the first three months of FY 2018. What about revenues? They actually rose slightly by 0.2 percent, despite some declines in certain revenue categories. This is an important statistic, because it is the first clean metric we have comparing a period of time with the tax cuts in full implementation to a period before the tax cuts.

Moreover, some of the increased tax revenue from more payroll taxes likely would not have occurred without the job creation spawned by the tax cuts. If you isolate the revenue tallies for individual and corporate taxes, the government obviously did lose some revenue in certain categories, but it was made up by a $15 billion increase in payroll tax revenue (FICA, Social Security taxes), in addition to increased revenue from excise taxes.

The annual deficit after just three months stood at $319 trillion, well on pace to smash the trillion-dollar deficit mark for the first time in a booming economy.

Thus, this bipartisan era of debt is worse than anything we've seen this generation, and it is all happening with record revenue and a booming economy – with no world war consuming our economy and budget.

Thanks to Republican-approved budget deals, for the first three months of the fiscal year, outlays for HHS are up 12.5 percent, outlays for the Department of Education spiked 23 percent, and outlays for the Department of Commerce have doubled! Meanwhile, outlays on Homeland Security have actually been down by 30 percent because of less disaster spending under FEMA than last year. But it's not like we went on a spending binge for Border Patrol and ICE. Outlays on military spending are up 8.45 percent, but again, what is the purpose of the military if we use it everywhere else in the world except against those who most directly harm us at our own border?

All of this spending is creating a crisis with interest payments on the debt. Net interest payments for the first quarter are up to $100 billion. That is an annualized pace of $400 billion, almost twice the level it has been in recent years. And this is just the beginning.

What is driving the most debt? The issue where Republicans now agree with Democrats: socialized medicine. House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy, R-Calif., is now bashing the Freedom Caucus for opposing the key element of Obamacare responsible for driving up the cost of insurance, thereby generating the massive spending and the monopoly created by the health care industry.

Health care is the 800-pound gorilla in the room. Federal spending on health care (not including state expenditures) is projected to be $17 trillion over the next 10 years, dwarfing the cost of Social Security and the military. By 2047, health care spending will be about 25 percent greater than the insolvent and crushing cost of Social Security. As such, health care in itself is the largest driver of the other great crisis, as noted: the mushrooming cost of the interest on the debt itself. Health care spending alone will be greater than all the revenue from payroll taxes and corporate income taxes combined and almost as large as individual income tax revenue.

This is all going to the creation of a monopoly in a circuitous death spiral of price inflation and increased government spending. It's no mystery why our national expenditures on health care have popped from $27 billion in 1960 to over $3.3 trillion today. Assuming health care would rise at the same rate as the rest of the economy, that number would be under $250 billion today. If we flushed $1.6 trillion down the toilet every year, we'd come out with a better result because we'd just waste money. Now, we are taking that wasted money and artificially inflating the cost of health care to the point that nobody can afford it without government continuing the death spiral of spending, monopolizing, and price inflation.

Yet Republicans have acquiesced to every degree of this baseline and are only debating how much more socialized medicine they will countenance while fake-fighting the rest. Then they will say we have to agree to the new socialized medicine in order to fight the next plan. Rinse and repeat.

Now, instead of looking to cut spending elsewhere, Republican senators met with Ivanka Trump to see how they can create a new entitlement of paid family leave like they have in Europe, but of course without adding to the deficit and distorting our job market! They will find a "conservative way" to agree to Democrats.

With the deficits for FY 2019 skyrocketing just as much as the illegal immigration numbers, at some point conservatives need to asses their rate of return on the Republican Party.

The Recession Will Likely Start This Month

Sovereign Investor Daily, U.S. Economy February 11, 2019
February 8, 2019 Michael Carr

In December, business leaders worried about a recession.

According to the Duke University/CFO Global Business Outlook, 48.6% of U.S. chief financial officers believe the nation's economy will enter a recession by the end of 2019.

The Federal Reserve raised interest rates but noted an increase in economic risks. Fed Chair Jerome Powell hinted the Fed might start cutting rates soon.

Somehow, everyone seemed to forget about all that when the stock market rallied in January. But they should remain worried.

Indicators tell us a recession is likely. And it's likely to start this month.

The Triggers for a Recession

In the past, recessions began in the month when the unemployment rate rose 0.4% from its bottom.

Unemployment fell to 3.7% in November. The trigger for a recession is 4.1%.

It was 4% in January.

On average, the trigger follows the bottom by eight months. But it's ranged from as little as two months to as many as 17.

You might wonder why no one at the Fed noticed this. Chances are high they did.

The Fed became concerned about a recession and changed policy in the past few months.

You might wonder why other analysts ignore this indicator. That's probably because it didn't work well recently.

The last three signals were early. Recessions followed unemployment-rate lows by an average of 13 months. But interest rates were in long-term downtrends at those times.

When interest rates are in long-term uptrends, recessions followed the bottom in unemployment by just six months. That's where we are now.

Interest rates bottomed in July 2016. They almost doubled since then.

Of course, this is just one indicator warning of recession. Another one is my Recession Watch Indicator.

The Fed triggered that in December 2016.

The indicator has an average lead time of 17 months. It points to a recession starting by the second quarter of 2019.

Beware the Yield Curve

The yield curve also continues pointing to a recession.

The yield curve shows the price of money over time. It charts the difference between interest rates on bonds with different times to maturity.

A popular yield curve is the 10/2, which compares the yield of the 10-year Treasury to the 2-year Treasury.

Yields on the 10-year are usually higher than yields on the 2-year. That's because there's more risk that things can go wrong over 10 years than there is in two years.

When the 10-year yield falls below the 2-year yield, the yield curve inverts.

In the past, that meant investors were worried about the short-term outlook for the economy, but they were still confident about the long term.

The yield curve is at 0.16% right now, well below its 10-year average of 1.64%.

The chart below shows that every time the curve fell this low, it eventually inverted, and a recession followed.

This cluster of indicators confirms the stock market's message.

Stocks peaked in October. The peak usually occurs about six months before the recession begins. That points to an April start date.

All these indicators only provide approximate forecasts. But they all agree: The next recession is starting soon.

Over the past two years, President Donald Trump and his team have offered changing accounts regarding key matters in the Russia investigation. Their denials have been debunked, Trump has contradicted his senior aides and sometimes his team has completely flipped its position.

Special counsel Robert Mueller is investigating Russian interference in the 2016 election along with potential collusion between Trump's campaign and the Russian government. So far, six Trump associates have been charged, but nobody has been implicated in collusion. Trump adamantly denies collusion.

Public contradictions, walkbacks and flip-flops have become a hallmark of how Trump's team has responded to the Russia probe, which was launched in 2016 and is now in its third year.

Here are the most consequential examples of Team Trump changing its story.

Russian collusion

Did any Trump campaign aides have contacts with Russia?

Then No. There weren't any.

In July 2016, while he was chairman of the Trump campaign, Paul Manafort flatly denied any ties existed between the campaign and Russia, calling the idea “absurd” in an ABC News interview. Two days after Trump’s victory, Trump spokeswoman Hope Hicks said, “There was no communication between the campaign and any foreign entity during the campaign.”

Asked in January 2017 if there had been contacts with Russians, Trump replied, “No, not at all.” These blanket denials were later repeated by Vice President Mike Pence, White House counselor Kellyanne Conway and White House press secretary Sarah Sanders.

Now Yes, there were many.

These adamant denials have been eviscerated in the two-plus years since the election. At least 16 Trump associates had contacts with Russians during the campaign or before the inauguration, according to public statements, court filings, and news reports.

Senior campaign aides and members of Trump’s family were in contact with Russians through in-person meetings, phone calls, emails, Twitter messages and more. Trump now acknowledges that there were contacts but says there was no collusion.

Russian collusion

Did anyone on the Trump campaign collude with Russia?

Then There was no collusion whatsoever.

Trump has said on several occasions that there was “no collusion whatsoever” between his campaign and the Russians, a blanket denial that seems to cover his entire campaign. (He has also said dozens of times that there was simply “no collusion.”) In an interview with Fox News, Trump’s lawyer Rudy Giuliani said that there was no collusion between the “upper levels of the Trump campaign” and the Russians.

Now Trump himself didn’t collude.

Giuliani moved the goalposts in January 2019 in an interview with CNN. He said: “I never said there was no collusion between the campaign, or people in the campaign ... I have not. I said the President of the United States.” These comments came shortly after unredacted court filings revealed that while Manafort led Trump’s campaign, he gave internal polling data to a Russian with intelligence ties.

Sanders said something similar in January after Trump ally Roger Stone was charged with lying about his ties to WikiLeaks, saying, “There was no collusion. There was no wrongdoing by the President.”

Russian collusion

What was the purpose of the Trump Tower meeting?

Then To discuss Russian adoptions.

Donald Trump Jr. secretly met a group of Russians at Trump Tower in June 2016, along with his brother-in-law Jared Kushner and Manafort. The meeting wasn’t revealed until a series of articles a year later. When the news broke, Trump Jr. put out a statement, claiming, “We primarily discussed a program about the adoption of Russian children that was active and popular with American families years ago.”

The adoption issue is closely tied to economic sanctions imposed by the US against Russia after the 2014 Ukraine crisis, and lifting those sanctions is a top priority for Russian President Vladimir Putin. Trump Jr.’s statement about the meeting, which the President had a hand in crafting, gave the false impression that the meeting had nothing to do with the 2016 election.

Now To get dirt on Hillary Clinton.

The New York Times later revealed that the true nature of the meeting was for the Trump campaign to get damaging information about Clinton, the Democratic nominee. Trump Jr. later acknowledged this and released an email chain showing that he was told that the Russian government wanted to help Trump win and that a Russian lawyer could provide him with dirt on Clinton.

The President eventually admitted, “This was a meeting to get information on an opponent,” but said it was “totally legal.” Trump Jr. testified on Capitol Hill that the Russians didn’t actually bring any dirt and the meeting was a bust.

Russian collusion

Did Trump draft the misleading Trump Tower meeting statement?

Then Nope. He wasn’t even involved.

As news was breaking about the Trump Tower meeting, Trump and his lawyers insisted he wasn’t involved in writing the misleading statement issued under his son’s name. Trump lawyer Jay Sekulow told CNN: “That was written by Donald Trump Jr. and I’m sure with consultation with his lawyer. That wasn’t written by the President.” (He repeated this false denial in several interviews that week.)

Sanders later said Trump “certainly didn’t dictate” the statement, but “weighed in as any father would.”

Now Yes. He dictated the statement.

In a confidential letter sent to Mueller in January 2018, the President’s lawyers admitted that Trump dictated the controversial statement but they maintained that it was accurate. According to The New York Times, they wrote: “You have received all of the notes, communications and testimony indicating that the President dictated a short but accurate response to the New York Times article on behalf of his son, Donald Trump, Jr.”

Comey firing

Why did Trump fire Comey?

Then Because of the Clinton email investigation.

Trump’s official explanation for firing FBI Director James Comey in May 2017 was that Comey mismanaged the Clinton email investigation and lost the confidence of rank-and-file FBI agents. The White House said this rationale was backed up by letters of recommendation from Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein and then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions

Pence and Conway also echoed these talking points in the days after Comey’s ouster.

Now Because of the Russia investigation.

Days later, Trump contradicted the official story. In a now-infamous interview, he told NBC News: “Regardless of recommendation, I was going to fire Comey knowing there was no good time to do it. And in fact, when I decided to just do it, I said to myself, I said, you know, this Russia thing with Trump and Russia is a made-up story. It's an excuse by the Democrats for having lost an election that they should've won.”

About a year later, Giuliani similarly linked Comey's firing to Russia. He said Comey was dismissed after refusing to assure Trump that he wasn't a target of the Russia investigation.

Comey firing

Did Trump tell Comey to go easy on Flynn?

Then Absolutely not.

Comey claimed that during a private meeting at the White House in February 2017, Trump asked him to drop the FBI's investigation into Michael Flynn, his former national security adviser. Comey detailed these claims in contemporaneous memos and testified to Congress that Trump said, “I hope you can see your way clear to letting this go, to letting Flynn go. He is a good guy. I hope you can let this go.”

Trump has categorically denied Comey's claims. The President also tweeted a denial in December 2017, saying: “I never asked Comey to stop investigating Flynn. Just more Fake News covering another Comey lie!”

Now It's possible.

Shortly after joining Trump's legal team, Giuliani contradicted the President's consistent denials about Comey and Flynn. Giuliani told ABC News that Trump asked Comey to give Flynn “a break,” and emphasized that Trump's comments were a friendly request and not an order from the President.

Giuliani later backpedaled from his comments and denied that any conversation about Flynn ever took place between Trump and Comey. “There was no conversation about Michael Flynn,” Giuliani told CNN.

Legal process

Will Trump agree to an interview with Mueller?

Then He wants to do it.

The special counsel's office has long sought a one-on-one interview with Trump for its investigation. Trump has publicly expressed interest in doing it. Trump told reporters he was "100 percent" willing to testify under oath about his interactions with Comey. In January 2018, Trump said he was "looking forward to it," when asked about an interview with Mueller's team.

A date was set for an interview at the presidential retreat at Camp David, but Trump's legal team rejected the plan and the interview fell through at the last moment. Even after that, Trump said, "Yes, I would like to" testify.

Now Zero chance.

Trump and Mueller's lawyers battled throughout 2018 over the contours of the President's testimony. Trump lawyers fought with their client as well, trying to tamp down his desire to testify. They eventually submitted written answers to Mueller's questions around Thanksgiving 2018.

CNN later reported that Trump's team rebuffed yet another request for an interview with the special counsel's office. Giuliani said a presidential interview would happen "over my dead body." Giuliani had warned that he opposes an interview because he believes Mueller's prosecutors will try to lure Trump into a perjury trap.

Legal process

Can a sitting US president obstruct justice?

Then No.

Mueller continues to investigate the question of whether any of Trump's actions or statements amounted to obstruction of justice. In December 2017, Trump attorney John Dowd told Axios that a sitting president "cannot obstruct justice because he is the chief law enforcement officer."

One month later, Dowd and Sekulow laid out this legal theory in a confidential letter to Mueller's team, arguing that actions authorized by the Constitution cannot be obstruction, including the official action of firing an FBI director.

Now Possibly.

Months later, Giuliani expressed the opposite view. CNN's Chris Cuomo asked, "You don't think a president can obstruct justice?" Giuliani's answer was, "He can," breaking with the theory that a president can't obstruct justice because he essentially leads the Justice Department.

Still, Giuliani added that he believes firing an FBI director is a constitutionally protected move that can't be obstruction.

Legal process

How do Trump's lawyers view Mueller?

Then He's a respected and focused investigator.

At the outset, Trump's legal team struck a respectful tone when talking about Mueller. White House special counsel Ty Cobb told Reuters that Mueller's investigators were "appropriately focused." In early 2018, Dowd praised Mueller's indictment of 13 Russian trolls who interfered in the US election. After leaving the legal team, Dowd said, "We had a terrific relationship with Mueller... completely open, people trusted each other and we had no misunderstandings."

These lawyers oversaw a period of extensive cooperation with Mueller, providing thousands of documents and making White House aides available for interviews.

Now He's a corrupt partisan on a witch hunt.

Trump shuffled around his legal team in spring 2018 and hired Giuliani to mount an aggressive campaign against Mueller in the press. Giuliani has said Mueller is running the "most corrupt investigation I have ever seen." He also called for an investigation into Mueller's conduct and accused him of hiding anti-Trump bias on his team.

Trump branded the investigation a "witch hunt" and a "disgrace to our nation." He has repeatedly referred to Mueller's team as a group of "angry Democrat thugs." (Mueller is a lifelong Republican and was appointed by Rosenstein, Trump's handpicked No. 2 at the Justice Department. Some members of Mueller's team previously donated to Democrats, which is permitted under department rules.)

Legal process

Is Trump going to pardon Manafort?

Then It's not being considered.

The New York Times reported in March 2018 that Dowd had previously floated the possibility of pardons with lawyers representing Manafort and Flynn. Cobb swiftly denied the story and said, "No pardons are under discussion or under consideration at the White House."

Months later, the topic of pardons came up again when Manafort was convicted on eight counts of financial fraud in August 2018. Sanders said from the White House podium, “Once again, that’s not something that has been up for discussion.”

Now It’s still on the table.

One day after Sanders’ denial, Giuliani acknowledged that he recently discussed pardons with Trump. Giuliani told the Huffington Post that they had “a quick meeting” about pardons, and that they agreed “not to pardon anybody during the pendency of the investigation.”

Trump later contradicted Giuliani and claimed that pardons weren’t ever discussed, but also refused to rule one out for Manafort. "It was never discussed, but I wouldn't take it off the table. Why would I take it off the table?" he said in an interview with the New York Post.

Russian business ties

Does Trump have any business ties to Russia?

Then Trump has nothing to do with Russia.

Throughout the 2016 campaign and well into the first two years of his presidency, Trump denied having any business dealings in Russia. He issued blanket denials on the campaign trail, and repeatedly claimed that he had “nothing to do with Russia.” Shortly before taking office in January 2017, Trump said: “I have no dealings with Russia. I have no deals that could happen in Russia, because we've stayed away.”

Now Trump pursued Russia deals through 2016.

Trump's company explored a lucrative real estate deal in Russia deep into the 2016 campaign. Trump shifted his story after his former attorney pleaded guilty in December 2018 to lying to Congress about the Moscow project. Trump said, “This deal was a very public deal. Everybody knows about this deal. I wasn't trying to hide anything,” despite the fact that the deal was never disclosed before he took office.

Russian business ties

When did discussions end for Trump Tower Moscow?

Then January 2016 before the primaries.

In September 2015, a few months after after Trump launched his presidential campaign, the Trump Organization began discussions for a Trump Tower in Moscow. Michael Cohen, a personal attorney to Trump and a senior executive at the Trump Organization, led the negotiations with a Russian company.

In his September 2017 closed-door testimony to lawmakers, Cohen described it as a “rejected proposal to build a Trump property in Moscow that was terminated in January of 2016; which occurred before the Iowa caucus and months before the very first primary.”

Now Possibly as late as November 2016.

In November 2018, Cohen admitted that he lied to Congress about Trump Tower Moscow and pleaded guilty to perjury. Negotiations continued “as late as approximately June 2016,” according to court filings. Mueller's team asked Trump written questions about when the proposal fell through, and Giuliani said their answer “covered all the way up to November 2016.”

In subsequent TV interviews, Giuliani repeated that conversations could have continued “up until November 2016.” Giuliani later backtracked and said his comments were “hypothetical and not based on conversations I had with the President.”

Russian business ties

Did Trump sign a letter of intent for Trump Tower Moscow?

Then No, he didn't.

In December 2018, Giuliani told CNN that Trump never signed a letter of intent for the Trump Tower Moscow project, which was pursued by his company during the 2016 presidential campaign. Giuliani said: “It was a real estate project. There was a letter of intent to go forward, but no one signed it.”

Now Yes, he did.

Shortly after Giuliani's comments, CNN published copies of the document bearing Trump's signature, confirming that Trump did sign the non-binding agreement for a real estate deal in the heart of Moscow. Giuliani backtracked from his original statement. “I was wrong if I said it,” he told CNN. “I haven't seen the quote, but I probably meant to say there was never a deal, much less a signed one.”

Trump on his associates

How does Trump view campaign aides under Russia scrutiny?

Then They're the best of the best.

Before any of Trump's campaign aides got in trouble, he painted them as the best and brightest people who could be involved on a presidential team. Trump said foreign policy adviser George Papadopoulos was "an excellent guy" when he named Papadopoulos as an adviser in March 2016.

When Manafort resigned from the campaign in August 2016, Trump said he was "very appreciative for his great work" in helping to get us where we are today," and commended Manafort as a "true professional."

Now They're irrelevant nobodies.

Papadopoulos pleaded guilty in 2017 to lying to the FBI about his contacts with Russians during the campaign. Trump downplayed Papadopoulos' role, saying: "Few people knew the young, low level volunteer named George, who has already proven to be a liar." Others in the Trump orbit said Papadopoulos was a "coffee boy" on the campaign who had no influence.

During Manafort financial fraud trial in summer 2018, Trump distanced himself from his onetime campaign chairman. Trump said, "Manafort has nothing to do with our campaign ... Paul Manafort worked for me for a very short period of time."

Trump on his associates

What does Trump think of Cohen?

Then He's a trusted attorney.

Trump and his team praised Cohen countless times, before he flipped. At a closed-door fundraiser in 2017, Trump said, "Michael is a great lawyer ... a loyal, wonderful person," according to audio leaked by The Intercept. Trump criticized the FBI raids in April 2018 against Cohen and said they were a disgraceful move against “a good man.”

Shortly after that, Trump wrote in a tweet that he “always liked and respected” Cohen, whom he described as a “fine person” who was unlikely to assist investigators. It wasn’t just Trump, either -- Giuliani said Cohen was “an honest, honorable lawyer” after the FBI raids.

Now He is a desperate liar.

Trump’s relationship with Cohen deteriorated as it became clear that his ex-lawyer was open to helping federal investigations into Trump’s company and campaign. Trump and his lawyers said Cohen should not be trusted, despite Cohen’s decade-long role at the Trump Organization. Giuliani said Cohen was a “pathological liar” and said that Cohen “lied all his life.”

Trump sharply criticized Cohen for secretly taping him. He even called Cohen a “rat” for cooperating with Mueller. Trump also downplayed Cohen’s onetime role as his attorney, saying Cohen “was a PR person who did small legal work.”

Trump ordered Justice Department to draft memo advising firing of Comey, former deputy FBI director claims Donald Trump ordered the Justice Department to justify his firing of FBI director James Comey in 2017, according to a new book by Mr Comey's former deputy. In the upcoming memoir, former FBI deputy director Andrew McCabe details deputy attorney general Rod Rosenstein's upset at allegedly being asked by the White House to draft a now notorious memo in which he advised Mr Comey's removal.

The Recession Will Likely Start This Month

Sovereign Investor Daily, U.S. Economy February 11, 2019
February 8, 2019 Michael Carr

In December, business leaders worried about a recession.

According to the Duke University/CFO Global Business Outlook, 48.6% of U.S. chief financial officers believe the nation's economy will enter a recession by the end of 2019.

The Federal Reserve raised interest rates but noted an increase in economic risks. Fed Chair Jerome Powell hinted the Fed might start cutting rates soon.

Somehow, everyone seemed to forget about all that when the stock market rallied in January. But they should remain worried.

Indicators tell us a recession is likely. And it's likely to start this month.

The Triggers for a Recession

In the past, recessions began in the month when the unemployment rate rose 0.4% from its bottom.

Unemployment fell to 3.7% in November. The trigger for a recession is 4.1%.

It was 4% in January.

On average, the trigger follows the bottom by eight months. But it's ranged from as little as two months to as many as 17.

You might wonder why no one at the Fed noticed this. Chances are high they did.

The Fed became concerned about a recession and changed policy in the past few months.

You might wonder why other analysts ignore this indicator. That's probably because it didn't work well recently.

The last three signals were early. Recessions followed unemployment-rate lows by an average of 13 months. But interest rates were in long-term downtrends at those times.

When interest rates are in long-term uptrends, recessions followed the bottom in unemployment by just six months. That's where we are now.

Interest rates bottomed in July 2016. They almost doubled since then.

Of course, this is just one indicator warning of recession. Another one is my Recession Watch Indicator.

The Fed triggered that in December 2016.

The indicator has an average lead time of 17 months. It points to a recession starting by the second quarter of 2019.

Beware the Yield Curve

The yield curve also continues pointing to a recession.

The yield curve shows the price of money over time. It charts the difference between interest rates on bonds with different times to maturity.

A popular yield curve is the 10/2, which compares the yield of the 10-year Treasury to the 2-year Treasury.

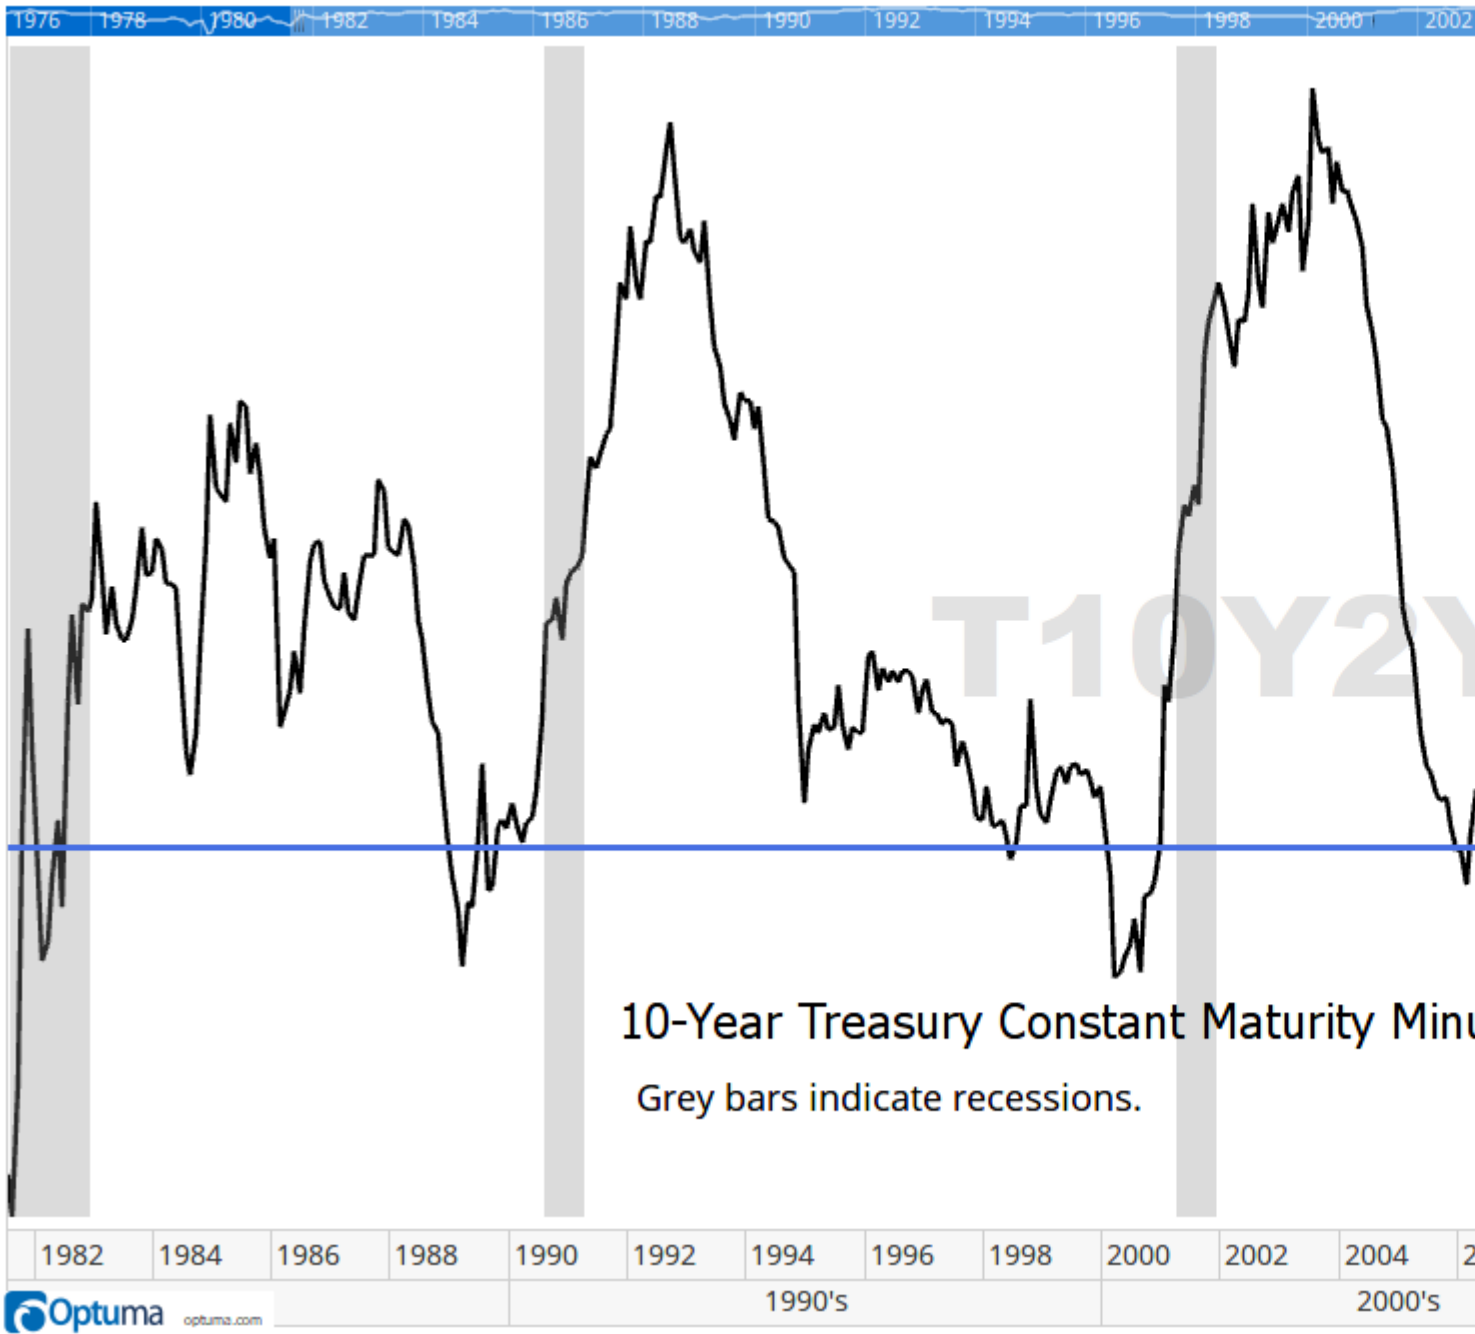

Yields on the 10-year are usually higher than yields on the 2-year. That's because there's more risk that things can go wrong over 10 years than there is in two years.

When the 10-year yield falls below the 2-year yield, the yield curve inverts.

In the past, that meant investors were worried about the short-term outlook for the economy, but they were still confident about the long term.

The yield curve is at 0.16% right now, well below its 10-year average of 1.64%.

The chart below shows that every time the curve fell this low, it eventually inverted, and a recession followed.

This cluster of indicators confirms the stock market's message.

Stocks peaked in October. The peak usually occurs about six months before the recession begins. That points to an April start date.

All these indicators only provide approximate forecasts. But they all agree: The next recession is starting soon.

Michael Carr, CMT, CFTe

Virginia's Political Crisis Grows for Democrats and Republicans

Allegations of racism that have besieged Democrats have spread to a G.O.P. lawmaker, who helped oversee a college yearbook with racist photographs and slurs.

Lawmakers in Richmond braced for sustained upheaval as the scandal involving the personal conduct of leading officials showed no sign of ending.

Trump Presses Hard Line on Immigration in State of the Union Speech

- President Trump asked for unity, but signaled that he would continue to wage war for the hard-line immigration policies that have polarized the nation.
- Any hopes for a newfound spirit of cooperation seemed elusive as the president and Democrats spent the hours before, during and after the address exchanging partisan political fire.
- Mr. Trump also said he and Kim Jong-un will hold more nuclear talks at the end of the month in Vietnam.

‘.....But Trump told a different story to casino regulators who were deciding whether to grant him the lucrative gambling license.

"I don't think there's anything wrong with these people," he said about Shapiro and Sullivan during licensing hearings in 1982, according to "TrumpNation." "Many of them have been in Atlantic City for many, many years and I think they are well thought of." Sullivan's unsavory reputation did not stop Trump from later arranging for him to be hired as a labor negotiator for the Grand Hyatt, a hotel project on Manhattan's East Side, according to People magazine and the Los Angeles Times. Trump also introduced Sullivan to his own banker at Chase, though he declined to guarantee a loan to Sullivan, reported the L.A. Times.

...In his investigative biography, Trump: The Deals and the Downfall, reporter Wayne Barrett wrote that Trump's life "intertwines with the underworld," and he outlined the real-estate developer's numerous alleged ties to organized crime, including that Trump:

- Once met Salerno at the Manhattan townhouse of Roy Cohn, the infamous sidekick to Joe McCarthy who represented both men, according to an eyewitness source who talked to Barrett.

- Was very close to Cohn, whom Barrett describes as Trump's "bridge to the mob."
- Had ties to mob associates Shapiro and Sullivan.
- Paid almost double the market price for property in Atlantic City owned by Salvatore Testa, a capo in the Scarfo crime family.
- Evaded New Jersey state laws banning casino owners from making political contributions by channeling donations to Mike Mathews, then-candidate for mayor of Atlantic City, through Shapiro and another mob-tied associate.
- Failed to disclose to state casino regulators that Trump was the target of a bribery probe in 1979 and was questioned in a 1981 racketeering investigation. Neither federal probe led to criminal charges, noted the Philadelphia Inquirer's David Johnston in a review of the book.

Preferential Treatment For The Donald?

In the book, Barrett also claimed that New Jersey state regulators demonstrated a double standard by granting Trump a casino license while denying licenses to other developers and gambling executives whose conduct was far less troubling than Trump's. In 1985, Hilton Hotels was turned down for a license partly due to the chain's ties to Sidney Korshak, a lawyer with reputed mob connections. But with Trump, the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement (DGE) never bothered to write a report that raised "the possibility that Cohn's mob liaisons . . . might have been used to facilitate Trump construction projects," wrote Barrett

CHRISTIE SAYS KUSHNER'S FATHER COMMITTED ONE OF THE MOST DISGUSTING CRIMES HE PROSECUTED

Washington (CNN)*Former New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie said that "one of the most loathsome, disgusting crimes" he prosecuted more than a decade ago when he was a US attorney was committed by the father of President Donald Trump's son-in-law and top adviser Jared Kushner.

Christie, who chaired Trump's transition team for a short time, has recently been drawing attention to his relationship with Kushner and his father, the real estate developer Charles Kushner, while promoting his new book, "Let Me Finish."

According to excerpts of the book reported on by Axios and The Guardian, Christie claims that the younger Kushner was behind his departure from Trump's inner circle after the 2016 election, writing that he was "still apparently seething over events that had occurred a decade ago."

Christie torches Kushner in new memoir

In an interview with PBS's Margaret Hoover on "Firing Line" released Tuesday, Christie unloads on the senior Kushner for the crimes that he prosecuted him for.

Lessons In Gold

Hannah Kearney has been in love with mountains ever since she first strapped on a pair of skis as a young girl, but her gold medal journey almost never happened.

"Would you separate your experience -- if your father had been put in jail -- from the prosecutor who put him in jail?" Hoover asked.

"If my father is guilty, I would. Mr. Kushner pled guilty. He admitted the crimes," Christie said. "And so what am I supposed to do as a prosecutor? I mean If a guy hires a prostitute to seduce his brother-in-law, and videotapes it, and then sends the videotape to his sister to attempt to intimidate her from testifying before a grand jury, do I really need any more justification than that?"

"I mean it's one of the most loathsome, disgusting crimes that I prosecuted when I was US attorney. And I was a US attorney in New Jersey, Margaret, so we had some loathsome and disgusting crime going on there."

Christie: Trump has 'found himself saddled with riffraff'

Christie was referring to an elaborate revenge plot that the older Kushner hatched in 2003 in order to target his his brother-in-law, William Schulder, a former employee turned witness for federal prosecutors in their case against Kushner, who was under investigation at the time for making illegal campaign contributions.

As a part of the plot, Kushner hired a prostitute to lure Schulder into having sex in a Bridgewater, New Jersey, motel room as a hidden camera rolled. A tape of the encounter was then sent to Kushner's sister and Schulder's wife, Esther.

Ultimately, the intimidation stunt failed. The Schulders brought the video to prosecutors, who tracked down the call girl and threatened her with arrest. She promptly turned on Kushner.

In a plea deal negotiated by Christie, Kushner pleaded guilty to 16 counts of tax evasion, one count of retaliating against a federal witness -- his brother-in-law -- and another count of lying to the Federal Election Commission.

CNN's Sophie Tatum and Gregory Krieg contributed to this report.

A new index has named Somalia the most corrupt country in the world, while Denmark is the least.

Concerns have also been raised over the United States, as it fell outside the top 20 countries in the Corruption Perceptions Index \(CPI\) for the first time since 2011.

The index, released by Transparency International, measures public sector corruption in 180 countries and territories, using 13 expert assessments and surveys of business executives to give each country a score from zero (highly corrupt) to 100 (very clean).

The 2018 index is topped by Denmark and New Zealand, with 88 and 87 points respectively, while at the bottom is Somalia with 10, and Syria and South Sudan, both with 13.

More than two thirds of countries score below 50 in the index, with an average score of only 43.

This year's index also showed a drop for the United States, which it said was a key country to watch as it dropped four points to 71, marking the first time since 2011 that it has fallen outside the top 20 countries.

CNN THE NUMBERS SHOW TRUMP LOST THE SHUTDOWN

(CNN)First things first: '...

Poll of the week: An ABC News/Washington Post poll finds that only 37% of Americans approve of the job President Donald Trump is doing. A significantly higher 58% disapprove. This makes for a net approval rating of -21 points.

The previous ABC/Washington Post poll put Trump's net approval rating at -13 points, so his net approval rating fell by 8 points.

What's the point: Make no mistake: Trump lost the shutdown fight. The ABC News/Washington Post poll is merely the latest to show that Trump's approval rating was plummeting. In average of all recent polls, Trump's net approval rating had dropped 6 points compared to before the shutdown '

HE'S NOT A SELF-MADE BILLIONAIRE

ThOrn

Friday January 18, 2019

The spoiled rich boy in the Oval Office

He's not even a self-made millionaire. But millions of Americans still think he is. And it affects their willingness to vote for him:

Who is Donald Trump? Ask Americans and many of them will describe a self-made billionaire, a business tycoon of unfathomable success. In research recently published in Political Behavior, we found that voters are not simply uninformed about President Trump's biographical background, but misinformed—and that misinformation has serious political consequences.

Large swaths of the public believe the Trump myth. Across three surveys of eligible voters from 2016 to 2018, we found that as many as half of all Americans do not know that he was born into a very wealthy family. And while Americans are divided along party lines in their assessment of Trump's performance as president, misperceptions regarding his financial background are found among Democrats and Republicans.

Incomprehensible as it might be to political news junkies, nearly half of Americans, both Republicans and Democrats, don't know that Donald Trump was born into a very wealthy family. They believe the myth that Trump has pushed, that's he's a self-made man.

The truth is that his father, Fred Trump, who made his fortune as a real estate developer, set up his son Donald for success in the same business. Donald inherited $413 million in today's dollars from his father. His father co-signed his business loans. Donald was a millionaire before he got out of diapers. And his father kept bailing him out with more millions each time one of his poorly conceived business ventures failed.

So what, you say?

Using a 2017 University of Maryland Critical Issues Poll, we found that believing Trump was not born "very wealthy" leads to at least a 5-percentage-point boost in the president's job approval, even after considering the many factors that can influence public approval ratings. This shift is rooted in the belief that his humble roots make Trump both more empathetic (he "feels my pain"), and more skilled at business (he is self-made and couldn't have climbed to such heights without real business know-how).

And what happens when people who thought Trump was a self-made man learn the truth? Their views become less positive toward him:

For Democrats, who already see Trump as lacking empathy, this information makes them think of him as even less empathetic. But among Republicans, the information is even more damning, reducing perceptions of empathy by more than 10 percentage points...

On perceptions of business acumen, which are higher across both parties, the information regarding Fred Trump's role in his son's business success is equally important. Democrats reduce their perceptions of Trump as a good businessman by 6 points, while Republican perceptions decline by 9 points.

So here's something to keep in mind when dealing with a Trump supporter. Make sure they know he was born rich and that whatever wealth he has now wasn't the result of his "great deal making" or any kind of super business acumen on his part. He was given all the advantages in the world by his very wealthy father and fed money by him over and over again each time his business ventures failed.

Maybe all those handouts from his father spoiled any native business skill young Donald might have had until he'd burned all his bridges and couldn't borrow money from anyone anymore... and he had to turn to the Russians as the only ones still willing to keep giving him money.

He's not a self-made man who did good for himself. He's a Richie Rich who had everything given to him on a silver platter, and he still made bad.

The US has fallen outside of the top 20 countries on the Corruption Perceptions Index (CPI) for the first time since 2011 (Picture: Getty)

A new index has named Somalia the most corrupt country in the world, while Denmark is the least.

Concerns have also been raised over the United States, as it fell outside the top 20 countries in the Corruption Perceptions Index \(CPI\) for the first time since 2011.

The index, released by Transparency International, measures public sector corruption in 180 countries and territories, using 13 expert assessments and surveys of business executives to give each country a score from zero (highly corrupt) to 100 (very clean).

The 2018 index is topped by Denmark and New Zealand, with 88 and 87 points respectively, while at the bottom is Somalia with 10, and Syria and South Sudan, both with 13.

More than two thirds of countries score below 50 in the index, with an average score of only 43.

This year's index also showed a drop for the United States, which it said was a key country to watch as it dropped four points to 71, marking the first time since 2011 that it has fallen outside the top 20 countries.

Zoe Reiter, Acting Representative to the US at Transparency International, said: "A four point drop in the CPI score is a red flag and comes at a time when the US is experiencing threats to its system of checks and balances, as well as an erosion of ethical norms at the highest levels of power.

"If this trend continues, it would indicate a serious corruption problem in a country that has taken a lead on the issue globally. This is a bipartisan issue that requires a bipartisan solution."

Transparency International said five of the nine sources used to compile the score for the US showed a noteworthy drop in score while the others showed no improvement.

It said since 2012, only 20 countries have significantly improved their scores, including Côte D'Ivoire, and 16 have significantly declined, including, Australia, Chile and Malta.

Transparency International said cross analysis with global democracy data had revealed a link between corruption and the health of democracies.

It said in 2016, the US was downgraded from a full to a flawed democracy in the Democracy Index and in 2018, the US received its lowest Freedom in the World Index score for political rights since 1972, when measurement began.

“Corruption chips away at democracy to produce a vicious cycle, where corruption undermines democratic institutions, and in turn, weak institutions are less able to control corruption,” said Patricia Moreira, Managing Director of Transparency International.

“Around the world, we need to do more to strengthen checks and balances and protect citizens’ rights, and the US is no exception.”

A survey published by Transparency International in 2017 showed that nearly six in ten Americans believed the US was more corrupt than the previous year, with the White House considered the most corrupt institution in the US.

“The expert opinion captured by the CPI supports the deep concern over corruption in government reported by Americans in our 2017 survey,” said Reiter.

“Both experts and the public believe the situation is getting worse.

U.S. DROPS OUT OF TOP 20 PERFORMERS IN GLOBAL CORRUPTION INDEX, WATCHDOG SAYS U.S. MORE CORRUPT By Andrea Shalal [Reuters•January 28, 2019

BERLIN (Reuters) - The United States slid four points lower on a global corruption index in 2018, dropping out of the top 20 countries for the first time since 2011, watchdog Transparency International said in a report that cited growing threats to democracy worldwide.

The group said its latest report on business leaders' perceptions of corruption put the United States at 71, down from 75, on a scale of 0-100.

That sounds a "wake-up call" about the need to tackle conflicts of interest, undue influence of the private sector and widening gaps between rich and poor, said Zoe Reiter, the watchdog's acting representative to the United States.

"This is a red flag because it's really part of a pattern that we've seen since the 2008 global financial crisis of a loss of trust ... in our public institutions," she told Reuters. "People don't see us as having adequate mechanisms in place to fight corruption and ensure the accountability of our elected officials."

GRAPHIC: Corruption Perceptions Index - <https://tmsnrt.rs/2HCFkgJ>

Concerns were already mounting before the election of Donald Trump, although they have been highlighted by the actions of a rich president who defied precedent to keep his personal tax affairs secret and retain his business holdings in office.

"Concerns around the Trump administration are quite serious, but this has been stewing for several years," she said. "Conflict of interest wasn't a new problem, but it was illuminated in its glory when you have someone who is basically breaking norms."

"Trump is a symptom not a cause. His presidency is illuminating some of the problems."

Denmark and New Zealand had the best scores on the Corruption Perceptions Index (CPI) again in 2018, scoring 88 and 87, while Somalia, Syria and South Sudan remained at the bottom, with scores of 10, 13 and 13, TI said.

Overall, more than two-thirds of countries scored below 50 on the 2018 index, and the average was 43, said TI, which has more than 100 chapters worldwide.

The group said only 20 countries had significantly improved their scores since 2012, including Argentina and Ivory Coast. Sixteen others, including Australia, Chile and Malta, declined significantly in the same period.

The average score for EU and western European countries held steady at 66, while sub-Saharan Africa scored just 32, TI said. A score of 100 is considered "very clean", while a score of zero is highly corrupt.

TI said its analysis showed a clear link between having a healthy democracy and fighting public sector corruption, and cited declining scores for Turkey and Hungary, in connection with challenges to the rule of law and press freedoms.

Hungary's score dropped by eight points to 46 over the past five years, amid troubling developments including the forced departure of the Open Society Foundation and Central European University, founded by philanthropist George Soros, TI said.

Turkey's score dropped by nine points in the same period to a score of 41, as the country was downgraded to 'not free' on a democracy ranking, TI said.

"Corruption is much more likely to flourish where democratic foundations are weak and ... where undemocratic and populist politicians can use it to their advantage," said Delia Ferreira Rubio, who chairs the global civil society group.

Here Are The Wildest Moments From Trump's Super Bowl Pregame Interview

The president sat down with CBS' "Face The Nation" to discuss the border wall and other topics.

By Hayley Miller

President Donald Trump sat down for a wide-ranging interview with CBS set to air ahead of the Super Bowl on Sunday, and there's a lot to unpack from the exchange.

Trump, who opted against giving a pregame interview last year, made several eyebrow-raising remarks during his interview with host Margaret Brennan, touching on topics including his plan to withdraw U.S. troops from Syria and whether he would let his 12-year-old son play football.

Here are some of Trump's most noteworthy comments:

On another government shutdown: We'll 'see what happens'

Trump refused to say he wouldn't allow another partial government shutdown if Congress doesn't agree to carve out $5.7 billion in a spending bill to fund his long-promised wall along the U.S.-Mexico border.

"We're going to have to see what happens on Feb. 15th," the president said, the date when temporary funding for various agencies expires. "I don't take anything off the table. I don't like to take things off the table."

After a 35-day partial shutdown – the longest such closure in U.S. history – Trump agreed on Jan. 25 to reopen the government for three weeks while Congress negotiated border security. He has threatened to shut down the government again or declare a national emergency to secure funds for his border wall if the talks fail. Lawmakers on both sides of the aisle have slammed Trump's threat to declare a national emergency to achieve his wall.

"You know there have been plenty of national emergencies called," Trump told CBS. "And this really is an invasion of our country by human traffickers. ... The only way you have a strong border is you need a physical barrier. You need a wall. And anybody that says you don't, they're just playing games."

Pelosi is 'very bad for our country'

Trump bashed House Speaker Nancy Pelosi (D-Calif.) over her refusal to cave to his demand for border wall money, despite his repeated vows that Mexico would pay to build it.

Asked what he learned about negotiating with her, Trump told CBS that she was "very rigid."

"I think she is very bad for our country," he said. "She knows that you need a barrier. She knows that we need border security. She wanted to win a political point."

Brennan reminded Trump that Pelosi had offered $1 billion toward border security. He responded, without citing evidence, that Pelosi's stance on the wall was costing the country billions of dollars and blamed "people like" her for "people dying all over the country."

The 26 wildest lines from Donald Trump's Daily Caller interview

Analysis by CNN Editor-at-large

Updated 4:05 PM ET, Thu January 31, 2019

(CNN)On Wednesday afternoon, Donald Trump sat down in the Oval Office for an interview with the conservative website the Daily Caller.

To their great credit, the Daily Caller released the full transcript of the conversation, allowing me to go through it line-by-line -- picking out the most, uh, interesting lines from the President. They're below.

1. "He was a gambler, you know, you don't see too many gamblers that have money."

Trump is referring to Stephen Paddock, the man who murdered 58 people in Las Vegas on October 1, 2017. (The FBI closed its investigation into the shooting earlier this week without offering a conclusion on Paddock's motivation.) Paddock was both a gambler and wealthy, Trump says. And away we go!

2. "You know, I've stayed out of that whole situation so that -- because there was no collusion whatsoever."

What "situation" is Trump referring to here? The question he was asked by the Daily Caller was whether he felt comfortable with the manner in which his one-time adviser Roger Stone was arrested last week. Does Trump mean he has stayed out of commenting on that arrest? Stayed away from Roger Stone? Stayed out of the Russia investigation? He has, of course, not stayed out of anything with the possible exception of not offering a stream of commentary on Stone's arrest. One thing worth mentioning here, too: NO COLLUSION.

3. "I'm speaking for a lot of people that were very disappointed to see that go down that way, to see it happen where it was on camera, on top of it. That was a very, very disappointing scene."

On the Stone arrest question, "disappointing" is an odd word choice here. To be clear: The indictment that led to Stone's arrest alleged that he had repeatedly lied to Congress about his contacts with WikiLeaks over emails stolen from Democrats by Russians -- and that he had urged other witnesses to lie to Congress about what they knew of the situation too.

4. "You have 29 people and you have armored vehicles and you had all of the other and, you know, many people know Roger, and Roger is not a person that they would have to worry about from that standpoint. I thought it was sad to see it."

What's remarkable about this -- and the fact that Trump in the next sentence says he would consider asking the FBI to look into its use of force in the Stone arrest -- is that the President has repeatedly urged law enforcement to be tougher in its dealings with criminals. "When you see these thugs thrown into the back of a paddy wagon. You see them thrown in, rough. I said, 'Please don't be too nice,'" Trump said in a speech to police officers in 2017.

5. "I guess they're well over 30 million dollars now on this Russian collusion hoax, and everybody knows it's a hoax. They've spent all this money. Nothing. No phone calls, no meetings, no nothing."

Trump's not that far off-base on the price tag -- $25 million has been spent on special counsel Robert Mueller's probe since it began in May 2017, according to the most recent filings. Where he REALLY misses the fact boat is in claiming that the Mueller probe has produced zero tangible results. To date, the investigation has produced 199 criminal counts against 37 people and entities. Seven people have pleaded guilty and four have been sentenced to prison. One -- Paul Manafort -- has been convicted by a jury of his peers. That's not nothing.

6. "You look at it, and you say, isn't that sad to have devoted this time, this energy over a -- you know, look, there's been numerous books written right now, including number one best sellers, calling it a 'hoax.'"

Trump's referring to "The Russia Hoax: The Illicit Scheme to Clear Hillary Clinton and Frame Donald Trump" by Gregg Jarrett. Jarrett is a Fox News personality. Draw your own conclusions.

7. "I would say that I think after almost two years it certainly should be."

Trump is saying here that the Mueller probe has gone on too long already. By way of context, the special counsel investigations into Iran-Contra and Whitewater lasted more than six years each.

8. "Process crimes or process, you know, questions, the answer is different than what you thought it might be and some people say they lost their memory or a lack of memory, which a lot of people can understand that too."

Trump is right that, to date, all of the crimes related to the 2016 campaign that Mueller has found have been people lying to Congress or federal investigators about who knew what when about contacts between the campaign and Russia. But here's the thing: 1) The investigation isn't over yet and 2) WHY WHY WHY are all these people in Trump's orbit willing to lie to federal authorities about their contacts with the Russians?

9. "I could've taken a much different stance, I could've gotten involved in this, I could've terminated everything. I could've ended everything. I've chosen to stay out of it."

Two thoughts here. First, it's not at all clear that Trump could have "terminated" the Mueller probe. Second, this past 20 months is what "stay[ing] out of it" looks like for Donald Trump, eh?

10. "I ran a great campaign. I ran a campaign that now they say was better than that gentleman's [Andrew Jackson's] campaign in the 1800s and we did a great job."

They say that, do they? (For more on Andrew Jackson's campaigns, read this!)

11. "And we got 306 to 223 and that's that. Won states that nobody thought were possible to win. Remember the expression, 'he cannot get to 270.' And we got way beyond 270."

The 2016 election ended 814 days ago. Also, this is an answer to a question about whether Trump favors making the Mueller report public. Good times.

12. "Paul told me in the strongest of terms that, 'please sign this and if you sign this we will get you that wall.'"

Trump, in case you haven't noticed, is very, very good at scapegoating. In this case, he's blaming former House Speaker Paul Ryan for lying to him about wall funding in order to secure his signature on an omnibus spending bill.

13. "And then he went lame duck. And once he went lame duck it was just really an exercise in waving to people and the power was gone, so I was very disappointed."

Rather than saying "retired," I propose we say "went lame duck" in the future. As in: "Hey, did Cillizza leave CNN? No, he went lame duck. He and his wife are living up in the Catskills now."

14. "I don't want to say he lied. I think he probably meant it at the time, I guess. I hope. So I don't call that lying."

"It's not a lie if you believe it." -- George Costanza

15. "You know, I made many statements, many promises."

Fact Check: True!

16. "I'm going to be announcing the exact numbers but I'll have over a hundred miles of wall either built or under construction between new and renovated."

Not true. As PBS' Yamiche Alcindor noted on Twitter: "President Trump keeps saying, 'The wall is getting built.' Fact check: This is false. No construction has begun on the wall President Trump promised. The President said he would be going to a 'ground-breaking' for the wall around the time of SOTU and that hasn't happened."

17. "We have a tremendous amount of money right now to build a wall. We're building the wall."

Again, no.

18. "I hope that she's healthy, I hope she's happy, and I hope she lives for a long time."

Trump's response here to a question on Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg is -- dare I say it -- presidential.

19. "Well, I've been very religious." Huh.

20. "I've been told, and I don't know that that's true, I would be surprised if it's true, but a lot of people said that list was one of the reasons I won."

This is true. As I wrote at the time, Trump's decision to release a list of judges he would consider for any Supreme Court vacancy was hugely important in rallying conservatives to him.

21. "The world is not doing well and we're going great."

Trump on the global situation: America :) Rest of world :(

22. "Coach Belichick endorsed me, you remember that?"

True! And in letter form no less!

23. "I was very pleased that he called me to thank me for helping him with Canada and yeah, it looks good."

Donald Trump is pro-NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell. So, there's that!

24. "I feel very badly for Louisiana because that was maybe the worst call I've ever seen but I guess there's nothing they can do about that. And you might say it, I feel badly for Louisiana."

First off, it WAS a terrible call. Second, might I say it?

25. "It looks like Elizabeth Warren has not caught on like they thought she would. She fell into a trap. It's called the Pocahontas trap."

"The Pocahontas Trap?" Is that a Disney flick?

26. "The truth is there are some I'd love to run against." Donald Trump on 2020 Democrats: "Some I'd love to run against." This feels like the right place to stop.

(CNN)In retrospect, President Donald Trump's interview with CBS News' Margaret Brennan was the most entertaining part of the Super Bowl.

Trump was his usual self -- making a series of fact-challenged (and fact-free) claims, musing on his own greatness and playing the role he was born to play: Being Donald Trump.

CBS released the full transcript of Trump's interview -- and I went through it. Below, the most noteworthy of lines.

1. "Well, I don't -- I don't take anything off the table. I don't like to take things off the table."

Trump is referring here to his refusal to rule out another government shutdown if no deal on wall funding is reached by February 15. (Which it almost certainly won't be.) But Trump's statement also kind of doubles for his life mantra -- everything is on the table, always. And away we go!

2. "And this really is an invasion of our country by human traffickers."

Ask yourself this: If Trump really views the stream of undocumented immigrants into the country as "an invasion" and a national emergency along the lines of a major natural disaster, then why would he give Congress three weeks to figure out some solution? If we are truly being "invaded," shouldn't we be acting now out of fear for our lives? So why hasn't Trump acted yet? [whispers] Because this isn't an actual national emergency.

3. "You need a wall. And anybody that says you don't, they're just playing games."

If Trump sticks to this view, then there will be no deal in Congress on keeping the government open. Which means Trump is likely to declare a national emergency. It's just not that complicated.

4. "I think [Pelosi] is very bad for our country."

Trump has never been big on subtlety.

5. "And on the 15th we have now set the table beautifully because everybody knows what's going on because of this shutdown."

A few things here. One, Trump is saying that everything is set up "beautifully" for when the government closes again, which is a sort of a weird word choice. Two, it sure as heck seems as though he expects no deal and to make some sort of, uh, declaration on February 15.

6. "When I took over Syria it was infested with ISIS. It was all over the place. And now you have very little ISIS and you have the caliphate almost knocked out."

"ISIS is intent on resurging and still commands thousands of fighters in Iraq and Syria," -- Director of National Intelligence Dan Coats, 1/30/19.

7. "What -- you're-- you're going to have people, like the one-armed man who blew up a restaurant. You are going to have pockets."

I think Trump is talking about this bombing in Kabul in mid-January. And while the transcript says "one-armed man," I have to believe Trump meant "one armed man." Punctuation matters, people!

8. "We've been there for 19 years, almost, we are fighting very well. We're fighting harder than ever before."

How is Trump quantifying his claim that US troops in Afghanistan are "fighting harder than ever before?" Answer: He's not.

9. "We have very fast airplanes. We have very good cargo planes."

This is the President of the United States' answer when asked what would happen if ISIS surged in areas where he is pulling out troops. "Very fast airplanes."

10. "We have to protect Israel. We have to protect other things that we have."

So, Israel is one of the "things that we have," or.....?

11. "When President Obama pulled out of Iraq, in theory, we had Iraq. In other words, we had Iraq. We never had Syria because President Obama never wanted to violate the red line in the sand."

In theory, we had Iraq. Put another way: We had Iraq. To put a finer point on it: We had Iraq.

12. "Being in Iraq -- it was a big mistake to go -- one of the greatest mistakes going into the Middle East that our country has ever made."

"Yeah, I guess so." -- Donald Trump, when asked by Howard Stern whether he supported US troops going into Iraq (9/12/02)

13. "I want to be looking a little bit at Iran because Iran is a real problem."

"We do not believe Iran is currently undertaking the key activities we judge necessary to produce a nuclear device." -- Dan Coats, 1/30/19

14. "My intelligence people, if they said in fact that Iran is a wonderful kindergarten, I disagree with them a hundred percent."

[narrator voice] They said no such thing. The intelligence community has simply said they believe Iran to be in compliance with the nuclear deal that Trump pulled out of in May 2018.

15. "I disagree with them."

It's OK for Trump to disagree with intelligence officials about Iran. But what is he basing his conclusions on? Because they are basing theirs on actual intelligence.

16. "They said they were mischaracterized -- maybe they were, maybe they weren't."

[narrator voice] They weren't.

17. "So when my intelligence people tell me how wonderful Iran is -- if you don't mind, I'm going to just go by my own counsel."

To be clear: Trump is acknowledging here that he doesn't trust what the intelligence community tells him about Iran because his gut tells him something different.

18. "It's OK. It's easier to make moves when they're acting."

I'm not entirely clear on what Trump means here. Does he mean it's easier to replace acting Cabinet secretaries if he wants? Or that acting Cabinet officials may have less to lose and so are willing to push the policy envelope more?

19. "Really, I like acting because I can move so quickly."

Not to belabor the point but: Is Trump saying he prefers acting Cabinet officials because he can do more of what he wants on policy with less opposition within his administration?

20. "Like with General Mattis, I wasn't happy with his service. I told him give me a letter."

Former Defense Secretary James Mattis said that he resigned out of principle -- due to disagreements with Trump on his vision for the US's role in the world. Trump is saying he fired Mattis because he asked him to resign, aka "I told him give me a letter."

21. "But they haven't been kneeling and they have been respecting the flag and their ratings have been terrific ever since. And a lot of good things happened."

It's not at all clear that ratings for the NFL are tied in any way, shape or form to whether (or not) players protested during the National Anthem.

22. "And I got it done and I've been, you know, really -- a lot of people in the NFL have been calling and thanking me for it."

So. "A lot of the people in the NFL" called Trump to thank him for getting criminal justice reform passed. I mean, maybe? But like a lot of Trump's claims, this one is absolutely impossible to fact check.

23. "And I think if you look at the numbers for African-American unemployment, best numbers they've had -- literally, the best numbers they've had in history. And I think they like me a lot and I like them a lot."

OK, so, Brennan repeatedly asks Trump about claims that he is a racist or that he promotes racist views. This is his answer: How can I be racist if the unemployment numbers for blacks are so good?

24. "And a lot of people, including me, thought soccer would probably never make it in this country, but it really is moving forward rapidly."

Paging @MeninBlazers!!!!

25. "Well, look, the Russia thing is a hoax. I have been tougher on Russia than any president, maybe ever."

First of all, it's very debatable whether Trump has been harder on Russia than any president ever. Second, whether he has or has not been harder on Russia than any other president has NOTHING to do with Russia interfering in the 2016 election. Trump has never seemed to understand the difference.

26. "Excuse me. OK, you ready? OK, you ready? Of the thirty-four people, many of them were bloggers from Moscow -- or they were people that had nothing to do with me."

The following people have pleaded guilty to (or been convicted of) wrongdoing in the Mueller probe: former Trump campaign chairman Paul Manafort, former Trump deputy campaign chairman Rick Gates, former Trump national security adviser Michael Flynn, former Trump fixer and personal attorney Michael Cohen. Another Trump loyalist -- Roger Stone -- has been charged. So...

27. "First of all, Roger Stone didn't work on the campaign"

"Donald Trump's campaign said Saturday it has fired top political adviser Roger Stone -- who promptly denied being let go and insisted he had quit." (8/10/15)

28. "Roger is somebody that I've always liked, but a lot of people like Roger. Some people probably don't like Roger, but Roger Stone's somebody I've always liked."

"Roger is a stone-cold loser." -- Donald Trump in 2008

29. "There's been no President that has been tougher on Russia than Donald Trump."

Again, no. And again, even if that were true it would not prove that the Russia investigation is a hoax or a witch hunt.

30. "It's totally up to the attorney general. Totally up to the attorney general."

This is important. Brennan gives Trump the chance to say that, yes, the Mueller report should be released to the public. Trump purposely doesn't go there. Ask yourself this: If Trump is truly totally innocent and all of this is a big, fat nothing-burger, wouldn't it be in his interest to push for the entire Mueller report to be public, so he can be completely exonerated?

31. "Even the Mueller report said it had nothing to do with the campaign."

The Mueller report hasn't come out yet.

32. "There was no collusion. There was no obstruction. There was no nothing."

Not accurate. To reiterate: 199 criminal charges of 39 people and entities. Seven people who have pleaded guilty. Four people who have been sentenced to jail. And, Manafort, who was convicted by a jury.

33. "We've made tremendous progress. If you remember, before I became President, it looked like we were going to war with North Korea. Now we have a very good relationship."

"We currently assess that North Korea will seek to retain its WMD capabilities and is unlikely to completely give up its nuclear weapons and production capability because its leaders ultimately view nuclear weapons as critical to regime survival." -- Dan Coats, 1/30/19

34. "What a location. I'm in the real estate business, what a location."

Donald Trump on North Korea. Yup!

35. "Sir, I hear your helicopters. I'm being told to wrap."

Yes, ok, this is Brennan, not Trump. But, still: I am going to end all future interviews by saying, "I hear your helicopters."

'.....But Trump told a different story to casino regulators who were deciding whether to grant him the lucrative gambling license.

"I don't think there's anything wrong with these people," he said about Shapiro and Sullivan during licensing hearings in 1982, according to "TrumpNation." "Many of them have been in Atlantic City for many, many years and I think they are well thought of." Sullivan's unsavory reputation did not stop Trump from later arranging for him to be hired as a labor negotiator for the Grand Hyatt, a hotel project on Manhattan's East Side, according to People magazine and the Los Angeles Times. Trump also introduced Sullivan to his own banker at Chase, though he declined to guarantee a loan to Sullivan, reported the L.A. Times.

...In his investigative biography, Trump: The Deals and the Downfall, reporter Wayne Barrett wrote that Trump's life "intertwines with the underworld," and he outlined the real-estate developer's numerous alleged ties to organized crime, including that Trump:

- Once met Salerno at the Manhattan townhouse of Roy Cohn, the infamous sidekick to Joe McCarthy who represented both men, according to an eyewitness source who talked to Barrett.
- Was very close to Cohn, whom Barrett describes as Trump's "bridge to the mob."
- Had ties to mob associates Shapiro and Sullivan.
- Paid almost double the market price for property in Atlantic City owned by Salvatore Testa, a capo in the Scarfo crime family.
- Evaded New Jersey state laws banning casino owners from making political contributions by channeling donations to Mike Mathews, then-candidate for mayor of Atlantic City, through Shapiro and another mob-tied associate.
- Failed to disclose to state casino regulators that Trump was the target of a bribery probe in 1979 and was questioned in a 1981 racketeering investigation. Neither federal probe led to criminal charges, noted the Philadelphia Inquirer's David Johnston in a review of the book.

Preferential Treatment For The Donald?

In the book, Barrett also claimed that New Jersey state regulators demonstrated a double standard by granting Trump a casino license while denying licenses to other developers and gambling executives whose conduct was far less troubling than Trump's. In 1985, Hilton Hotels was turned down for a license partly due to the chain's ties to Sidney Korshak, a lawyer with reputed mob connections. But with Trump, the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement (DGE) never bothered to write a report that raised "the possibility that Cohn's mob liaisons . . . might have been used to facilitate Trump construction projects," wrote Barrett

CHRISTIE SAYS KUSHNER'S FATHER COMMITTED ONE OF THE MOST DISGUSTING CRIMES HE PROSECUTED

Washington (CNN)*Former New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie said that "one of the most loathsome, disgusting crimes" he prosecuted more than a decade ago when he was a US attorney was committed by the father of President Donald Trump's son-in-law and top adviser Jared Kushner.

Christie, who chaired Trump's transition team for a short time, has recently been drawing attention to his relationship with Kushner and his father, the real estate developer Charles Kushner, while promoting his new book, "Let Me Finish."

According to excerpts of the book reported on by Axios and The Guardian, Christie claims that the younger Kushner was behind his departure from Trump's inner circle after the 2016 election, writing that he was "still apparently seething over events that had occurred a decade ago."

Christie torches Kushner in new memoir

In an interview with PBS's Margaret Hoover on "Firing Line" released Tuesday, Christie unloads on the senior Kushner for the crimes that he prosecuted him for.

Lessons In Gold

Hannah Kearney has been in love with mountains ever since she first strapped on a pair of skis as a young girl, but her gold medal journey almost never happened.

"Would you separate your experience -- if your father had been put in jail -- from the prosecutor who put him in jail?" Hoover asked.

"If my father is guilty, I would. Mr. Kushner pled guilty. He admitted the crimes," Christie said. "And so what am I supposed to do as a prosecutor? I mean If a guy hires a prostitute to seduce his brother-in-law, and videotapes it, and then sends the videotape to his sister to attempt to intimidate her from testifying before a grand jury, do I really need any more justification than that?"

"I mean it's one of the most loathsome, disgusting crimes that I prosecuted when I was US attorney. And I was a US attorney in New Jersey, Margaret, so we had some loathsome and disgusting crime going on there."

Christie: Trump has 'found himself saddled with riffraff'

Christie was referring to an elaborate revenge plot that the older Kushner hatched in 2003 in order to target his his brother-in-law, William Schulder, a former employee turned witness for federal prosecutors in their case against Kushner, who was under investigation at the time for making illegal campaign contributions.

As a part of the plot, Kushner hired a prostitute to lure Schulder into having sex in a Bridgewater, New Jersey, motel room as a hidden camera rolled. A tape of the encounter was then sent to Kushner's sister and Schulder's wife, Esther.

Ultimately, the intimidation stunt failed. The Schulders brought the video to prosecutors, who tracked down the call girl and threatened her with arrest. She promptly turned on Kushner.

In a plea deal negotiated by Christie, Kushner pleaded guilty to 16 counts of tax evasion, one count of retaliating against a federal witness -- his brother-in-law -- and another count of lying to the Federal Election Commission.

The Twitter broadside was a riposte to the more sober but equally emphatic rejection by the intelligence community Tuesday of many of Trump's foreign policy claims. Insisting that Iran's nuclear program remains dangerous, Trump said his intelligence advisors -- who believe Tehran is largely abiding by an international commitment to shelve nuclear weapons ambitions -- should be more realistic.

A new index has named Somalia the most corrupt country in the world, while Denmark is the least.

Concerns have also been raised over the United States, as it fell outside the top 20 countries in the Corruption Perceptions Index \(CPI\) for the first time since 2011.

The index, released by Transparency International, measures public sector corruption in 180 countries and territories, using 13 expert assessments and surveys of business executives to give each country a score from zero (highly corrupt) to 100 (very clean).

The 2018 index is topped by Denmark and New Zealand, with 88 and 87 points respectively, while at the bottom is Somalia with 10, and Syria and South Sudan, both with 13.

More than two thirds of countries score below 50 in the index, with an average score of only 43.

This year's index also showed a drop for the United States, which it said was a key country to watch as it dropped four points to 71, marking the first time since 2011 that it has fallen outside the top 20 countries.

HE'S NOT A SELF-MADE BILLIONAIRE

ThOrn

Friday January 18, 2019

The spoiled rich boy in the Oval Office

He's not even a self-made millionaire. But millions of Americans still think he is. And it affects their willingness to vote for him:

Who is Donald Trump? Ask Americans and many of them will describe a self-made billionaire, a business tycoon of unfathomable success. In research recently published in Political Behavior, we found that voters are not simply uninformed about President Trump's biographical background, but misinformed—and that misinformation has serious political consequences.

Large swaths of the public believe the Trump myth. Across three surveys of eligible voters from 2016 to 2018, we found that as many as half of all Americans do not know that he was born into a very wealthy family. And while Americans are divided along party lines in their assessment of Trump's performance as president, misperceptions regarding his financial background are found among Democrats and Republicans.

Incomprehensible as it might be to political news junkies, nearly half of Americans, both Republicans and Democrats, don't know that Donald Trump was born into a very wealthy family. They believe the myth that Trump has pushed, that's he's a self-made man.

The truth is that his father, Fred Trump, who made his fortune as a real estate developer, set up his son Donald for success in the same business. Donald inherited $413 million in today's dollars from his father. His father co-signed his business loans. Donald was a millionaire before he got out of diapers. And his father kept bailing him out with more millions each time one of his poorly conceived business ventures failed.

So what, you say?

Using a 2017 University of Maryland Critical Issues Poll, we found that believing Trump was not born "very wealthy" leads to at least a 5-percentage-point boost in the president's job approval, even after considering the many factors that can influence public approval ratings. This shift is rooted in the belief that his humble roots make Trump both more empathetic (he "feels my pain"), and more skilled at business (he is self-made and couldn't have climbed to such heights without real business know-how).

And what happens when people who thought Trump was a self-made man learn the truth? Their views become less positive toward him:

For Democrats, who already see Trump as lacking empathy, this information makes them think of him as even less empathetic. But among Republicans, the information is even more damning, reducing perceptions of empathy by more than 10 percentage points...

On perceptions of business acumen, which are higher across both parties, the information regarding Fred Trump's role in his son's business success is equally important. Democrats reduce their perceptions of Trump as a good businessman by 6 points, while Republican perceptions decline by 9 points.

So here's something to keep in mind when dealing with a Trump supporter. Make sure they know he was born rich and that whatever wealth he has now wasn't the result of his "great deal making" or any kind of super business acumen on his part. He was given all the advantages in the world by his very wealthy father and fed money by him over and over again each time his business ventures failed.

Maybe all those handouts from his father spoiled any native business skill young Donald might have had until he'd burned all his bridges and couldn't borrow money from anyone anymore... and he had to turn to the Russians as the only ones still willing to keep giving him money.

He's not a self-made man who did good for himself. He's a Richie Rich who had everything given to him on a silver platter, and he still made bad.

The US has fallen outside of the top 20 countries on the Corruption Perceptions Index (CPI) for the first time since 2011 (Picture: Getty)

A new index has named Somalia the most corrupt country in the world, while Denmark is the least.

Concerns have also been raised over the United States, as it fell outside the top 20 countries in the Corruption Perceptions Index \(CPI\) for the first time since 2011.

The index, released by Transparency International, measures public sector corruption in 180 countries and territories, using 13 expert assessments and surveys of business executives to give each country a score from zero (highly corrupt) to 100 (very clean).

The 2018 index is topped by Denmark and New Zealand, with 88 and 87 points respectively, while at the bottom is Somalia with 10, and Syria and South Sudan, both with 13.

More than two thirds of countries score below 50 in the index, with an average score of only 43.

This year's index also showed a drop for the United States, which it said was a key country to watch as it dropped four points to 71, marking the first time since 2011 that it has fallen outside the top 20 countries.

Zoe Reiter, Acting Representative to the US at Transparency International, said: "A four point drop in the CPI score is a red flag and comes at a time when the US is experiencing threats to its system of checks and balances, as well as an erosion of ethical norms at the highest levels of power.

"If this trend continues, it would indicate a serious corruption problem in a country that has taken a lead on the issue globally. This is a bipartisan issue that requires a bipartisan solution."

Transparency International said five of the nine sources used to compile the score for the US showed a noteworthy drop in score while the others showed no improvement.

It said since 2012, only 20 countries have significantly improved their scores, including Côte D'Ivoire, and 16 have significantly declined, including, Australia, Chile and Malta.

Transparency International said cross analysis with global democracy data had revealed a link between corruption and the health of democracies.

It said in 2016, the US was downgraded from a full to a flawed democracy in the Democracy Index and in 2018, the US received its lowest Freedom in the World Index score for political rights since 1972, when measurement began.

“Corruption chips away at democracy to produce a vicious cycle, where corruption undermines democratic institutions, and in turn, weak institutions are less able to control corruption,” said Patricia Moreira, Managing Director of Transparency International.

“Around the world, we need to do more to strengthen checks and balances and protect citizens’ rights, and the US is no exception.”

A survey published by Transparency International in 2017 showed that nearly six in ten Americans believed the US was more corrupt than the previous year, with the White House considered the most corrupt institution in the US.

“The expert opinion captured by the CPI supports the deep concern over corruption in government reported by Americans in our 2017 survey,” said Reiter.

“Both experts and the public believe the situation is getting worse.

BERLIN (Reuters) - The United States slid four points lower on a global corruption index in 2018, dropping out of the top 20 countries for the first time since 2011, watchdog Transparency International said in a report that cited growing threats to democracy worldwide.

The group said its latest report on business leaders' perceptions of corruption put the United States at 71, down from 75, on a scale of 0-100.

That sounds a "wake-up call" about the need to tackle conflicts of interest, undue influence of the private sector and widening gaps between rich and poor, said Zoe Reiter, the watchdog's acting representative to the United States.

"This is a red flag because it's really part of a pattern that we've seen since the 2008 global financial crisis of a loss of trust ... in our public institutions," she told Reuters. "People don't see us as having adequate mechanisms in place to fight corruption and ensure the accountability of our elected officials."

Concerns were already mounting before the election of Donald Trump, although they have been highlighted by the actions of a rich president who defied precedent to keep his personal tax affairs secret and retain his business holdings in office.

"Concerns around the Trump administration are quite serious, but this has been stewing for several years," she said. "Conflict of interest wasn't a new problem, but it was illuminated in its glory when you have someone who is basically breaking norms."

"Trump is a symptom not a cause. His presidency is illuminating some of the problems."

Denmark and New Zealand had the best scores on the Corruption Perceptions Index (CPI) again in 2018, scoring 88 and 87, while Somalia, Syria and South Sudan remained at the bottom, with scores of 10, 13 and 13, TI said.

Overall, more than two-thirds of countries scored below 50 on the 2018 index, and the average was 43, said TI, which has more than 100 chapters worldwide.

The group said only 20 countries had significantly improved their scores since 2012, including Argentina and Ivory Coast. Sixteen others, including Australia, Chile and Malta, declined significantly in the same period.

The average score for EU and western European countries held steady at 66, while sub-Saharan Africa scored just 32, TI said. A score of 100 is considered "very clean", while a score of zero is highly corrupt.

TI said its analysis showed a clear link between having a healthy democracy and fighting public sector corruption, and cited declining scores for Turkey and Hungary, in connection with challenges to the rule of law and press freedoms.

Hungary's score dropped by eight points to 46 over the past five years, amid troubling developments including the forced departure of the Open Society Foundation and Central European University, founded by philanthropist George Soros, TI said.

Turkey's score dropped by nine points in the same period to a score of 41, as the country was downgraded to 'not free' on a democracy ranking, TI said.

"Corruption is much more likely to flourish where democratic foundations are weak and ... where undemocratic and populist politicians can use it to their advantage," said Delia Ferreira Rubio, who chairs the global civil society group.

Donald Trump jeopardizes national security by ignoring intelligence community: Today's talker

President Donald Trump doesn't have the best record on telling the truth, but dismissing the intelligence community altogether might put us at risk.

Here Are The Wildest Moments From Trump's Super Bowl Pregame Interview

The president sat down with CBS' "Face The Nation" to discuss the border wall and other topics.

By Hayley Miller

President Donald Trump sat down for a wide-ranging interview with CBS set to air ahead of the Super Bowl on Sunday, and there's a lot to unpack from the exchange.

Trump, who opted against giving a pregame interview last year, made several eyebrow-raising remarks during his interview with host Margaret Brennan, touching on topics including his plan to withdraw U.S. troops from Syria and whether he would let his 12-year-old son play football.

Here are some of Trump's most noteworthy comments:

On another government shutdown: We'll 'see what happens'

Trump refused to say he wouldn't allow another partial government shutdown if Congress doesn't agree to carve out $5.7 billion in a spending bill to fund his long-promised wall along the U.S.-Mexico border.

"We're going to have to see what happens on Feb. 15th," the president said, the date when temporary funding for various agencies expires. "I don't take anything off the table. I don't like to take things off the table."

After a 35-day partial shutdown – the longest such closure in U.S. history – Trump agreed on Jan. 25 to reopen the government for three weeks while Congress negotiated border security. He has threatened to shut down the government again or declare a national emergency to secure funds for his border wall if the talks fail. Lawmakers on both sides of the aisle have slammed Trump's threat to declare a national emergency to achieve his wall.

"You know there have been plenty of national emergencies called," Trump told CBS. "And this really is an invasion of our country by human traffickers. ... The only way you have a strong border is you need a physical barrier. You need a wall. And anybody that says you don't, they're just playing games."

Pelosi is 'very bad for our country'

Trump bashed House Speaker Nancy Pelosi (D-Calif.) over her refusal to cave to his demand for border wall money, despite his repeated vows that Mexico would pay to build it.

Asked what he learned about negotiating with her, Trump told CBS that she was "very rigid."

"I think she is very bad for our country," he said. "She knows that you need a barrier. She knows that we need border security. She wanted to win a political point."

Brennan reminded Trump that Pelosi had offered $1 billion toward border security. He responded, without citing evidence, that Pelosi's stance on the wall was costing the country billions of dollars and blamed "people like" her for "people dying all over the country."

The 26 wildest lines from Donald Trump's Daily Caller interview

Analysis by CNN Editor-at-large

Updated 4:05 PM ET, Thu January 31, 2019

(CNN)On Wednesday afternoon, Donald Trump sat down in the Oval Office for an interview with the conservative website the Daily Caller.

To their great credit, the Daily Caller released the full transcript of the conversation, allowing me to go through it line-by-line -- picking out the most, uh, interesting lines from the President. They're below.

1. "He was a gambler, you know, you don't see too many gamblers that have money."

Trump is referring to Stephen Paddock, the man who murdered 58 people in Las Vegas on October 1, 2017. (The FBI closed its investigation into the shooting earlier this week without offering a conclusion on Paddock's motivation.) Paddock was both a gambler and wealthy, Trump says. And away we go!

2. "You know, I've stayed out of that whole situation so that -- because there was no collusion whatsoever."

What "situation" is Trump referring to here? The question he was asked by the Daily Caller was whether he felt comfortable with the manner in which his one-time adviser Roger Stone was arrested last week. Does Trump mean he has stayed out of commenting on that arrest? Stayed away from Roger Stone? Stayed out of the Russia investigation? He has, of course, not stayed out of anything with the possible exception of not offering a stream of commentary on Stone's arrest. One thing worth mentioning here, too: NO COLLUSION.

3. "I'm speaking for a lot of people that were very disappointed to see that go down that way, to see it happen where it was on camera, on top of it. That was a very, very disappointing scene."

On the Stone arrest question, "disappointing" is an odd word choice here. To be clear: The indictment that led to Stone's arrest alleged that he had repeatedly lied to Congress about his contacts with WikiLeaks over emails stolen from Democrats by Russians -- and that he had urged other witnesses to lie to Congress about what they knew of the situation too.

4. "You have 29 people and you have armored vehicles and you had all of the other and, you know, many people know Roger, and Roger is not a person that they would have to worry about from that standpoint. I thought it was sad to see it."

What's remarkable about this -- and the fact that Trump in the next sentence says he would consider asking the FBI to look into its use of force in the Stone arrest -- is that the President has repeatedly urged law enforcement to be tougher in its dealings with criminals. "When you see these thugs thrown into the back of a paddy wagon. You see them thrown in, rough. I said, 'Please don't be too nice,'" Trump said in a speech to police officers in 2017.

5. "I guess they're well over 30 million dollars now on this Russian collusion hoax, and everybody knows it's a hoax. They've spent all this money. Nothing. No phone calls, no meetings, no nothing."

Trump's not that far off-base on the price tag -- $25 million has been spent on special counsel Robert Mueller's probe since it began in May 2017, according to the most recent filings. Where he REALLY misses the fact boat is in claiming that the Mueller probe has produced zero tangible results. To date, the investigation has produced 199 criminal counts against 37 people and entities. Seven people have pleaded guilty and four have been sentenced to prison. One -- Paul Manafort -- has been convicted by a jury of his peers. That's not nothing.

6. "You look at it, and you say, isn't that sad to have devoted this time, this energy over a -- you know, look, there's been numerous books written right now, including number one best sellers, calling it a 'hoax.'"

Trump's referring to "The Russia Hoax: The Illicit Scheme to Clear Hillary Clinton and Frame Donald Trump" by Gregg Jarrett. Jarrett is a Fox News personality. Draw your own conclusions.

7. "I would say that I think after almost two years it certainly should be."

Trump is saying here that the Mueller probe has gone on too long already. By way of context, the special counsel investigations into Iran-Contra and Whitewater lasted more than six years each.

8. "Process crimes or process, you know, questions, the answer is different than what you thought it might be and some people say they lost their memory or a lack of memory, which a lot of people can understand that too."

Trump is right that, to date, all of the crimes related to the 2016 campaign that Mueller has found have been people lying to Congress or federal investigators about who knew what when about contacts between the campaign and Russia. But here's the thing: 1) The investigation isn't over yet and 2) WHY WHY WHY are all these people in Trump's orbit willing to lie to federal authorities about their contacts with the Russians?

9. "I could've taken a much different stance, I could've gotten involved in this, I could've terminated everything. I could've ended everything. I've chosen to stay out of it."

Two thoughts here. First, it's not at all clear that Trump could have "terminated" the Mueller probe. Second, this past 20 months is what "stay[ing] out of it" looks like for Donald Trump, eh?

10. "I ran a great campaign. I ran a campaign that now they say was better than that gentleman's [Andrew Jackson's] campaign in the 1800s and we did a great job."

They say that, do they? (For more on Andrew Jackson's campaigns, read this!)

11. "And we got 306 to 223 and that's that. Won states that nobody thought were possible to win. Remember the expression, 'he cannot get to 270.' And we got way beyond 270."

The 2016 election ended 814 days ago. Also, this is an answer to a question about whether Trump favors making the Mueller report public. Good times.

12. "Paul told me in the strongest of terms that, 'please sign this and if you sign this we will get you that wall.'"

Trump, in case you haven't noticed, is very, very good at scapegoating. In this case, he's blaming former House Speaker Paul Ryan for lying to him about wall funding in order to secure his signature on an omnibus spending bill.

13. "And then he went lame duck. And once he went lame duck it was just really an exercise in waving to people and the power was gone, so I was very disappointed."

Rather than saying "retired," I propose we say "went lame duck" in the future. As in: "Hey, did Cillizza leave CNN? No, he went lame duck. He and his wife are living up in the Catskills now."

14. "I don't want to say he lied. I think he probably meant it at the time, I guess. I hope. So I don't call that lying."

"It's not a lie if you believe it." -- George Costanza

15. "You know, I made many statements, many promises."

Fact Check: True!

16. "I'm going to be announcing the exact numbers but I'll have over a hundred miles of wall either built or under construction between new and renovated."

Not true. As PBS' Yamiche Alcindor noted on Twitter: "President Trump keeps saying, 'The wall is getting built.' Fact check: This is false. No construction has begun on the wall President Trump promised. The President said he would be going to a 'ground-breaking' for the wall around the time of SOTU and that hasn't happened."

17. "We have a tremendous amount of money right now to build a wall. We're building the wall."

Again, no.

18. "I hope that she's healthy, I hope she's happy, and I hope she lives for a long time."

Trump's response here to a question on Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg is -- dare I say it -- presidential.

19. "Well, I've been very religious." Huh.

20. "I've been told, and I don't know that that's true, I would be surprised if it's true, but a lot of people said that list was one of the reasons I won."

This is true. As I wrote at the time, Trump's decision to release a list of judges he would consider for any Supreme Court vacancy was hugely important in rallying conservatives to him.

21. "The world is not doing well and we're going great."

Trump on the global situation: America :) Rest of world :(

22. "Coach Belichick endorsed me, you remember that?"

True! And in letter form no less!

23. "I was very pleased that he called me to thank me for helping him with Canada and yeah, it looks good."

Donald Trump is pro-NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell. So, there's that!

24. "I feel very badly for Louisiana because that was maybe the worst call I've ever seen but I guess there's nothing they can do about that. And you might say it, I feel badly for Louisiana."

First off, it WAS a terrible call. Second, might I say it?

25. "It looks like Elizabeth Warren has not caught on like they thought she would. She fell into a trap. It's called the Pocahontas trap."

"The Pocahontas Trap?" Is that a Disney flick?

26. "The truth is there are some I'd love to run against." Donald Trump on 2020 Democrats: "Some I'd love to run against." This feels like the right place to stop.

(CNN)In retrospect, President Donald Trump's interview with CBS News' Margaret Brennan was the most entertaining part of the Super Bowl.

Trump was his usual self -- making a series of fact-challenged (and fact-free) claims, musing on his own greatness and playing the role he was born to play: Being Donald Trump.

CBS released the full transcript of Trump's interview -- and I went through it. Below, the most noteworthy of lines.

1. "Well, I don't -- I don't take anything off the table. I don't like to take things off the table."

Trump is referring here to his refusal to rule out another government shutdown if no deal on wall funding is reached by February 15. (Which it almost certainly won't be.) But Trump's statement also kind of doubles for his life mantra -- everything is on the table, always. And away we go!

2. "And this really is an invasion of our country by human traffickers."

Ask yourself this: If Trump really views the stream of undocumented immigrants into the country as "an invasion" and a national emergency along the lines of a major natural disaster, then why would he give Congress three weeks to figure out some solution? If we are truly being "invaded," shouldn't we be acting now out of fear for our lives? So why hasn't Trump acted yet? [whispers] Because this isn't an actual national emergency.

3. "You need a wall. And anybody that says you don't, they're just playing games."

If Trump sticks to this view, then there will be no deal in Congress on keeping the government open. Which means Trump is likely to declare a national emergency. It's just not that complicated.

4. "I think [Pelosi] is very bad for our country."

Trump has never been big on subtlety.

5. "And on the 15th we have now set the table beautifully because everybody knows what's going on because of this shutdown."

A few things here. One, Trump is saying that everything is set up "beautifully" for when the government closes again, which is a sort of a weird word choice. Two, it sure as heck seems as though he expects no deal and to make some sort of, uh, declaration on February 15.

6. "When I took over Syria it was infested with ISIS. It was all over the place. And now you have very little ISIS and you have the caliphate almost knocked out."

"ISIS is intent on resurging and still commands thousands of fighters in Iraq and Syria," -- Director of National Intelligence Dan Coats, 1/30/19.

7. "What -- you're-- you're going to have people, like the one-armed man who blew up a restaurant. You are going to have pockets."

I think Trump is talking about this bombing in Kabul in mid-January. And while the transcript says "one-armed man," I have to believe Trump meant "one armed man." Punctuation matters, people!

8. "We've been there for 19 years, almost, we are fighting very well. We're fighting harder than ever before."

How is Trump quantifying his claim that US troops in Afghanistan are "fighting harder than ever before?" Answer: He's not.

9. "We have very fast airplanes. We have very good cargo planes."

This is the President of the United States' answer when asked what would happen if ISIS surged in areas where he is pulling out troops. "Very fast airplanes."

10. "We have to protect Israel. We have to protect other things that we have."

So, Israel is one of the "things that we have," or.....?

11. "When President Obama pulled out of Iraq, in theory, we had Iraq. In other words, we had Iraq. We never had Syria because President Obama never wanted to violate the red line in the sand."

In theory, we had Iraq. Put another way: We had Iraq. To put a finer point on it: We had Iraq.

12. "Being in Iraq -- it was a big mistake to go -- one of the greatest mistakes going into the Middle East that our country has ever made."

"Yeah, I guess so." -- Donald Trump, when asked by Howard Stern whether he supported US troops going into Iraq (9/12/02)

13. "I want to be looking a little bit at Iran because Iran is a real problem."

"We do not believe Iran is currently undertaking the key activities we judge necessary to produce a nuclear device." -- Dan Coats, 1/30/19

14. "My intelligence people, if they said in fact that Iran is a wonderful kindergarten, I disagree with them a hundred percent."

[narrator voice] They said no such thing. The intelligence community has simply said they believe Iran to be in compliance with the nuclear deal that Trump pulled out of in May 2018.

15. "I disagree with them."

It's OK for Trump to disagree with intelligence officials about Iran. But what is he basing his conclusions on? Because they are basing theirs on actual intelligence.

16. "They said they were mischaracterized -- maybe they were, maybe they weren't."

[narrator voice] They weren't.

17. "So when my intelligence people tell me how wonderful Iran is -- if you don't mind, I'm going to just go by my own counsel."

To be clear: Trump is acknowledging here that he doesn't trust what the intelligence community tells him about Iran because his gut tells him something different.

18. "It's OK. It's easier to make moves when they're acting."

I'm not entirely clear on what Trump means here. Does he mean it's easier to replace acting Cabinet secretaries if he wants? Or that acting Cabinet officials may have less to lose and so are willing to push the policy envelope more?

19. "Really, I like acting because I can move so quickly."

Not to belabor the point but: Is Trump saying he prefers acting Cabinet officials because he can do more of what he wants on policy with less opposition within his administration?

20. "Like with General Mattis, I wasn't happy with his service. I told him give me a letter."

Former Defense Secretary James Mattis said that he resigned out of principle -- due to disagreements with Trump on his vision for the US's role in the world. Trump is saying he fired Mattis because he asked him to resign, aka "I told him give me a letter."

21. "But they haven't been kneeling and they have been respecting the flag and their ratings have been terrific ever since. And a lot of good things happened."

It's not at all clear that ratings for the NFL are tied in any way, shape or form to whether (or not) players protested during the National Anthem.

22. "And I got it done and I've been, you know, really -- a lot of people in the NFL have been calling and thanking me for it."

So. "A lot of the people in the NFL" called Trump to thank him for getting criminal justice reform passed. I mean, maybe? But like a lot of Trump's claims, this one is absolutely impossible to fact check.

23. "And I think if you look at the numbers for African-American unemployment, best numbers they've had -- literally, the best numbers they've had in history. And I think they like me a lot and I like them a lot."

OK, so, Brennan repeatedly asks Trump about claims that he is a racist or that he promotes racist views. This is his answer: How can I be racist if the unemployment numbers for blacks are so good?

24. "And a lot of people, including me, thought soccer would probably never make it in this country, but it really is moving forward rapidly."

Paging @MeninBlazers!!!!

25. "Well, look, the Russia thing is a hoax. I have been tougher on Russia than any president, maybe ever."

First of all, it's very debatable whether Trump has been harder on Russia than any president ever. Second, whether he has or has not been harder on Russia than any other president has NOTHING to do with Russia interfering in the 2016 election. Trump has never seemed to understand the difference.

26. "Excuse me. OK, you ready? OK, you ready? Of the thirty-four people, many of them were bloggers from Moscow -- or they were people that had nothing to do with me."

The following people have pleaded guilty to (or been convicted of) wrongdoing in the Mueller probe: former Trump campaign chairman Paul Manafort, former Trump deputy campaign chairman Rick Gates, former Trump national security adviser Michael Flynn, former Trump fixer and personal attorney Michael Cohen. Another Trump loyalist -- Roger Stone -- has been charged. So...

27. "First of all, Roger Stone didn't work on the campaign"

"Donald Trump's campaign said Saturday it has fired top political adviser Roger Stone -- who promptly denied being let go and insisted he had quit." (8/10/15)

28. "Roger is somebody that I've always liked, but a lot of people like Roger. Some people probably don't like Roger, but Roger Stone's somebody I've always liked."

"Roger is a stone-cold loser." -- Donald Trump in 2008

29. "There's been no President that has been tougher on Russia than Donald Trump."

Again, no. And again, even if that were true it would not prove that the Russia investigation is a hoax or a witch hunt.

30. "It's totally up to the attorney general. Totally up to the attorney general."

This is important. Brennan gives Trump the chance to say that, yes, the Mueller report should be released to the public. Trump purposely doesn't go there. Ask yourself this: If Trump is truly totally innocent and all of this is a big, fat nothing-burger, wouldn't it be in his interest to push for the entire Mueller report to be public, so he can be completely exonerated?

31. "Even the Mueller report said it had nothing to do with the campaign."

The Mueller report hasn't come out yet.

32. "There was no collusion. There was no obstruction. There was no nothing."

Not accurate. To reiterate: 199 criminal charges of 39 people and entities. Seven people who have pleaded guilty. Four people who have been sentenced to jail. And, Manafort, who was convicted by a jury.

33. "We've made tremendous progress. If you remember, before I became President, it looked like we were going to war with North Korea. Now we have a very good relationship."

"We currently assess that North Korea will seek to retain its WMD capabilities and is unlikely to completely give up its nuclear weapons and production capability because its leaders ultimately view nuclear weapons as critical to regime survival." -- Dan Coats, 1/30/19

34. "What a location. I'm in the real estate business, what a location."

Donald Trump on North Korea. Yup!

35. "Sir, I hear your helicopters. I'm being told to wrap."

Yes, ok, this is Brennan, not Trump. But, still: I am going to end all future interviews by saying, "I hear your helicopters."

The 36 wackiest lines from Donald Trump's totally bizarre Cabinet meeting

Chris Cillizza

Analysis by Chris Cillizza, CNN Editor-at-large

(CNN)President Donald Trump celebrated the new year with a 90+ minute Cabinet meeting on Wednesday -- and cameras were rolling the entire time.

Like much of Trump's presidency, the event felt entirely free-form -- as if Trump was making all of it up as he went. He seemed to support the Russian invasion of Afghanistan in 1979, proclaimed that he would have made a good military general and spouted falsehoods at an alarming rate -- even for him.

I went through the transcript of the question-and-answer portion of Trump's Cabinet meeting and picked out the most, uh, noteworthy lines. They're below.

1. "I've heard numbers as high as $275 billion, we lose on illegal immigration."

Eh, not really. Also, away we go!

2. "And you know, it's not all about the rich countries, because the rich countries really do take advantage of us, because they pay a very small percentage of their military, and they cheat on trade."

So much stream of consciousness, so little time.

3. "There's some horrible things going on in the world, and we want to help those people."

Worth noting: Despite the CIA concluding that Saudi Prince Mohammed bin Salman was personally involved in the murder of journalist Jamal Khashoggi at a Saudi consulate in Istanbul, Trump has said no one can know the truth -- and even if we did know the truth it wouldn't be worth risking our financial relationship with Saudi Arabia. So, there's that.

4. "When they say I'm not popular in Europe, I shouldn't be popular in Europe."

One of the least covered but most important aspects of the Trump presidency is how he, unlike every president that has come before him, simply does not believe in the coalition built in the aftermath of World War II.

5. "I don't care about Europe."

See No. 4.

6. "I know every angle."

[nods]

7. "I could be the most popular person in Europe. I could be -- I could run for any office if I wanted to, but I don't want to."

So. Wait. Trump is saying he could run for any office in Europe? I am pretty sure that's not true....

8. "I mean, I could give you an example where I get along very well with India and Prime Minister (Narendra) Modi, but he's constantly telling me he built a library in Afghanistan, OK?"

India was, um, not pleased with this taunt.

9. "We're supposed to say 'Oh, thank you for the library.' I don't know who's using it in Afghanistan, but one of those things."

So, Trump believes a library in Afghanistan is pointless because it's in Afghanistan and, therefore, people won't use it? Got it!

10. "And you know, look, I endorsed (Mitt Romney), he thanked me very profusely, he was very nice."

This is a good dig by Trump -- highlighting the fact that Romney is speaking out against him only now that the political risks for doing so are tiny.

11. "We've got the greatest tax cuts ever"

It's sort of hard to quantify "greatest" but Trump has repeatedly said that his tax cut was the largest in history. It was not.

12. "The deductible is so high, unless you get hit by a tractor you can't even use them, nobody's ever seen anything like it."

Do a lot of people get hit by tractors?

13. "I have great popularity in Utah"

"No state has seen President Trump's approval rating drop further than Utah, new poll shows"

14. "President Obama fired him and, essentially, so did I. I want results." Trump is talking about former Defense Secretary James Mattis. He's not talking about him accurately, however. Mattis resigned in protest in the wake of Trump's decision to pull US troops out Syria. Trump didn't "essentially" fire him. At all.

15. "Russia used to be the Soviet Union, Afghanistan made it Russia because they went bankrupt fighting in Afghanistan -- Russia."

Looks, I've seen "Spies Like Us." I know about Russia. And the Soviet Union. And all that.

16. "The problem is it was a tough fight and, literally, they went bankrupt, they went into being called Russia again as opposed to the Soviet Union. You know, lot of -- a lot of these places you're reading about now are no longer a part of Russia because of Afghanistan."

It's impossible to overstate how little sense this makes. And how historically inaccurate it is.

17. "I think I would've been a good general, but who knows."

We will never know. Mostly because Trump is not now and never was in the military. Including during the Vietnam War when he got five deferments -- including one for bone spurs.

18. "We're talking about sand and death. That's what we're talking about."

The President of the United States offers his thoughts on Syria.

19. "Now, the Kurds, it's very interesting, Turkey doesn't like them; other people do."

The Kurds: Some people say they are great, some say they aren't. We may never know!

20. "I had a meeting at the Pentagon with lots of generals -- they were like from a movie, better looking than Tom Cruise and stronger -- and I had more generals than I've ever seen."

This is so revealing. All of life is a casting call for Trump. These generals were good because they were good looking and strong. Even more than Tom Cruise!

21. "I said, this is the greatest room I've ever seen. I -- I saw more computer boards than, I think, that they make today."

"Computer boards."

22. "Iran is pulling people out of Syria -- they can do what they want there, frankly -- but they're pulling people out."

This is an interesting take on the Middle East. And one that Israel likely will be interested in hearing more about.

23. "We're getting out, and we're getting out smart, and we're winning. We're winning, OK?"

Um, OK?

24. "I never saw anything so beautiful in my life."

The birth of his child? His bride on their wedding day? Nope! He's talking about the House vote for $5 billion in wall funding in late December.

25. "Can you imagine me having that power? Wouldn't that be scary? Right?"

Trump is referring here to then-President Barack Obama's decision to create the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) program, essentially allowing children brought into the country illegally to remain without fear of deportation. But man oh man, that quote out of context is really something.

26. "Could be a long time and it could be quickly. Could be a long time." What an answer to the question of how long the government might be shut down! Could be a while. Might not be. But could be!

27. "It's a big, big house. Except for all the guys out on the lawn with machine guns. Nicest machine guns I've ever seen."

Even when talking about the Secret Service that protect the White House, Trump has to exaggerate. These weren't just machine guns. They were the "nicest machine guns ever."

28. "I was waving to them. I -- I never saw so many guys with machine guns in my life."

Many people are saying it was the most -- and most beautiful -- machine guns ever used in one place.

29. "Secret Service and military, these are great people and they don't play games. They don't, like, wave. They don't even smile."

Secret Service: not big wavers. Also, anti-smiling.

30. "Look, look, when they say the wall's immoral well then you -- you've got to do something about the Vatican because the Vatican has the biggest wall of them all."

Bizarrely, this is not the first time Trump or a top aide has attacked the Vatican for its wall. Back in 2016, Trump aide Dan Scavino tweeted that the Pope was a hypocrite on immigration because Vatican City was surrounded by massive walls. As CNN's Daniel Burke wrote at the time: "Yes, the Vatican does have walls, and some are quite large. But anyone can stroll through the Pope's front yard -- St. Peter's Square -- at nearly any time."

31. "Look at all of the countries that have walls and they work 100%."

OK, so, according to Trump, any country with a wall around its border is totally and completely impenetrable to outsiders.

As in, no one has ever breached the wall. It can't be breached. Unless, say, one side had an ice dragon....

32. "I could have had a lot easier presidency by doing nothing."

Ahem.

33. "People see that gasoline is way down. And the reason its way down is because I called up some of the OPEC people."

[narrator voice] That isn't the reason.

34. "I mean, I just got rid of -- I -- I wouldn't say got -- they say they're retired."

An amazing and overlooked moment. Asked what would happen if Romney didn't get on board with him, Trump cited the retirements of GOP Sens. Bob Corker and Jeff Flake -- threatening that Romney would find himself in the same position if he kept crossing Trump. Little mob boss-y, no?

35. "So Jeff Flake is now selling real estate, or whatever he's doing." I am not sure where Trump got the idea Flake is going to be selling real estate as his post-Senate career. To the best of my searching, Flake hasn't announced what he's going to do after leaving the Senate. Also, isn't "sell real estate" what Trump did his whole professional life prior to 2016?

36. "I will tell you, we have some great Republicans, and if you look at the way they're standing up for border security, you'd be very proud of them if you're a Republican, or if you're a person that loves our nation."

ANN COULTER: 'LUNATIC' TRUMP COULD FACE GOP CHALLENGER

.....But Trump told a different story to casino regulators who were deciding whether to grant him the lucrative gambling license.

"I don't think there's anything wrong with these people," he said about Shapiro and Sullivan during licensing hearings in 1982, according to "TrumpNation." "Many of them have been in Atlantic City for many, many years and I think they are well thought of."

Sullivan's unsavory reputation did not stop Trump from later arranging for him to be hired as a labor negotiator for the Grand Hyatt, a hotel project on Manhattan's East Side, according to People magazine and the Los Angeles Times. Trump also introduced Sullivan to his own banker at Chase, though he declined to guarantee a loan to Sullivan, reported the L.A. Times.

Longo, the real estate broker Trump used in Atlantic City on the Trump Plaza deal, told me in 2011 that he wasn't aware of Shapiro or Sullivan having any mob ties, and insisted Trump didn't have any problems at all obtaining his gaming license. "In AC, you always had to be careful who you were dealing with, but Donald did things on the level," Longo told me in 2011.

In his investigative biography, Trump: The Deals and the Downfall, reporter Wayne Barrett wrote that Trump's life "intertwines with the underworld," and he outlined the real-estate developer's numerous alleged ties to organized crime, including that Trump:

- Once met Salerno at the Manhattan townhouse of Roy Cohn, the infamous sidekick to Joe McCarthy who represented both men, according to an eyewitness source who talked to Barrett.
- Was very close to Cohn, whom Barrett describes as Trump's "bridge to the mob."
- Had ties to mob associates Shapiro and Sullivan.
- Paid almost double the market price for property in Atlantic City owned by Salvatore Testa, a capo in the Scarfo crime family.
- Evaded New Jersey state laws banning casino owners from making political contributions by channeling donations to Mike Mathews, then-candidate for mayor of Atlantic City, through Shapiro and another mob-tied associate.
- Failed to disclose to state casino regulators that Trump was the target of a bribery probe in 1979 and was questioned in a 1981 racketeering investigation. Neither federal probe led to criminal charges, noted the Philadelphia Inquirer's David Johnston in a review of the book.

Preferential Treatment For The Donald?

In the book, Barrett also claimed that New Jersey state regulators demonstrated a double standard by granting Trump a casino license while denying licenses to other developers and gambling executives whose conduct was far less troubling than Trump's. In 1985, Hilton Hotels was turned down for a license partly due to the chain's ties to Sidney Korshak, a lawyer with reputed mob connections. But with Trump, the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement (DGE) never bothered to write a report that raised "the possibility that Cohn's mob liaisons . . . might have been used to facilitate Trump construction projects," wrote Barrett'

CHRISTIE SAYS KUSHNER'S FATHER COMMITTED ONE OF THE MOST DISGUSTING CRIMES HE PROSECUTED

Washington (CNN)*Former New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie said that "one of the most loathsome, disgusting crimes" he prosecuted more than a decade ago when he was a US attorney was committed by the father of President Donald Trump's son-in-law and top adviser Jared Kushner.

Christie, who chaired Trump's transition team for a short time, has recently been drawing attention to his relationship with Kushner and his father, the real estate developer Charles Kushner, while promoting his new book, "Let Me Finish."

According to excerpts of the book reported on by Axios and The Guardian, Christie claims that the younger Kushner was behind his departure from Trump's inner circle after the 2016 election, writing that he was "still apparently seething over events that had occurred a decade ago."

Christie torches Kushner in new memoir

In an interview with PBS's Margaret Hoover on "Firing Line" released Tuesday, Christie unloads on the senior Kushner for the crimes that he prosecuted him for.

Lessons In Gold

Hannah Kearney has been in love with mountains ever since she first strapped on a pair of skis as a young girl, but her gold medal journey almost never happened.

"Would you separate your experience -- if your father had been put in jail -- from the prosecutor who put him in jail?" Hoover asked.

"If my father is guilty, I would. Mr. Kushner pled guilty. He admitted the crimes," Christie said. "And so what am I supposed to do as a prosecutor? I mean If a guy hires a prostitute to seduce his brother-in-law, and videotapes it, and then sends the videotape to his sister to attempt to intimidate her from testifying before a grand jury, do I really need any more justification than that?"

"I mean it's one of the most loathsome, disgusting crimes that I prosecuted when I was US attorney. And I was a US attorney in New Jersey, Margaret, so we had some loathsome and disgusting crime going on there."

Christie: Trump has 'found himself saddled with riffraff'

Christie was referring to an elaborate revenge plot that the older Kushner hatched in 2003 in order to target his his brother-in-law, William Schulder, a former employee turned witness for federal prosecutors in their case against Kushner, who was under investigation at the time for making illegal campaign contributions.

As a part of the plot, Kushner hired a prostitute to lure Schulder into having sex in a Bridgewater, New Jersey, motel room as a hidden camera rolled. A tape of the encounter was then sent to Kushner's sister and Schulder's wife, Esther.

Ultimately, the intimidation stunt failed. The Schulders brought the video to prosecutors, who tracked down the call girl and threatened her with arrest. She promptly turned on Kushner.

In a plea deal negotiated by Christie, Kushner pleaded guilty to 16 counts of tax evasion, one count of retaliating against a federal witness -- his brother-in-law -- and another count of lying to the Federal Election Commission.

A new index has named Somalia the most corrupt country in the world, while Denmark is the least.

Concerns have also been raised over the United States, as it fell outside the top 20 countries in the Corruption Perceptions Index \(CPI\) for the first time since 2011.

The index, released by Transparency International, measures public sector corruption in 180 countries and territories, using 13 expert assessments and surveys of business executives to give each country a score from zero (highly corrupt) to 100 (very clean).

The 2018 index is topped by Denmark and New Zealand, with 88 and 87 points respectively, while at the bottom is Somalia with 10, and Syria and South Sudan, both with 13.

More than two thirds of countries score below 50 in the index, with an average score of only 43.

This year's index also showed a drop for the United States, which it said was a key country to watch as it dropped four points to 71, marking the first time since 2011 that it has fallen outside the top 20 countries.

What's the point: Make no mistake: Trump lost the shutdown fight. The ABC News/Washington Post poll is merely the latest to show that Trump's approval rating was plummeting. In average of all recent polls, Trump's net approval rating had dropped 6 points compared to before the shutdown '

HE'S NOT A SELF-MADE BILLIONAIRE

ThOrn

Friday January 18, 2019

The spoiled rich boy in the Oval Office

He's not even a self-made millionaire. But millions of Americans still think he is. And it affects their willingness to vote for him:

Who is Donald Trump? Ask Americans and many of them will describe a self-made billionaire, a business tycoon of unfathomable success. In research recently published in Political Behavior, we found that voters are not simply uninformed about President Trump's biographical background, but misinformed—and that misinformation has serious political consequences.

Large swaths of the public believe the Trump myth. Across three surveys of eligible voters from 2016 to 2018, we found that as many as half of all Americans do not know that he was born into a very wealthy family. And while Americans are divided along party lines in their assessment of Trump's performance as president, misperceptions regarding his financial background are found among Democrats and Republicans.

Incomprehensible as it might be to political news junkies, nearly half of Americans, both Republicans and Democrats, don't know that Donald Trump was born into a very wealthy family. They believe the myth that Trump has pushed, that's he's a self-made man.

The truth is that his father, Fred Trump, who made his fortune as a real estate developer, set up his son Donald for success in the same business. Donald inherited $413 million in today's dollars from his father. His father co-signed his business loans. Donald was a millionaire before he got out of diapers. And his father kept bailing him out with more millions each time one of his poorly conceived business ventures failed.

So what, you say?

Using a 2017 University of Maryland Critical Issues Poll, we found that believing Trump was not born "very wealthy" leads to at least a 5-percentage-point boost in the president's job approval, even after considering the many factors that can influence public approval ratings. This shift is rooted in the belief that his humble roots make Trump both more empathetic (he "feels my pain"), and more skilled at business (he is self-made and couldn't have climbed to such heights without real business know-how).

And what happens when people who thought Trump was a self-made man learn the truth? Their views become less positive toward him:

For Democrats, who already see Trump as lacking empathy, this information makes them think of him as even less empathetic. But among Republicans, the information is even more damning, reducing perceptions of empathy by more than 10 percentage points...

On perceptions of business acumen, which are higher across both parties, the information regarding Fred Trump's role in his son's business success is equally important. Democrats reduce their perceptions of Trump as a good businessman by 6 points, while Republican perceptions decline by 9 points.

So here's something to keep in mind when dealing with a Trump supporter. Make sure they know he was born rich and that whatever wealth he has now wasn't the result of his "great deal making" or any kind of super business acumen on his part. He was given all the advantages in the world by his very wealthy father and fed money by him over and over again each time his business ventures failed.

Maybe all those handouts from his father spoiled any native business skill young Donald might have had until he'd burned all his bridges and couldn't borrow money from anyone anymore... and he had to turn to the Russians as the only ones still willing to keep giving him money.

He's not a self-made man who did good for himself. He's a Richie Rich who had everything given to him on a silver platter, and he still made bad.

The US has fallen outside of the top 20 countries on the Corruption Perceptions Index (CPI) for the first time since 2011 (Picture: Getty)

A new index has named Somalia the most corrupt country in the world, while Denmark is the least.

Concerns have also been raised over the United States, as it fell outside the top 20 countries in the Corruption Perceptions Index \(CPI\) for the first time since 2011.

The index, released by Transparency International, measures public sector corruption in 180 countries and territories, using 13 expert assessments and surveys of business executives to give each country a score from zero (highly corrupt) to 100 (very clean).

The 2018 index is topped by Denmark and New Zealand, with 88 and 87 points respectively, while at the bottom is Somalia with 10, and Syria and South Sudan, both with 13.

More than two thirds of countries score below 50 in the index, with an average score of only 43.

This year's index also showed a drop for the United States, which it said was a key country to watch as it dropped four points to 71, marking the first time since 2011 that it has fallen outside the top 20 countries.

Zoe Reiter, Acting Representative to the US at Transparency International, said: "A four point drop in the CPI score is a red flag and comes at a time when the US is experiencing threats to its system of checks and balances, as well as an erosion of ethical norms at the highest levels of power.

"If this trend continues, it would indicate a serious corruption problem in a country that has taken a lead on the issue globally. This is a bipartisan issue that requires a bipartisan solution."

Transparency International said five of the nine sources used to compile the score for the US showed a noteworthy drop in score while the others showed no improvement.

It said since 2012, only 20 countries have significantly improved their scores, including Côte D'Ivoire, and 16 have significantly declined, including, Australia, Chile and Malta.

Transparency International said cross analysis with global democracy data had revealed a link between corruption and the health of democracies.

It said in 2016, the US was downgraded from a full to a flawed democracy in the Democracy Index and in 2018, the US received its lowest Freedom in the World Index score for political rights since 1972, when measurement began.

“Corruption chips away at democracy to produce a vicious cycle, where corruption undermines democratic institutions, and in turn, weak institutions are less able to control corruption,” said Patricia Moreira, Managing Director of Transparency International.

“Around the world, we need to do more to strengthen checks and balances and protect citizens’ rights, and the US is no exception.”

A survey published by Transparency International in 2017 showed that nearly six in ten Americans believed the US was more corrupt than the previous year, with the White House considered the most corrupt institution in the US.

“The expert opinion captured by the CPI supports the deep concern over corruption in government reported by Americans in our 2017 survey,” said Reiter.

“Both experts and the public believe the situation is getting worse.

U.S. DROPS OUT OF TOP 20 PERFORMERS IN GLOBAL CORRUPTION INDEX, WATCHDOG SAYS U.S. MORE CORRUPT By Andrea Shalal [Reuters•January 28, 2019

BERLIN (Reuters) - The United States slid four points lower on a global corruption index in 2018, dropping out of the top 20 countries for the first time since 2011, watchdog Transparency International said in a report that cited growing threats to democracy worldwide.

The group said its latest report on business leaders' perceptions of corruption put the United States at 71, down from 75, on a scale of 0-100.

That sounds a "wake-up call" about the need to tackle conflicts of interest, undue influence of the private sector and widening gaps between rich and poor, said Zoe Reiter, the watchdog's acting representative to the United States.

"This is a red flag because it's really part of a pattern that we've seen since the 2008 global financial crisis of a loss of trust ... in our public institutions," she told Reuters. "People don't see us as having adequate mechanisms in place to fight corruption and ensure the accountability of our elected officials."

GRAPHIC: Corruption Perceptions Index - <https://tmsnrt.rs/2HCFkgJ>

Concerns were already mounting before the election of Donald Trump, although they have been highlighted by the actions of a rich president who defied precedent to keep his personal tax affairs secret and retain his business holdings in office.

"Concerns around the Trump administration are quite serious, but this has been stewing for several years," she said. "Conflict of interest wasn't a new problem, but it was illuminated in its glory when you have someone who is basically breaking norms."

"Trump is a symptom not a cause. His presidency is illuminating some of the problems."

Denmark and New Zealand had the best scores on the Corruption Perceptions Index (CPI) again in 2018, scoring 88 and 87, while Somalia, Syria and South Sudan remained at the bottom, with scores of 10, 13 and 13, TI said.

Overall, more than two-thirds of countries scored below 50 on the 2018 index, and the average was 43, said TI, which has more than 100 chapters worldwide.

The group said only 20 countries had significantly improved their scores since 2012, including Argentina and Ivory Coast. Sixteen others, including Australia, Chile and Malta, declined significantly in the same period.

The average score for EU and western European countries held steady at 66, while sub-Saharan Africa scored just 32, TI said. A score of 100 is considered "very clean", while a score of zero is highly corrupt.

TI said its analysis showed a clear link between having a healthy democracy and fighting public sector corruption, and cited declining scores for Turkey and Hungary, in connection with challenges to the rule of law and press freedoms.

Hungary's score dropped by eight points to 46 over the past five years, amid troubling developments including the forced departure of the Open Society Foundation and Central European University, founded by philanthropist George Soros, TI said.

Turkey's score dropped by nine points in the same period to a score of 41, as the country was downgraded to 'not free' on a democracy ranking, TI said.

"Corruption is much more likely to flourish where democratic foundations are weak and ... where undemocratic and populist politicians can use it to their advantage," said Delia Ferreira Rubio, who chairs the global civil society group.

Here Are The Wildest Moments From Trump's Super Bowl Pregame Interview

The president sat down with CBS' "Face The Nation" to discuss the border wall and other topics.

By Hayley Miller

President Donald Trump sat down for a wide-ranging interview with CBS set to air ahead of the Super Bowl on Sunday, and there's a lot to unpack from the exchange.

Trump, who opted against giving a pregame interview last year, made several eyebrow-raising remarks during his interview with host Margaret Brennan, touching on topics including his plan to withdraw U.S. troops from Syria and whether he would let his 12-year-old son play football.

Here are some of Trump's most noteworthy comments:

On another government shutdown: We'll 'see what happens'

Trump refused to say he wouldn't allow another partial government shutdown if Congress doesn't agree to carve out $5.7 billion in a spending bill to fund his long-promised wall along the U.S.-Mexico border.

"We're going to have to see what happens on Feb. 15th," the president said, the date when temporary funding for various agencies expires. "I don't take anything off the table. I don't like to take things off the table."

After a 35-day partial shutdown – the longest such closure in U.S. history – Trump agreed on Jan. 25 to reopen the government for three weeks while Congress negotiated border security. He has threatened to shut down the government again or declare a national emergency to secure funds for his border wall if the talks fail. Lawmakers on both sides of the aisle have slammed Trump's threat to declare a national emergency to achieve his wall.

"You know there have been plenty of national emergencies called," Trump told CBS. "And this really is an invasion of our country by human traffickers. ... The only way you have a strong border is you need a physical barrier. You need a wall. And anybody that says you don't, they're just playing games."

Pelosi is 'very bad for our country'

Trump bashed House Speaker Nancy Pelosi (D-Calif.) over her refusal to cave to his demand for border wall money, despite his repeated vows that Mexico would pay to build it.

Asked what he learned about negotiating with her, Trump told CBS that she was "very rigid."

"I think she is very bad for our country," he said. "She knows that you need a barrier. She knows that we need border security. She wanted to win a political point."

Brennan reminded Trump that Pelosi had offered $1 billion toward border security. He responded, without citing evidence, that Pelosi's stance on the wall was costing the country billions of dollars and blamed "people like" her for "people dying all over the country."

The 26 wildest lines from Donald Trump's Daily Caller interview

Analysis by CNN Editor-at-large

Updated 4:05 PM ET, Thu January 31, 2019

(CNN)On Wednesday afternoon, Donald Trump sat down in the Oval Office for an interview with the conservative website the Daily Caller.

To their great credit, the Daily Caller released the full transcript of the conversation, allowing me to go through it line-by-line -- picking out the most, uh, interesting lines from the President. They're below.

1. "He was a gambler, you know, you don't see too many gamblers that have money."

Trump is referring to Stephen Paddock, the man who murdered 58 people in Las Vegas on October 1, 2017. (The FBI closed its investigation into the shooting earlier this week without offering a conclusion on Paddock's motivation.) Paddock was both a gambler and wealthy, Trump says. And away we go!

2. "You know, I've stayed out of that whole situation so that -- because there was no collusion whatsoever."What "situation" is Trump referring to here? The question he was asked by the Daily Caller was whether he felt comfortable with the manner in which his one-time adviser Roger Stone was arrested last week. Does Trump mean he has stayed out of commenting on that arrest? Stayed away from Roger Stone? Stayed out of the Russia investigation? He has, of course, not stayed out of anything with the possible exception of not offering a stream of commentary on Stone's arrest. One thing worth mentioning here, too: NO COLLUSION.

3. "I'm speaking for a lot of people that were very disappointed to see that go down that way, to see it happen where it was on camera, on top of it. That was a very, very disappointing scene."

On the Stone arrest question, "disappointing" is an odd word choice here. To be clear: The indictment that led to Stone's arrest alleged that he had repeatedly lied to Congress about his contacts with WikiLeaks over emails stolen from Democrats by Russians -- and that he had urged other witnesses to lie to Congress about what they knew of the situation too.

4. "You have 29 people and you have armored vehicles and you had all of the other and, you know, many people know Roger, and Roger is not a person that they would have to worry about from that standpoint. I thought it was sad to see it."

What's remarkable about this -- and the fact that Trump in the next sentence says he would consider asking the FBI to look into its use of force in the Stone arrest -- is that the President has repeatedly urged law enforcement to be tougher in its dealings with criminals. "When you see these thugs thrown into the back of a paddy wagon. You see them thrown in, rough. I said, 'Please don't be too nice,'" Trump said in a speech to police officers in 2017.

5. "I guess they're well over 30 million dollars now on this Russian collusion hoax, and everybody knows it's a hoax. They've spent all this money. Nothing. No phone calls, no meetings, no nothing."

Trump's not that far off-base on the price tag -- $25 million has been spent on special counsel Robert Mueller's probe since it began in May 2017, according to the most recent filings. Where he REALLY misses the fact boat is in claiming that the Mueller probe has produced zero tangible results. To date, the investigation has produced 199 criminal counts against 37 people and entities. Seven people have pleaded guilty and four have been sentenced to prison. One -- Paul Manafort -- has been convicted by a jury of his peers. That's not nothing.

6. "You look at it, and you say, isn't that sad to have devoted this time, this energy over a -- you know, look, there's been numerous books written right now, including number one best sellers, calling it a 'hoax.'"

Trump's referring to "The Russia Hoax: The Illicit Scheme to Clear Hillary Clinton and Frame Donald Trump" by Gregg Jarrett. Jarrett is a Fox News personality. Draw your own conclusions.

7. "I would say that I think after almost two years it certainly should be."

Trump is saying here that the Mueller probe has gone on too long already. By way of context, the special counsel investigations into Iran-Contra and Whitewater lasted more than six years each.

8. "Process crimes or process, you know, questions, the answer is different than what you thought it might be and some people say they lost their memory or a lack of memory, which a lot of people can understand that too."

Trump is right that, to date, all of the crimes related to the 2016 campaign that Mueller has found have been people lying to Congress or federal investigators about who knew what when about contacts between the campaign and Russia. But here's the thing: 1) The investigation isn't over yet and 2) WHY WHY WHY are all these people in Trump's orbit willing to lie to federal authorities about their contacts with the Russians?

9. "I could've taken a much different stance, I could've gotten involved in this, I could've terminated everything. I could've ended everything. I've chosen to stay out of it."

Two thoughts here. First, it's not at all clear that Trump could have "terminated" the Mueller probe. Second, this past 20 months is what "stay[ing] out of it" looks like for Donald Trump, eh?

10. "I ran a great campaign. I ran a campaign that now they say was better than that gentleman's [Andrew Jackson's] campaign in the 1800s and we did a great job."

They say that, do they? (For more on Andrew Jackson's campaigns, read this!)

11. "And we got 306 to 223 and that's that. Won states that nobody thought were possible to win. Remember the expression, 'he cannot get to 270.' And we got way beyond 270."

The 2016 election ended 814 days ago. Also, this is an answer to a question about whether Trump favors making the Mueller report public. Good times.

12. "Paul told me in the strongest of terms that, 'please sign this and if you sign this we will get you that wall.'"

Trump, in case you haven't noticed, is very, very good at scapegoating. In this case, he's blaming former House Speaker Paul Ryan for lying to him about wall funding in order to secure his signature on an omnibus spending bill.

13. "And then he went lame duck. And once he went lame duck it was just really an exercise in waving to people and the power was gone, so I was very disappointed."

Rather than saying "retired," I propose we say "went lame duck" in the future. As in: "Hey, did Cillizza leave CNN? No, he went lame duck. He and his wife are living up in the Catskills now."

14. "I don't want to say he lied. I think he probably meant it at the time, I guess. I hope. So I don't call that lying."

"It's not a lie if you believe it." -- George Costanza

15. "You know, I made many statements, many promises."

Fact Check: True!

16. "I'm going to be announcing the exact numbers but I'll have over a hundred miles of wall either built or under construction between new and renovated."

Not true. As PBS' Yamiche Alcindor noted on Twitter: "President Trump keeps saying, 'The wall is getting built.' Fact check: This is false. No construction has begun on the wall President Trump promised. The President said he would be going to a "ground-breaking" for the wall around the time of SOTU and that hasn't happened."

17. "We have a tremendous amount of money right now to build a wall. We're building the wall."

Again, no.

18. "I hope that she's healthy, I hope she's happy, and I hope she lives for a long time."

Trump's response here to a question on Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg is -- dare I say it -- presidential.

19. "Well, I've been very religious." Huh.

20. "I've been told, and I don't know that that's true, I would be surprised if it's true, but a lot of people said that list was one of the reasons I won."

This is true. As I wrote at the time, Trump's decision to release a list of judges he would consider for any Supreme Court vacancy was hugely important in rallying conservatives to him.

21. "The world is not doing well and we're going great."

Trump on the global situation: America :) Rest of world :(

22. "Coach Belichick endorsed me, you remember that?"

True! And in letter form no less!

23. "I was very pleased that he called me to thank me for helping him with Canada and yeah, it looks good."

Donald Trump is pro-NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell. So, there's that!

24. "I feel very badly for Louisiana because that was maybe the worst call I've ever seen but I guess there's nothing they can do about that. And you might say it, I feel badly for Louisiana."

First off, it WAS a terrible call. Second, might I say it?

25. "It looks like Elizabeth Warren has not caught on like they thought she would. She fell into a trap. It's called the Pocahontas trap."

"The Pocahontas Trap?" Is that a Disney flick?

26. "The truth is there are some I'd love to run against." Donald Trump on 2020 Democrats:

"Some I'd love to run against." This feels like the right place to stop.

CHRISTIE SAYS KUSHNER'S FATHER COMMITTED ONE OF THE MOST DISGUSTING CRIMES HE PROSECUTED

Washington (CNN)*Former New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie said that "one of the most loathsome, disgusting crimes" he prosecuted more than a decade ago when he was a US attorney was committed by the father of President Donald Trump's son-in-law and top adviser Jared Kushner.

Christie, who chaired Trump's transition team for a short time, has recently been drawing attention to his relationship with Kushner and his father, the real estate developer Charles Kushner, while promoting his new book, "Let Me Finish."

According to excerpts of the book reported on by Axios and The Guardian, Christie claims that the younger Kushner was behind his departure from Trump's inner circle after the 2016 election, writing that he was "still apparently seething over events that had occurred a decade ago."

Lessons In Gold

Hannah Kearney has been in love with mountains ever since she first strapped on a pair of skis as a young girl, but her gold medal journey almost never happened.

"Would you separate your experience -- if your father had been put in jail -- from the prosecutor who put him in jail?" Hoover asked.

"If my father is guilty, I would. Mr. Kushner pled guilty. He admitted the crimes," Christie said. "And so what am I supposed to do as a prosecutor? I mean If a guy hires a prostitute to seduce his brother-in-law, and videotapes it, and then sends the videotape to his sister to attempt to intimidate her from testifying before a grand jury, do I really need any more justification than that?"

"I mean it's one of the most loathsome, disgusting crimes that I prosecuted when I was US attorney. And I was a US attorney in New Jersey, Margaret, so we had some loathsome and disgusting crime going on there."

Christie: Trump has 'found himself saddled with riffraff'

Christie was referring to an elaborate revenge plot that the older Kushner hatched in 2003 in order to target his his brother-in-law, William Schulder, a former employee turned witness for federal prosecutors in their case against Kushner, who was under investigation at the time for making illegal campaign contributions.

As a part of the plot, Kushner hired a prostitute to lure Schulder into having sex in a Bridgewater, New Jersey, motel room as a hidden camera rolled. A tape of the encounter was then sent to Kushner's sister and Schulder's wife, Esther.

Ultimately, the intimidation stunt failed. The Schulders brought the video to prosecutors, who tracked down the call girl and threatened her with arrest. She promptly turned on Kushner.

In a plea deal negotiated by Christie, Kushner pleaded guilty to 16 counts of tax evasion, one count of retaliating against a federal witness -- his brother-in-law -- and another count of lying to the Federal Election Commission.

A new index has named Somalia the most corrupt country in the world, while Denmark is the least.

Concerns have also been raised over the United States, as it fell outside the top 20 countries in the Corruption Perceptions Index (CPI) for the first time since 2011.

The index, released by Transparency International, measures public sector corruption in 180 countries and territories, using 13 expert assessments and surveys of business executives to give each country a score from zero (highly corrupt) to 100 (very clean).

The 2018 index is topped by Denmark and New Zealand, with 88 and 87 points respectively, while at the bottom is Somalia with 10, and Syria and South Sudan, both with 13.

More than two thirds of countries score below 50 in the index, with an average score of only 43.

This year's index also showed a drop for the United States, which it said was a key country to watch as it dropped four points to 71, marking the first time since 2011 that it has fallen outside the top 20 countries.

HE'S NOT A SELF-MADE BILLIONAIRE

ThOrn

Friday January 18, 2019

The spoiled rich boy in the Oval Office

He's not even a self-made millionaire. But millions of Americans still think he is. And it affects their willingness to vote for him:

Who is Donald Trump? Ask Americans and many of them will describe a self-made billionaire, a business tycoon of unfathomable success. In research recently published in Political Behavior, we found that voters are not simply uninformed about President Trump's biographical background, but misinformed—and that misinformation has serious political consequences.

Large swaths of the public believe the Trump myth. Across three surveys of eligible voters from 2016 to 2018, we found that as many as half of all Americans do not know that he was born into a very wealthy family. And while Americans are divided along party lines in their assessment of Trump's performance as president, misperceptions regarding his financial background are found among Democrats and Republicans.

Incomprehensible as it might be to political news junkies, nearly half of Americans, both Republicans and Democrats, don't know that Donald Trump was born into a very wealthy family. They believe the myth that Trump has pushed, that's he's a self-made man.

The truth is that his father, Fred Trump, who made his fortune as a real estate developer, set up his son Donald for success in the same business. Donald inherited $413 million in today's dollars from his father. His father co-signed his business loans. Donald was a millionaire before he got out of diapers. And his father kept bailing him out with more millions each time one of his poorly conceived business ventures failed.

So what, you say?

Using a 2017 University of Maryland Critical Issues Poll, we found that believing Trump was not born "very wealthy" leads to at least a 5-percentage-point boost in the president's job approval, even after considering the many factors that can influence public approval ratings. This shift is rooted in the belief that his humble roots make Trump both more empathetic (he "feels my pain"), and more skilled at business (he is self-made and couldn't have climbed to such heights without real business know-how).

And what happens when people who thought Trump was a self-made man learn the truth? Their views become less positive toward him:

For Democrats, who already see Trump as lacking empathy, this information makes them think of him as even less empathetic. But among Republicans, the information is even more damning, reducing perceptions of empathy by more than 10 percentage points...

On perceptions of business acumen, which are higher across both parties, the information regarding Fred Trump's role in his son's business success is equally important. Democrats reduce their perceptions of Trump as a good businessman by 6 points, while Republican perceptions decline by 9 points.

So here's something to keep in mind when dealing with a Trump supporter. Make sure they know he was born rich and that whatever wealth he has now wasn't the result of his "great deal making" or any kind of super business acumen on his part. He was given all the advantages in the world by his very wealthy father and fed money by him over and over again each time his business ventures failed.

Maybe all those handouts from his father spoiled any native business skill young Donald might have had until he'd burned all his bridges and couldn't borrow money from anyone anymore... and he had to turn to the Russians as the only ones still willing to keep giving him money.

He's not a self-made man who did good for himself. He's a Richie Rich who had everything given to him on a silver platter, and he still made bad.

A new index has named Somalia the most corrupt country in the world, while Denmark is the least.

Concerns have also been raised over the United States, as it fell outside the top 20 countries in the Corruption Perceptions Index \(CPI\) for the first time since 2011.

The index, released by Transparency International, measures public sector corruption in 180 countries and territories, using 13 expert assessments and surveys of business executives to give each country a score from zero (highly corrupt) to 100 (very clean).

The 2018 index is topped by Denmark and New Zealand, with 88 and 87 points respectively, while at the bottom is Somalia with 10, and Syria and South Sudan, both with 13.

More than two thirds of countries score below 50 in the index, with an average score of only 43.

This year's index also showed a drop for the United States, which it said was a key country to watch as it dropped four points to 71, marking the first time since 2011 that it has fallen outside the top 20 countries.

Zoe Reiter, Acting Representative to the US at Transparency International, said: "A four point drop in the CPI score is a red flag and comes at a time when the US is experiencing threats to its system of checks and balances, as well as an erosion of ethical norms at the highest levels of power.

"If this trend continues, it would indicate a serious corruption problem in a country that has taken a lead on the issue globally. This is a bipartisan issue that requires a bipartisan solution."

Transparency International said five of the nine sources used to compile the score for the US showed a noteworthy drop in score while the others showed no improvement.

It said since 2012, only 20 countries have significantly improved their scores, including Côte D'Ivoire, and 16 have significantly declined, including, Australia, Chile and Malta.

Transparency International said cross analysis with global democracy data had revealed a link between corruption and the health of democracies.

It said in 2016, the US was downgraded from a full to a flawed democracy in the Democracy Index and in 2018, the US received its lowest Freedom in the World Index score for political rights since 1972, when measurement began.

“Corruption chips away at democracy to produce a vicious cycle, where corruption undermines democratic institutions, and in turn, weak institutions are less able to control corruption,” said Patricia Moreira, Managing Director of Transparency International.

“Around the world, we need to do more to strengthen checks and balances and protect citizens’ rights, and the US is no exception.”

A survey published by Transparency International in 2017 showed that nearly six in ten Americans believed the US was more corrupt than the previous year, with the White House considered the most corrupt institution in the US.

“The expert opinion captured by the CPI supports the deep concern over corruption in government reported by Americans in our 2017 survey,” said Reiter.

“Both experts and the public believe the situation is getting worse.

U.S. DROPS OUT OF TOP 20 PERFORMERS IN GLOBAL CORRUPTION INDEX, WATCHDOG SAYS [U.S. MORE CORRUPT]

BERLIN (Reuters) - The United States slid four points lower on a global corruption index in 2018, dropping out of the top 20 countries for the first time since 2011, watchdog Transparency International said in a report that cited growing threats to democracy worldwide.

The group said its latest report on business leaders' perceptions of corruption put the United States at 71, down from 75, on a scale of 0-100.

That sounds a "wake-up call" about the need to tackle conflicts of interest, undue influence of the private sector and widening gaps between rich and poor, said Zoe Reiter, the watchdog's acting representative to the United States.

"This is a red flag because it's really part of a pattern that we've seen since the 2008 global financial crisis of a loss of trust ... in our public institutions," she told Reuters. "People don't see us as having adequate mechanisms in place to fight corruption and ensure the accountability of our elected officials."

GRAPHIC: Corruption Perceptions Index - <https://tmsnrt.rs/2HCFkgJ>

Concerns were already mounting before the election of Donald Trump, although they have been highlighted by the actions of a rich president who defied precedent to keep his personal tax affairs secret and retain his business holdings in office.

"Concerns around the Trump administration are quite serious, but this has been stewing for several years," she said. "Conflict of interest wasn't a new problem, but it was illuminated in its glory when you have someone who is basically breaking norms."

"Trump is a symptom not a cause. His presidency is illuminating some of the problems."

Denmark and New Zealand had the best scores on the Corruption Perceptions Index (CPI) again in 2018, scoring 88 and 87, while Somalia, Syria and South Sudan remained at the bottom, with scores of 10, 13 and 13, TI said.

Overall, more than two-thirds of countries scored below 50 on the 2018 index, and the average was 43, said TI, which has more than 100 chapters worldwide.

The group said only 20 countries had significantly improved their scores since 2012, including Argentina and Ivory Coast. Sixteen others, including Australia, Chile and Malta, declined significantly in the same period.

The average score for EU and western European countries held steady at 66, while sub-Saharan Africa scored just 32, TI said. A score of 100 is considered "very clean", while a score of zero is highly corrupt.

TI said its analysis showed a clear link between having a healthy democracy and fighting public sector corruption, and cited declining scores for Turkey and Hungary, in connection with challenges to the rule of law and press freedoms.

Hungary's score dropped by eight points to 46 over the past five years, amid troubling developments including the forced departure of the Open Society Foundation and Central European University, founded by philanthropist George Soros, TI said.

Turkey's score dropped by nine points in the same period to a score of 41, as the country was downgraded to 'not free' on a democracy ranking, TI said.

"Corruption is much more likely to flourish where democratic foundations are weak and ... where undemocratic and populist politicians can use it to their advantage," said Delia Ferreira Rubio, who chairs the global civil society group.

Trump's Moscow Tower designs 'revealed in leaked documents' after Rudy Giuliani said 'no plans exist'

Blueprints for a luxury Moscow skyscraper and hotel bearing the name of Donald Trump have been published, a day after the president's lawyer insisted "no plans were ever made". In an interview with the New Yorker, Rudy Giuliani sought to downplay previous comments in which he told the New York Times and other media outlets over the weekend that discussions about a proposed Trump Tower in the Russian capital had continued throughout 2016. The comments were made amid claims Mr Trump had directed his then lawyer Michael Cohen to lie to congress about The Apprentice star's property dealings.

How popular is Donald Trump? Latest polls, approval ratings and impeachment odds

The US Government shutdown - now the longest in history - is causing Donald Trump's presidential approval ratings to slide to their lowest level since April last year, according to the Telegraph's poll tracker. The tracker, which takes an average of the last eight polls, put Mr Trump's approval rating at 41 per cent, while 56 per cent disapprove of the way the President is doing his job. Despite the recent slide, the President's approval ratings have remained relatively stable during the past year. The period since Donald Trump's election has been packed with controversy and intrigue but, underneath it all, few people seem to have really changed their minds about America's 45th President. His approval rating quickly slumped in the chaotic days after assuming office, with Trump achieving a majority disapproval rating in a record of just eight days. A year in, he is far less popular than previous presidents at this stage of a presidency - but overall approval has generally remained above 40 per cent. Donald Trump approval rating tracker At the 100-day milestone, Gallup daily polling showed that just 40 per cent of Americans approved of the way Trump is handling his new job - compared to 55 per cent that disapprove. Historically, it has usually taken American presidents hundreds of days before they reach a majority disapproval rating. This has been the case for the last five presidents - with Bill Clinton lasting a record 573 days before more than 50 per cent of Americans disapproved of his presidency. But Donald Trump smashed this record after surging into the White House on a wave of anti-establishment anger. It took just eight days for him to gain a majority disapproval rating, according to Gallup, with 51 per cent of Americans saying they disapproved of the President on January 28, 2016. Trump has faced persistent allegations over Russian connections, fired the head of the FBI, launched tirades against the media, failed to push through healthcare reform and has faced talk of impeachment. However, while there has been an overall drop in public opinion, the President's approval ratings have remained relatively stable since July, even an uptick following his handling of the Unite the Right rally in Charlottesville and Hurricane Irma. Watch: How Donald Trump could be removed from office What are the latest impeachment odds for Trump? As it stands impeachment is still unlikely because it would require a majority in the House of Representatives to go to trial and a two-thirds majority in the Senate to make it happen. Although the House is now under Democrat control, the Senate remains in Republican hands, meaning that Trump's party would have to abandon him for him to be kicked out of office. However, the bookmakers aren't ruling out impeachment with the latest odds from Ladbrokes showing that there is a chance Trump will fail to make it to the end of his first term in office. Their latest odds are as follows: Impeachment by House of Reps this year: 7/4 To serve full first term: 2/5 The Telegraph's poll tracker takes an average of the last eight polls in order to take a full picture of the broad movements in the polling environment and not put too much weight on individual polls. Polls used are nationally representative with adequate sample sizes.

MSNBC's Ari Melber Taunts 'Low Energy' Trump Over How Little He Works

The president has been watching a lot of TV and playing a lot of golf. By Ed Mazza

How does Donald Trump spend his days? MSNBC host Ari Melber looked at the records and found that much of the time, POTUS is not working.

"We're seeing a new low in presidential work ethic in contrast to recent presidents who kept far busier schedules," Melber said.

A look at Trump's schedule revealed that he "comes in late and golfs a ton." When he does arrive for work, "he spends a lot of time watching TV instead of working," Melber said.

"Most Americans work longer hours than this low-energy president," Melber added.

Trump and his backers at Fox News used to repeatedly slam President Barack Obama for playing golf.

"He's played more golf than most people on the PGA tour," Trump said of Obama in 2016.

But so far, Trump has spent far more time on the course than his predecessor. During his first two years in office, Trump spent 166 days at a golf club, averaging 80 more days playing golf than Obama over his first two years.

Cohen delays testimony, citing Trump 'threats'

(CNN)President Donald Trump's former lawyer Michael Cohen announced he is postponing his public congressional testimony that was scheduled for February 7, citing "ongoing threats against his family from President Trump" and his attorney.

"Due to ongoing threats against his family from President Trump and Mr. Giuliani, as recently as this weekend, as well as Mr. Cohen's continued cooperation with ongoing investigations, by advice of counsel, Mr. Cohen's appearance will be postponed to a later date," Cohen's attorney Lanny Davis said in a statement. "Mr. Cohen wishes to thank Chairman Cummings for allowing him to appear before the House Oversight Committee and looks forward to testifying at the appropriate time."

Republicans: Cohen lawyer says key topics off-limits for congressional hearing

Davis added, "This is a time where Mr. Cohen had to put his family and their safety first."

A source told CNN on Wednesday that Cohen's wife and father-in-law feel threatened by comments by the President and Giuliani, Trump's attorney.

Cohen's decision raises questions about whether he will ultimately testify publicly. He reports to prison for a three-year sentence on March 6. House Oversight Committee Chairman Elijah Cummings of Maryland declined to comment.

Giuliani appeared on news shows over the weekend including CNN where he called Cohen "a serial liar." On CNN's "State of the Union," host Jake Tapper asked Giuliani how Trump's repeated calls for investigation into Cohen's family members ahead of Cohen's previously scheduled testimony did not amount to intimidating a witness or obstruction of Justice.

"We are so distorting the system of justice just to get Donald Trump, it's going to hurt us so much," Giuliani responded. When Tapper asked if it was OK to go after Cohen's father-in-law, Giuliani responded, "it is, if the father-in-law is a criminal."

Giuliani also said Sunday he did not know for sure if the President spoke with Cohen about his upcoming congressional testimony, but that it would not have been significant if Trump did.

"I don't know if it happened or didn't happen. It may be attorney-client privilege if it happened, where I can't acknowledge it. But I have no knowledge that he spoke to him, but I'm telling you I wasn't there then," Giuliani said.

He continued, "So what if he talked to him about it?"

Giuliani said as far as he knew, Trump had not had discussions with Cohen where Trump "told him or counseled him to lie."

This story has been updated with additional developments Wednesday.

FAMOUS INVESTOR WARNS STOCKS COULD LOSE ANOTHER 40%

By Michael Carr, Editor, Peak Velocity Trader

Ray Dalio is a great investor.

According to CNBC, his Bridgewater Associates provided the largest cumulative net profit for a hedge fund firm ever. He has made at least $49.7 billion for his investors.

His opinion is worth listening to. Right now, he believes we face tough times.

Dalio is a market historian and an economist. He says the debt cycle explains financial market performance. This cycle follows a pattern:

- 1. There's healthy debt growth.
- 2. This goes too far, and we see a bubble.
- 3. The bubble bursts.
- 4. An economic contraction, or recession, follows.
- 5. Sometimes the contraction ends, and we return to healthy growth.
- 6. Other times, to restore growth, central banks push interest rates to zero.

As Dalio explains: "Because you hit zero interest rates, monetary policy can't be the same. And they inevitably print money to buy financial assets, pushing those financial assets up in value. And that is what we've been through.”

History shows this sixth stage rarely happens. The first time was from 1929 to 1933. The second time was in 2008.

Both times, central banks propped up the economy a little. They also supercharged financial assets.

Dalio says: “The period that we are now in looks a lot like 1937.”

This is not good news for investors ...

The 10 worst things Trump did in 2018

President Trump stops to answer journalists' questions on the White House lawn on Nov. 20. (Jabin Botsford/The Washington Post)

By Marc A. Thiessen Columnist January 2 at 3:41 PM

Here are the 10 worst:

10. His comment about “sh--hole” countries blew up negotiations for a deal that would have given Trump his border wall. Nearly a year ago, the president made a bold offer to Democrats — putting not just legal status but also a path to citizenship for nearly 1.8 million young illegal immigrants on the table. Then his abhorrent comment undermined Democrats who were serious about cutting a deal and gave those who were not a pretext to walk away.

9. His offensive tweets continued to undermine his presidency. Calling former White House aide Omarosa Manigault Newman “a dog” and Stormy Daniels “Horseface” — among countless offensive tweets — is not just unpresidential, it drives away potential supporters who like his policies but then are reminded how much they don’t like Trump.

8. His misuse of power turned critics into martyrs. Revoking former CIA director John Brennan’s security clearance and CNN White House correspondent Jim Acosta’s White House press pass turned partisan critics who were embarrassing themselves into victims — and gave them an even greater platform from which to attack him.

7. He drove away suburban voters and caused the GOP to lose control of the House. That’s because the president has sought to energize his base in ways that drive those voters away. If he wants to win reelection, Trump needs to bring suburban Republican voters back into the GOP fold.

6. His graceless handling of Sen. John McCain’s funeral was a new low. Trump didn’t like McCain, but when you’re the president, sometimes you must honor people you didn’t like. McCain was an American hero. Trump’s inability to muster a kind or generous word reflected poorly on the president.

5. His handling of Jamal Khashoggi’s murder harmed America’s moral standing. Trump is right that a permanent breach with Saudi Arabia is not acceptable, because there is no other country in the Middle East that can serve as a counterweight to Iran. But it was unseemly to declare that “It’s all about ‘America First’ ” and “We’re not going to give up hundreds of billions of dollars in orders.”

4. His news conference with Vladimir Putin in Helsinki was an embarrassment. His meeting with the Russian president came on the heels of Russia’s attempted assassination of a dissident on British soil using banned chemical weapons and the indictment of 12 Russians for 2016 election meddling. Instead of condemning these actions, Trump publicly sided with Putin over his own intelligence community.

3. His policy to separate migrant children from their families at the southern border was an avoidable tragedy. There is nothing wrong with a zero-tolerance policy for illegal crossings. But his administration's failure to anticipate and prepare for how to deal with migrant families was gross negligence — a symptom of the chaos that is undermining his presidency.

2. His planned withdrawal of U.S. forces from Afghanistan is a gift to the Taliban and al-Qaeda. In 2017, my Top 10 Best list praised Trump for reversing President Barack Obama's disastrous withdrawal, which he said "would create a vacuum for terrorists." But in December, Trump ordered the military to start planning the withdrawal of roughly 7,000 troops — about half the number of U.S. forces in Afghanistan. The news came just as U.S. officials were holding talks with the Taliban whose No. 1 demand is ... the withdrawal of U.S. forces. Hardly the "art of the deal."

1. His pullout of all U.S. troops in Syria will take America's boot off of the terrorists' necks. Trump's claim that "we have defeated ISIS in Syria" is as bad as Obama's dismissing them as the "J.V." squad. The Islamic State still has up to 30,000 fighters in Iraq and Syria and about $400 million in their coffers. The Islamic State is not defeated, and not one member of Trump's national security team agrees with his decision to withdraw. If he lets the Islamic State off the mat like Obama did in Iraq in 2011, our nation will pay a terrible price.

...Trump's approval rating at year's end is just 39 percent — because most Americans don't follow politics with the sound off.

Mattis, once one of 'my generals,' loses clout with Trump

President Trump's move to pull all U.S. troops from Syria is a clear rebuke of Defense Secretary Jim Mattis, who has been repeatedly overruled in recent months and left out of key discussions.

Push to quickly leave Syria startles allies and White House aides

President Trump made his decision after a small meeting with senior White House aides and the secretaries of defense and state, most of whom, if not all, sharply disagreed, according to people familiar with the issue.

U.S. plans to pull all troops from Syria, official says

The decision signals a halt to an extended American ground campaign against the Islamic State and upends plans across the U.S. government — articulated by senior officials as recently as this week — for an ongoing mission to stabilize areas once controlled by the militants.

Sobering words. I can recall only once having a week like this and walking out feeling like something worse looms: the week before the Crash in 1987. The bad news: It had to be the worst day in the world to buy.

Business MarketWatch

This brutal stock-market rout mirrors the 1987 crash in 1 important way

As the Dow Jones Industrial Average confronts its ugliest December loss since 1931, the time of the Great Depression, there is another notable way to put the severity of this persistent bout of losses into historical context. If current conditions hold, it would mark the worst average daily moves for the Dow (DJIA) the S&P 500 index (SPX) and the Russell 2000 index (RUT) since October of 1987, according to Dow Jones Market Data. On Oct. 19, the Dow sank 22.6% in a single session, marking its steepest percentage drop ever, with trading during that period under pressure all month until the final crash.

Stocks Face Obstacle No Matter What the Fed Does

The Fed model, which was reportedly used by former Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan but never officially endorsed by the central bank, compares the average earnings yield of the companies in the S&P 500, which is the inverse of the price-to-earnings ratio, to the yield on 10-year U.S. Treasury bonds. The problem with the Fed model is that stocks, because they are generally riskier investments than bonds, have consistently yielded more than Treasuries since the early 2000s.

Wall Street hits fresh lows on economic worries

Wall Street stocks fell in volatile trading on Friday, with the Nasdaq on pace to confirm it is in a bear market, as concerns of slowing economic growth led investors to flee stocks in high-valuation sectors such as technology and communication services. The tech-heavy Nasdaq sank to a 15-month low, falling as much as 21.5 percent from its Aug. 29 high. The Dow Industrials fell to the lowest level since October 2017.

'...The antisocial disorder used to be called the sociopath, and before that, the psychopath. The change in name simply reflects the fact that the public tends to associate the disorder only with the most extreme and dramatic cases, such as serial killers. But in fact, people with little sense of empathy or guilt live all around us and we hardly notice them until they affect us personally. If they have a decent level of intelligence, they fully recognize that certain acts are illegal or looked down upon by others, and, since that only makes trouble for themselves, they avoid those things. In other words, most antisocials are rational. I believe that, in addition to the violent criminals that may be obviously antisocial, there are also many highly successful antisocials who, in fact, owe their success to the very fact that they don't really care how they get wealth and power, only that they do actually get it. I have strong suspicions about some of those corporate executives who blithely steal from their employees and stockholders and calmly lie about it when caught. I also suspect that some of our politicians are sociopaths, especially those that seem to be able to ignore the suffering of the less fortunate while filling their pockets and the pockets of their friends with money, or those who have no qualms about declaring wars that kill and maim thousands of our own young men and women, as well as hundreds of thousands of innocent men, women, and children of the so-called enemy...'

A Fitting End For Disgraceful House Republicans

Ben Ritz Contributor

Time after time, House Speaker Paul Ryan has refused to do anything meaningful that would rein in Donald Trump's worst impulses. Evan Vucci / AP

This year concludes the same way it began: with a partial shutdown of the federal government. There is no doubt that President Donald Trump is primarily responsible for this shutdown – less than two weeks ago, during a nationally televised meeting in the Oval Office, he explicitly said so himself.

“If we don’t get what we want,” said Trump, “I will shut down the government. And I’ll tell you what, I am proud to shut down the government for border security, [Sen. Chuck Schumer]... I will take the mantle. I will be the one to shut it down. I’m not going to blame you for it ... I will take the mantle of shutting down.” Not a whole lot of wiggle room there: this is clearly a Trump Shutdown. But the president was bolstered by support from his allies in the House Republican Conference and their retiring leader, House Speaker Paul Ryan. While the Senate did its job and unanimously passed a continuing resolution that would have kept the government open and prevented the shutdown, Ryan refused to allow a vote on similar legislation, allowing the electorally-disgraced House Republican majority to create one last pointless budget crisis on its way out the door.

It’s a fitting end for a group that has been a budgetary disaster since the moment it first took control in 2011. Less than eight months into their tenure, House Republicans brought the United States to the brink of defaulting on our national debt for the first time in history, resulting in the government’s credit rating being downgraded from AAA to AA+. Two years later, they shut down the government for 16 days after President Obama refused to let them take the American people’s health care hostage. And for six years, instead of addressing the real drivers of our national debt, House Republicans forced reckless cuts to critical public investments that undermined the long-term health of our economy.

But it wasn’t until Republicans gained unified control of the U.S. House, Senate, and presidency in 2017 that the wheels really came off the wagon. The shutdown that began at midnight is the third shutdown this year. At no point in the last four decades has the federal government shut down thrice in one year, nor has it shut down even once during that period when one party had unified control of the federal government. That both happened in 2018 is a testament to the ineptitude of the Trump administration and its allies in the 115th Congress

This is a particularly sorry end for Speaker Ryan himself. When Ryan’s predecessor, former Speaker John Boehner, announced his resignation in September 2015, he responsibly “cleaned out the barn” for his successor by allowing the House to vote on a bill that prevented another shutdown over the objections of his conference’s most extreme members. Had Speaker Ryan – who, less than two weeks from retirement, similarly has nothing to lose by defying the far right – simply put the Senate bill up for a vote, it almost certainly would have passed and landed on Trump’s desk. But instead, Ryan chose to aid and abet Trump’s latest tantrum by blocking a vote on a commonsense stopgap, creating yet another unnecessary crisis in 2018.

Perhaps nobody should be surprised. Time after time, Speaker Ryan has refused to do anything meaningful that would rein in Trump’s worst impulses. But it’s Ryan’s epic fiscal mismanagement that is particularly astonishing, given that he’s tried to brand himself as one of the most fiscally responsible members of Congress since before he became chairman of the House Budget Committee in 2011.

As soon as Ryan became Speaker and had real power to rein in deficits, he instead made them substantially worse. On this day last year, a massive tax cut spearheaded by Speaker Ryan was signed into law, which the official scorekeepers at the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office now estimate will add over $2 trillion to the national debt over the next decade. Two months later, Ryan presided over the passage of unpaid-for legislation that spent more money on domestic programs than President Obama proposed in his final budget while also spending more money on Defense than was requested by President Trump.

The result: next year’s budget deficit will now be roughly $1 trillion – nearly 70% larger than the $596 billion deficit projected by CBO when Ryan ascended to the Speakership in 2015. Moreover, Speaker Ryan’s failure to tackle the nation’s long-term fiscal challenges means that the federal government will never again run an annual budget deficit of less than $1 trillion if current policies remain in place.

Thankfully, the American people decided they finally had enough of the GOP’s dismal leadership and ousted them from power in last month’s election. When the 116th Congress convenes, many of its members will be replaced by several dozen freshmen in the Democratic Caucus who campaigned on being far more responsible stewards of the federal budget – surely the new majority will vote to reopen the government immediately if the outgoing Congress does not. But one thing is crystal clear: it just wouldn’t have been a proper end for the House

GOP without throwing one last tantrum before the adults get put back in charge.

A “bear market” is when stocks see a 20 percent decline or more from a recent high - but they’re also marked by overall pessimism on Wall Street. Since World War II, bear markets have lasted 13 months on average, and stock markets tend to lose 30.4 percent of their value. During those conditions it usually takes stocks an average 22 months to recover, according to analysis from Goldman Sachs and CNBC.

Donald Trump's malignant narcissism is toxic: Psychologist

John Gartner | USA TODAY |

If you take President Trump's words literally, you have no choice but to conclude that he is psychotic. A delusion is "a fixed false belief that is resistant to reason or confrontation with actual fact." Despite all evidence to the contrary, Trump asserts that his New York office was bugged by President Obama, and that his inauguration had the biggest crowd size in history. Before the election, Right Wing Watch published a list of 58 conspiracies proclaimed by Trump.

Is it all for effect, to rile up his base, deflect blame and distract from his shortcomings, or does Trump really believe the insane things he says? It's often hard to know, because as Harvard psychoanalyst Lance Dodes put it, Trump tells two kinds of lies: the ones he tells others to scam them, and those he tells himself. "He lies because of his sociopathic tendencies," Dodes said. "There's also the kind of lying he has that is in a way more serious, that he has a loose grip on reality." Is he crazy like a fox or just plain crazy? Not a question we want to be asking about our president.

Much has been written about Trump having narcissistic personality disorder. As critics have pointed out, merely saying a leader is narcissistic is hardly disqualifying. But malignant narcissism is like a malignant tumor: toxic.

Psychoanalyst and Holocaust survivor Erich Fromm, who invented the diagnosis of malignant narcissism, argues that it "lies on the borderline between sanity and insanity." Otto Kernberg, a psychoanalyst specializing in borderline personalities, defined malignant narcissism as having four components: narcissism, paranoia, antisocial personality and sadism. Trump exhibits all four. His narcissism is evident in his "grandiose sense of self-importance ... without commensurate achievements." From viewing cable news, he knows "more about ISIS than the generals" and believes that among all human beings on the planet, "I alone can fix it." His "repeated lying," "disregard for and violation of the rights of others" (Trump University fraud and multiple sexual assault allegations) and "lack of remorse" meet the clinical criteria for anti-social personality. His bizarre conspiracy theories, false sense of victimization, and demonization of the press, minorities and anyone who opposes him are textbook paranoia. Like most sadists, Trump has been a bully since childhood, and his thousands of vicious tweets make him perhaps the most prolific cyber bully in history.

A year ago, I warned that "the idea that Trump is going to settle down and become presidential when he achieves power is wishful thinking." Trump, like many successful people, shows biological signs of hypomania — a mild and more functional expression of bipolar genes that manifest in energy, confidence, creativity, little need for sleep, as well as arrogance, impulsivity, irritability and diminished judgment. As is often typical, when Trump has achieved great success, his hypomania has increased with disastrous consequences.

In Michael Kruse's article "1988: the Year Donald Lost his Mind," he wrote, "His response to his surging celebrity" after the publication of The Art of The Deal "was a series of manic, ill-advised ventures" that led to bankruptcy and divorce.

Last year, after Trump became the Republican presidential nominee, New York Times columnist David Brooks noted a similar deterioration: "With each passing week, he displays the classic symptoms of medium-grade mania in more disturbing forms: inflated self-esteem, sleeplessness, impulsivity, aggression and a compulsion to offer advice on subjects he knows nothing about." Much has been said about Trump's disjointed Associated Press interview last month. As Brooks wrote, "Manics display something called 'flight of ideas.' It's a formal thought disorder in which ideas tumble forth through a disordered chain of associations. One word sparks another, which sparks another ..."

One symptom of hypomania is impulsivity. Seventy-two hours after Trump saw upsetting pictures of gassed Syrian children, he launched 59 Tomahawk missiles at the Assad regime. Whether Trump guessed right or wrong, sudden lethal moves that reverse his longstanding policy are disturbing. "Acting on instinct, Trump upends his own Syria policy" was the headline in The Times. Its analysis said the president's advisers "were clearly uncomfortable with the suggestion that Mr. Trump was acting impulsively." As Ezra Klein put it, "A foreign policy based on Trump's gut reactions to the images flashing before him on cable news" is "dangerous."

Now Trump is ratcheting up tensions to create a crisis with North Korea.

POLICING THE USA: A look at race, justice, media

Vague protests are Trojan horses for liberal politics: Christian Schneider

Some say it is unethical to dare to diagnose the president, but hundreds of mental health professionals have come together to found Duty To Warn. We believe that just as we are ethically and legally obligated to break confidentiality to warn a potential victim of violence, our duty to warn the public trumps all other considerations.

More than 53,000 people have signed our petition, aimed at mental health professionals, stating Trump should be removed under the 25th Amendment because he is too mentally ill to competently serve. At a conference on the Duty To Warn last month at Yale medical school, psychiatrist Robert Jay Lifton warned against creeping “malignant normality.” Under a malignantly narcissistic leader, alternate facts, conspiracy theories, racism, science denial and delegitimization of the press become not only acceptable but also the new normal. If we do not confront this evil, it will consume us.

Duty to Warn is planning a multicity March for Sanity on Oct. 7 to “make America sane again.” Hope to see you there, assuming we’re all still here.

It's almost 2019, I'm old and worn out, and I still have so many unanswered questions!!!! I haven't found out who let the dogs out...where's the beef...how to get to Sesame Street... why Dora doesn't just use Google Maps...Why do all flavors of fruit loops taste exactly the same, or how many licks does it take to get to the center of a tootsie pop.....why eggs are packaged in a flimsy carton, but batteries are secured in plastic that's tough as nails...what does the fox say... why “abbreviated” is such a long word; or why is there a D in ‘fridge’ but not in refrigerator... why lemon juice is made with artificial flavor yet dish-washing liquid is made with real lemons... why they sterilize the needle for lethal injections... and, why do you have to “put your two cents in” but it's only a “penny for your thoughts” where's that extra penny going to... why does The Alphabet Song and Twinkle Twinkle Little Star have the same tune... why did you just try to sing those two previous songs... and just what exactly is Victoria's secret? and where is Waldo?... Can you hear me now?...and do you really think I am this witty?? ... I actually got this from a friend, who stole it from her brother's girlfriend's, uncle's cousin who lived next door to an old classmate's mailman...Now it is your turn to take it from me... “I have broken more Elton John records, he seems to have a lot of records. And I, by the way, I don’t have a musical instrument. I don’t have a guitar or an organ. No organ. Elton has an organ. And lots of other people helping. No we’ve broken a lot of records. We’ve broken virtually every record. Because you know, look I only need this space. They need much more room. For basketball, for hockey and all of the sports, they need a lot of room. We don’t need it. We have people in that space. So we break all of these records. ANN COULTER: 'LUNATIC' TRUMP COULD FACE GOP CHALLENGER

‘.....But Trump told a different story to casino regulators who were deciding whether to grant him the lucrative gambling license.

"I don't think there's anything wrong with these people," he said about Shapiro and Sullivan during licensing hearings in 1982, according to "TrumpNation." "Many of them have been in Atlantic City for many, many years and I think they are well thought of." Sullivan's unsavory reputation did not stop Trump from later arranging for him to be hired as a labor negotiator for the Grand Hyatt, a hotel project on Manhattan's East Side, according to People magazine and the Los Angeles Times. Trump also introduced Sullivan to his own banker at Chase, though he declined to guarantee a loan to Sullivan, reported the L.A. Times.

...In his investigative biography, Trump: The Deals and the Downfall, reporter Wayne Barrett wrote that Trump's life "intertwines with the underworld," and he outlined the real-estate developer's numerous alleged ties to organized crime, including that Trump:

- Once met Salerno at the Manhattan townhouse of Roy Cohn, the infamous sidekick to Joe McCarthy who represented both men, according to an eyewitness source who talked to Barrett.

- Was very close to Cohn, whom Barrett describes as Trump's "bridge to the mob."
- Had ties to mob associates Shapiro and Sullivan.
- Paid almost double the market price for property in Atlantic City owned by Salvatore Testa, a capo in the Scarfo crime family.
- Evaded New Jersey state laws banning casino owners from making political contributions by channeling donations to Mike Mathews, then-candidate for mayor of Atlantic City, through Shapiro and another mob-tied associate.
- Failed to disclose to state casino regulators that Trump was the target of a bribery probe in 1979 and was questioned in a 1981 racketeering investigation. Neither federal probe led to criminal charges, noted the Philadelphia Inquirer's David Johnston in a review of the book.

Preferential Treatment For The Donald?

In the book, Barrett also claimed that New Jersey state regulators demonstrated a double standard by granting Trump a casino license while denying licenses to other developers and gambling executives whose conduct was far less troubling than Trump's. In 1985, Hilton Hotels was turned down for a license partly due to the chain's ties to Sidney Korshak, a lawyer with reputed mob connections. But with Trump, the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement (DGE) never bothered to write a report that raised "the possibility that Cohn's mob liaisons . . . might have been used to facilitate Trump construction projects," wrote Barrett'

THE 29 MOST CONSEQUENTIAL LINES FROM MICHAEL COHEN'S CONGRESSIONAL TESTIMONY

ANALYSIS BY CHRIS CILLIZZA, CNN EDITOR-AT-LARGE UPDATED 5:22 PM ET, WED FEBRUARY 27, 2019

(CNN)Michael Cohen, President Donald Trump's one-time personal attorney and fixer, is testifying before the House Oversight Committee Wednesday -- likely the only chance the public will have to hear from him before he is sent to jail in May for a series of tax and campaign finance charges.

Cohen's testimony is one of the biggest moments of Trump's time in office and among the most high-profile hearings on Capitol Hill in modern political memory.

I watched Cohen's testimony throughout the day, plucked out key lines from him and added context and analysis. These lines are in the chronological order in which Cohen said them.

1. "I am ashamed because I know what Mr. Trump is. He is a racist. He is a conman. He is a cheat."

These lines, from Cohen's opening statement, set the tone for the day. And the tone is this: Cohen is not going to be pulling any punches on Trump. A man who spent a decade at the right hand of the current President of the United States is now saying on the record that that man is a "racist," a "conman" and a "cheat." We've grown used to the abnormal in Trump's White House, but even by that standard, this is a "whoa" moment.

2. "He was a presidential candidate who knew that Roger Stone was talking with Julian Assange about a WikiLeaks drop of Democratic National Committee emails."

And boom goes the dynamite. This is a Very Big Deal. Remember that Trump told The New York Times earlier this year that he had never spoken to Stone -- who has been indicted on charges that he lied to Congress about the nature and extent of his dealing with WikiLeaks -- about the DNC emails hacked by the Russians and then released to do maximum damage to Hillary Clinton's campaign. "No, I didn't. I never did," Trump said when asked whether he talked to Stone about the stolen emails. The Times also pressed on whether Trump told anyone, including Stone, to get in touch with WikiLeaks to see when they were planning to drop the emails. "Never did," Trump responded.

3. "A copy of a check Mr. Trump wrote from his personal bank account -- after he became president -- to reimburse me for the hush money payments I made to cover up his affair with an adult film star and prevent damage to his campaign."

Cohen has the receipts -- literally! The check -- for $35,000 -- is dated August 1, 2017, and signed in Trump's very distinctive script. That date is, obviously, after Trump became president. And if Cohen is to be believed, it also directly contradicts Trump's assertions in April 2018 that he knew nothing about where Cohen got the money to keep porn star Stormy Daniels and Playboy model Karen McDougal -- both of whom alleged affairs with Trump -- quiet during the 2016 campaign.

Of course, a check signed to Cohen is not proof that the money was a reimbursement for the hush payments -- although the check is consistent with Cohen's version of events and the version of events that prosecutors in the Southern District of New York seem to believe: That Trump played a role in coordinating and orchestrating the payments to Daniels and McDougal in a clear end-run of campaign finance laws.

4. "Mr. Trump did not directly tell me to lie to Congress. That's not how he operates."

This from Cohen directly disputes reporting from BuzzFeed News that Cohen was instructed to lie by the President. Special counsel Robert Mueller's office released a statement that took issue with the BuzzFeed reporting shortly after it published.

5. "There were at least a half-dozen times between the Iowa Caucus in January 2016 and the end of June when he would ask me 'How's it going in Russia?' -- referring to the Moscow Tower project."

This sheds light on the breadth of Trump's interest in and conversations about Trump Tower Moscow. What we knew prior to today is that Cohen lied to Congress when he told them that all conversations with the Russians about the development had stopped by January 2016. Cohen later admitted that he had lied about that because he was concerned it might hurt Trump's presidential chances if people knew that the conversations had continued all the way into the summer of 2016.

6. "Trump knew of and directed the Trump Moscow negotiations throughout the campaign and lied about it. He lied about it because he never expected to win the election. He also lied about it because he stood to make hundreds of millions of dollars on the Moscow real estate project."

A few things here are relevant. First, Trump lawyer Rudy Giuliani said in January that Trump was involved in discussions about the possible Trump Tower Moscow project all the way through the election. (Giuliani later said he was speaking only hypothetically about what Trump knew when.) Second, both that admission from Giuliani and Cohen's claim seem to directly dispute Trump's repeated insistence during the campaign that "I have nothing to do with Russia. I don't have any jobs in Russia. I'm all over the world but we're not involved in Russia."

7. "Mr. Trump would often say, this campaign was going to be the 'greatest infomercial in political history.'"

No matter how Trump tries to rewrite history, it is a fact that he never, ever thought he would be the Republican nominee -- much less the president. He had walked up to the edge of running a few times before and knew that if he didn't do it this time then people wouldn't cover him when he thought about it in the future. You can dispute Cohen's assertion that Trump's entire campaign was solely to further brand awareness, but you cannot dispute that the billionaire businessman never thought he would win.

8. "Mr. Stone told Mr. Trump that he had just gotten off the phone with Julian Assange and that Mr. Assange told Mr. Stone that, within a couple of days, there would be a massive dump of emails that would damage Hillary Clinton's campaign. Mr. Trump responded by stating to the effect of 'wouldn't that be great.'"

These lines are probably the most important in all of Cohen's opening statement -- and maybe in his broader daylong testimony. Per No. 2 above, Cohen's assertion that he was in the room when Trump talked to Stone about WikiLeaks and its plans to release stolen emails runs directly counter to Trump's public insistence that he had never talked to Stone about WikiLeaks. Directly counter. The timing of all of this is very interesting too. Cohen says in his testimony that the call occurred between Stone and Trump about WikiLeaks in July 2016. Later that month, Trump held a news conference in which he said: "Russia, if you're listening, I hope you're able to find the 30,000 emails that are missing, I think you will probably be rewarded mightily by our press." Either on or right around that day, according to an indictment of a number of Russian officials by Mueller, Russia sent phishing attempts to Clinton staffers.
Ahem.

9. "He once asked me if I could name a country run by a black person that wasn't a 'shithole.' This was when Barack Obama was President of the United States." Impossible to corroborate what Cohen is saying here -- unless there were other people in the room -- but this is consistent with reporting from CNN and others in January 2018 that Trump referred to immigrants coming into the US from "shithole" countries.

10. "He told me that black people would never vote for him because they were too stupid."

Again, virtually impossible to corroborate this. While Trump never said anything like what Cohen alleges in the 2016 campaign, his pitch to black voters was hugely stereotypical -- suggesting that they didn't have much, so why not take a chance on voting for him.

"What do you have to lose by trying something new, like Trump," Trump would often ask. "What the hell do you have to lose?"

11. "He asked me to pay off an adult film star with whom he had an affair, and to lie to his wife about it, which I did."

This runs directly counter to Trump's insistence that he a) knew nothing about the payment to Stormy Daniels and b) never spoke with Cohen about how to handle that situation. It is also runs counter to Trump's repeated denials that he ever engaged in extramarital acts with Daniels.

12. "This $35,000 check was one of 11 check installments that was paid throughout the year -- while he was President. The President of the United States thus wrote a personal check for the payment of hush money as part of a criminal scheme to violate campaign finance laws." The check Cohen is referencing -- from No. 3 above -- could be damning evidence. The problem, of course, is that nowhere on the check does it say that Trump is reimbursing Cohen for the $130,000 hush money payment to Daniels. Which gives Trump plausible deniability. Still, it doesn't look good. At all.

13. "I'm talking about a man who declares himself brilliant but directed me to threaten his high school, his colleges, and the College Board to never release his grades or SAT scores."

If you don't think Cohen is telling the truth here, then you have missed the entirety of Trump's professional and political life -- all of which make Cohen's claim wholly credible.

14. "He finished the conversation with the following comment. 'You think I'm stupid, I wasn't going to Vietnam.'"

Trump received a series of deferments that kept him out of the Vietnam war. He claimed he had a medical condition -- bone spurs -- that would make him unable to serve. Two daughters of the podiatrist who diagnosed Trump with those bone spurs told The New York Times that their father did so as a "favor" to Trump's father, Fred.

15. "Questions have been raised about whether I know of direct evidence that Mr. Trump or his campaign colluded with Russia. I do not."

NO COLLUSION!

16. "Don Jr. came into the room and walked behind his father's desk -- which in itself was unusual. People didn't just walk behind Mr. Trump's desk to talk to him. I recalled Don Jr. leaning over to his father and speaking in a low voice, which I could clearly hear, and saying: 'The meeting is all set.' I remember Mr. Trump saying, 'OK good...let me know.'"

This conversation, which Cohen said happened in early June 2016, is what he believes is a sign that President Trump knew about the June 2016 Trump Tower meeting between Don Jr, Jared Kushner, Paul Manafort and a group of Russians promising dirt on Clinton. Trump and Trump Jr. have denied that the President ever knew about the meeting. And in their defense, Cohen's memory is pure conjecture here; Don Jr. could have been talking about any number of meetings and Cohen has no proof that the President's eldest son was actually looping his father in on the meeting with the Russians.

17. "I have never asked for, nor would I accept, a pardon from President Trump."

This clears up one question I had coming into this hearing. But Cohen's statement doesn't make clear whether a pardon was ever offered -- or even floated by Trump or his allies.

18. "I did not want to go to the White House. I was offered jobs."

Cohen pushed back hard on the idea that Ohio Rep. Jim Jordan put forward that Cohen's willingness to attack Trump was entirely born of his anger that he had not been asked to serve in the White House. Cohen said that Trump wanted him to work in the White House but that he believed it would invalidate their attorney-client privilege and therefore make it impossible to do his other work on behalf of Trump. Donald Trump Jr. disagreed with Cohen's version of events, tweeting: "Hahahaha

19. "[Stone] frequently reached out to Mr. Trump and Mr. Trump was very happy to take his calls. It was -- free service."

This is important. Cohen made clear here that Roger Stone was not an operative of the Trump campaign but rather a sort-of friend who flitted in and out of Trump world. There was, according to Cohen, no codified relationship between the two -- although Cohen did say Trump was more than happy to take Stone's call and any information he offered.

20. "Mr. Trump's desire to win would have him work with anyone."

This was Cohen's response to Florida Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz's question as to whether the President was capable of working with the Russians to help him win an election. This is entirely speculative, of course, but it is worth noting that Cohen did know Trump better than almost anyone for more than a decade.

21. "Everything was done with the knowledge of, and at the direction of, Mr. Trump."

Cohen is speaking specifically here about his allegation that he worked on Trump's behalf to make him look wealthier in order to boost him on Forbes' list of the richest people in the country. For what it's worth, Trump dropped 220 slots on Forbes' list in 2017.

22. "It wasn't our responsibility to be the fact checker for a news agency."

Jordan wanted to know why Cohen's lawyer, Lanny Davis, had not denied the BuzzFeed News story last month which, citing informed sources, said that Cohen had told the special counsel's office that Trump had asked him to lie to Congress. The special counsel's office did dispute the story -- in broad terms -- although BuzzFeed did not retract it. Earlier in his testimony (see No. 5 above) Cohen said under oath that Trump had never directly asked him to lie to Congress.

23. "They want to know what I know about Mr. Trump ... and not one question has been asked about Mr. Trump."

After two hours of questioning and a brief break, Cohen used a question from Jordan to lecture Republicans. Cohen noted that Republicans on the Oversight Committee had spent hours forcing him to confess wrongs he had committed, which he had already admitted, rather than asking questions about his dealings with Trump as it related to either the hush payments to Daniels and McDougal or the President's involvement in the conversations about the Trump Tower Moscow development.

The two sparred several times on Wednesday. In another key moment of the hearing, Cohen said, "shame on you, Mr. Jordan," when arguing that the congressman had mischaracterized his testimony.

24. "I have no reason to believe that tape exists."

Democratic Rep. Jamie Raskin of Maryland kind of, sort of asked Cohen about whether he was aware -- or had ever seen -- what has been called the "pee tape," a rumored video of Trump watching prostitutes urinating at a hotel in Russia. (The allegation was made as part of a broader dossier compiled by former British spy Christopher Steele.) According to former FBI Director James Comey, Trump brought up the tape allegation and asked him to dispute it publicly if he could.

25. "He speaks in a code. And I understand the code because I've been around him for a decade."

One of Cohen's core arguments in his testimony is that Trump never directly told him to, say, lie to Congress because he didn't have to: Cohen, like others who had spent years with Trump, knew exactly what Trump wanted done. Whether you believe Cohen truly understands the "code" that Trump is speaking in -- or whether he is actually speaking in any code at all -- depends on how you view Trump (and Cohen).

Regardless, it seems clear that Trump did not expressly tell Cohen to break the law, although Cohen has clearly stated in his testimony that Trump sought to end-run campaign finance laws in paying off two women who alleged affairs with Trump in the mid-2000s.

26. "I have never been to Prague."

Well, that settles that. The Steele dossier alleged that Cohen traveled to Prague to meet with a Russian official during the 2016 campaign. Cohen denied he went to Prague, and said he instead went to Europe in 2016 but was in London to visit his daughter, who was studying abroad.

27. "I don't believe Mr. Trump ever struck Mrs. Trump, ever."

Cohen made this comment in response to questioning by Democratic California Rep. Jackie Speier about the possible existence of an elevator tape from Trump Tower in which Donald Trump is allegedly seen hitting his wife, Melania Trump. "Comedian" Tom Arnold has spread the idea that such an elevator tape exists, while offering no proof of that fact. Cohen said he believes no tape like that exists and that Trump was never violent with his wife.

28. "What he didn't want was to have an entire group of think tanks run through his tax return ... and then he'll end up in an audit and eventually have taxable consequences."

Asked by California Rep. Jimmy Gomez (D) what Trump had told Cohen about why he didn't want to release his tax returns, Cohen offered up this answer -- which is FAR different from the White House's official line that he cannot release the returns because he is under audit. According to Cohen, Trump was worried about being under audit if his returns were released and picked through. Which would suggest that he is not currently under audit, and that the real reason Trump is afraid of releasing his taxes is because he doesn't want to pay tax fines.

29. "I fear that if he loses the presidential election in 2020, there will never be a peaceful transition of power."

In Cohen's closing statement, he offered this ominous warning about what might happen if Trump loses a bid for a second term in 2020. It's not an idle threat, either. Remember that Trump has argued -- with no evidence -- that 3 to 5 million votes had been cast illegally in the 2016 election. And that was an election he won! Imagine what it would be like if he lost.

MICHAEL COHEN, TRUMP'S FORMER "FIXER," TESTIFIES AT A HEARING ON CAPITOL HILL. By Victor Reklaitis Money & Politics

Michael Cohen, President Donald Trump's former personal lawyer, spent hours on Wednesday taking questions from the House Oversight and Reform Committee.

After his striking prepared remarks came out late Tuesday, political analysts were bracing for fresh revelations in his Q&A with lawmakers.

See live blog and video of Cohen testimony

Here are six takeaways from what we heard in the back-and-forth from Cohen, who is set to serve time in prison for lying to Congress in 2017.

1. New probe of Trump by prosecutors revealed

In response to a question about his last conversation with Trump or Team Trump, Cohen declined to comment as follows: "This topic is something that's currently being investigated right now by the Southern District of New York."

That remark came during an exchange with Illinois Democratic Rep. Raja Krishnamoorthi, who then followed up with this question: "Is there any other wrongdoing or illegal act that you are aware of regarding Donald Trump that we haven't yet discussed today?"

"Yes," Cohen said. "And again, those are part of the investigation that's currently being looked at by the Southern District of New York."

2. A Cohen book or movie could be in the works

North Carolina Republican Rep. Virginia Foxx accused Cohen of using his testimony for his own personal benefit, like getting book or movie deals.

She asked him to promise that he won't pursue a deal along those lines, and Cohen refused to do so. He also refused to promise he wouldn't run for office.

In an exchange with Tennessee Republican Rep. Mark Green, Cohen said he could make a note of what actor the congressman wants portraying him. That drew a chuckle from Green during the mostly tense hearing. GOP lawmakers repeatedly said Cohen's past actions didn't make him seem like a credible witness.

3. Cohen hints at other payments of hush money

Cohen's testimony raised fresh questions about Trump ally David Pecker, the CEO of National Enquirer's parent company. That company, American Media Inc., has admitted to making hush-money payments on Trump's behalf to Karen McDougal during the 2016 presidential to quash her allegations about an affair.

Maryland Democratic Rep. Jamie Raskin asked if Pecker had done this in "other cases of other mistresses or women."

"Other circumstances, yes," Cohen said. "Not all of them had to do with women."

4. Cohen says Trump-Sater documents probably in a box somewhere

Cohen talked about the Trump Organization's ties to mob-linked operator Felix Sater, following questioning from California Democratic Rep. Harley Rouda.

Cohen alleged that Trump lied while under oath in 2013 when he said he didn't know Sater well. He also said business records that show links between Sater and Trump are probably in a box at an offsite Trump Organization storage facility.

5. Cohen's 'Truth in Testimony Disclosure Form' questioned North Carolina Republican Rep. Mark Meadows, a Trump ally and head of the conservative Freedom Caucus, questioned how Cohen had filled out a "Truth in Testimony Disclosure Form" ahead of Wednesday's hearing.

The congressman blasted Cohen for not disclosing dealings with foreign entities on the form, but California Democratic Rep. Katie Hill later said at the hearing that witnesses just need to disclose contracts with a foreign government, not all overseas entities.

6. No trip to Prague

Cohen has faced an allegation, which surfaced in the infamous "dossier" of former British spy Christopher Steele, that he was in Prague in 2016 basically to serve as a liaison between the Trump campaign and Russian operatives.

But Cohen during this hearing said: "I've never been to Prague."

MSNBC Cohen: Donald Trump's actions as president 'churlish' (boorish, churlish, loutish, clownish mean uncouth in manners or appearance. boorish implies rudeness of manner due to insensitiveness to others' feelings and unwillingness to be agreeable) and 'un-American' In a brief but emotional statement at the end of his public testimony in front of the House Judiciary Committee, former Trump lawyer Michael Cohen summed up his objections to the president and says he fears that if Trump "loses the election in 2020, that there will never be a peaceful transition of power." [Well, churlish, illegal, yes; but un-american I wouldn't say that ...]

America's 1% hasn't had this much wealth since just before the Great Depression

Why the stock market might soon careen down a dangerous 'slope of hope'

FACEBOOKNEWS

Susan Edelman Blank Trump is a personality disordered malignant narcissist who lacks guilt and empathy. He lives moment to moment; everything he does is all emotion-based behavior. There is no logic or reason or accountability to previous statements or acts. He is extremely impulsive and dangerous and must be removed from office (I am a psychotherapist trained in the diagnosis and treatment of personality disorders and have a Duty to Warn).

Susan Edelman Blank The only thing the Republicans have going for them is to keep repeating that Cohen is a liar and cheat, and they ask why the Democrats didn't get an honest man to testify about Trump? The reason: Trump wouldn't hire or confide in an honest man, and an honest man wouldn't work for Trump. Like the Mafia, made men protect the Don at all costs.

The bigger questions are: Why are supposedly reputable men, serving American citizens in good faith in our country's Congress, protecting a President who the FBI is investigating for being a Russian asset and the Southern District of New York is investigating for bank fraud, tax fraud, and money laundering ? Don't they want to know the truth about the man who sits in The Oval Office and acts as the Leader of the Free World?

Talk about blind loyalty. [No, Susan. Your observation is laudable, courageous; but, unfortunately a bit too forgiving and optimistic From direct observation and experience it is self-interest, greed, cowardice, fear, and complicit criminality that perpetuates the likes of trump, or hitler, etc.. Sadly, human nature (particularly americana) in a nutshell quite pathetic as is america! Not worth it!]

Susan Edelman Blank February 15 at 8:23 AM · In the first two decades of the 21st Century, the Republican Party brought us a president who began his first term by invading a sovereign nation on misbegotten evidence that destabilized the Middle East and ended his second term by leaving us on the verge of another Great Depression. And they followed that up by bringing us a mentally imbalanced, dangerously impulsive malignant narcissist who thrives on discord and chaos and is under Federal investigation for crimes ranging from colluding with an enemy nation, money laundering, tax fraud, and other despicable and illegal activities. When will the Republican Party finally admit that they don't know what the hell they are doing?

President Trump is the national emergency

{ El Chapo for president, or any of the heads of the numerous american crime families as trump – what a sick, fraudulent, pathetic, meaningfully lawless nation america surely is:

‘...In his investigative biography, Trump: The Deals and the Downfall, reporter Wayne Barrett wrote that Trump’s life "intertwines with the underworld," and he outlined the real-estate developer’s numerous alleged ties to organized crime, including that Trump:

- Once met Salerno at the Manhattan townhouse of Roy Cohn, the infamous sidekick to Joe McCarthy who represented both men, according to an eyewitness source who talked to Barrett.
- Was very close to Cohn, whom Barrett describes as Trump's "bridge to the mob."
- Had ties to mob associates Shapiro and Sullivan.
- Paid almost double the market price for property in Atlantic City owned by Salvatore Testa, a capo in the Scarfo crime family.
- Evaded New Jersey state laws banning casino owners from making political contributions by channeling donations to Mike Mathews, then-candidate for mayor of Atlantic City, through Shapiro and another mob-tied associate.

- Failed to disclose to state casino regulators that Trump was the target of a bribery probe in 1979 and was questioned in a 1981 racketeering investigation. Neither federal probe led to criminal charges, noted the Philadelphia Inquirer's David Johnston in a review of the book...'

america is without any credibility whatsoever, domestically or internationally america's a cruel joke on this world! Everything america purports to be is a lie, a total fraud; and, the rest of the world is starting to realize what few other nations have discovered as sick mobster trump helms this global disgrace of a nation of predominantly criminals and mentally ill people.

Trump ordered Justice Department to draft memo advising firing of Comey, former deputy FBI director claims Donald Trump ordered the Justice Department to justify his firing of FBI director James Comey in 2017, according to a new book by Mr Comey's former deputy. The Recession Will Likely Start This Month

February 8, 2019 Michael Carr

In December, business leaders worried about a recession.

According to the Duke University/CFO Global Business Outlook, 48.6% of U.S. chief financial officers believe the nation's economy will enter a recession by the end of 2019.

The Federal Reserve raised interest rates but noted an increase in economic risks. Fed Chair Jerome Powell hinted the Fed might start cutting rates soon.

Somehow, everyone seemed to forget about all that when the stock market rallied in January. But they should remain worried.

Indicators tell us a recession is likely. And it's likely to start this month.

The Triggers for a Recession

In the past, recessions began in the month when the unemployment rate rose 0.4% from its bottom.

Unemployment fell to 3.7% in November. The trigger for a recession is 4.1%.

It was 4% in January.

On average, the trigger follows the bottom by eight months. But it's ranged from as little as two months to as many as 17.

You might wonder why no one at the Fed noticed this. Chances are high they did.

The Fed became concerned about a recession and changed policy in the past few months.

You might wonder why other analysts ignore this indicator. That's probably because it didn't work well recently.

The last three signals were early. Recessions followed unemployment-rate lows by an average of 13 months. But interest rates were in long-term downtrends at those times.

When interest rates are in long-term uptrends, recessions followed the bottom in unemployment by just six months. That's where we are now.

Interest rates bottomed in July 2016. They almost doubled since then.

Of course, this is just one indicator warning of recession. Another one is my Recession Watch Indicator.

The Fed triggered that in December 2016.

The indicator has an average lead time of 17 months. It points to a recession starting by the second quarter of 2019.

Beware the Yield Curve

The yield curve also continues pointing to a recession.

The yield curve shows the price of money over time. It charts the difference between interest rates on bonds with different times to maturity.

A popular yield curve is the 10/2, which compares the yield of the 10-year Treasury to the 2-year Treasury.

Yields on the 10-year are usually higher than yields on the 2-year. That's because there's more risk that things can go wrong over 10 years than there is in two years.

When the 10-year yield falls below the 2-year yield, the yield curve inverts.

In the past, that meant investors were worried about the short-term outlook for the economy, but they were still confident about the long term.

The yield curve is at 0.16% right now, well below its 10-year average of 1.64%.

The chart below shows that every time the curve fell this low, it eventually inverted, and a recession followed.

This cluster of indicators confirms the stock market's message.

Stocks peaked in October. The peak usually occurs about six months before the recession begins. That points to an April start date.

All these indicators only provide approximate forecasts. But they all agree: The next recession is starting soon.

How Team Trump keeps changing its story in the Russia investigation

By Marshall Cohen, Sam Fossum, Em Steck, Tal Yellin

Videos produced by McKenna Ewen

Published February 13, 2019

Over the past two years, President Donald Trump and his team have offered changing accounts regarding key matters in the Russia investigation. Their denials have been debunked, Trump has contradicted his senior aides and sometimes his team has completely flipped its position.

Special counsel Robert Mueller is investigating Russian interference in the 2016 election along with potential collusion between Trump's campaign and the Russian government. So far, six Trump associates have been charged, but nobody has been implicated in collusion. Trump adamantly denies collusion.

Public contradictions, walkbacks and flip-flops have become a hallmark of how Trump's team has responded to the Russia probe, which was launched in 2016 and is now in its third year.

Here are the most consequential examples of Team Trump changing its story.

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Russian collusion

Did any Trump campaign aides have contacts with Russia?

Then No. There weren't any.

In July 2016, while he was chairman of the Trump campaign, Paul Manafort flatly denied any ties existed between the campaign and Russia, calling the idea “absurd” in an ABC News interview. Two days after Trump’s victory, Trump spokeswoman Hope Hicks said, “There was no communication between the campaign and any foreign entity during the campaign.”

Asked in January 2017 if there had been contacts with Russians, Trump replied, “No, not at all.” These blanket denials were later repeated by Vice President Mike Pence, White House counselor Kellyanne Conway and White House press secretary Sarah Sanders.

Now Yes, there were many.

These adamant denials have been eviscerated in the two-plus years since the election. At least 16 Trump associates had contacts with Russians during the campaign or before the inauguration, according to public statements, court filings, and news reports.

Senior campaign aides and members of Trump’s family were in contact with Russians through in-person meetings, phone calls, emails, Twitter messages and more. Trump now acknowledges that there were contacts but says there was no collusion.

Russian collusion

Did anyone on the Trump campaign collude with Russia?

Then There was no collusion whatsoever.

Trump has said on several occasions that there was “no collusion whatsoever” between his campaign and the Russians, a blanket denial that seems to cover his entire campaign. (He has also said dozens of times that there was simply “no collusion.”) In an interview with Fox News, Trump’s lawyer Rudy Giuliani said that there was no collusion between the “upper levels of the Trump campaign” and the Russians.

Now Trump himself didn’t collude.

Giuliani moved the goalposts in January 2019 in an interview with CNN. He said: “I never said there was no collusion between the campaign, or people in the campaign ... I have not. I said the President of the United States.” These comments came shortly after unredacted court filings revealed that while Manafort led Trump’s campaign, he gave internal polling data to a Russian with intelligence ties.

Sanders said something similar in January after Trump ally Roger Stone was charged with lying about his ties to WikiLeaks, saying, “There was no collusion. There was no wrongdoing by the President.”

Russian collusion

What was the purpose of the Trump Tower meeting?

Then To discuss Russian adoptions.

Donald Trump Jr. secretly met a group of Russians at Trump Tower in June 2016, along with his brother-in-law Jared Kushner and Manafort. The meeting wasn’t revealed until a series of articles a year later. When the news broke, Trump Jr. put out a statement, claiming, “We primarily discussed a program about the adoption of Russian children that was active and popular with American families years ago.”

The adoption issue is closely tied to economic sanctions imposed by the US against Russia after the 2014 Ukraine crisis, and lifting those sanctions is a top priority for Russian President Vladimir Putin. Trump Jr.'s statement about the meeting, which the President had a hand in crafting, gave the false impression that the meeting had nothing to do with the 2016 election.

Now To get dirt on Hillary Clinton.

The New York Times later revealed that the true nature of the meeting was for the Trump campaign to get damaging information about Clinton, the Democratic nominee. Trump Jr. later acknowledged this and released an email chain showing that he was told that the Russian government wanted to help Trump win and that a Russian lawyer could provide him with dirt on Clinton.

The President eventually admitted, "This was a meeting to get information on an opponent," but said it was "totally legal." Trump Jr. testified on Capitol Hill that the Russians didn't actually bring any dirt and the meeting was a bust.

Russian collusion

Did Trump draft the misleading Trump Tower meeting statement?

Then Nope. He wasn't even involved.

As news was breaking about the Trump Tower meeting, Trump and his lawyers insisted he wasn't involved in writing the misleading statement issued under his son's name. Trump lawyer Jay Sekulow told CNN: "That was written by Donald Trump Jr. and I'm sure with consultation with his lawyer. That wasn't written by the President." (He repeated this false denial in several interviews that week.)

Sanders later said Trump "certainly didn't dictate" the statement, but "weighed in as any father would."

Now Yes. He dictated the statement.

In a confidential letter sent to Mueller in January 2018, the President's lawyers admitted that Trump dictated the controversial statement but they maintained that it was accurate. According to The New York Times, they wrote: "You have received all of the notes, communications and testimony indicating that the President dictated a short but accurate response to the New York Times article on behalf of his son, Donald Trump, Jr.”

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Comey firing

Why did Trump fire Comey?

Then Because of the Clinton email investigation.

Trump’s official explanation for firing FBI Director James Comey in May 2017 was that Comey mismanaged the Clinton email investigation and lost the confidence of rank-and-file FBI agents. The White House said this rationale was backed up by letters of recommendation from Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein and then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions

Pence and Conway also echoed these talking points in the days after Comey’s ouster.

Now Because of the Russia investigation.

Days later, Trump contradicted the official story. In a now-infamous interview, he told NBC News: “Regardless of recommendation, I was going to fire Comey knowing there was no good time to do it. And in fact, when I decided to just do it, I said to myself, I said, you know, this Russia thing with Trump and Russia is a made-up story. It's an excuse by the Democrats for having lost an election that they should've won.”

About a year later, Giuliani similarly linked Comey’s firing to Russia. He said Comey was dismissed after refusing to assure Trump that he wasn’t a target of the Russia investigation.

Comey firing

Did Trump tell Comey to go easy on Flynn?

Then Absolutely not.

Comey claimed that during a private meeting at the White House in February 2017, Trump asked him to drop the FBI's investigation into Michael Flynn, his former national security adviser. Comey detailed these claims in contemporaneous memos and testified to Congress that Trump said, "I hope you can see your way clear to letting this go, to letting Flynn go. He is a good guy. I hope you can let this go."

Trump has categorically denied Comey's claims. The President also tweeted a denial in December 2017, saying: "I never asked Comey to stop investigating Flynn. Just more Fake News covering another Comey lie!"

Now It's possible.

Shortly after joining Trump's legal team, Giuliani contradicted the President's consistent denials about Comey and Flynn. Giuliani told ABC News that Trump asked Comey to give Flynn "a break," and emphasized that Trump's comments were a friendly request and not an order from the President.

Giuliani later backpedaled from his comments and denied that any conversation about Flynn ever took place between Trump and Comey. "There was no conversation about Michael Flynn," Giuliani told CNN.

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Legal process

Will Trump agree to an interview with Mueller?

Then He wants to do it.

The special counsel's office has long sought a one-on-one interview with Trump for its investigation. Trump has publicly expressed interest in doing it. Trump told reporters he was "100 percent" willing to testify under oath about his interactions with Comey. In January 2018, Trump said he was "looking forward to it," when asked about an interview with Mueller's team.

A date was set for an interview at the presidential retreat at Camp David, but Trump's legal team rejected the plan and the interview fell through at the last moment. Even after that, Trump said, "Yes, I would like to" testify.

Now Zero chance.

Trump and Mueller's lawyers battled throughout 2018 over the contours of the President's testimony. Trump lawyers fought with their client as well, trying to tamp down his desire to testify. They eventually submitted written answers to Mueller's questions around Thanksgiving 2018.

CNN later reported that Trump's team rebuffed yet another request for an interview with the special counsel's office. Giuliani said a presidential interview would happen "over my dead body." Giuliani had warned that he opposes an interview because he believes Mueller's prosecutors will try to lure Trump into a perjury trap.

Legal process

Can a sitting US president obstruct justice?

Then No.

Mueller continues to investigate the question of whether any of Trump's actions or statements amounted to obstruction of justice. In December 2017, Trump attorney John Dowd told Axios that a sitting president "cannot obstruct justice because he is the chief law enforcement officer."

One month later, Dowd and Sekulow laid out this legal theory in a confidential letter to Mueller's team, arguing that actions authorized by the Constitution cannot be obstruction, including the official action of firing an FBI director.

Now Possibly.

Months later, Giuliani expressed the opposite view. CNN's Chris Cuomo asked, "You don't think a president can obstruct justice?" Giuliani's answer was, "He can," breaking with the theory that a president can't obstruct justice because he essentially leads the Justice Department.

Still, Giuliani added that he believes firing an FBI director is a constitutionally protected move that can't be obstruction.

Legal process

How do Trump's lawyers view Mueller?

Then He's a respected and focused investigator.

At the outset, Trump's legal team struck a respectful tone when talking about Mueller. White House special counsel Ty Cobb told Reuters that Mueller's investigators were "appropriately focused." In early 2018, Dowd praised Mueller's indictment of 13 Russian trolls who interfered in the US election. After leaving the legal team, Dowd said, "We had a terrific relationship with Mueller... completely open, people trusted each other and we had no misunderstandings."

These lawyers oversaw a period of extensive cooperation with Mueller, providing thousands of documents and making White House aides available for interviews.

Now He's a corrupt partisan on a witch hunt.

Trump shuffled around his legal team in spring 2018 and hired Giuliani to mount an aggressive campaign against Mueller in the press. Giuliani has said Mueller is running the “most corrupt investigation I have ever seen.” He also called for an investigation into Mueller's conduct and accused him of hiding anti-Trump bias on his team.

Trump branded the investigation a “witch hunt” and a “disgrace to our nation.” He has repeatedly referred to Mueller's team as a group of “angry Democrat thugs.” (Mueller is a lifelong Republican and was appointed by Rosenstein, Trump's handpicked No. 2 at the Justice Department. Some members of Mueller's team previously donated to Democrats, which is permitted under department rules.)

Legal process

Is Trump going to pardon Manafort?

Then It's not being considered.

The New York Times reported in March 2018 that Dowd had previously floated the possibility of pardons with lawyers representing Manafort and Flynn. Cobb swiftly denied the story and said, “No pardons are under discussion or under consideration at the White House.”

Months later, the topic of pardons came up again when Manafort was convicted on eight counts of financial fraud in August 2018. Sanders said from the White House podium, “Once again, that's not something that has been up for discussion.”

Now It's still on the table.

One day after Sanders' denial, Giuliani acknowledged that he recently discussed pardons with Trump. Giuliani told the Huffington Post that they had “a quick meeting” about pardons, and that they agreed “not to pardon anybody during the pendency of the investigation.”

Trump later contradicted Giuliani and claimed that pardons weren't ever discussed, but also refused to rule one out for Manafort. "It was never discussed, but I wouldn't take it off the table. Why would I take it off the table?" he said in an interview with the New York Post.

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Russian business ties

Does Trump have any business ties to Russia?

Then Trump has nothing to do with Russia.

Throughout the 2016 campaign and well into the first two years of his presidency, Trump denied having any business dealings in Russia. He issued blanket denials on the campaign trail, and repeatedly claimed that he had "nothing to do with Russia." Shortly before taking office in January 2017, Trump said: "I have no dealings with Russia. I have no deals that could happen in Russia, because we've stayed away."

Now Trump pursued Russia deals through 2016.

Trump's company explored a lucrative real estate deal in Russia deep into the 2016 campaign. Trump shifted his story after his former attorney pleaded guilty in December 2018 to lying to Congress about the Moscow project. Trump said, "This deal was a very public deal. Everybody knows about this deal. I wasn't trying to hide anything," despite the fact that the deal was never disclosed before he took office.

Russian business ties

When did discussions end for Trump Tower Moscow?

Then January 2016 before the primaries.

In September 2015, a few months after after Trump launched his presidential campaign, the Trump Organization began discussions for a Trump Tower in Moscow. Michael Cohen, a personal attorney to Trump and a senior executive at the Trump Organization, led the negotiations with a Russian company.

In his September 2017 closed-door testimony to lawmakers, Cohen described it as a “rejected proposal to build a Trump property in Moscow that was terminated in January of 2016; which occurred before the Iowa caucus and months before the very first primary.”

Now Possibly as late as November 2016.

In November 2018, Cohen admitted that he lied to Congress about Trump Tower Moscow and pleaded guilty to perjury. Negotiations continued “as late as approximately June 2016,” according to court filings. Mueller’s team asked Trump written questions about when the proposal fell through, and Giuliani said their answer “covered all the way up to November 2016.”

In subsequent TV interviews, Giuliani repeated that conversations could have continued “up until November 2016.” Giuliani later backtracked and said his comments were “hypothetical and not based on conversations I had with the President.”

Russian business ties

Did Trump sign a letter of intent for Trump Tower Moscow?

Then No, he didn't.

In December 2018, Giuliani told CNN that Trump never signed a letter of intent for the Trump Tower Moscow project, which was pursued by his company during the 2016 presidential campaign. Giuliani said: "It was a real estate project. There was a letter of intent to go forward, but no one signed it."

Now Yes, he did.

Shortly after Giuliani's comments, CNN published copies of the document bearing Trump's signature, confirming that Trump did sign the non-binding agreement for a real estate deal in the heart of Moscow. Giuliani backtracked from his original statement. "I was wrong if I said it," he told CNN. "I haven't seen the quote, but I probably meant to say there was never a deal, much less a signed one."

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Trump on his associates

How does Trump view campaign aides under Russia scrutiny?

Then They're the best of the best.

Before any of Trump's campaign aides got in trouble, he painted them as the best and brightest people who could be involved on a presidential team. Trump said foreign policy adviser George Papadopoulos was "an excellent guy" when he named Papadopoulos as an adviser in March 2016.

When Manafort resigned from the campaign in August 2016, Trump said he was “very appreciative for his great work in helping to get us where we are today,” and commended Manafort as a “true professional.”

Now They’re irrelevant nobodies.

Papadopoulos pleaded guilty in 2017 to lying to the FBI about his contacts with Russians during the campaign. Trump downplayed Papadopoulos’ role, saying: “Few people knew the young, low level volunteer named George, who has already proven to be a liar.” Others in the Trump orbit said Papadopoulos was a “coffee boy” on the campaign who had no influence.

During Manafort financial fraud trial in summer 2018, Trump distanced himself from his onetime campaign chairman. Trump said, “Manafort has nothing to do with our campaign ... Paul Manafort worked for me for a very short period of time.”

Trump on his associates

What does Trump think of Cohen?

Then He’s a trusted attorney.

Trump and his team praised Cohen countless times, before he flipped. At a closed-door fundraiser in 2017, Trump said, “Michael is a great lawyer ... a loyal, wonderful person,” according to audio leaked by The Intercept. Trump criticized the FBI raids in April 2018 against Cohen and said they were a disgraceful move against “a good man.”

Shortly after that, Trump wrote in a tweet that he “always liked and respected” Cohen, whom he described as a “fine person” who was unlikely to assist investigators. It wasn’t just Trump, either -- Giuliani said Cohen was “an honest, honorable lawyer” after the FBI raids.

Now He is a desperate liar.

Trump’s relationship with Cohen deteriorated as it became clear that his ex-lawyer was open to helping federal investigations into Trump’s company and campaign. Trump and his lawyers said Cohen should not be trusted, despite Cohen’s decade-long role at the Trump Organization.

Giuliani said Cohen was a “pathological liar” and said that Cohen “lied all his life.”

THE BIPARTISAN SPENDING BINGE IS NOW WORSE THAN UNDER BUSH AND OBAMA

Daniel Horowitz · February 15, 2019

Bet_Noire | Getty Images

We're now $22 trillion in debt, yet despite all that red ink, the Mexican cartels have control of our border and we're not one bit closer to spending money on our own security. We've gone into deep debt for everything except the core function of the federal government.

It feels like it was yesterday when I was watching the news as a kid with my parents in 1995, listening to Newt Gingrich, during the infamous shutdown fight, warn about the dire consequences of crossing the $5 trillion debt milestone. It feels like it was yesterday when I was writing press releases for candidates in "the year of the Tea Party" on how Obama and the Pelosi Congress took the debt to $14 trillion in such a short period of time. Now, over eight years into varying degrees of GOP control of Congress and the White House, we have crossed the $22 trillion mark, expanding the debt more rapidly than at any time in our history. Whereas the debt exploded by $5 trillion during Bush's eight-year tenure, a shocking figure at the time, it has now increased $8 trillion just since Republicans controlled the House in 2011 and by $4 trillion over the past four years, since they controlled at least two of the three political organs of government.

Now, the only question Republicans have is how many pennies of border security they will fight for, while refusing to challenge any of the nonessential and even harmful programs of the federal government. The GOP platform on debt and spending is a lie from top to bottom, as Republicans plan to pass more budget bills allowing us to blow through the budget caps without any effort to systemically reform the way we budget.

Now that Republicans are planning to cave on border funding, can they at least force a confrontation with Democrats over spending levels for functions of government that are nowhere near as important as border security? Thus, departments like HUD, which were able to completely shut down for a month with nobody noticing, will continue to enjoy record spending. We will continue to provide security for Kabul and Baghdad with the beefed-up military budget since last year's budget deal, but no funding for our border or meaningful use of the military to protect our own sovereignty from the daily incursions by the most brutal cartels on earth.

Why even have a Republican Party any more?

Even more indefensible, unlike during the end of Bush's years and the beginning of Obama's tenure, when we first began accruing trillion-dollar annual deficits, we are not facing a deep recession. In fact, we are enjoying the most robust period of job growth since the late 1990s, and revenue is at a record high baseline.

Let it be known for all of time that dire predictions of revenue slumping as a result of the tax cuts were fake news. The entirety of the current deficit problem is due to increased spending. According to the latest monthly report released by the Treasury Department yesterday, spending was up 9.6 percent for the first three months of fiscal year 2019 relative to the first three months of FY 2018. What about revenues? They actually rose slightly by 0.2 percent, despite some declines in certain revenue categories. This is an important statistic, because it is the first clean metric we have comparing a period of time with the tax cuts in full implementation to a period before the tax cuts.

Moreover, some of the increased tax revenue from more payroll taxes likely would not have occurred without the job creation spawned by the tax cuts. If you isolate the revenue tallies for individual and corporate taxes, the government obviously did lose some revenue in certain categories, but it was made up by a $15 billion increase in payroll tax revenue (FICA, Social Security taxes), in addition to increased revenue from excise taxes.

The annual deficit after just three months stood at $319 trillion, well on pace to smash the trillion-dollar deficit mark for the first time in a booming economy.

Thus, this bipartisan era of debt is worse than anything we've seen this generation, and it is all happening with record revenue and a booming economy – with no world war consuming our economy and budget.

Thanks to Republican-approved budget deals, for the first three months of the fiscal year, outlays for HHS are up 12.5 percent, outlays for the Department of Education spiked 23 percent, and outlays for the Department of Commerce have doubled! Meanwhile, outlays on Homeland Security have actually been down by 30 percent because of less disaster spending under FEMA than last year. But it's not like we went on a spending binge for Border Patrol and ICE. Outlays on military spending are up 8.45 percent, but again, what is the purpose of the military if we use it everywhere else in the world except against those who most directly harm us at our own border?

All of this spending is creating a crisis with interest payments on the debt. Net interest payments for the first quarter are up to $100 billion. That is an annualized pace of $400 billion, almost twice the level it has been in recent years. And this is just the beginning.

What is driving the most debt? The issue where Republicans now agree with Democrats: socialized medicine. House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy, R-Calif., is now bashing the Freedom Caucus for opposing the key element of Obamacare responsible for driving up the cost of insurance, thereby generating the massive spending and the monopoly created by the health care industry.

Health care is the 800-pound gorilla in the room. Federal spending on health care (not including state expenditures) is projected to be $17 trillion over the next 10 years, dwarfing the cost of Social Security and the military. By 2047, health care spending will be about 25 percent greater than the insolvent and crushing cost of Social Security. As such, health care in itself is the largest driver of the other great crisis, as noted: the mushrooming cost of the interest on the debt itself. Health care spending alone will be greater than all the revenue from payroll taxes and corporate income taxes combined and almost as large as individual income tax revenue.

This is all going to the creation of a monopoly in a circuitous death spiral of price inflation and increased government spending. It's no mystery why our national expenditures on health care have popped from $27 billion in 1960 to over $3.3 trillion today. Assuming health care would rise at the same rate as the rest of the economy, that number would be under $250 billion today. If we flushed $1.6 trillion down the toilet every year, we'd come out with a better result because we'd just waste money. Now, we are taking that wasted money and artificially inflating the cost of health care to the point that nobody can afford it without government continuing the death spiral of spending, monopolizing, and price inflation.

Yet Republicans have acquiesced to every degree of this baseline and are only debating how much more socialized medicine they will countenance while fake-fighting the rest. Then they will say we have to agree to the new socialized medicine in order to fight the next plan. Rinse and repeat.

Now, instead of looking to cut spending elsewhere, Republican senators met with Ivanka Trump to see how they can create a new entitlement of paid family leave like they have in Europe, but of course without adding to the deficit and distorting our job market! They will find a "conservative way" to agree to Democrats.

With the deficits for FY 2019 skyrocketing just as much as the illegal immigration numbers, at some point conservatives need to asses their rate of return on the Republican Party.

Conservative commentator Ann Coulter responded to President Donald Trump's criticism of her, saying that "the only national emergency is that our president is an idiot." Her comments came after Trump declared a national emergency on the southern border, while distancing himself from Coulter. "Thank God he's relieved me of any responsibility for what he's been doing," Coulter told John Phillips and Jillian Barberie on KABC's "The Morning Drive" Friday. "That was the biggest favor anyone could do [for] me today." The White House didn't immediately respond to TheWrap's request for comment. Asked about the influence of right-wing personalities on his views earlier on Friday, Trump mentioned Fox News host Sean Hannity and radio talk show host Rush Limbaugh, adding they did not "decide policy." THE 29 MOST CONSEQUENTIAL LINES FROM MICHAEL COHEN'S CONGRESSIONAL TESTIMONY

(CNN)Michael Cohen, President Donald Trump's one-time personal attorney and fixer, is testifying before the House Oversight Committee Wednesday -- likely the only chance the public will have to hear from him before he is sent to jail in May for a series of tax and campaign finance charges.

Cohen's testimony is one of the biggest moments of Trump's time in office and among the most high-profile hearings on Capitol Hill in modern political memory.

I watched Cohen's testimony throughout the day, plucked out key lines from him and added context and analysis. These lines are in the chronological order in which Cohen said them.

1. "I am ashamed because I know what Mr. Trump is. He is a racist. He is a conman. He is a cheat."

These lines, from Cohen's opening statement, set the tone for the day. And the tone is this: Cohen is not going to be pulling any punches on Trump. A man who spent a decade at the right hand of the current President of the United States is now saying on the record that that man is a "racist," a "conman" and a "cheat." We've grown used to the abnormal in Trump's White House, but even by that standard, this is a "whoa" moment.

2. "He was a presidential candidate who knew that Roger Stone was talking with Julian Assange about a WikiLeaks drop of Democratic National Committee emails."

And boom goes the dynamite. This is a Very Big Deal. Remember that Trump told The New York Times earlier this year that he had never spoken to Stone -- who has been indicted on charges that he lied to Congress about the nature and extent of his dealing with WikiLeaks -- about the DNC emails hacked by the Russians and then released to do maximum damage to Hillary Clinton's campaign. "No, I didn't. I never did," Trump said when asked whether he talked to Stone about the stolen emails. The Times also pressed on whether Trump told anyone, including Stone, to get in touch with WikiLeaks to see when they were planning to drop the emails. "Never did," Trump responded.

3. "A copy of a check Mr. Trump wrote from his personal bank account -- after he became president -- to reimburse me for the hush money payments I made to cover up his affair with an adult film star and prevent damage to his campaign."

Cohen has the receipts -- literally! The check -- for $35,000 -- is dated August 1, 2017, and signed in Trump's very distinctive script. That date is, obviously, after Trump became president. And if Cohen is to be believed, it also directly contradicts Trump's assertions in April 2018 that he knew nothing about where Cohen got the money to keep porn star Stormy Daniels and Playboy model Karen McDougal -- both of whom alleged affairs with Trump -- quiet during the 2016 campaign.

Of course, a check signed to Cohen is not proof that the money was a reimbursement for the hush payments -- although the check is consistent with Cohen's version of events and the version of events that prosecutors in the Southern District of New York seem to believe: That Trump played a role in coordinating and orchestrating the payments to Daniels and McDougal in a clear end-run of campaign finance laws.

4. "Mr. Trump did not directly tell me to lie to Congress. That's not how he operates."

This from Cohen directly disputes reporting from BuzzFeed News that Cohen was instructed to lie by the President. Special counsel Robert Mueller's office released a statement that took issue with the BuzzFeed reporting shortly after it published.

5. "There were at least a half-dozen times between the Iowa Caucus in January 2016 and the end of June when he would ask me 'How's it going in Russia?' -- referring to the Moscow Tower project."

This sheds light on the breadth of Trump's interest in and conversations about Trump Tower Moscow. What we knew prior to today is that Cohen lied to Congress when he told them that all conversations with the Russians about the development had stopped by January 2016. Cohen later admitted that he had lied about that because he was concerned it might hurt Trump's presidential chances if people knew that the conversations had continued all the way into the summer of 2016.

6. "Trump knew of and directed the Trump Moscow negotiations throughout the campaign and lied about it. He lied about it because he never expected to win the election. He also lied about it because he stood to make hundreds of millions of dollars on the Moscow real estate project."

A few things here are relevant. First, Trump lawyer Rudy Giuliani said in January that Trump was involved in discussions about the possible Trump Tower Moscow project all the way through the election. (Giuliani later said he was speaking only hypothetically about what Trump knew when.) Second, both that admission from Giuliani and Cohen's claim seem to directly dispute Trump's repeated insistence during the campaign that "I have nothing to do with Russia. I don't have any jobs in Russia. I'm all over the world but we're not involved in Russia."

7. "Mr. Trump would often say, this campaign was going to be the 'greatest infomercial in political history.'"

No matter how Trump tries to rewrite history, it is a fact that he never, ever thought he would be the Republican nominee -- much less the president. He had walked up to the edge of running a few times before and knew that if he didn't do it this time then people wouldn't cover him when he thought about it in the future. You can dispute Cohen's assertion that Trump's entire campaign was solely to further brand awareness, but you cannot dispute that the billionaire businessman never thought he would win.

8. "Mr. Stone told Mr. Trump that he had just gotten off the phone with Julian Assange and that Mr. Assange told Mr. Stone that, within a couple of days, there would be a massive dump of emails that would damage Hillary Clinton's campaign. Mr. Trump responded by stating to the effect of 'wouldn't that be great.'"

These lines are probably the most important in all of Cohen's opening statement -- and maybe in his broader daylong testimony. Per No. 2 above, Cohen's assertion that he was in the room when Trump talked to Stone about WikiLeaks and its plans to release stolen emails runs directly counter to Trump's public insistence that he had never talked to Stone about WikiLeaks. Directly counter. The timing of all of this is very interesting too. Cohen says in his testimony that the call occurred between Stone and Trump about WikiLeaks in July 2016. Later that month, Trump held a news conference in which he said: "Russia, if you're listening, I hope you're able to find the 30,000 emails that are missing, I think you will probably be rewarded mightily by our press." Either on or right around that day, according to an indictment of a number of Russian officials by Mueller, Russia sent phishing attempts to Clinton staffers.
Ahem.

9. "He once asked me if I could name a country run by a black person that wasn't a 'shithole.' This was when Barack Obama was President of the United States." Impossible to corroborate what Cohen is saying here -- unless there were other people in the room -- but this is consistent with reporting from CNN and others in January 2018 that Trump referred to immigrants coming into the US from "shithole" countries.

10. "He told me that black people would never vote for him because they were too stupid."

Again, virtually impossible to corroborate this. While Trump never said anything like what Cohen alleges in the 2016 campaign, his pitch to black voters was hugely stereotypical -- suggesting that they didn't have much, so why not take a chance on voting for him.

"What do you have to lose by trying something new, like Trump," Trump would often ask. "What the hell do you have to lose?"

11. "He asked me to pay off an adult film star with whom he had an affair, and to lie to his wife about it, which I did."

This runs directly counter to Trump's insistence that he a) knew nothing about the payment to Stormy Daniels and b) never spoke with Cohen about how to handle that situation. It is also runs counter to Trump's repeated denials that he ever engaged in extramarital acts with Daniels.

12. "This $35,000 check was one of 11 check installments that was paid throughout the year -- while he was President. The President of the United States thus wrote a personal check for the payment of hush money as part of a criminal scheme to violate campaign finance laws." The check Cohen is referencing -- from No. 3 above -- could be damning evidence. The problem, of course, is that nowhere on the check does it say that Trump is reimbursing Cohen for the $130,000 hush money payment to Daniels. Which gives Trump plausible deniability. Still, it doesn't look good. At all.

13. "I'm talking about a man who declares himself brilliant but directed me to threaten his high school, his colleges, and the College Board to never release his grades or SAT scores."

If you don't think Cohen is telling the truth here, then you have missed the entirety of Trump's professional and political life -- all of which make Cohen's claim wholly credible.

14. "He finished the conversation with the following comment. 'You think I'm stupid, I wasn't going to Vietnam.'"

Trump received a series of deferments that kept him out of the Vietnam war. He claimed he had a medical condition -- bone spurs -- that would make him unable to serve. Two daughters of the podiatrist who diagnosed Trump with those bone spurs told The New York Times that their father did so as a "favor" to Trump's father, Fred.

15. "Questions have been raised about whether I know of direct evidence that Mr. Trump or his campaign colluded with Russia. I do not."

NO COLLUSION!

16. "Don Jr. came into the room and walked behind his father's desk -- which in itself was unusual. People didn't just walk behind Mr. Trump's desk to talk to him. I recalled Don Jr. leaning over to his father and speaking in a low voice, which I could clearly hear, and saying: 'The meeting is all set.' I remember Mr. Trump saying, 'OK good...let me know.'"

This conversation, which Cohen said happened in early June 2016, is what he believes is a sign that President Trump knew about the June 2016 Trump Tower meeting between Don Jr, Jared Kushner, Paul Manafort and a group of Russians promising dirt on Clinton. Trump and Trump Jr. have denied that the President ever knew about the meeting. And in their defense, Cohen's memory is pure conjecture here; Don Jr. could have been talking about any number of meetings and Cohen has no proof that the President's eldest son was actually looping his father in on the meeting with the Russians.

17. "I have never asked for, nor would I accept, a pardon from President Trump."

This clears up one question I had coming into this hearing. But Cohen's statement doesn't make clear whether a pardon was ever offered -- or even floated by Trump or his allies.

18. "I did not want to go to the White House. I was offered jobs."

Cohen pushed back hard on the idea that Ohio Rep. Jim Jordan put forward that Cohen's willingness to attack Trump was entirely born of his anger that he had not been asked to serve in the White House. Cohen said that Trump wanted him to work in the White House but that he believed it would invalidate their attorney-client privilege and therefore make it impossible to do his other work on behalf of Trump. Donald Trump Jr. disagreed with Cohen's version of events, tweeting: "Hahahaha

19. "[Stone] frequently reached out to Mr. Trump and Mr. Trump was very happy to take his calls. It was -- free service."

This is important. Cohen made clear here that Roger Stone was not an operative of the Trump campaign but rather a sort-of friend who flitted in and out of Trump world. There was, according to Cohen, no codified relationship between the two -- although Cohen did say Trump was more than happy to take Stone's call and any information he offered.

20. "Mr. Trump's desire to win would have him work with anyone."

This was Cohen's response to Florida Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz's question as to whether the President was capable of working with the Russians to help him win an election. This is entirely speculative, of course, but it is worth noting that Cohen did know Trump better than almost anyone for more than a decade.

21. "Everything was done with the knowledge of, and at the direction of, Mr. Trump."

Cohen is speaking specifically here about his allegation that he worked on Trump's behalf to make him look wealthier in order to boost him on Forbes' list of the richest people in the country. For what it's worth, Trump dropped 220 slots on Forbes' list in 2017.

22. "It wasn't our responsibility to be the fact checker for a news agency."

Jordan wanted to know why Cohen's lawyer, Lanny Davis, had not denied the BuzzFeed News story last month which, citing informed sources, said that Cohen had told the special counsel's office that Trump had asked him to lie to Congress. The special counsel's office did dispute the story -- in broad terms -- although BuzzFeed did not retract it. Earlier in his testimony (see No. 5 above) Cohen said under oath that Trump had never directly asked him to lie to Congress.

23. "They want to know what I know about Mr. Trump ... and not one question has been asked about Mr. Trump."

After two hours of questioning and a brief break, Cohen used a question from Jordan to lecture Republicans. Cohen noted that Republicans on the Oversight Committee had spent hours forcing him to confess wrongs he had committed, which he had already admitted, rather than asking questions about his dealings with Trump as it related to either the hush payments to Daniels and McDougal or the President's involvement in the conversations about the Trump Tower Moscow development.

The two sparred several times on Wednesday. In another key moment of the hearing, Cohen said, "shame on you, Mr. Jordan," when arguing that the congressman had mischaracterized his testimony.

24. "I have no reason to believe that tape exists."

Democratic Rep. Jamie Raskin of Maryland kind of, sort of asked Cohen about whether he was aware -- or had ever seen -- what has been called the "pee tape," a rumored video of Trump watching prostitutes urinating at a hotel in Russia. (The allegation was made as part of a broader dossier compiled by former British spy Christopher Steele.) According to former FBI Director James Comey, Trump brought up the tape allegation and asked him to dispute it publicly if he could.

25. "He speaks in a code. And I understand the code because I've been around him for a decade."

One of Cohen's core arguments in his testimony is that Trump never directly told him to, say, lie to Congress because he didn't have to: Cohen, like others who had spent years with Trump, knew exactly what Trump wanted done. Whether you believe Cohen truly understands the "code" that Trump is speaking in -- or whether he is actually speaking in any code at all -- depends on how you view Trump (and Cohen).

Regardless, it seems clear that Trump did not expressly tell Cohen to break the law, although Cohen has clearly stated in his testimony that Trump sought to end-run campaign finance laws in paying off two women who alleged affairs with Trump in the mid-2000s.

26. "I have never been to Prague."

Well, that settles that. The Steele dossier alleged that Cohen traveled to Prague to meet with a Russian official during the 2016 campaign. Cohen denied he went to Prague, and said he instead went to Europe in 2016 but was in London to visit his daughter, who was studying abroad.

27. "I don't believe Mr. Trump ever struck Mrs. Trump, ever."

Cohen made this comment in response to questioning by Democratic California Rep. Jackie Speier about the possible existence of an elevator tape from Trump Tower in which Donald Trump is allegedly seen hitting his wife, Melania Trump. "Comedian" Tom Arnold has spread the idea that such an elevator tape exists, while offering no proof of that fact. Cohen said he believes no tape like that exists and that Trump was never violent with his wife.

28. "What he didn't want was to have an entire group of think tanks run through his tax return ... and then he'll end up in an audit and eventually have taxable consequences."

Asked by California Rep. Jimmy Gomez (D) what Trump had told Cohen about why he didn't want to release his tax returns, Cohen offered up this answer -- which is FAR different from the White House's official line that he cannot release the returns because he is under audit. According to Cohen, Trump was worried about being under audit if his returns were released and picked through. Which would suggest that he is not currently under audit, and that the real reason Trump is afraid of releasing his taxes is because he doesn't want to pay tax fines.

29. "I fear that if he loses the presidential election in 2020, there will never be a peaceful transition of power."

In Cohen's closing statement, he offered this ominous warning about what might happen if Trump loses a bid for a second term in 2020. It's not an idle threat, either. Remember that Trump has argued -- with no evidence -- that 3 to 5 million votes had been cast illegally in the 2016 election. And that was an election he won! Imagine what it would be like if he lost.

MICHAEL COHEN, TRUMP'S FORMER "FIXER," TESTIFIES AT A HEARING ON CAPITOL HILL. By Victor Reklaitis Money & Politics

Michael Cohen, President Donald Trump's former personal lawyer, spent hours on Wednesday taking questions from the House Oversight and Reform Committee.

After his striking prepared remarks came out late Tuesday, political analysts were bracing for fresh revelations in his Q&A with lawmakers.

See live blog and video of Cohen testimony

Here are six takeaways from what we heard in the back-and-forth from Cohen, who is set to serve time in prison for lying to Congress in 2017.

1. New probe of Trump by prosecutors revealed

In response to a question about his last conversation with Trump or Team Trump, Cohen declined to comment as follows: "This topic is something that's currently being investigated right now by the Southern District of New York."

That remark came during an exchange with Illinois Democratic Rep. Raja Krishnamoorthi, who then followed up with this question: "Is there any other wrongdoing or illegal act that you are aware of regarding Donald Trump that we haven't yet discussed today?" ⊗

“Yes,” Cohen said. “And again, those are part of the investigation that’s currently being looked at by the Southern District of New York.”

2. A Cohen book or movie could be in the works

North Carolina Republican Rep. Virginia Foxx accused Cohen of using his testimony for his own personal benefit, like getting book or movie deals.

She asked him to promise that he won’t pursue a deal along those lines, and Cohen refused to do so. He also refused to promise he wouldn’t run for office.

In an exchange with Tennessee Republican Rep. Mark Green, Cohen said he could make a note of what actor the congressman wants portraying him. That drew a chuckle from Green during the mostly tense hearing. GOP lawmakers repeatedly said Cohen’s past actions didn’t make him seem like a credible witness.

3. Cohen hints at other payments of hush money

Cohen’s testimony raised fresh questions about Trump ally David Pecker, the CEO of National Enquirer’s parent company. That company, American Media Inc., has admitted to making hush-money payments on Trump’s behalf to Karen McDougal during the 2016 presidential to quash her allegations about an affair.

Maryland Democratic Rep. Jamie Raskin asked if Pecker had done this in “other cases of other mistresses or women.”

“Other circumstances, yes,” Cohen said. “Not all of them had to do with women.”

4. Cohen says Trump-Sater documents probably in a box somewhere

Cohen talked about the Trump Organization’s ties to mob-linked operator Felix Sater, following questioning from California Democratic Rep. Harley Rouda.

Cohen alleged that Trump lied while under oath in 2013 when he said he didn’t know Sater well. He also said business records that show links between Sater and Trump are probably in a box at an offsite Trump Organization storage facility.

5. Cohen's 'Truth in Testimony Disclosure Form' questioned North Carolina Republican Rep. Mark Meadows, a Trump ally and head of the conservative Freedom Caucus, questioned how Cohen had filled out a "Truth in Testimony Disclosure Form" ahead of Wednesday's hearing.

The congressman blasted Cohen for not disclosing dealings with foreign entities on the form, but California Democratic Rep. Katie Hill later said at the hearing that witnesses just need to disclose contracts with a foreign government, not all overseas entities.

6. No trip to Prague

Cohen has faced an allegation, which surfaced in the infamous "dossier" of former British spy Christopher Steele, that he was in Prague in 2016 basically to serve as a liaison between the Trump campaign and Russian operatives.

But Cohen during this hearing said: "I've never been to Prague."

America's 1% hasn't had this much wealth since just before the Great Depression

Why the stock market might soon careen down a dangerous 'slope of hope'

FACEBOOKNEWS

Susan Edelman Blank Trump is a personality disordered malignant narcissist who lacks guilt and empathy. He lives moment to moment; everything he does is all emotion-based behavior. There is no logic or reason or accountability to previous statements or acts. He is extremely impulsive and dangerous and must be removed from office (I am a psychotherapist trained in the diagnosis and treatment of personality disorders and have a Duty to Warn).

Susan Edelman Blank The only thing the Republicans have going for them is to keep repeating that Cohen is a liar and cheat, and they ask why the Democrats didn't get an honest man to testify about Trump? The reason: Trump wouldn't hire or confide in an honest man, and an honest man wouldn't work for Trump. Like the Mafia, made men protect the Don at all costs.

The bigger questions are: Why are supposedly reputable men, serving American citizens in good faith in our country's Congress, protecting a President who the FBI is investigating for being a Russian asset and the Southern District of New York is investigating for bank fraud, tax fraud, and money laundering ? Don't they want to know the truth about the man who sits in The Oval Office and acts as the Leader of the Free World? Talk about blind loyalty. [No, Susan. Your observation is laudable, courageous; but, unfortunately a bit too forgiving and optimistic From direct observation and experience it is self-interest, greed, cowardice, fear, and complicit criminality that perpetuates the likes of trump, or hitler, etc.. Sadly, human nature (particularly americana) in a nutshell quite pathetic as is america! Not worth it!]

Susan Edelman Blank February 15 at 8:23 AM · In the first two decades of the 21st Century, the Republican Party brought us a president who began his first term by invading a sovereign nation on misbegotten evidence that destabilized the Middle East and ended his second term by leaving us on the verge of another Great Depression. And they followed that up by bringing us a mentally imbalanced, dangerously impulsive malignant narcissist who thrives on discord and chaos and is under Federal investigation for crimes ranging from colluding with an enemy nation, money laundering, tax fraud, and other despicable and illegal activities. When will the Republican Party finally admit that they don't know what the hell they are doing?

Susan Edelman Blank I am so sick of this embarrassment of a fake president. Trump's Nomination for the Nobel Peace Prize Was Apparently Forged. Twice. Olav Njolstad, the secretary of the five-member Norwegian Nobel Committee, said Wednesday that a nomination of President Trump appeared to be a fake.CreditNigel Waldron/Getty Images Olav Njolstad, the secretary of the five-member Norwegian Nobel Committee, said Wednesday that a nomination of President Trump appeared to be a fake.CreditCreditNigel Waldron/Getty Images By Henrik Pryser Libell <https://www.nytimes.com/2018/02/28/world/europe/nobel-peace-prize-trump-fake-nomination.html?fbclid=IwAR2O9t7Z9KWObsTa8bsGh7Q8a1SpsLz-6U5xdse8XlaDWPtarwcXK BOG80>

Susan Edelman Blank I have to say, for a liar and a cheat, Michael Cohen's compartment, demeanor, and composure in front of Congress is polite, civil, and respectful — and in direct contrast to the bullying, aggressiveness, hostility, and angry outbursts displayed by Brett Kavanaugh during his testimony to Congress. Michael Cohen is going to prison and Brett Kavanaugh is sitting on the Supreme Court. [Yes ... and it's far worse than one can imagine forget not, ta ta ta tony kennedy's son's 'trump/deusch bank' connection I can attest and have to sam alito's trump/mob cover-up and say people have gone to prison for far less

Dear Congresswoman Roybal-Allard:

The following is my comment to an LA Times article regarding a Justice Department cover-up! As for your inquiry, all I think about day and night is a long overdue resolution to the RICO litigation as set forth therein:

ATF Chief Melson: Justice Department trying to shield officials (LATimes) Serrano

I believe him!

I truly empathize with the ATF in terms of government cover-ups, notably by even the DOJ. You'll recognize some familiar names (ie., Alito, Trump, Freeh (Louis Freeh now has dual citizenship with Italy), and some familiar crimes (ie., drug money laundering, etc. – real cash cow for gov't ops, bribes, etc.). [Did you know this about the following ATF Agents who were probably viewed as loose ends: Steve Willis, Robert Williams, Todd McKeahan & Conway LeBleu: Died February 28, 1993 by gunfire at Waco. All four were examined by a pathologist and died from identical wounds to the left temple. All four had been body guards for Bill Clinton, three while campaigning for President and when he was Governor of Arkansas. They also were the ONLY 4 BATF agents killed at Waco.]

Here's some real, complicit cover-up / fraud on the part of the federal government, et als:

October 15, 2010 (*see infra {ultimately delivered by UPS})

Steven M. Martinez, Assistant Director In Charge
Federal Bureau of Investigation, USDOJ
11000 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 1700
Los Angeles, CA 90024

Dear Sir:

I enclose herewith 3 copies of the within DVD rom autorun disk (which will open in your computer's browser) as per your office's request as made this day (the disk and contents have been scanned by Avast, McAfee, and Norton which I've installed on my computer to prevent viral attacks / infection and are without threat). I also include 1 copy of the DVD as filed with the subject court as referenced therein (which files are also included on the aforesaid 3 disks in a separate folder named '112208opocoan'). The (civil) RICO action (as you're aware, the RICO Act is a criminal statute which provides a civil remedy, including treble damages and attorney fees, as an incentive for private prosecution of said claims probably owing to the fact that the USDOJ seems somewhat overwhelmed and in need of such assistance given the seriousness and prevalence of said violations of law which have a corrupting influence on the process, and which corruption is pervasive). A grievance complaint against Coan was also filed concurrently with the subject action and held in abeyance pending resolution of the action which was illegally dismissed without any supporting law and in contravention of the Order of The Honorable Robert N. Chatigny, Chief Judge, USDC, District Connecticut. The files below the horizontal rule are the referenced documents as filed. (Owing to the damage to the financial interests of both the U.S. and the District of Congresswoman Roybal-Allard, viz., Los Angeles, the Qui Tam provisions of the Federal False Claims Act probably would apply and I would absent resolution seek to refer the within to a firm with expertise in that area of the law with which I am not familiar).

The document in 5 pages under penalty of perjury I was asked to forward to the FBI office in New Haven is probably the best and most concise summary of the case RICO Summary to FBI Under Penalty of Perjury at Their Request (5 pages) [ricosummarytoFBIunderpenaltyofperjury.pdf <http://albertpeia.com/ricosummarytoFBIunderpenaltyofperjury.pdf>].

The correspondence I received from the Congresswoman by way of email attachment (apparent but typical problem with my mail) along with my response thereto is included on the 3 disks as fbicorrespondencereyes.htm . With regard to the calls to the FBI's LA and New Haven, CT offices: There was one call to the LA office and I was referred to the Long Beach, CA office where I personally met with FBI Agent Jeff Hayes to whom I gave probative evidentiary documents of the money laundering which he confirmed as indicative of same (he was transferred from said office within approximately a month of said meeting and his location was not disclosed to me upon inquiry). The matter was assigned to FBI Agent Ron Barndollar and we remained in touch for in excess of a decade until he abruptly retired (our last conversation prior to his retirement related to the case and parenthetically, Rudy Giuliani whose father I stated had been an enforcer for the mob to which he registered disbelief and requested I prove it, which I did – he served 12 years in prison, aggravated assault/manslaughter? – and no, there is no Chinese wall of separation – Andrew Maloney's the one that prosecuted gotti).

In contradistinction to the statement in said correspondence, there is a plethora of information including evidence supporting the claims set forth in the RICO VERIFIED COMPLAINT (see infra). Such includes and as set forth in the case, inter alia,

- A judgment had been entered in my favor in the case, United States District Court Case #3:93cv02065(AWT)(USDCJ Alvin Thompson), worth approximately now in excess of $300,000 remains unaccounted for and which could be used for payment to creditors, Los Angeles, etc..
- Counsel Robert Sullivan on my behalf documented by way of certification upon investigation that Alan Shiff, USBCJ, had falsely stated a dismissal upon which false statement he predicated a retaliatory and spurious contempt proceeding against me causing substantial damage, and for which he sought Judicial Notice of those and related proceedings as did I in some of my filings.
- The Order of Dismissal With Prejudice by Alan Shiff, USBCJ, owing to Defendant Coan's failure to file anything whatsoever by the court's deadline causing creditors and me substantial damages: [Shiff Order of Dismissal With Prejudice on Coan's Failure to File Page 1 Page 2]
- Defendant Coan had filed an action against me to prevent me from suing him which necessitated me to fly to Connecticut for a hearing before The Honorable Robert N. Chatigny, Chief Judge, USDC, District of Connecticut, who denied Coan's requested relief as to Coan but precluded my action against Shiff (although there is no immunity, judicial or otherwise, for criminal acts, ie., fraud connected with a case under Title 11, USC, etc.) . [transcript in pertinent part - <http://albertpeia.com/crossexamofcoanbypeia.pdf>]
- Newly appointed judge, Maryanne Trump Barry, Donald Trump's sister, was assigned the RICO case despite the conflict of interest in light of hundreds of thousands of dollars of illegal (drug) money being laundered through the Trump casinos by the RICO defendants, and despite my motion to recuse her which motion she heard herself and denied, and U.S. Trustee Hugh Leonard with whom I met personally refused to join or file a separate motion to recuse and not long thereafter left said office for private practice at Cole, Shotz, et als on retainer with the RICO defendants as his primary client.
- Probative and evidentiary documents, affidavits, exhibits, including those turned over to FBI Agent Jeff Hayes in Long Beach, CA, had been given to Assistant U.S. Attorney Jonathan Lacey with whom I met personally at the U.S. Attorney's Office in Newark, N.J., at which time Samuel Alito was U.S. Attorney, and went over said documents and their probative value with him. Within approximately a month thereafter upon inquiry I was told that Jonathon Lacey was no longer with the office, that the file/documents could not be located, and that there was no further information available concerning contacting him or his location. I thereupon delivered by hand, copies of said documents to the office of then U.S. Attorney Alito, addressed to him, with assurance they would go directly to him. In addition to being inept [I looked in on the one mob case he had brought, bungled, lost (accidently on purpose?) since I was suing some mob-connected under RICO and the court (I had known / previously met outside of court the judge Ackerman through a client) was absolute bedlam and a total joke since incompetent corrupt Alito brought in all 20 mob defendants (rather than prosecute one or a few to flip them first) who feigning illness had beds/cots in the courtroom along with their moans during testimony and had the jury in stitches. As much as I hate the mob, it truly was funny, if not so tragic.], Alito is also corrupt (and maybe corrupt because he is inept). After a reasonable (but still rather short) time I called to determine the status and was told that Alito was no longer with the Office of the U.S. Attorney, that he was (appointed) a federal judge, and that neither the documents nor any file or record of same could be located. Alito did parley the same / cover-up into quid pro quo direct lifetime appointment to the Court of Appeals, 3rd circuit, despite the absence of judicial experience or successful tenure as U.S. Attorney (Maryanne Trump Barry as well). This is the same Sam Alito that now sits on the purported highest court in the land. The real application of the illegal rule 'don't ask, don't tell'.

There is applicable insurance / surety coverage and neither LA, nor creditors, nor I should continue to have been damaged by this brazened corrupt and illegal scenario, which should be resolved in accordance with the meaningful rules of law apposite thereto.

Sincerely,

Albert L. Peia

The Recession Will Likely Start This Month

Sovereign Investor Daily, U.S. Economy February 11, 2019February 8, 2019 Michael Carr

In December, business leaders worried about a recession.

According to the Duke University/CFO Global Business Outlook, 48.6% of U.S. chief financial officers believe the nation's economy will enter a recession by the end of 2019.

The Federal Reserve raised interest rates but noted an increase in economic risks. Fed Chair Jerome Powell hinted the Fed might start cutting rates soon.

Somehow, everyone seemed to forget about all that when the stock market rallied in January. But they should remain worried.

Indicators tell us a recession is likely. And it's likely to start this month.

The Triggers for a Recession

In the past, recessions began in the month when the unemployment rate rose 0.4% from its bottom.

Unemployment fell to 3.7% in November. The trigger for a recession is 4.1%.

It was 4% in January.

On average, the trigger follows the bottom by eight months. But it's ranged from as little as two months to as many as 17.

You might wonder why no one at the Fed noticed this. Chances are high they did.

The Fed became concerned about a recession and changed policy in the past few months.

You might wonder why other analysts ignore this indicator. That's probably because it didn't work well recently.

The last three signals were early. Recessions followed unemployment-rate lows by an average of 13 months. But interest rates were in long-term downtrends at those times.

When interest rates are in long-term uptrends, recessions followed the bottom in unemployment by just six months. That's where we are now.

Interest rates bottomed in July 2016. They almost doubled since then.

Of course, this is just one indicator warning of recession. Another one is my Recession Watch Indicator.

The Fed triggered that in December 2016.

The indicator has an average lead time of 17 months. It points to a recession starting by the second quarter of 2019.

Beware the Yield Curve

The yield curve also continues pointing to a recession.

The yield curve shows the price of money over time. It charts the difference between interest rates on bonds with different times to maturity.

A popular yield curve is the 10/2, which compares the yield of the 10-year Treasury to the 2-year Treasury.

Yields on the 10-year are usually higher than yields on the 2-year. That's because there's more risk that things can go wrong over 10 years than there is in two years.

When the 10-year yield falls below the 2-year yield, the yield curve inverts.

In the past, that meant investors were worried about the short-term outlook for the economy, but they were still confident about the long term.

The yield curve is at 0.16% right now, well below its 10-year average of 1.64%.

The chart below shows that every time the curve fell this low, it eventually inverted, and a recession followed.

This cluster of indicators confirms the stock market's message.

Stocks peaked in October. The peak usually occurs about six months before the recession begins. That points to an April start date.

All these indicators only provide approximate forecasts. But they all agree: The next recession is starting soon.

How Team Trump keeps changing its story in the Russia investigation

By Marshall Cohen, Sam Fossum, Em Steck, Tal Yellin

Videos produced by McKenna Ewen

Published February 13, 2019

Over the past two years, President Donald Trump and his team have offered changing accounts regarding key matters in the Russia investigation. Their denials have been debunked, Trump has contradicted his senior aides and sometimes his team has completely flipped its position.

Special counsel Robert Mueller is investigating Russian interference in the 2016 election along with potential collusion between Trump's campaign and the Russian government. So far, six Trump associates have been charged, but nobody has been implicated in collusion. Trump adamantly denies collusion.

Public contradictions, walkbacks and flip-flops have become a hallmark of how Trump's team has responded to the Russia probe, which was launched in 2016 and is now in its third year.

Here are the most consequential examples of Team Trump changing its story.

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Russian collusion

Did any Trump campaign aides have contacts with Russia?

Then No. There weren't any.

In July 2016, while he was chairman of the Trump campaign, Paul Manafort flatly denied any ties existed between the campaign and Russia, calling the idea “absurd” in an ABC News interview. Two days after Trump’s victory, Trump spokeswoman Hope Hicks said, “There was no communication between the campaign and any foreign entity during the campaign.”

Asked in January 2017 if there had been contacts with Russians, Trump replied, “No, not at all.” These blanket denials were later repeated by Vice President Mike Pence, White House counselor Kellyanne Conway and White House press secretary Sarah Sanders.

Now Yes, there were many.

These adamant denials have been eviscerated in the two-plus years since the election. At least 16 Trump associates had contacts with Russians during the campaign or before the inauguration, according to public statements, court filings, and news reports.

Senior campaign aides and members of Trump’s family were in contact with Russians through in-person meetings, phone calls, emails, Twitter messages and more. Trump now acknowledges that there were contacts but says there was no collusion.

Russian collusion

Did anyone on the Trump campaign collude with Russia?

Then There was no collusion whatsoever.

Trump has said on several occasions that there was “no collusion whatsoever” between his campaign and the Russians, a blanket denial that seems to cover his entire campaign. (He has also said dozens of times that there was simply “no collusion.”) In an interview with Fox News, Trump’s lawyer Rudy Giuliani said that there was no collusion between the “upper levels of the Trump campaign” and the Russians.

Now Trump himself didn't collude.

Giuliani moved the goalposts in January 2019 in an interview with CNN. He said: "I never said there was no collusion between the campaign, or people in the campaign ... I have not. I said the President of the United States." These comments came shortly after unredacted court filings revealed that while Manafort led Trump's campaign, he gave internal polling data to a Russian with intelligence ties.

Sanders said something similar in January after Trump ally Roger Stone was charged with lying about his ties to WikiLeaks, saying, "There was no collusion. There was no wrongdoing by the President."

Russian collusion

What was the purpose of the Trump Tower meeting?

Then To discuss Russian adoptions.

Donald Trump Jr. secretly met a group of Russians at Trump Tower in June 2016, along with his brother-in-law Jared Kushner and Manafort. The meeting wasn't revealed until a series of articles a year later. When the news broke, Trump Jr. put out a statement, claiming, "We primarily discussed a program about the adoption of Russian children that was active and popular with American families years ago."

The adoption issue is closely tied to economic sanctions imposed by the US against Russia after the 2014 Ukraine crisis, and lifting those sanctions is a top priority for Russian President Vladimir Putin. Trump Jr.'s statement about the meeting, which the President had a hand in crafting, gave the false impression that the meeting had nothing to do with the 2016 election.

Now To get dirt on Hillary Clinton.

The New York Times later revealed that the true nature of the meeting was for the Trump campaign to get damaging information about Clinton, the Democratic nominee. Trump Jr. later acknowledged this and released an email chain showing that he was told that the Russian government wanted to help Trump win and that a Russian lawyer could provide him with dirt on Clinton.

The President eventually admitted, “This was a meeting to get information on an opponent,” but said it was “totally legal.” Trump Jr. testified on Capitol Hill that the Russians didn’t actually bring any dirt and the meeting was a bust.

Russian collusion

Did Trump draft the misleading Trump Tower meeting statement?

Then Nope. He wasn’t even involved.

As news was breaking about the Trump Tower meeting, Trump and his lawyers insisted he wasn’t involved in writing the misleading statement issued under his son’s name. Trump lawyer Jay Sekulow told CNN: “That was written by Donald Trump Jr. and I’m sure with consultation with his lawyer. That wasn’t written by the President.” (He repeated this false denial in several interviews that week.)

Sanders later said Trump “certainly didn’t dictate” the statement, but “weighed in as any father would.”

Now Yes. He dictated the statement.

In a confidential letter sent to Mueller in January 2018, the President’s lawyers admitted that Trump dictated the controversial statement but they maintained that it was accurate. According to The New York Times, they wrote: “You have received all of the notes, communications and testimony indicating that the President dictated a short but accurate response to the New York Times article on behalf of his son, Donald Trump, Jr.”

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Comey firing

Why did Trump fire Comey?

Then Because of the Clinton email investigation.

Trump's official explanation for firing FBI Director James Comey in May 2017 was that Comey mismanaged the Clinton email investigation and lost the confidence of rank-and-file FBI agents. The White House said this rationale was backed up by letters of recommendation from Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein and then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions

Pence and Conway also echoed these talking points in the days after Comey's ouster.

Now Because of the Russia investigation.

Days later, Trump contradicted the official story. In a now-infamous interview, he told NBC News: "Regardless of recommendation, I was going to fire Comey knowing there was no good time to do it. And in fact, when I decided to just do it, I said to myself, I said, you know, this Russia thing with Trump and Russia is a made-up story. It's an excuse by the Democrats for having lost an election that they should've won."

About a year later, Giuliani similarly linked Comey's firing to Russia. He said Comey was dismissed after refusing to assure Trump that he wasn't a target of the Russia investigation.

Comey firing

Did Trump tell Comey to go easy on Flynn?

Then Absolutely not.

Comey claimed that during a private meeting at the White House in February 2017, Trump asked him to drop the FBI's investigation into Michael Flynn, his former national security adviser. Comey detailed these claims in contemporaneous memos and testified to Congress that Trump said, "I hope you can see your way clear to letting this go, to letting Flynn go. He is a good guy. I hope you can let this go."

Trump has categorically denied Comey's claims. The President also tweeted a denial in December 2017, saying: "I never asked Comey to stop investigating Flynn. Just more Fake News covering another Comey lie!"

Now It's possible.

Shortly after joining Trump's legal team, Giuliani contradicted the President's consistent denials about Comey and Flynn. Giuliani told ABC News that Trump asked Comey to give Flynn "a break," and emphasized that Trump's comments were a friendly request and not an order from the President.

Giuliani later backpedaled from his comments and denied that any conversation about Flynn ever took place between Trump and Comey. "There was no conversation about Michael Flynn," Giuliani told CNN.

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Legal process

Will Trump agree to an interview with Mueller?

Then He wants to do it.

The special counsel's office has long sought a one-on-one interview with Trump for its investigation. Trump has publicly expressed interest in doing it. Trump told reporters he was "100 percent" willing to testify under oath about his interactions with Comey. In January 2018, Trump said he was "looking forward to it," when asked about an interview with Mueller's team.

A date was set for an interview at the presidential retreat at Camp David, but Trump's legal team rejected the plan and the interview fell through at the last moment. Even after that, Trump said, "Yes, I would like to" testify.

Now Zero chance.

Trump and Mueller's lawyers battled throughout 2018 over the contours of the President's testimony. Trump lawyers fought with their client as well, trying to tamp down his desire to testify. They eventually submitted written answers to Mueller's questions around Thanksgiving 2018.

CNN later reported that Trump's team rebuffed yet another request for an interview with the special counsel's office. Giuliani said a presidential interview would happen "over my dead body." Giuliani had warned that he opposes an interview because he believes Mueller's prosecutors will try to lure Trump into a perjury trap.

Legal process

Can a sitting US president obstruct justice?

Then No.

Mueller continues to investigate the question of whether any of Trump's actions or statements amounted to obstruction of justice. In December 2017, Trump attorney John Dowd told Axios that a sitting president "cannot obstruct justice because he is the chief law enforcement officer."

One month later, Dowd and Sekulow laid out this legal theory in a confidential letter to Mueller's team, arguing that actions authorized by the Constitution cannot be obstruction, including the official action of firing an FBI director.

Now Possibly.

Months later, Giuliani expressed the opposite view. CNN's Chris Cuomo asked, "You don't think a president can obstruct justice?" Giuliani's answer was, "He can," breaking with the theory that a president can't obstruct justice because he essentially leads the Justice Department.

Still, Giuliani added that he believes firing an FBI director is a constitutionally protected move that can't be obstruction.

Legal process

How do Trump's lawyers view Mueller?

Then He's a respected and focused investigator.

At the outset, Trump's legal team struck a respectful tone when talking about Mueller. White House special counsel Ty Cobb told Reuters that Mueller's investigators were "appropriately focused." In early 2018, Dowd praised Mueller's indictment of 13 Russian trolls who interfered in the US election. After leaving the legal team, Dowd said, "We had a terrific relationship with Mueller... completely open, people trusted each other and we had no misunderstandings."

These lawyers oversaw a period of extensive cooperation with Mueller, providing thousands of documents and making White House aides available for interviews.

Now He's a corrupt partisan on a witch hunt.

Trump shuffled around his legal team in spring 2018 and hired Giuliani to mount an aggressive campaign against Mueller in the press. Giuliani has said Mueller is running the "most corrupt investigation I have ever seen." He also called for an investigation into Mueller's conduct and accused him of hiding anti-Trump bias on his team.

Trump branded the investigation a "witch hunt" and a "disgrace to our nation." He has repeatedly referred to Mueller's team as a group of "angry Democrat thugs." (Mueller is a lifelong Republican and was appointed by Rosenstein, Trump's handpicked No. 2 at the Justice Department. Some members of Mueller's team previously donated to Democrats, which is permitted under department rules.)

Legal process

Is Trump going to pardon Manafort?

Then It's not being considered.

The New York Times reported in March 2018 that Dowd had previously floated the possibility of pardons with lawyers representing Manafort and

Flynn. Cobb swiftly denied the story and said, “No pardons are under discussion or under consideration at the White House.”

Months later, the topic of pardons came up again when Manafort was convicted on eight counts of financial fraud in August 2018. Sanders said from the White House podium, “Once again, that’s not something that has been up for discussion.”

Now It’s still on the table.

One day after Sanders’ denial, Giuliani acknowledged that he recently discussed pardons with Trump. Giuliani told the Huffington Post that they had “a quick meeting” about pardons, and that they agreed “not to pardon anybody during the pendency of the investigation.”

Trump later contradicted Giuliani and claimed that pardons weren’t ever discussed, but also refused to rule one out for Manafort. “It was never discussed, but I wouldn’t take it off the table. Why would I take it off the table?” he said in an interview with the New York Post.

- Russian collusion
- Comey firing
- Legal process
- Russian business ties
- Trump on his associates

Russian business ties

Does Trump have any business ties to Russia?

Then Trump has nothing to do with Russia.

Throughout the 2016 campaign and well into the first two years of his presidency, Trump denied having any business dealings in Russia. He issued blanket denials on the campaign trail, and repeatedly claimed that he had “nothing to do with Russia.” Shortly before taking office in January 2017, Trump said: “I have no dealings with Russia. I have no deals that could happen in Russia, because we’ve stayed away.”

Now Trump pursued Russia deals through 2016.

Trump's company explored a lucrative real estate deal in Russia deep into the 2016 campaign. Trump shifted his story after his former attorney pleaded guilty in December 2018 to lying to Congress about the Moscow project. Trump said, "This deal was a very public deal. Everybody knows about this deal. I wasn't trying to hide anything," despite the fact that the deal was never disclosed before he took office.

Russian business ties

When did discussions end for Trump Tower Moscow?

Then January 2016 before the primaries.

In September 2015, a few months after after Trump launched his presidential campaign, the Trump Organization began discussions for a Trump Tower in Moscow. Michael Cohen, a personal attorney to Trump and a senior executive at the Trump Organization, led the negotiations with a Russian company.

In his September 2017 closed-door testimony to lawmakers, Cohen described it as a "rejected proposal to build a Trump property in Moscow that was terminated in January of 2016; which occurred before the Iowa caucus and months before the very first primary."

Now Possibly as late as November 2016.

In November 2018, Cohen admitted that he lied to Congress about Trump Tower Moscow and pleaded guilty to perjury. Negotiations continued "as late as approximately June 2016," according to court filings. Mueller's team asked Trump written questions about when the proposal fell through, and Giuliani said their answer "covered all the way up to November 2016."

In subsequent TV interviews, Giuliani repeated that conversations could have continued "up until November 2016." Giuliani later backtracked and said his comments were "hypothetical and not based on conversations I had with the President."

Russian business ties

Did Trump sign a letter of intent for Trump Tower Moscow?

Then No, he didn't.

In December 2018, Giuliani told CNN that Trump never signed a letter of intent for the Trump Tower Moscow project, which was pursued by his company during the 2016 presidential campaign. Giuliani said: "It was a real estate project. There was a letter of intent to go forward, but no one signed it."

Now Yes, he did.

Shortly after Giuliani's comments, CNN published copies of the document bearing Trump's signature, confirming that Trump did sign the non-binding agreement for a real estate deal in the heart of Moscow. Giuliani backtracked from his original statement. "I was wrong if I said it," he told CNN. "I haven't seen the quote, but I probably meant to say there was never a deal, much less a signed one."

How does Trump view campaign aides under Russia scrutiny?

Then They're the best of the best.

Before any of Trump's campaign aides got in trouble, he painted them as the best and brightest people who could be involved on a presidential team. Trump said foreign policy adviser George Papadopoulos was "an excellent guy" when he named Papadopoulos as an adviser in March 2016.

When Manafort resigned from the campaign in August 2016, Trump said he was “very appreciative for his great work in helping to get us where we are today,” and commended Manafort as a “true professional.”

Now They’re irrelevant nobodies.

Papadopoulos pleaded guilty in 2017 to lying to the FBI about his contacts with Russians during the campaign. Trump downplayed Papadopoulos’ role, saying: “Few people knew the young, low level volunteer named George, who has already proven to be a liar.” Others in the Trump orbit said Papadopoulos was a “coffee boy” on the campaign who had no influence.

During Manafort financial fraud trial in summer 2018, Trump distanced himself from his onetime campaign chairman. Trump said, “Manafort has nothing to do with our campaign ... Paul Manafort worked for me for a very short period of time.”

Trump on his associates

What does Trump think of Cohen?

Then He’s a trusted attorney.

Trump and his team praised Cohen countless times, before he flipped. At a closed-door fundraiser in 2017, Trump said, “Michael is a great lawyer ... a loyal, wonderful person,” according to audio leaked by The Intercept. Trump criticized the FBI raids in April 2018 against Cohen and said they were a disgraceful move against “a good man.”

Shortly after that, Trump wrote in a tweet that he “always liked and respected” Cohen, whom he described as a “fine person” who was unlikely to assist investigators. It wasn’t just Trump, either -- Giuliani said Cohen was “an honest, honorable lawyer” after the FBI raids.

Now He is a desperate liar.

Trump’s relationship with Cohen deteriorated as it became clear that his ex-lawyer was open to helping federal investigations into Trump’s company and campaign. Trump and his lawyers said Cohen should not be trusted, despite Cohen’s decade-long role at the Trump Organization.

Giuliani said Cohen was a “pathological liar” and said that Cohen “lied all his life.”

Trump sharply criticized Cohen for secretly taping him. He even called Cohen a “rat” for cooperating with Mueller. Trump also downplayed Cohen’s onetime role as his attorney, saying Cohen “was a PR person who did small legal work.”

THE BIPARTISAN SPENDING BINGE IS NOW WORSE THAN UNDER BUSH AND OBAMA

Daniel Horowitz · February 15, 2019

Bet_Noire | Getty Images

We're now $22 trillion in debt, yet despite all that red ink, the Mexican cartels have control of our border and we're not one bit closer to spending money on our own security. We've gone into deep debt for everything except the core function of the federal government.

It feels like it was yesterday when I was watching the news as a kid with my parents in 1995, listening to Newt Gingrich, during the infamous shutdown fight, warn about the dire consequences of crossing the $5 trillion debt milestone. It feels like it was yesterday when I was writing press releases for candidates in "the year of the Tea Party" on how Obama and the Pelosi Congress took the debt to $14 trillion in such a short period of time. Now, over eight years into varying degrees of GOP control of Congress and the White House, we have crossed the $22 trillion mark, expanding the debt more rapidly than at any time in our history. Whereas the debt exploded by $5 trillion during Bush's eight-year tenure, a shocking figure at the time, it has now increased $8 trillion just since Republicans controlled the House in 2011 and by $4 trillion over the past four years, since they controlled at least two of the three political organs of government.

Now, the only question Republicans have is how many pennies of border security they will fight for, while refusing to challenge any of the nonessential and even harmful programs of the federal government. The GOP platform on debt and spending is a lie from top to bottom, as Republicans plan to pass more budget bills allowing us to blow through the budget caps without any effort to systemically reform the way we budget.

Now that Republicans are planning to cave on border funding, can they at least force a confrontation with Democrats over spending levels for functions of government that are nowhere near as important as border security? Thus, departments like HUD, which were able to completely shut down for a month with nobody noticing, will continue to enjoy record spending. We will continue to provide security for Kabul and Baghdad with the beefed-up military budget since last year's budget deal, but no funding for our border or meaningful use of the military to protect our own sovereignty from the daily incursions by the most brutal cartels on earth.

Why even have a Republican Party any more?

Even more indefensible, unlike during the end of Bush's years and the beginning of Obama's tenure, when we first began accruing trillion-dollar annual deficits, we are not facing a deep recession. In fact, we are enjoying the most robust period of job growth since the late 1990s, and revenue is at a record high baseline.

Let it be known for all of time that dire predictions of revenue slumping as a result of the tax cuts were fake news. The entirety of the current deficit problem is due to increased spending. According to the latest monthly report released by the Treasury Department yesterday, spending was up 9.6 percent for the first three months of fiscal year 2019 relative to the first three months of FY 2018. What about revenues? They actually rose slightly by 0.2 percent, despite some declines in certain revenue categories. This is an important statistic, because it is the first clean metric we have comparing a period of time with the tax cuts in full implementation to a period before the tax cuts.

Moreover, some of the increased tax revenue from more payroll taxes likely would not have occurred without the job creation spawned by the tax cuts. If you isolate the revenue tallies for individual and corporate taxes, the government obviously did lose some revenue in certain categories, but it was made up by a $15 billion increase in payroll tax revenue (FICA, Social Security taxes), in addition to increased revenue from excise taxes.

The annual deficit after just three months stood at $319 trillion, well on pace to smash the trillion-dollar deficit mark for the first time in a booming economy.

Thus, this bipartisan era of debt is worse than anything we've seen this generation, and it is all happening with record revenue and a booming economy – with no world war consuming our economy and budget.

Thanks to Republican-approved budget deals, for the first three months of the fiscal year, outlays for HHS are up 12.5 percent, outlays for the Department of Education spiked 23 percent, and outlays for the Department of Commerce have doubled! Meanwhile, outlays on Homeland Security have actually been down by 30 percent because of less disaster spending under FEMA than last year. But it's not like we went on a spending binge for Border Patrol and ICE. Outlays on military spending are up 8.45 percent, but again, what is the purpose of the military if we use it everywhere else in the world except against those who most directly harm us at our own border?

All of this spending is creating a crisis with interest payments on the debt. Net interest payments for the first quarter are up to $100 billion. That is an annualized pace of $400 billion, almost twice the level it has been in recent years. And this is just the beginning.

What is driving the most debt? The issue where Republicans now agree with Democrats: socialized medicine. House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy, R-Calif., is now bashing the Freedom Caucus for opposing the key element of Obamacare responsible for driving up the cost of insurance, thereby generating the massive spending and the monopoly created by the health care industry.

Health care is the 800-pound gorilla in the room. Federal spending on health care (not including state expenditures) is projected to be $17 trillion over the next 10 years, dwarfing the cost of Social Security and the military. By 2047, health care spending will be about 25 percent greater than the insolvent and crushing cost of Social Security. As such, health care in itself is the largest driver of the other great crisis, as noted: the mushrooming cost of the interest on the debt itself. Health care spending alone will be greater than all the revenue from payroll taxes and corporate income taxes combined and almost as large as individual income tax revenue.

This is all going to the creation of a monopoly in a circuitous death spiral of price inflation and increased government spending. It's no mystery why our national expenditures on health care have popped from $27 billion in 1960 to over $3.3 trillion today. Assuming health care would rise at the same rate as the rest of the economy, that number would be under $250 billion today. If we flushed $1.6 trillion down the toilet every year, we'd come out with a better result because we'd just waste money. Now, we are taking that wasted money and artificially inflating the cost of health care to the point that nobody can afford it without government continuing the death spiral of spending, monopolizing, and price inflation.

Yet Republicans have acquiesced to every degree of this baseline and are only debating how much more socialized medicine they will countenance while fake-fighting the rest. Then they will say we have to agree to the new socialized medicine in order to fight the next plan. Rinse and repeat.

Now, instead of looking to cut spending elsewhere, Republican senators met with Ivanka Trump to see how they can create a new entitlement of paid family leave like they have in Europe, but of course without adding to the deficit and distorting our job market! They will find a "conservative way" to agree to Democrats.

With the deficits for FY 2019 skyrocketing just as much as the illegal immigration numbers, at some point conservatives need to asses their rate of return on the Republican Party.

67 stunning lines from Trump's CPAC speech [trump is so sick, so mentally ill that the future of america, the nation, is very much in question and doubtful]

(CNN)Fresh off an unsuccessful summit with North Korean leader Kim Jong Un, President Donald Trump jetted back from Vietnam just in time to appear at the annual CPAC conference.

And appear he did! Egged on by the red-meat crowd, Trump went on and on (and on) -- rarely staying on script in a speech that amounted to a sort-of greatest hits double album.

Analysis by Chris Cillizza, CNN Editor-at-large

I went through the whole damn transcript -- and it was a doozy. The lines you need to see are below.

1. [Trump comes out on stage, claps, and then bear-hugs an American flag]

And away we go!

2. "What we did in 2016 -- the Election, we call it, with a capital 'E' -- it's never been done before."

Donald Trump, grammar expert. Also, copy editor. Also also, history-maker.

3. "I was probably more of a conservative than a Republican. People just didn't quite understand that. They didn't understand it."

They likely didn't understand it because Trump, prior to running for president as a Republican, had expressed any number of views -- on abortion, same-sex marriage and lots else -- that suggested he was more closely aligned with Democrats than the GOP.

4. "How many times did you hear, for months and months, 'There is no way to 270?' You know what that means, right? 'There is no way to 270.'"

The 2016 election ended 846 days ago.

5. "So I think we're going to do even better in 2020. I think we're going to do numbers that people haven't seen for a long time."

"Numbers."

6. "But I found some very old laws from when our country was rich -- really rich. The old tariff laws -- we had to dust them off; you could hardly see, they were so dusty."

Ah, those rich -- and dusty -- days. Man, they were great. Tough on the allergies. But great.

7. "You know I'm totally off-script, right?"

Oh, yes.

8. "You know I'm totally off-script right now. And this is how I got elected, by being off-script. True."

It IS true. Voters seemed to believe that Trump's often rambling, hard-to-understand speeches were evidence that he was an authentic politician who refused to be stage-managed. And they liked the idea of a guy who just, well, says stuff.

9. "And if we don't go off-script, our country is in big trouble, folks."

So going off-script is the key to future successes ... [sharpens pencil, breaks out new sheet of paper, begins calculations]

10. "When the wind stops blowing, that's the end of your electric. Let's hurry up. 'Darling' -- 'Darling, is the wind blowing today? I'd like to watch television, darling.'"

"When the wind stop blowing, that's the end of your electric." -- The President of the United States. (Also, Trump is talking here about his sarcastic "support" for the "Green New Deal.")

11. "So the Great Tariff Debate of 1888 -- and then we had so much money we could do whatever we wanted."

Trump has taken to citing 1888 in his speeches of late. This will stun you, but his reading of the historical facts misses a few things.

12. "I won't use a certain words because it's not politically -- but everybody knows the word I'd love to use. Should I use it? I won't do it."

Trump has even turned his infamous love for cursing into some sort of anti-elites mantra. Amazing.

13. "If you tell a joke, if you're sarcastic, if you're having fun with the audience, if you're on live television with millions of people and 25,000 people in an arena, and if you say something like, 'Russia, please, if you can, get us Hillary Clinton's emails. Please, Russia, please.'"

HA HA HA ... oh wait, on the same day Trump "jokingly" asked the Russians to get Hillary Clinton's deleted emails, the Russians began a cybercampaign to get Hillary Clinton's deleted emails.

14. "So everybody is having a good time. I'm laughing, we're all having fun."

"I really can't say I guess I laugh to keep from crying." -- Q-Tip

15. "I know there are people in the Republican Party and people -- really, even conservatives -- good conservatives -- they don't like tariffs. I'm not liking or not liking."

Here's the President on tariffs: "I'm not liking or not liking."

16. "So they don't have anything with Russia. There's no collusion."

Here's a few numbers on the ongoing special counsel probe into Russian interference: 199 criminal charges have been brought against 37 people and entities, seven people have pleaded guilty while four have been sentenced to prison.

17. "I saw little Shifty Schiff yesterday."

"Little Adam Schitt" grimaces.

18. "So now we're waiting for a report, and we'll find out whether or not, and who we're dealing with. We're waiting for a report by people that weren't elected."

A terrific window into how much Trump has made the special counsel's report about him. Remember that special counsel Robert Mueller was asked to look into Russian interference in the 2016 election and the possibility that members of Trump's team may have colluded with the Russians. Instead of worrying about what it means that a malicious foreign power sought to influence our election, Trump is entirely focused on what the report -- and its findings -- mean for him.

19. "We had -- think of this: We had the greatest election -- in all fairness, I used to hear Andrew Jackson. This was now greater than the election of Andrew Jackson. People say that. No, people say it. I'm not saying it. Right? This was the equivalent or greater."

Well if "people say that," who am I to argue????

20. "Those red hats -- and white ones. The key is in the color. The key is what it says. 'Make America Great Again' is what it says. Right? Right?"

Wait. So is the key the color of the hats or what they say on them? I NEED TO KNOW.

21. "And unfortunately, you put the wrong people in a couple of positions, and they leave people for a long time that shouldn't be there. And, all of a sudden, they're trying to take you out with bullshit. OK? With bullshit."

I assume Trump is referring to then-Attorney General Jeff Sessions recusing himself from the Russia probe. Or maybe former FBI Director James Comey for launching the probe. Or deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein for forming a special counsel to look into it. Maybe all of the above. Either way: It's total bullshit!

22. "Now, Robert Mueller never received a vote, and neither did the person that appointed him. And as you know, the attorney general says, 'I'm going to recuse myself.'"

Mueller and Rosenstein never received votes because they are career Justice Department officials. Mueller was a registered Republican, while Rosenstein was a Trump appointee. So ...

23. "You take a look at them. One of them was involved with the Hillary Clinton Foundation, running it. Another one has perhaps the worst reputation of any human being I've ever seen. All killers."

First, a fact check. No one on Mueller's team ran the Clinton Foundation.

Jeannie Rhee was outside counsel to the foundation but never worked there on the payroll. Not sure which member of Mueller's teams "has perhaps the worst reputation of any human being I've ever seen" but I know at least one person who could challenge them for their title ... And, no, no one of Mueller's team is a convicted murderer or "killer."

24. "I had a nasty business transaction with Robert Mueller a number of years ago. I said, 'why isn't that mentioned?'"

Trump is referring to an episode in 2011 when Mueller left a Trump golf club because, according to Trump, of a dispute over dues. Mueller says there was no such dispute. And yet, it is mentioned. Regularly.

25. "He wanted the job as FBI Director."

It is true that Trump interviewed Mueller to be FBI director -- a job he held for a decade under Presidents Bush and Obama -- on the day before Mueller was named special counsel. It is not clear if Mueller expressed a desire to be the FBI director in those conversations.

26. "I have one of the great inventions in history. It's called TiVo. I think it's actually better than television, because television is practically useless without TiVo, right?"

"I invented the piano key necktie. I invented it!" -- Jacobim Mugatu

27. "And I fire a bad cop. I fire a dirty cop."

Trump is referring here to Comey, a career Justice Department official. Not to that cop in "The Wire" who was always taking money off of the street hustlers and keeping it form himself. (I see you, Randy!)

28. "So, just to finish -- and I'll tell you, Matt Schlapp is loving this."

He's not even halfway done.

29. "Number one, I'm in love, and you're in love. We're all in love together."

Trump is talking about why he is speaking for so long and so far off-script. It's because of love, obviously.

30. "There's so much love in this room, it's easy to talk. You can talk your heart out. You really could. There's love in this room. You can talk your heart out. It's easy. It's easy. It's easy."

What do you say to a man who has already said everything?

31. "We never had an empty seat."

Trump is claiming there was never an empty seat at ANY rally he held in 2018. Which, uh, isn't accurate.

32. "And from the day we came down the escalator, I really don't believe we've had an empty seat at any arena, at any stadium."

"The day we came down the escalator."

33. "They did the same thing at our big inauguration speech. You take a look at those crowds."

Trump's claims that more people attended or watched his inauguration than any other in history has been repeatedly -- and clearly -- debunked. And yet, here we are.

34. "Remember this also -- not that Obama would ever do this: But we had fencing all the way down to the Washington Monument. And it was raining and it was wet, and the grass was wet."

He's STILL making excuses for why the crowd at his inauguration didn't look bigger. The grass was wet! The fencing! The sun was in my eyes!

35. "We had a crowd -- I've never seen anything like it. And I have to live -- I have to live with 'crowd size.' It's all a phony deal."

This is actually a good illustration of how Trump's world works. From where he was giving his inaugural address, he saw lots and lots of people. Therefore, it must have been the most ever -- even if objective facts don't bear that out.

Those objective facts, in his mind, are just part of the fake news media's attempts to smear him.

36. "But I saw a picture just the other night of practically no people. It was taken hours before our great day."

Trump was inaugurated on January 20, 2017. That was 773 days ago. But "just the other night" he was looking at a picture of his inauguration crowd. Totally normal stuff here!

37. "Then I'll show you where they showed, just the other day, an empty field -- like nobody on it. And you'll see the sun. You know, you can see it's very dark, because the sun is like starting to rise, right?"

In which the President of the United States reveals he has been closely studying pictures of his inauguration crowd in search of evidence that they had been taken very early in the morning and, therefore, missed the big crowds.

Sure!

38. "You know, somebody said, 'Oh, the speech you made, sir, the State of the Union speech was incredible.' They said it was incredible. They said that was so great."

Who is this "somebody"?

39. "I didn't want to get it approved for a certain reason, because I thought somebody treated me very badly. Very badly. Don't get that vote very often. And I said, you know, I don't want to get it."

Trump is making clear here that he is not happy that he helped get drilling in ANWR approved because Alaska Sen. Lisa Murkowski \(R\) wanted it to happen and he didn't want her to get something she wanted. Because she doesn't vote with him enough. Totally fine!

40. "By the way, you know I'm building the wall. We're finishing the wall. We got a lot of money. It's in the thing."

It is, indeed, in the thing.

41. "We have people in Congress that hate our country."

WOW WOW WOW.

42. "We have a lot of people here that are important people in terms of votes. We have some senators. We have some congressmen."

Yes, waiter, I'll have the word salad.

43. "For one thing, they don't respect us. They think we're 'stupido.'"

What were the odds in Vegas that Trump would say "stupido"? One in a million? Higher? Those oddsmakers were stupido.

44. "He called me up. He said, 'You're a great President. You're doing a great job.'"

According to Trump, California Gov. Gavin Newsom (D) told him how great he was doing. I, uh, doubt this is true.

45. "The leaves -- every once in a while, you have to remove the leaves because they are so -- a guy smoking a cigarette, he throws it away, he doesn't mean it."

Donald Trump on forest fires.

46. "He said, 'I just want to tell you you're a great President and you're one of the smartest people I've ever met.'"

So, the liberal governor of California called up Trump to tell him how great he is and how smart he is? Riiiiiiiiight.

47. "But I was told by a general, who I had to fire -- I said, 'General, how long before we get 100% of the caliphate?' He said, 'Sir, two years.' I said, 'I can't take it two years.'"

"I know more about ISIS than the generals do. Believe me." -- Donald Trump

48. "I never saw so many beautiful-looking machine guns. I'd look at that equipment and I'd say, 'Man ...' They sit in the trees. They sit on the lawn."

Words fail.

49. "I have pretty good vision. At least for my age, I have good vision. I guess for my age, I have great vision."

From good to great in two sentences: The life of Donald Trump.

50. "So we changed his name. Called him 'Mad Dog.' But it wasn't working too well. Mad Dog wasn't working too well."

Contrary to this claim, Trump didn't invent the nickname "Mad Dog" for his former Defense Secretary James Mattis. Not even close.

51. "And I said, 'Bring the cameras. I'm going to make a movie. This is the most incredible thing.'"

Trump was in Iraq to meet with generals. His first thought? Bring in the cameras. Let's make a movie.

52. "I mean, you talk central casting. These guys -- you couldn't -- I mean, it's incredible. They had a master sergeant. I could take him right now, bring him to Hollywood, make a military movie, and he's the star of the movie."

Trump reveals, on almost a daily basis, that he views being President as akin to serving as the executive producer for the world's greatest reality show.

53. "The drill sergeant was so incredible that he ended up starring in the movie, and he should have gotten the Academy Award, by the way, but he didn't. That's because Hollywood discriminates against our people. You know the movie I'm talking about, right? What was that movie? You know the movie."

Yes, it's called "Full Metal Jacket."

54. "Nobody has left. I watch those doors. Because a lot of times -- a lot of times -- well, one time, the press said people left. Yeah, you know where they went? To the bathroom. And then they came back."

This speech lasted TWO hours. TWO.

55. "And a certain fake news deal showed a picture on the front page of these two empty seats. They said Trump had empty seats. We never have empty seats."

Back to this then? Wasn't that sort of a first-hour-of-the-speech sort of thing?

56. "See, I don't have white hair. I don't have white hair."

Um, true!

57. "She's like -- she's like a crazed person. What she said about men is so bad. What she said about men is so bad."

Donald Trump on Sen. Mazie Hirono \(D-Hawaii\). Perfectly normal! Nothing to see here folks!

58. "We reject oppressive speech codes, censorship, political correctness, and every other attempt by the hard left to stop people from challenging ridiculous and dangerous ideas. These ideas are dangerous."

If Trump said just these two sentences over and over and over again, he would probably get re-elected. Because this anti-PC rhetoric resonates with lots and lots of people who likely aren't obvious Trump supporters. Of course, as this speech proves, he will never just say these two sentences. Or any two sentences.

59. "Mothers, who love their daughters, give them massive amounts of birth control pills because they know their daughters are going to be raped on the way up to our southern border."

I think this interview with a border patrol agent is where Trump got this idea. It's not at all clear if this was an isolated incident or a common practice.

60. "Not my fault I inherited this mess, but we're fixing it."

Trump is referring here specifically to the situation at the border. But really, he views every issue (and his whole life) through this lens. Someone else is responsible for the problem. But he will fix it.

61. "I did 32 big, fat rallies. And those rallies brought us to a tremendous Senate victory so that we can continue onward with our judges and our approvals."

So, Trump deserves credit for the 2018 election!

62. "One of the commentators -- and I appreciate it -- one of the shows where they were saying how I suffered a defeat, this commentator said, 'Excuse me, he didn't run.'"

So Trump doesn't deserve blame for the 2018 election! (Also: These two sentences were uttered by the President within 20 seconds of each other.

Good times.)

63. "Then he had a tough race against the new star of the Democrat Party -- not Democratic. It's Democrat. We have to do that."

This is the dumbest thing ever. It is the "Democratic" Party. Republicans in the 1990s decided that they would start saying it was the "Democrat" Party because they didn't want people to think only one party was on the side of democratic ideals. Smart move, Republics!

64. "I hate to say in the speech, the 'Democrat Party' because it doesn't sound good. But that's all the more reason I use it, because it doesn't. They should change it because it sounds much better. Rhetorically, it's much better. Much better."

They don't need to change it! It's already called the Democratic Party! Republicans just have to stop saying "Democrat" Party. Come on people. We can do this!

65. "We had a rally at the airport, where 55,000 people showed up to the airport. It was one hangar. They had three other hangars that were full. They went so far back."

The rally for Georgia gubernatorial candidate Brian Kemp was held in one hangar. Not two. And definitely not three. The MOST people who were there? Around 18,500.

66. "Fourth of July -- keep it open. We want to bring millions of people into the city, and we want people to come who love our country. Those are the people we want. The Fourth of July. (Applause.) A salute to America."

[checks calendar] I'm WIDE open on July 4!

67. "By the way, I'm watching those doors. Not one person has left, and I've been up here a long time. ... But not one person. So if you hear tomorrow, when they read 'people left' -- nobody left early. There hasn't been one person that's left."

He is totally and completely obsessed with crowds. And crowds staying. And loving him. This feels like a good place to end.

TAX EXPERT WHO WROTE TRUMP BIOGRAPHY SAYS PUBLIC WOULD BE 'SHOCKED' BY TRUMP'S TRUE FINANCIAL STATUS

Walter Einenkel Daily Kos Staff Friday March 01, 2019

Donald Trump has surrounded himself with a revolving-door cast of billionaires. One of the silver linings of this disastrous administration is that it has exposed the billionaire class for what it is: just selfish and relatively unimpressive men (and a couple of women) mostly interested in making money for themselves, with virtually no meaningful ethical code. David Cay Johnston is a Trump biographer who has spent a considerable amount of time over the past few decades poking holes in the financial dealings and claims the Donald has made over the years. Michael Cohen's testimony in front of Congress on Wednesday reminded Americans that Mr. Trump is very likely some kind of financial criminal. Calls for his tax returns to be investigated and released have picked up new steam. CNN's Alisyn Camerota interviewed Johnston Friday morning to talk about Cohen's testimony and how it supported many of Johnston's assertions about Trump over the years.

Johnston: [I've known this] for years, since I revealed in 1990 that he wasn't a billionaire and Donald called me a liar, until he had to put in the record documents showing he had a negative net worth of almost $300 million.

Camerota: When his taxes are revealed, which it suggests it will be soon, what will we see in there?

Johnston: Well, one of the things we're going to see is that his adjusted gross income, that's the last figure on the front page of your tax return, in some recent years was less than $500,000. We know that because he got something in New York called the STAR property tax credit on his principle home, which is in Trump Tower. You only get that if your adjusted gross income is less than $500,000. People are going to be very shocked about his finances, and what they're going to see is that he has the lifestyle of a billionaire but he doesn't have any kind of wealth.

Sign the petition to Donald Trump: Show us your tax returns. Seriously.

I'm grateful to Mr. Johnston for his investigative work, but I doubt Trump's finances will shock me or any one of us around these here parts. Trump's entire business career is one huge fraud. Johnston talked about how Trump's finances show a brazen level of tax and loan bending that sounds a lot like straight-up fraud. Johnston says as much, pointing out that inflating insurance claims is technically a serious crime. He also credited Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez with illuminating many of these very same questions. Since Trump's been in office, there has been ample evidence that he's used his position as head of the executive branch to swamp up deals for himself.

The Republican Party will yell into microphones about how the Democratic House committees looking into Trump's finances are on a witch hunt. We may even get to see Sen. Lindsey Graham all red-faced and catching a case of the vapors. But the least of the charges against Trump are insurance fraud, banking fraud, and tax fraud. The least of his possible crimes. Really investigating Trump's finances is a job that should have been done decades ago, but Trump skated by the same way that the rest of the uber-wealthy in our country skate by—on smoke, mirrors, and the ego to believe that there are no smoke and mirrors. When Ivanka and Jared get to speak in front of the committees, the only difference between them and their scam-artist patriarch will be their tighter skin.

Impeachment decoded: A look at how to remove a U.S. president

Investigations involving President Donald Trump by Special Counsel Robert Mueller and U.S. lawmakers have raised the possibility that Congress could seek to remove him from office using the impeachment process set out in the Constitution. The Constitution assigns different but equally crucial roles to the 435-seat House of Representatives and 100-member Senate. The House acts as the accuser - voting on whether to bring specific charges - and the Senate then conducts a trial with House members acting as prosecutors and the individual senators serving as jurors.

...In his investigative biography, Trump: The Deals and the Downfall, reporter Wayne Barrett wrote that Trump's life "intertwines with the underworld," and he outlined the real-estate developer's numerous alleged ties to organized crime, including that Trump:

- Once met Salerno at the Manhattan townhouse of Roy Cohn, the infamous sidekick to Joe McCarthy who represented both men, according to an eyewitness source who talked to Barrett.
- Was very close to Cohn, whom Barrett describes as Trump's "bridge to the mob."
- Had ties to mob associates Shapiro and Sullivan.
- Paid almost double the market price for property in Atlantic City owned by Salvatore Testa, a capo in the Scarfo crime family.
- Evaded New Jersey state laws banning casino owners from making political contributions by channeling donations to Mike Mathews, then-candidate for mayor of Atlantic City, through Shapiro and another mob-tied associate.

- Failed to disclose to state casino regulators that Trump was the target of a bribery probe in 1979 and was questioned in a 1981 racketeering investigation. Neither federal probe led to criminal charges, noted the Philadelphia Inquirer's David Johnston in a review of the book.

Preferential Treatment For The Donald?

In the book, Barrett also claimed that New Jersey state regulators demonstrated a double standard by granting Trump a casino license while denying licenses to other developers and gambling executives whose conduct was far less troubling than Trump's. In 1985, Hilton Hotels was turned down for a license partly due to the chain's ties to Sidney Korshak, a lawyer with reputed mob connections. But with Trump, the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement (DGE) never bothered to write a report that raised "the possibility that Cohn's mob liaisons . . . might have been used to facilitate Trump construction projects," wrote Barrett
