Andrea Cyr Al Peia we tried to warn them! No one could have predicted the extent of enabling he would come to receive.

2016, a warning to all indeed; albeit unheeded. Prior to that it was astonishment how feds, doj, courts et als were falling all over one another to cover-up substantial trump crimes. The answer, not obvious at first, was that they were all looking for that easy payday, one way or another. Laundered money needs a place to go. Stolen money, from the government, boondoggles, now emoluments in a very big way, needed protection/cover; hence, guilty mobster/criminal trump who needed protection/cover from prosecution. They're all a bunch of criminal slugs, dependent on the illegal funds which are mindbogglingly huge, in the trillions. White House Threat: 'Vote Against the President and Your Head Will Be On A Pike'

Al Peia Absolutely true! trump's a mobster/gangster! The feds/state law enforcement, courts federal/state have been covering up for him for decades. The real america, as I replied to Doug, 'Quite right Doug; but, meaningfully lawless society is more to the point since we have loads of laws but for some american criminals, ie., trump et als, they're literally the real 'untouchables' (Elliot Ness, truly the legendary untouchable died a broken man, pauper, the real american story). Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, even California (opposite their current positions) covered for mentally ill mobster/criminal trump et als. Lesson: In america, big crime pays, and pays well. america is a complete and total fraud!' ... [The tv version of 'The Untouchables' featured an italian, Robert Stack (probably some guilt feelings belying his heritage). I'd love to see a spoof on the big screen of the american reality, "The Touchables". americans by nature are always for sale.

obama/holder/BIDEN ... Remember those guys? [To be fair and balanced, there's also the bush/cheneypaulsen axis of evildoing/war crimes/fraud in the factum, etc.] "It's the revolving door at its most despicable. Eric Holder spent six years as attorney general, and failed to prosecute banks for their criminal wrongdoing or put any bank executives behind bars. Now, he's set to rejoin his old white-collar criminal defense firm, making millions each year helping Wall Street bankers avoid criminal consequences.¹ Worse, it was just reported that the firm, Covington & Burling, has kept an empty 11th floor corner office for Holder awaiting his return. Combined with Holder's purchase a year ago of a $1.5 million condo just 300 feet from his new office raises serious questions about how long Holder knew he would be getting a major payday from his old firm even while it continued to represent companies under Department of Justice investigation..."

Aesop's Fables

The Goods and the Ills

ALL the Goods were once driven out by the Ills from that common share which they each had in the affairs of mankind; for the Ills by reason of their numbers had prevailed to possess the earth. The Goods wafted themselves to heaven and asked for a righteous vengeance on their persecutors. They entreated Jupiter that they might no longer be associated with the Ills, as they had nothing in common and could not live together, but were engaged in unceasing warfare; and that an indissoluble law might be laid down for their future protection. Jupiter granted their request and decreed that henceforth the Ills should visit the earth in company with each other, but that the Goods should one by one enter the habitations of men. Hence it arises that Ills abound, for they come not one by one, but in troops, and by no means singly: while the Goods proceed from Jupiter, and are given, not alike to all, but singly, and separately; and one by one to those who are able to discern them.

U.S. Girl, 11, gave birth to baby allegedly fathered by brother

Girl, 11, gave birth to baby allegedly fathered by brother

An 11-year-old girl who was allegedly raped by her brother gave birth at home, and now he and their parents are facing criminal charges.

The girl gave birth to a boy in a bathtub in St. Charles, Missouri, according to a probable cause statement.

Her biological brother, who is 17, was charged last week with incest, statutory rape and statutory sodomy of a person younger than 12, while her parents were charged with child endangerment. Police say the girl's parents did not provide medical care to their daughter after she gave birth.

NBC News is not naming the girl's parents or brother because it would identify the victim.

Police started investigating on Feb. 11 after the girl's parents brought a baby boy to a hospital. The baby still had the umbilical cord and placenta attached and a body temperature of 90 degrees, according to a probable cause statement.

The girl's father initially claimed the baby was his and had been dropped off on their porch by an ex-girlfriend.

He later told investigators his daughter had given birth to the boy and that his son was the father, a probable cause statement states. The girl's parents claimed they were not aware she was pregnant or that she was allegedly being sexually assaulted by her brother, according to the statement.

During questioning, the brother told police he had sex with his sister about 100 times but did not know she was pregnant, according to a probable cause statement. He also said he did not know how long it had been going on for, the statement said.

All three suspects are being held by the St. Charles County Department of Corrections, a jail official told NBC News Friday. Bail was set at $10,000 for the woman, $100,000 cash only for the man and $300,000 cash only for the teen, according to court records.

No attorneys are listed for them in online court records.

The baby, who was born premature, remains hospitalized, and the girl is in the care of relatives, St. Charles police Lt. Tom Wilkison told NBC News

Deep State Declassified

Positively Trump Street

David Stockman | February 14, 2020

I hope you have not been leading a double life, pretending to be wicked and being good all the time. That would be hypocrisy. – Oscar Wilde, “The Importance of

So, it looks, for now, like the Donald’s been spared the ignominy of spending his remaining days in one of Uncle Sam’s hospitality suites.

That surely would have been the eventual consequence of his removal from office and Democrat vendettas that would’ve followed hard thereupon.

But if he’s out of the woods.

In fact, he seems more unleashed than ever.

Further, though, the Tweeter-in-Chief is still just a big, orange distraction, obscuring the bipartisan Duopoly’s assault on constitutional government in America.

That little project hasn't been slowed in the slightest; indeed, a Trumped-up statist GOP remains in power to bring further assault on capitalist prosperity here and abroad.

I was reminded of how completely the transformation of the GOP into the second party of Big Government has been accelerated by the response of the Secretary of the Treasury to the recent news of another punk gross domestic product (GDP) report out of Europe.

Fourth-quarter real GDP growth printed at an anemic 0.4% annualized rate, bringing growth for the full year down to 1.2%. That's the lowest gain since the crisis of 2012-13.

Of course, Steve Mnuchin is a clueless knucklehead and Wall Street flunky who got rich by accident in 2009 when he bought a bankrupt subprime high-flyer, Indy Mac, and got showered with billions of free money from U.S. taxpayers to bail it out.

Other than that, the guy who sits in Alexander Hamilton's chair wouldn't know macroeconomics from macaroni-and-cheese. But he's hung around Imperial Washington long enough to ritually intone the most dangerous catechism of modern times.

To wit, the insidious notion that if government agents – including the central bank – are not “al in” on “stimulus,” the Main Street economy is prone to underperformance, recession, and worse.

So, after that punk report crystalized once again the travails of European economies being strangled by socialism and dirigisme, the Donald's top economic official did not hesitate to attack the one country on the planet which has shown a modicum of fiscal sanity:

Speaking Saturday in London, U.S. Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin urged Germany in particular to act.

“There are countries that have opportunities to expand fiscal on top of monetary,” he said. “Monetary cannot be the only economic tool.”

That’s right, Steve.

A “MUST-READ” Book Before the 2020 Election

In Peak Trump, the latest book from David Stockman, you'll learn exactly why the future of America is truly at grave risk. This is the only place where you'll see a former White House director expose the Deep State and all their lies. Find out why even the Donald doesn't stand a chance to protect us from what they have in store.

Grab your copy today!

Governments can't print, borrow, or spend the macroeconomy into higher growth and greater sustainable prosperity.

Growth comes from the sweat and exertions of millions of workers and the energy and innovations of thousands of entrepreneurs, investors, inventors, and savers pursuing their own betterment on the free market.

Back in the day, every Republican knew at least that much.

And when, in the pre-1980 era, Republicans strayed from the gospel, it was, more often than not, owing to a desire to oil squeaky wheels back home with regulatory or trade protections or fiscal subventions and pork.

“Heterodoxy” consisted mainly of parochial exceptions to the general rule of non-intervention at the national or macro-level.

So, nobody – and I mean nobody – would have talked about “expanding fiscal on top of monetary.” That’s heresy from Harvard Yard.

And, most especially, no one would have advocated deliberate deficit spending to goose the GDP growth rate. The very idea that in normal times – outside of world war or extreme economic collapse – you would deliberately incur deficits was simply beyond the pale.

Yet here we are today with a top GOP official rebuking Germany for doing exactly what it needed to do—and before the fiscal-demographic disaster struck.

To wit, it has one of the oldest populations in Europe and an anemic fertility rate of just 1.5. That means its population will be crashing in the decades ahead, and the ratio of workers versus retirees will plummet.

So, in order to prepare for the soaring costs of socialized medicine and pensions for a ballooning retired population, it has worked diligently to get its fiscal house in order.

After running deficits of 3% to 4% of GDP for the first decade of this century, Germany turned the corner in 2012 and has been generating modest budget surpluses ever since.

This was no mean achievement. That's because, all the while, the German government was being importuned by apparatchiks in Brussels and the socialist and statist politicians in the rest of the eurozone to throw future German taxpayers under the bus in the name of economic stimulus and greater fiscal union.

Germany's Deficit/Surplus as a Percentage of GDP, 2001 through 2019

[Chart]

Germany stood its ground against French demands for debt sharing and the fiscal miscreants of Club Med. Accordingly, it's nearly brought its debt-to-GDP ratio back around the barn to where it stood at the turn of the century.

After rising from 60% of GDP to a peak of 82% in 2010, the German debt ratio now stands at just 61%.

That's why Mnuchin's hectoring is especially galling. The U.S. public debt ratio was also about 60% of GDP at the turn of the century. But after it soared toward 90% during the Global Financial Crisis/Great Recession, the Duopoly never looked back.

Now, of course, the King of Debt himself has broken dangerous new ground.

Not only has the small decline in the debt ratio achieved during from 2013 through 2016 been reversed. But massive new discretionary deficits have been baked into the cake for the foreseeable future.

When the next recession hits, the U.S. debt-to-GDP ratio will instantly hit 120%. That's double Germany's.

Yet, the U.S. Treasury Secretary presumes to lecture the Germans on how to manage their economy and fiscal policy...

To be sure, as a Wall Street flunky and lifelong Democrat, Mnuchin's stand in favor of fiscal profligacy is not surprising. Whatever affinity for fiscal rectitude Wall Street once had – and it was considerable before 1980, as I know from direct experience—has long since evaporated.

Indeed, the cult of ever-rising stock prices and the wealth-effects-driven Federal Reserve subservience to it has thoroughly corrupted Wall Street's stance on fiscal policy.

That's because at least a simulacrum of economic growth must be maintained in order to keep corporate profits gaining and stocks climbing. Imperial Washington has been assigned the job of making it happen by whatever means necessary.

And should the money pumpers in the Eccles Building not be up to the task alone, then fiscal stimulus is presumed to be the expedient of next resort.

[Chart]

Mnuchin's apostasy is only symptomatic of the far more dangerous threat that now lies ahead.

The Donald believes that he has been thoroughly vindicated by the Democrats' misbegotten effort to override the U.S. Constitution out of irrational bereavement over their 2016 election defeat at the hands of the very worst candidate the GOP has ever fielded.

So, whether he's reelected or not – which is probably now in the hands of the coronavirus and its consequence for the global economy and stock markets – the GOP will have become thoroughly Trumpified and will function going forward as the second party of Big Government in the process of American democracy.

And that means American prosperity will soon be dying in the woods... even if the Donald himself has made it out.

Bring It All Back Home

The combination of the coronavirus outbreak in China and the quadrennial return of presidential politics in the U.S. has replaced the Trade War as the primary risk for investors.

That's because, as we've been saying for some time now, this is the most politicized market in history.

And the Tweeter-in-Chief is still in charge. So, the situation is changing almost by the minute.

It's "Impeachment!" in Imperial Washington and all over the Mainstream Media. It's "Easy Money!" on Wall Street and across Bubblevision.

And it seems as if the whole world has, indeed, gone mad.

Amid this chaos, prices will continue to rise and fall, trends will continue to develop and dissipate.

Here's where I usually say, "Well, The Stockman Letter is made for times like these"...

And I can say that because we brought aboard Michael Coolbaugh to update our design to help us better navigate to not only the safest harbors but also the most promising opportunities.

And he's doing that. He's also launched a complementary investment newsletter, Delta Profit Trader, that promises "higher frequency" engagement with markets.

Click here to view the "Delta Profit Summit," where Michael explains his whole approach to investing in this environment.

The stakes are as high as they can be heading into 2020. Markets appear to be straining, catching up to an economy that's been weak and getting weaker for years.

The Donald is tied up in the day-to-day movements of the major stock indexes like no president before him. The increasingly desperate incumbent will do anything he must to hold the White House.

It's a major tipping point. And there's no telling what the Donald's great disruptions could do to your wealth.

You've got to be nimble to win in this market... and Michael's here to help you do that.

To common sense,

David"

Dear Senator Feinstein:

Thank you for your reply; but, with all due respect, 'saying it' in america today doesn't make it so. In fact, quite the contrary has been true for quite some time in now meaningfully lawless america. The following is a response to Congresswoman Roybal-Allard's email. Please note that FBI Agent Lewis with whom I spoke at the FBI office here in LA and who received the subject court disks with related affidavits, exhibits, etc. (waylaid twice by the USPS by way of registered then certified priority mail - finally delivered by courier UPS) was abruptly transferred to Washington D.C. Headquarters and thereafter I've been stonewalled for a formal response from the LA FBI Office which (after Agent Lewis' transfer) told me not to call and that I'd receive a formal response from the Office in writing (in the mail). That's important to me at this juncture inasmuch as I'll have to account for the time wherever I ultimately locate. As I said to Agent Lewis before his promotion and transfer, I no longer even care about the government's involvement in the illegal drug trade, but only resolution of this very costly RICO matter(s). { [Drug war hypocrisy: drug trafficking's big money benefits Big Brother and corrupt banksters PF Louis | The hypocrisy of the war on drugs is centers on the amount of drug trafficking that benefits the CIA and international banking system. The son of a convicted notorious mobster, John Gotti Jr, when asked in court if the family still dealt drugs cracked, "No, we can't compete with the government." Today in Afghanistan, American troops have been seen guarding poppy fields used to make heroin. Those fields were all but wiped out by 2001 when the Taliban destroyed them and forbade that agricultural pursuit. Now they're flourishing again after the American occupation. This doesn't make sense despite all the mainstream reports that American troops are protecting the poppy farmers from the bad guys. Internet sites such as Prison Planet, Info Wars, The Political Coffeehouse and others report otherwise. They connect the CIA and US military to restarting the poppy fields in Afghanistan in 2002, increasing poppy growth by over 650 percent. Who's telling it like it is? One way the CIA keeps their drug trafficking hidden from public view ...'. }

Respectfully, could you get this resolved? It's the right thing to do, consistent with meaningful law, and I'd be very appreciative.

Sincerely,

Albert L. Peia

<https://www.yahoo.com/news/ex-cia-lawyer-soleimani-hit-101840834.html>

“In bragging that he ordered a successful hit on Iranian Maj. Gen. Qassem Soleimani, President Trump has admitted to killing a senior government official of a sovereign state, Iran, while he was traveling in another sovereign state, Iraq. On its face, his conduct and intent satisfy the elements of premeditated murder under Section 1116 of Title 18 of the United States Criminal Code, "Murder or manslaughter of foreign officials, official guests, or internationally protected persons." We can and must debate, and many are, whether the killing was an "assassination" or a violation of "international norms," but neither of those charges has been codified by Congress into the criminal code and thus they have no teeth. The assassination ban is found in an executive order and a president is not bound by it. As for international norms, including the adherence to long-standing principles of the ethics of just war, well, ignoring norms is Trump's calling card, and his supporters love him for it. The provisions of the United States Criminal Code, however, bind all persons, including presidents. They cannot be waived, and they have very sharp teeth. By ordering the drone attack killing General Soleimani, it appears that Trump committed a homicide under federal law. ‘OK, Now What?’: Inside Team Trump’s Scramble to Sell the Soleimani Hit to America Congress passed the relevant law against the “murder or manslaughter of foreign officials,” Section 1116 of Title 18, in response to the killing of Israeli Olympic athletes in Germany, and other acts of terrorism around the world, It provides that “[w]hoever kills or attempts to kill a foreign official, official guest, or internationally protected person shall be punished.” After becoming a signatory in 1973 to a United Nations convention to deter attacks on foreign officials and other protected persons as they travel and conduct the business of state around the globe, the Congress expanded Section 1116 to provide the Department of Justice with extraterritorial jurisdiction to pursue such crimes. Unchastened by impeachment, and emboldened by the Justice Department's dusty old opinion that he cannot be indicted while in office, Trump nonetheless ordered the killing of Soleimani, a senior Iranian official, in Iraq, in violation of Section 1116. The Department of Justice has jurisdiction to prosecute a violation of that statute. This killing cannot be justified under either the 2001 Authorization for Use of Military Force or the 2002 Authorization for Use of Military Force Against Iraq. They are not blank checks cashed in whenever and wherever the president so desires. The 2001 AUMF applied to those responsible for the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001. The 2002 AUMF applied to the Saddam Hussein regime in Iraq. Trump's drone attack was against an Iranian official who had nothing to do with 9/11 nor with the dead Iraqi leader's regime. Though he now sings a different tune, Defense Secretary Mark Esper stated before the Senate Armed Services Committee during his confirmation hearings that neither AUMF would allow military action against Iran. Current DOJ opinions have prevented the indictment of a sitting president. But it's worth noting that if one is found guilty of homicide under Section 1116, and if it is deemed "premeditated," the penalty is life in prison, with no parole. In other words, it is among the most serious crimes on the books, and justice should await him after his presidency. United States Attorney General William Barr, we know from his recent speeches, would disagree. Barr scoffs at the notion that any president is bound by any criminal statute. His view of the scope of a president's Article II powers has no limits and, presumably, permits conduct that would violate federal homicide statutes. Under the Barr Rule, our Congress may enact such a statute, but our president need not follow it unless the law states so expressly. In other words, our president is above the law. Reality check: The Supreme Court has never adopted a rule of statutory interpretation that broad as to make a president immune from all criminal laws, and certainly not homicide. Unsurprisingly, President Trump subscribes to the Barr Rule. We recall that he famously bragged that he "could stand in the middle of 5th Avenue and shoot somebody and [he] wouldn't lose voters." His lawyers have embraced and extended that boast in federal court to argue that the Manhattan district attorney's office cannot subpoena Trump's tax returns. Sticking doggedly to the script, in response to a question from a federal judge, Trump's lawyer asserted that he could not be prosecuted by a state government for homicide, either, while he is in office. These arguments failed in the lower courts and the case is now pending in the Supreme Court. Since his inauguration, Trump has conducted his presidency as if it is a criminal enterprise, so it is not surprising that targeted hits are now part of his repertoire. That Soleimani is a bad actor on the world stage is not a legally permitted defense to a murder charge in federal court. Mobsters' targets are usually "bad guys" too, of course. If Soleimani's history reveals him to be a "terrorist," a word with varying definition, then our beef is with the Iranian state, of which he is a senior official—not with him as an individual. Armed drone attacks in Iran would be acts of war and we could debate the foreign policy, legal and moral justifications for those actions. Congress would be involved in that discussion. But killing Soleimani in Iraq is a federal homicide. The language in Section 1116 defines as a homicide conduct that the U.N. considered an act of terrorism, and required all signatories to add provisions to their own domestic law. The fact that the background of the law was designed to thwart terrorism does not excuse Trump from its express terms. Presidents George W. Bush and Barack Obama killed alleged terrorists and civilians too with armed drones—thousands of them according to several entities tracking the deaths. They have been justifiably criticized for those killings on the grounds that they are both immoral and bad policy. Indeed, President Obama has killed three American citizens, that we know of, implicating the due process clause of the Constitution. But, to our knowledge, those presidents never killed a foreign government official from a sovereign state with which we are not at war while he was traveling in another sovereign state with which we are not at war. Their actions killing non-governmental actors may have been wrong for a variety of reasons, but they did not violate Section 1116. Finally, if an unmanned shot from the sky killing an Iranian general does not "feel" enough like a federal homicide, imagine this: What if the president had ordered the killing of a German official (who Trump suspects has ties to ISIS) traveling at Charles de Gaulle Airport in Paris? If proven, that fact pattern would violate 18 USC Section 1116 — our criminal code does not discriminate among victims (Iranian/German) and places (Iraq/France). Perhaps the president is wrong this time, and voters will care that he is bragging about committing cold-blooded murder. Perhaps Republican senators will too. Vicki Divoll was general counsel of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and assistant general counsel at the Central Intelligence Agency."

"CHRONICLE OF A CRASH FORETOLD

David Stockman | January 22, 2020

If only one person were perfectly informed there could never be a general crisis. But the only perfectly informed person is God, and he does not play the stock market.

– Robert Skidelsky, Keynes: The Return of the Master (2009)

Exactly two decades ago, Alan Greenspan and his band of monetary central planners, panicked by the “Y2K” threat, kicked the Federal Reserve’s printing presses into overdrive.

In barely three months, the amount outstanding on the Fed’s “repo” account soared from $15 billion in early October 1999 to $120 billion by the week of January 5, 2000. Back in those days, a $105 billion liquidity injection was no small thing; it represented nearly 20% of the Fed’s entire balance sheet.

[Chart]

As it happened, the Y2K bogeyman was a hoax.

But the Fed’s flood of liquidity did not exactly recede from the canyons of Wall Street. Indeed, the dot-com bubble was heading for a blowoff top by late 1999; the Fed’s monetary kerosene fueled the flames to white-hot temperatures.

During the six months commencing with the Y2K repo surge after September 1999, the Nasdaq 100 Index soared by 96%. It went up an average of 1% every trading day until it reached an asymptotic high of 4,700 on March 27, 2000.

[Chart]

At that point, apparently every mullet, lemming, and new-age believer that could be sold a share had been rounded up and turned upside down, because, all of a sudden, the music just plain stopped.

By April 15, the index was down a heart-stopping 33%. But it's plunge was just getting started. When the Nasdaq 100 finally reached bottom in October 2002, it was down a staggering 82%. It had come full circle, returning to the 800 level it had crossed way back in November 1996.

[Chart]

So... deju vu, anyone?

If you missed the Delta Profit Summit, here's some good news...

Earlier today, former Wall Street trader, Michael Coolbaugh pulled back the curtain to reveal one of Wall Street's very own trading algorithms. He showed viewers how this can help them generate impressive returns and give their portfolios one more big boost in this bull market.

Click here to catch a recording of Michael's presentation for free!

triggered another bout of monetary incontinence in the Eccles Building.

From a standing start of $18 billion on September 18, the Fed's liquidity fire hose had bulged to $240 billion by the turn of the year.

[Chart]

Moreover, this time the Fed added a huge dollop of Treasury bill purchases under its "permanent open-market operations," or "POMO," to its "temporary" repo antics just for good measure. That added another $170 billion to the liquidity flood in barely 90 days.

It doesn't take a financial genius or math savant to divine what's going to happen when the Fed injects $425 billion into the bond market in a virtual heartbeat.

Presumably, the Fedheads already knew the answer.

Of course, there's absolutely no question Wall Street knew exactly what to do: Back up the trucks and hit the "buy" key like there's no tomorrow.

As a technical matter, these massive liquidity injections crushed the yields available to private investors who would otherwise operate in the short-term funding markets. So, real money cash investors just segued out the risk curve a few notches and bought rapidly rising "risk assets" with the funds that might have otherwise been loaned for a smaller yield against Uncle Sam's finest collateral.

It's just that simple....."

Quite right Doug; but, meaningfully lawless society is more to the point since we have loads of laws but for some american criminals, ie., trump et als, they're literally the real 'untouchables' (Elliot Ness, truly untouchable died a broken man, pauper, the real american story). " A CHANGE IS GONNA COME <https://www.deepstatedeclassified.com/a-change-is-gonna-come/>

David Stockman | January 23, 2020

Indeed, it might even be said that this small decision of mine constituted something of a key turning point; that that decision set things on an inevitable course towards what eventually happened. – Kazuo Ishiguro, The Remains of the Day (1989)

...

Michael Coolbaugh is back with another Thursday commentary on markets that would have just about any investor who knows what they're looking at begging, borrowing, and/or stealing to get regular access to his thoughts and ideas about how to protect and build wealth in this market...

Of course, you don't have to do any of that. In fact, all you have to do is click here for the presentation of Michael's all-new service, Delta Profit Trader.

I invited Michael to join our team in mid-summer 2019, after the infamous "Powell Pivot" to "easy money forever." And Michael's actionable commentary on markets is critically important to what we're doing in Deep State Declassified and The Stockman Letter.

I've said it before, and I'll say it again: I literally cannot think of a better way to identify opportunities for upside while we continue to prepare for the inevitable prodigious downside that comes with these sordid bubbles than through Michael's system.

He's already demonstrated his value here and in the pages of The Stockman Letter. This presentation – the "Delta Profit Summit" – simply promises much more of the same.

And, given the way the market's moving of late, – responding as it has to the Federal Reserve's massive "not QE" liquidity injections, I expect to see a lot of action sooner rather than later with this new investment newsletter...

Now, here's Michael with a more extended preview of his insights...

A Well-Played Piece

By Michael Coolbaugh

“There’s no better satisfaction than playing a piece well, whether the instrument is a piano or the markets.”

One thing you’ll quickly come to learn is that I’m really going to push you to expand your knowledge of the trading legends.

Today’s lead quote is from Linda Bradford Raschke, a legendary futures trader who was featured in a volume of Jack Schwager’s renowned Market Wizards series.

But, honestly, I’m not here to play a stock market version of “Jeopardy!”.

No, what I hope you’ll gain from broadening your knowledge of such legends, most of whom are unknown to the general public, is a deeper understanding of what works and what doesn’t work when it comes to markets.

My reasoning?

I’ve talked about it at great length, but simply put, I’m not one to believe “this time being different.”

After all, we’re dealing with humans. And human nature doesn’t just change, which means what worked decades ago is likely to carry substantial weight today.

I’m not just talking about investors. The harsh reality of the many flaws deep within human nature permeates decision-making by everyone from politicians to monetary central planners to your local factory supervisor.

Remember the “chess match,” or the “game within the game,” that we briefly touched on in As Many Fools As Possible from December 19?

Well, the defense just came on a blitz, and by the “defense,” I mean Christine Lagarde and the European Central Bank (ECB).

Here’s a smattering of headlines from today’s ECB presser, as rendered by my Bloomberg terminal:

- ECB: BOND PURCHASES WILL CONTINUE FOR “AS LONG AS NECESSARY”
- ECB: BOND PURCHASES WILL END SHORTLY BEFORE FIRST RATE RISE
- ECB EXPECTS KEY RATES TO REMAIN “AT THEIR PRESENT, OR LOWER LEVELS”
- ECB: RATE GUIDANCE APPLIES UNTIL UNDERLYING INFLATION ROBUSTLY CONVERGES WITH TARGET
- LAGARDE: ECB COMMITTED TO SYMMETRY ON INFLATION
- LAGARDE: NEED HIGHLY ACCOMODATIVE STANCE FOR PROLONGED PERIOD
- LAGARDE: ECB TO REVIEW HOW TO MEASURE INFLATION, TOOLS
- LAGARDE: INFLATION OUTLOOK STILL SUBDUED

In other words, the circumstances are changing.

Now what?

If you'll recall from my December 12 commentary, Let Me Be Clear, I suggested that, through the monetization of U.S. deficit spending, the Federal Reserve was attempting to weaken the U.S. dollar.

But it wasn't just the American central bank acting to devalue its home currency. Here's how I closed that December 12 note:

With central banks around the world seemingly testing to see who's able to weaken their currency the fastest, there's a distinct possibility we'll see a series of 'competitive devaluations' in the coming year, maybe even a Currency War to augment the Trade War.

Well, if December was the opening salvo from J. Powell & Co., it appears that Lagarde & Partners may have just fired back.

I mean, in their very own words, they state that "quantitative easing" will continue until rates rise, and – in the very next sentence – they suggest they expect rates to remain at current or lower levels.

In other words, "QE" is here to stay...

[insert]

And, just to throw salt in the wound, they even chose select words and phrases that are identical to what the Fed used in the statement released following its December meeting:

"Symmetry on inflation"...

“Review how to measure inflation”...

“Inflation outlook still subdued”...

It’s truly astounding.

I’m not touching on this as a victory lap. No, my intention is to remind you that we’ve had this on our radar screen. And, just as with film study for athletes, if we know our opponent’s tendencies, we improve our odds of constructing the appropriate response.

I mention it because while all of Wall Street is fully on board with the usual list of “weak U.S. dollar” trades (long emerging markets, long commodities, long the euro, etc.), we can prepare ourselves for the outcome where the crowd ends up collectively wrong.

[chart]

Need proof?

Here’s what Lagarde & Partners managed to do to the euro today...

[chart]

And with the euro, down went emerging markets, represented by the iShares MSCI Emerging Markets ETF (NYSEArca: EEM), with was down 2%; crude oil, which was down 2.7%; copper, which was down 1.8%... the list goes on...

By no means do I believe this is the end to this Currency War.

And, with the Fed awaiting its next turn on offense Wednesday, January 29, you can bet we'll likely get a few more clues as to which side has the upper hand in this battle.

It's certainly something I'll be watching for Delta Profit Trader members...

How to Play It

The 2020 election has replaced the Trade War as the primary risk for investors. That's because, as we've been saying for some time now, this is the most politicized market in history.

And the Tweeter-in-Chief is still in charge. So, the situation is changing almost by the minute.

It's "Impeachment!" in Imperial Washington and all over the Mainstream Media. It's "Easy Money!" on Wall Street and across Bubblevision.

And it seems as if the whole world has, indeed, gone mad.

Amid this chaos, prices will continue to rise and fall, trends will continue to develop and dissipate.

Here's where I usually say, "Well, The Stockman Letter is made for times like these." I can say that because we brought aboard Michael Coolbaugh to update our design to help us better navigate to not only the safest harbors but also the most promising opportunities.

And he's doing that. He's also launched a complementary investment newsletter, Delta Profit Trader, that promises "higher frequency" engagement with markets.

Click here to view the "Delta Profit Summit," where Michael explains his whole approach to investing in this environment.

The stakes are as high as they can be heading into 2020. Markets appear to be straining, catching up to an economy that's been weak and getting weaker for years.

The Donald is tied up in the day-to-day movements of the major stock indexes like no president before him. The increasingly desperate incumbent will do anything he must to hold the White House.

It's a major tipping point. And there's no telling what the Donald's great disruptions could do to your wealth....."

Much too little, too late! That's reality!]

The trumpian american debacle lays bare the philosophical dilemma confronting the very foundations of so-called american democracy (at best a rallying cry, revolutionary fiction). Aristotle in book 5 of his Politics distinguishes between democracy and ochlocracy. Ochlocracy essentially means rule by those incapable of ruling even themselves... as exemplified in and by the american and French concepts of 'democracy'.

obama/holder/BIDEN ... Remember those guys?

It's the revolving door at its most despicable. Eric Holder spent six years as attorney general, and failed to prosecute banks for their criminal wrongdoing or put any bank executives behind bars. Now, he's set to rejoin his old white-collar criminal defense firm, making millions each year helping Wall Street bankers avoid criminal consequences.¹

Worse, it was just reported that the firm, Covington & Burling, has kept an empty 11th floor corner office for Holder awaiting his return. Combined with Holder's purchase a year ago of a $1.5 million condo just 300 feet from his new office raises serious questions about how long Holder knew he would be getting a major payday from his old firm even while it continued to represent companies under Department of Justice investigation. If the firm and Holder agreed on a future job offer, that alone could violate criminal laws.²

The leaders of the House and Senate Judiciary committees owe it to the American people to explore all communications between a sitting attorney general and a firm that appears to have been holding a job for him while its clients negotiated legal settlements with the Justice Department.

Tell Congress: Subpoena former Attorney General Eric Holder's communications with his corporate law firm while serving as head of the Department of Justice. Click here to sign the petition.

Wall Street banks committed fraud that crashed the economy and then illegally foreclosed on countless homeowners, but still not a single big bank executive has gone to jail. In many cases, the Justice Department under Eric Holder's leadership refused even to prosecute banks for criminal acts, despite whistleblowers coming forward to guide investigators to the key evidence. In the rare cases where prosecutors brought charges, they quickly agreed on settlements that allowed banks to get off the hook with empty promises, token fines, no admissions of wrongdoing, no one losing their job, and no one going to jail.

We knew that Eric Holder's long career in white-collar criminal defense biased him against confronting mega banks, and many expected him to return to Covington & Burling after he left office. But only recently did it come to light that the firm had reserved a space for him in its new building well before he had announced his intention to resign. Not only that, last year Holder and his wife purchased a $1.5 million just 300 feet from the firm's downtown office, a move that many interpret to suggest he knew he would return. The firm's chairman even admitted in an interview that Holder's return was "a project I've been working on since I started as chair [in 2008]." ³

Did Covington & Burling make concrete promises to Holder while he was still serving as attorney general? Holding a corner office alone could constitute a violation of U.S. criminal code prohibiting "an arrangement concerning prospective employment." ⁴

Tell Congress: Subpoena former Attorney General Eric Holder's communications with his corporate law firm while serving as head of the Department of Justice. Click here to sign the petition.

Even if there is no smoking gun of criminal behavior, the mere fact that Holder will now make millions getting rich criminals off the hook is a revolting example of the revolving door. Covington & Burling represents JPMorgan Chase, Goldman Sachs, Citibank, and nearly every other Wall Street titan. Disturbingly, the firm's marketing materials include glowing references to Lanny Breuer. In Breuer's four years as head of the Justice Department's criminal division under Holder, he sent not a single banker to jail for crimes committed during the financial meltdown. In 2013, Breuer left the DOJ for a job at Covington where his salary was reported to start at around $4 million a year. The firm is notable for helping big banks find the legal justification for much of the rampant securitization that led to the financial crash and ensuing foreclosure fraud. ⁵

Covington & Burling has already brought on six of Holder's colleagues from the Justice Department, including the former head of the criminal division who refused to investigate banks, and the firm reportedly views Holder as a "rainmaker" who will bring in new business. Holder himself recently said his role model is a former attorney general who used his position to become the first lawyer to charge $1,000 an hour. ⁶ Even if Holder never shows up in court to represent his clients, he and Covington & Burling clearly plan to trade on expertise and insider connections to defend illegal behavior and rake in big bucks.⁷

Holder's new job is already a national disgrace. The least the leaders of the House and Senate Judiciary Committees can do is make sure it isn't criminal, as well.

This Week's Highlights:

- Stocks had a rough week with traders worried about the coronavirus.
- It was a short week, since exchanges were closed for Martin Luther King Jr. Day on Monday.
- It was a choppy week, but Friday was the worst day: the S&P finished with its worst close since January 15th.
- With Friday's loss, the major indices dropped below some key levels:
 - The S&P finished below 3,300 and the DOW dropped below 29,000.

Here's what traders are focusing on:

- Coronavirus –

On Friday, the CDC confirmed the 2nd case of the virus in the U.S. (over the weekend a 3rd case in California was confirmed). The virus could have a major impact on spending and travel, and this has traders worried. On Saturday, Chinese Vice Minister of Transport said that travel on the first day of the Lunar New Year is down 28.8% from a year ago. And the government is encouraging people to stay home and restricting travel for millions.

- Earnings –

According to FactSet, a little more than 16% of S&P 500 companies have reported earnings. And of these, companies, 70% have reported better than expected numbers.

The trumpian american debacle lays bare the philosophical dilemma confronting the very foundations of so-called american democracy (at best a rallying cry, revolutionary fiction). Throughout recorded history, the most powerful leveling invariably resulted from the most powerful shocks. Four different kinds of violent ruptures have flattened inequality: mass mobilization warfare, transformative revolution, state failure, and lethal pandemics. I call these the Four Horsemen of Leveling. Just like their biblical counterparts, they went forth to “take peace from the earth” and “kill with sword, and with hunger, and with death, and with the beasts of the earth.” Sometimes acting individually and sometimes in concert with one another, they produced outcomes that to contemporaries often seemed nothing short of apocalyptic.

Worse, it was just reported that the firm, Covington & Burling, has kept an empty 11th floor corner office for Holder awaiting his return. Combined with Holder’s purchase a year ago of a $1.5 million condo just 300 feet from his new office raises serious questions about how long Holder knew he would be getting a major payday from his old firm even while it continued to represent companies under Department of Justice investigation. If the firm and Holder agreed on a future job offer, that alone could violate criminal laws.²

The leaders of the House and Senate Judiciary committees owe it to the American people to explore all communications between a sitting attorney general and a firm that appears to have been holding a job for him while its clients negotiated legal settlements with the Justice Department.

Wall Street banks committed fraud that crashed the economy and then illegally foreclosed on countless homeowners, but still not a single big bank executive has gone to jail. In many cases, the Justice Department under Eric Holder's leadership refused even to prosecute banks for criminal acts, despite whistleblowers coming forward to guide investigators to the key evidence. In the rare cases where prosecutors brought charges, they quickly agreed on settlements that allowed banks to get off the hook with empty promises, token fines, no admissions of wrongdoing, no one losing their job, and no one going to jail.

We knew that Eric Holder's long career in white-collar criminal defense biased him against confronting mega banks, and many expected him to return to Covington & Burling after he left office. But only recently did it come to light that the firm had reserved a space for him in its new building well before he had announced his intention to resign. Not only that, last year Holder and his wife purchased a $1.5 million just 300 feet from the firm's downtown office, a move that many interpret to suggest he knew he would return. The firm's chairman even admitted in an interview that Holder's return was "a project I've been working on since I started as chair [in 2008]." ³

Did Covington & Burling make concrete promises to Holder while he was still serving as attorney general? Holding a corner office alone could constitute a violation of U.S. criminal code prohibiting "an arrangement concerning prospective employment." ⁴

Tell Congress: Subpoena former Attorney General Eric Holder's communications with his corporate law firm while serving as head of the Department of Justice. Click here to sign the petition.

Even if there is no smoking gun of criminal behavior, the mere fact that Holder will now make millions getting rich criminals off the hook is a revolting example of the revolving door. Covington & Burling represents JPMorgan Chase, Goldman Sachs, Citibank, and nearly every other Wall Street titan. Disturbingly, the firm's marketing materials include glowing references to Lanny Breuer. In Breuer's four years as head of the Justice Department's criminal division under Holder, he sent not a single banker to jail for crimes committed during the financial meltdown. In 2013, Breuer left the DOJ for a job at Covington where his salary was reported to start at around $4 million a year. The firm is notable for helping big banks find the legal justification for much of the rampant securitization that led to the financial crash and ensuing foreclosure fraud. ⁵

Covington & Burling has already brought on six of Holder's colleagues from the Justice Department, including the former head of the criminal division who refused to investigate banks, and the firm reportedly views Holder as a "rainmaker" who will bring in new business. Holder himself recently said his role model is a former attorney general who used his position to become the first lawyer to charge $1,000 an hour.⁶ Even if Holder never shows up in court to represent his clients, he and Covington & Burling clearly plan to trade on expertise and insider connections to defend illegal behavior and rake in big bucks.⁷

Holder's new job is already a national disgrace. The least the leaders of the House and Senate Judiciary Committees can do is make sure it isn't criminal, as well.

RULING ON DEFENDANT UNITED STATES'S MOTION TO DISMISS DORSEY, Senior District Judge.

The United States moves to dismiss all Plaintiff's claims. The motion is granted.

230 I. JURISDICTION

Plaintiff, pro se, sues under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization Act ("RICO"), 18 U.S.C. §§ 1961-1968, and the Federal Tort Claims Act ("FTCA"), 28 U.S.C. §§ 1291, 1346, 1402, 2401-2402, 2411-2412, 2671-2680. This court has subject matter jurisdiction pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 1964(a) and 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1346(b) (1).

II. BACKGROUND

The facts are taken as alleged in the complaint[1]. Plaintiff alleges a broad-ranging conspiracy involving the United States of America, the U.S. Bankruptcy Courts, various U.S. District Court Judges, various U.S. Bankruptcy Trustees, the U.S. Attorney's Office, Donald Trump, the FBI, and fifteen John Doe defendants. The scheme involves the United States laundering proceeds from illegal drug sales through the New Jersey casinos of Donald Trump and systematically defrauding bankruptcy creditors and debtors through the theft of property and surplus funds generated through bankruptcy sales. Plaintiff further alleges fraud and a massive cover-up, effected by misrepresenting court proceedings and removing court documents, as part of the underlying crimes that give rise to his civil RICO claims.

In 1987, Plaintiff commenced an action alleging civil RICO violations in the U.S. District Court for the District of New Jersey to recover money owed to him by a Mr. Dilena. The case was assigned to District Judge Maryanne Trump Barry[2]. The thrust of his claim was that Mr. Dilena diverted funds owed to Plaintiff and comingled them with illicit drug profits that were then laundered through the Trump casinos. Contemporaneous to the 1987 RICO action, Plaintiff claims that he informed Assistant U.S. Attorney Jonathan Lacey of the RICO scheme and provided him with documents to support his theory. After no answer from Mr. Lacey for several months, Plaintiff learned Mr. Lacey was no longer with the U.S. Attorney's office and that his documents could not be found. Plaintiff delivered another package of the same documents several months later to U.S. Attorney Sam Alito.[3] After no contact for several months Plaintiff learned that Mr. Alito was no longer working in the U.S. Attorney's office and that his documents could not be located. Plaintiff then attempted to tell his story to agents of the FBI, but they were not receptive.

As a result of deliberately slow proceedings in his 1987 RICO action, Plaintiff filed for bankruptcy in New Jersey in 1988. Later in 1988, he sought to recuse Judge Barry because she was the sister of Donald Trump, owner of the Trump Casinos involved in the RICO scheme. At this time Plaintiff met with then U.S. Bankruptcy Trustee Hugh Leonard to convince him to join Plaintiff's motion to recuse. Mr. Leonard declined. The 1987 RICO action was dismissed in 1989.....

 The coverup was appealed to the second circuit court of appeals, and the u.s.supreme court petitioned for certiorari ... Coverup Sustained ... Petition for Cert. Denied Plaintiff's RICO Statement of Damages as required and by way of appended exhibit to the RICO Verified Complaint was an Estimated Grand Total $26,500,160 .

Donald Trump Did The Most Trump Thing When Michael Bloomberg Gave Him Advice

Michael Bloomberg said he hasn't spoken to President Donald Trump in more than three years, but their last conversation was a doozy.

On "The Tonight Show" Tuesday, the Democratic presidential candidate recalled a request by Trump to call him after he'd been elected in 2016. Bloomberg obliged. So when Trump asked Bloomberg what he should do, Bloomberg said he advised him thusly: "You've never been in government before – what you need to do is get some people that have experience, try to find a bunch of people who are smarter than you."

"At which point he alleged that there weren't any," Bloomberg added.

The former New York City mayor let the line sink in for a moment.

"And then he gave me his private cell number, which I didn't bother to write down," Bloomberg added.

The two haven't talked since, the 2020 hopeful said.

Bloomberg recounted details of the phone call to CBS News earlier this week and said Trump was polite.

Perhaps Bloomberg was saving Trump's boastful response for late night national television.

Today's Highlights:

- It was a rough morning: The major indices opened lower and continued to drop in the morning. At one point, the S&P was down almost 1.0%.
- The early losses were tied to ongoing coronavirus concerns and a rising death toll in China. There are now more than 8,000 confirmed cases and 171 deaths.
- And in the afternoon the World Health Organization (WHO) declared the coronavirus a global health emergency.

- But after the announcement, stocks shot higher and rallied into the close.
- Coca-Cola (KO) was an earnings winner today, leading the DOW with a 3.3% gain.
- Microsoft (MSFT) was the 2nd biggest gainer in the DOW, up 2.8% after an earnings beat.
- Facebook (FB) was one of the biggest losers in the NASDAQ 100, down more than 8.0% after yesterday's earnings report which revealed a big jump in expenses.
- Traders will keep an eye on Amazon (AMZN) tomorrow after a huge earnings win for the company. The stock is up more than 12% in after-hours trading after beating earnings and revenue expectations.

america today:

When Ivana trump reported decades ago how mentally ill mobster trump obsessively listened to hitler orations with admiration, who would have thought we'd see the upshot of such defective mindset made reality today. Indeed, broken america would be fertile ground for the likes of hitler et als this day as we see in trump et als. Really quite tragic, pathetic! Yet, as set forth in the links that follow, that tragic reality has been readily apparent for quite some time. No excuses are acceptable! america is the guilty nation without any credibility whatsoever, domestically or internationally! For the once great nation america there is no tomorrow!

Pandemic and Impeachment and Liquidity and Disaster
David Stockman | January 31, 2020

That's great, it starts with an earthquake
Birds and snakes, and aeroplanes
And Lenny Bruce is not afraid

– R.E.M., “It’s the End of the World as We Know It (And I Feel Fine)” (1987)

...

“And, still, the entire Acela Corridor’s ruling elite – from Imperial Washington to Wall Street – seems euthanized to the developing calamity over which they preside.”

That’s where I left it on Wednesday before I handed things over to Michael Coolbaugh for his regular Thursday market commentary. As Mike noted, “With equities near record-high valuations, I get the urge to channel my inner Inspector Harry Callahan...”

That is: “You’ve got to ask yourself one question: ‘Do I feel lucky?’ Well, do you, punk?”

The Dow Jones Industrial Average is indeed off more than 500 points heading into the end of trading this week; and it’s been an adventurous one...

- Will there be a “Coronavirus Pandemic”...
- Will the President of the United States be impeached...
- Will the Federal Reserve never stop its liquidity flood...

Of course, at the end of the day, in this politicized market, all roads – and all “bullet lists” – lead to Imperial Washington and the anchors it’s weighted on the Main Street economy.

Indeed, the Duopoly’s profligacy is down to domination by advocates of empire and the military-industrial-surveillance complex that feeds off it. The Welfare State is a multitrillion dollar bribe.

But we can certainly label some parties more guilty than others, like the Trumpified GOP.

Let's run some numbers.

Between the fourth quarter of 2012 and the fourth quarter of 2016 – basically Obama's second term – national defense spending declined by $64 billion, or about 8%, as peak expenditures for the Iraq and Afghanistan invasions slowly wound down.

Well, it's been off to the races since the Donald arrived in the Oval Office.

During the most recently reported quarter – the three months ended September 30, 2019 – national defense spending had soared to $850 billion at an annualized rate.

It's up more than 16%.

[\[Click to Enlarge\]](#)

At the same time, there was no let-up in domestic spending, either.

In fact, the Trumpified GOP has all but surrendered on the big retirement entitlements – and right as the Baby Boom tsunami is about to swamp the rolls at a 11,000 per day rate during the Turbulent Twenties.

What that means, as a practical matter, is that spending growth is now accelerating based on the pure interaction of legal entitlements, enrollment growth, and high medical-cost inflation.

So, lack of legislative action to reform and curtail entitlements amounts to acquiescence in a sharply increased rate of spending growth.

Thus, during Obama's last term, federal transfer-payment spending for social security, the medical entitlements, food stamps, and cash assistance rose from $1.79 trillion per year during the fourth quarter of 2012 to a $2.03 trillion rate by the fourth quarter of 2016. That's a 3.2% annualized rate of gain.

During the third quarter of 2019, transfer-payment spending had already risen to a $2.35 trillion annual rate; the growth rate had already accelerated to 5.4% per year.

And it's only going to get worse from here.

Accelerating rates of growth are a monumental problem. Compared to a gain of $51 billion per year in the fourth quarter of 2016, the rate of increase in transfer-payment spending had already accelerated by three times, to $166 billion by the third quarter of 2019.

[\[Click to Enlarge\]](#)

The same is true of the third great category of the federal budget: interest expense.

During the four years ending December 31, 2016, gross interest expense on the federal debt totaled $466 billion per year, representing a modest 1.16% annual rate of increase from the $445 billion level as of March 31, 2012.

To be sure, this temporary flat-lining trend was an aberration. Even as the federal debt was growing by leaps and bounds during Obama’s second term, the Fed’s endless financial repression via “quantitative easing” had steadily lowered the weighted average nut.

No more.

Even though interest rates are artificially low, they've essentially been cycling in a range between 1.5% and 2.3% on the 10-year benchmark since the Donald arrived in the Oval Office.

Consequently, as the public debt has soared, so has gross interest expense.

During the third quarter of 2019, interest expense soared to a $585 billion annual rate. That's an 8.62% annual rate of gain since the end of 2016.

Note that the annual deficit is soaring toward $2 trillion, and the built-in rise of the federal debt causes outstandings to rise from $23 trillion to $43 trillion during the decade ahead...

[\[Click to Enlarge\]](#)

Of course, the Trumpified GOP pretends either that none of these baleful trends exist or that they have a “double-secret” plan to fix everything after the 2020 election.

In fact, they’re full of shit. That goes for the other half of the Duopoly too, the Nancy Pelosi’s/Chuck Schumer’s/Joe Biden’s/Bernie Sanders’s/Elizabeth Warren’s/AOC’s Democrats...

They cling – first and foremost – to their incumbency and the perks and pelf of office. That’s why Republicans cut taxes by the staggering sum of $1.7 trillion on Christmas Eve 2017 without making even token efforts to offset the revenue loss with spending cuts or more benign forms of taxation.

So, the rate of federal revenue growth has sharply decelerated – the opposite of the accelerating spending trends.

[\[Click to Enlarge\]](#)

To wit, owing to expiration of some of the anti-recession tax cuts after 2012 and the slow but steady recovery of the U.S. economy, federal receipts increased from $2.77 trillion in the fourth quarter of 2012 to $3.49 trillion per year in the fourth quarter of 2016.

That represented a healthy 6.0% annualized rate of increase.

By contrast, owing to the 2018 tax cut and the decelerating rate of growth in 2019, federal receipts totaled just $3.62 trillion at an annual rate in the third quarter of 2019. Accordingly, the rate of federal revenue growth has slowed to just 1.37% per year since the fourth quarter of 2016.

Art Laffer and the other supply-side charlatans notwithstanding, that anemic rate of gain doesn't sound like growing your way out of debt.

To the contrary, during the Donald's 11 quarters in the Oval Office, federal spending has increased at a 5.32% annual rate. That's nearly four times faster than receipts.

If the Trumpified GOP has a fiscal formula, it amounts to burying the nation in public debt.

And it virtually guarantees the interest-rate-clubbing Fedheads will continue to expand their balance sheet and monetize it all.

The question is, how long will this massive stock market bubble survive the fiscal and monetary disasters dead ahead?

When the Stakes Are High

This is the most politicized market in history. And the Tweeter-in-Chief is still in charge. So, the situation is changing almost by the minute.

It's "Impeachment!" in Imperial Washington and all over the Mainstream Media. It's "Easy Money!" on Wall Street and across Bubblevision.

And it seems as if the whole world has, indeed, gone mad.

Amid this chaos, prices will continue to rise and fall, trends will continue to develop and dissipate.

Well, The Stockman Letter is made for times like these. And we've updated our design to help us better navigate to not only the safest harbors but also the most promising opportunities.

The stakes are as high as they can be heading into 2020. Markets appear to be straining, catching up to an economy that's been weak and getting weaker for years.

The Donald is tied up in the day-to-day movements of the major stock indexes like no president before him. The increasingly desperate incumbent will do anything he must to hold the White House.

It's a major tipping point. And there's no telling what the Donald's great disruptions could do to your wealth.

You've got to be nimble to win in this market... and we're here to help you do that.

To common sense,

David

Consequently, as the public debt has soared, so has gross interest expense.

During the third quarter of 2019, interest expense soared to a $585 billion annual rate. That's an 8.62% annual rate of gain since the end of 2016.

Note that the annual deficit is soaring toward $2 trillion, and the built-in rise of the federal debt causes outstandings to rise from $23 trillion to $43 trillion during the decade ahead...

[Chart]

Of course, the Trumpified GOP pretends either that none of these baleful trends exist or that they have a "double-secret" plan to fix everything after the 2020 election.

In fact, they're full of shit. That goes for the other half of the Duopoly too, the Nancy Pelosi's/Chuck Schumer's/Joe Biden's/Bernie Sanders's/Elizabeth Warren's/AOC's Democrats...

They cling – first and foremost – to their incumbency and the perks and self of office. That's why Republicans cut taxes by the staggering sum of $1.7 trillion on Christmas Eve 2017 without making even token efforts to offset the revenue loss with spending cuts or more benign forms of taxation.

So, the rate of federal revenue growth has sharply decelerated – the opposite of the accelerating spending trends.

[Chart]

To wit, owing to expiration of some of the anti-recession tax cuts after 2012 and the slow but steady recovery of the U.S. economy, federal receipts increased from $2.77 trillion in the fourth quarter of 2012 to $3.49 trillion per year in the fourth quarter of 2016.

That represented a healthy 6.0% annualized rate of increase.

By contrast, owing to the 2018 tax cut and the decelerating rate of growth in 2019, federal receipts totaled just $3.62 trillion at an annual rate in the third quarter of 2019. Accordingly, the rate of federal revenue growth has slowed to just 1.37% per year since the fourth quarter of 2016.

Art Laffer and the other supply-side charlatans notwithstanding, that anemic rate of gain doesn't sound like growing your way out of debt.

To the contrary, during the Donald's 11 quarters in the Oval Office, federal spending has increased at a 5.32% annual rate. That's nearly four times faster than receipts.

If the Trumpified GOP has a fiscal formula, it amounts to burying the nation in public debt.

And it virtually guarantees the interest-rate-clubbing Fedheads will continue to expand their balance sheet and monetize it all.

The question is, how long will this massive stock market bubble survive the fiscal and monetary disasters dead ahead?

When the Stakes Are High

This is the most politicized market in history. And the Tweeter-in-Chief is still in charge. So, the situation is changing almost by the minute.

It's "Impeachment!" in Imperial Washington and all over the Mainstream Media. It's "Easy Money!" on Wall Street and across Bubblevision.

And it seems as if the whole world has, indeed, gone mad.

Amid this chaos, prices will continue to rise and fall, trends will continue to develop and dissipate.

Well, The Stockman Letter is made for times like these. And we've updated our design to help us better navigate to not only the safest harbors but also the most promising opportunities.

The stakes are as high as they can be heading into 2020. Markets appear to be straining, catching up to an economy that's been weak and getting weaker for years.

The Donald is tied up in the day-to-day movements of the major stock indexes like no president before him. The increasingly desperate incumbent will do anything he must to hold the White House.

It's a major tipping point. And there's no telling what the Donald's great disruptions could do to your wealth.

You've got to be nimble to win in this market... and we're here to help you do that.

To common sense,

David"

Andrea Cyr Al Peia we tried to warn them! No one could have predicted the extent of enabling he would come to receive.

For me, 2016, a warning to all indeed; albeit unheeded. Prior to that it was astonishment how feds, doj, courts et als were falling all over one another to cover-up substantial trump crimes. The answer, not obvious at first, was that they were all looking for that easy payday, one way or another. Laundered money needs a place to go. Stolen money, from the government, boondoggles, now emoluments in a very big way, needed protection/cover; hence, guilty mobster/criminal trump who needed protection/cover from prosecution. They're all a bunch of criminal slugs, dependent on the illegal funds which are mindbogglingly huge, in the trillions. Democrats/republicans indistinguishably dirty; ie., White House Threat: 'Vote Against the President and Your Head Will Be On A Pike'

Al Peia Absolutely true! trump's a mobster/gangster! The feds/state law enforcement, courts federal/state have been covering up for him for decades. The real america, as I replied to Doug, 'Quite right Doug; but, meaningfully lawless society is more to the point since we have loads of laws but for some american criminals, ie., trump et als, they're literally the real 'untouchables' (Elliot Ness, truly the legendary untouchable died a broken man, pauper, the real american story). Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, even California (opposite their current positions) covered for mentally ill mobster/criminal trump et als. Lesson: In america, big crime pays, and pays well. america is a complete and total fraud!' ... [The tv version of 'The Untouchables' featured an italian, Robert Stack (probably some guilt feelings belying his heritage). I'd love to see a spoof on the big screen of the american reality, "The Touchables". americans by nature are always for sale.

obama/holder/BIDEN ... Remember those guys? [To be fair and balanced, there's also the bush/cheneypaulsen axis of evildoing/war crimes/fraud in the factum, etc.] "It's the revolving door at its most despicable. Eric Holder spent six years as attorney general, and failed to prosecute banks for their criminal wrongdoing or put any bank executives behind bars. Now, he's set to rejoin his old white-collar criminal defense firm, making millions each year helping Wall Street bankers avoid criminal consequences.¹ Worse, it was just reported that the firm, Covington & Burling, has kept an empty 11th floor corner office for Holder awaiting his return. Combined with Holder's purchase a year ago of a $1.5 million condo just 300 feet from his new office raises serious questions about how long Holder knew he would be getting a major payday from his old firm even while it continued to represent companies under Department of Justice investigation. If the firm and Holder agreed on a future job offer, that alone could violate criminal laws.² ...”

Market Update for Sunday - February 2nd, 2020

This Week's Highlights:

It was a busy week: Coronavirus, Fed and Earnings:

- The Fed kept rates unchanged on Wednesday. But with traders focused on earnings and the coronavirus, the Fed comments were really just a blip on the radar last week.
- On Thursday, stocks experienced a big swing after the World Health Organization (WHO) declared the coronavirus a global health emergency.
- On Friday stocks plunged with the DOW down 600 points (its worst day since August).
- And with Friday's drop, the DOW and S&P are both negative for the year.

Here's what traders are focusing on:

- Earnings – 226 companies in the S&P 500 have reported. And 70% of these companies have beaten analyst expectations (according to FactSet).
- Coronavirus – With the virus spreading, traders are really starting to worry about its impact on the global economy. There are now more than 9,500 confirmed cases and 213 deaths, with the virus spreading to 18 other countries.

When I saw the excellent film, ‘Voyage of the Damned’, Lee Grant et als, on the big screen, I did not understand how such could happen in this country. Now I do!

Markus Heitkoetter - Rockwell Trading

True story: In 2002, everything changed for me.

I quit my 6-figure job as a director at IBM and moved 5,680 miles from Munich in Germany to Austin, TX - leaving EVERYTHING behind.

Here’s what happened:

After college, I started work for IBM, and life is good.

I am working for IBM Global Services as a consultant in the late 90s, and I quickly work my way up the corporate ladder.

Within 3 years I have a responsibility for what IBM calls EMEA – that’s Europe, Middle East and Africa, and I’m traveling the world.

I stay in 5-star hotels, travel first class, and my rental car is always a nice BMW.

But all this has its price: I am working 60-80 hours per week, and I’m on the road 6 out of 7 days, and I am getting burned out.

So I something very daring:

I decided to quit a nice six-figure job as a director at IBM to become a full-time trader.

And I moved 5,480 miles from Munich in Germany to Austin, TX to start my new life.

I had $20,000 in my trading account!

And I was excited. I left the corporate world behind and was FINALLY free to do what I REALLY wanted: Trading. But it didn't go well...

Not at all!

Because within a few weeks, my account was already down.

I lost almost half of my money, since I didn't have a proven system.

I jumped from one trading strategy to the next...
... and I was panicking.

So I bought more books, courses, indicators, software packages, and I invested a lot of time and money... only to get more confused.

Yes, I did have some winning trades, but overall my account was still going down.

I was bleeding to death.

I was now 8 months into my 1-year deadline.

I had only 4 more months before my time was up, and I had to go back to work for "the man" – because that's what I promised my family.

I never forget the moment, when I was sitting at the kitchen table at night. It was dark... and I'm desperate.... almost ready to give up, ... when it hit me!

I suddenly knew what I did wrong, and how to fix it!

I wrote down my new plan, and I was excited.

Would you like to know what I did to turn my trading around?

Then join me at our upcoming Stock Trading Bootcamp:

“Are you ready for the 2020 market slaughter?

- From: David Stockman

WHAT IS THE REAL STATE OF THIS UNION?

<https://www.deepstatedeclassified.com/what-is-the-real-state-of-this-union/>

David Stockman | February 05, 2020

There is nothing I detest so much as the contortions of these great time-and-lip servers, these affable dispensers of meaningless embraces, these obliging utterers of empty words, who view every one in civilities. – Molière, The Misanthrope (1666)

...

At this rate, we'll be talking about Dow 30,000 maybe by Friday, Monday at the latest...

Of course, at times like these, it's just as possible that we'll be looking back up at 29,000 before today is over, perhaps 28,000 by next week.

It's just that uncertain right now. Oh, monetary central planners all over the world are doing their best to keep stocks afloat. That's all they can do. Rate cuts and liquidity injections – as the highly respected, widely followed Liz Ann Sonders noted today – have done much for stock prices.

But they haven't done much for Main Street.

That's the thing about the State of the Union... It's neither the Speaker's drama-queen moves nor the Donald's own performative bullying. It's the substance that's lacking, and nobody gives a care, least of all Mainstream Media's courtesans inside Imperial Washington.

The bottom line is this is not the "greatest economy ever." And America's decline continues, unabated, without regard to the Tweeter-in-Chief's bile, bombast, braggadocio, and bullshit.

Indeed, Donald J. Trump, con man, has CNN – whose anchors he banned from a traditional pre-SOTU White House sit-down – pimping a "dazzling" Tuesday night performance.

He's also got Flyover America in his pocket. We'll see what happens if this bubble collapses before November, but, right now, Trump 2020 has the wind in its sails.

And it's more than a little ironic.

We Can't Let the Deep State Win

[Insert]

Start with the fact that the bottom 50% of households – the very voters of Flyover America who put the Donald in the Oval Office – have actually been far richer than they are today.

Since the year 2000, the net worth of the bottom 50% is up by only 17% in nominal terms even as the Consumer Price Index (CPI) has risen by 48%.

No matter how you slice it, the real wealth of much of American society has been shrinking for the entire 21st century and is now 30% below where it stood when Bill Clinton was packing his bags to shuffle out of the White House...

[Chart]

Indeed, even Mr. MAGA himself is thoroughly corrupted by the malignancy of monetary central planning. Look no further than the transcript of his extended interview with CNBC's Joe Kernen at the World Economic Forum in Davos a couple weeks ago.

It's well and truly a case of a fawning empty suit talking to a billowing bag of wind. Almost nothing that passed between the two is even remotely anchored in the foreboding realities that stalk the planet.

In the first place, and despite all the White House and Wall Street cheerleading, there's no difference at all between the Trump economy and the Obama economy, once the we got out of the recessionary woods during his first term.

That is, whatever ailed the U.S. economy under Obama hasn't gone away. And there's no "MAGA trend" improvement whatsoever. None.

On the most comprehensive and stable measure of economic activity – real final sales – economic growth averaged just 2.55% per year during Trump's first seven quarters in the Oval Office. That's lower than the 2.60% per year during Obama's last seven quarters.

Of course, neither Obama nor Trump had much to do with those modest rates of expansion. In both cases, tepid gains were down to capitalism, modulated from quarter to quarter by the push and pull of the global economy, most especially the powerful credit impulses emanating from the Red Ponzi.

But it's impossible to tell where the Obama economy ended and MAGA began without looking at the date axis.

The overlooked point is the more crucial: The "Trump Economy" isn't strong. It's just very old at month No. 128 of the longest, weakest recovery in history.

There's never been so much unsupportable debt and so much growth-impairing malinvestment and state-imposed distortion on the economy as at present.

Consider the labor market.

Before we go any further, let's agree that the correct labor variable is hours employed, not headcounts. That's because the quality of "jobs" has been deteriorating for several decades when measured by average weekly hours and rates of pay. So gross job counts are not comparable over time.

The quality of aggregate hours employed as measured by rates of pay and benefits has also deteriorated over the last several decades. But this metric is not nearly as misleading as the headcount-based Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) numbers.

Peak year-over-year hours gains have been steadily deteriorating since the Reagan boom of the 1980s.

Back in the day "strong" meant 5% per year gains at the peak and more than 2.5% year-over-year gains during most of the expansion.

The peak rate of hours gained dropped to 4% per year during the technology boom of the 1990s. It sank to 2.5% during the Greenspanblown housing bubble between 2001 and 2008. And it plumbed to hardly 2.0% during most of the long expansion since the Great Recession.

It's now fallen to just 1.0%, and indication the tax-cut-induced Trump sugar high of 2018 is already over and done, with labor-hour growth once again sliding toward the flatline.

So, call it what you will. It's just not strong. And it's certainly not accelerating.

And, if you're getting less and less growth over each business cycle on the account of brute force labor hours employed, the only other source of output gain is productivity improvement.

Alas, the long-term trend there is also from strong to weaker and weaker. Across the eight business cycles between 1953 and 2000, for example, nonfarm productivity growth averaged 2.14% per year and actually rose slightly to 2.66% during the peak-to-peak housing bubble from the fourth quarter of 2000 the fourth quarter of 2007.

During the present simulacrum of recovery, not so much...

The productivity growth rate since the pre-crisis peak is just 1.27% per year. That's barely half its historic levels. And there's no acceleration here either.

That's about as basic as it gets; after labor hours growth plus productivity gains, there ain't nothing but hopium...

[Chart]

At the end of the day, you can't entirely blame the Donald for boasting loudly and egregiously. That's what he does.

But it's a measure of the power hunger at both ends of the Acela Corridor that he's made to sound only like a showman echo of what amounts to the prevailing narrative.

And, still, the rot and the malignancies hover just below the surface...
A Bite of Reality

This is the most politicized market in history. And the Tweeter-in-Chief is still in charge. So, the situation is changing almost by the minute.

It's "Impeachment!" in Imperial Washington and all over the Mainstream Media. It's "Easy Money!" on Wall Street and across Bubblevision.

And it seems as if the whole world has, indeed, gone mad.

Amid this chaos, prices will continue to rise and fall, trends will continue to develop and dissipate.

Well, The Stockman Letter is made for times like these. And we've updated our design to help us better navigate to not only the safest harbors but also the most promising opportunities.

The stakes are as high as they can be heading into 2020. Markets appear to be straining, catching up to an economy that's been weak and getting weaker for years.

The Donald is tied up in the day-to-day movements of the major stock indexes like no president before him. The increasingly desperate incumbent will do anything he must to hold the White House.

It's a major tipping point. And there's no telling what the Donald's great disruptions could do to your wealth.

You've got to be nimble to win in this market... and we're here to help you do that.

To common sense,

David"

" WHO IS "DAVOS MAN"? <https://www.deepstatedeclassified.com/who-is-davos-man/>

David Stockman | February 03, 2020

Like the elite of ancient Egypt, most people in most cultures dedicate their lives to building pyramids. Only the names, shapes and sizes of these pyramids change from one culture to the other.

- Yuval Noah Harari, Sapiens: A Brief History of Humankind (2011)

Apparently, 119 billionaires attended the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland, this year.

That includes the Donald, the alleged billionaire who took a day off from Impeachment Theater to address this equally august gathering of global-elite movers and shakers.

There were also 1,500 private jets crowding the surrounding airports – excess that must have drawn the ire of the train-traveling 17-year old expert on planetary climate science Greta Thunberg.

Surely among the 10 billionaires in attendance from communist China was Ren Zhenfei, founder of Huawei and father of its CFO, Meng Wanzhou.

Even as dad courted the rich and famous on the slopes, daughter languished in a Canadian jail, awaiting extradition to the U.S. because she had the audacity to do business with Iran against Imperial Washington's instructions and contra the Tweeter-in-Chief's latest fatwa against Tehran.

These odd juxtapositions – and there were countless more – had me thinking about Davos Man himself and the ultimate juxtaposition of our times...

According to Forbes, 20 years ago the combined net worth of the world's billionaires was $1 trillion.

At this bubble-icious, moment that number is reckoned at just under $10 trillion. So, the 2,150-member global Billionaires Club now has more net worth than 60% of the world's population combined. That's 4.6 billion people!

Noting these facts doesn't put me in with the Bernie Sanders/AOC/Pocahontas brigade. In a world of free markets, honest money, and de minimis government, the more billionaires the better.

What I doubt is that there was an honest and sustainable basis for a 10X gain in the net worth of the Billionaires Club over a two-decade period when nominal global gross domestic product (GDP) only grew from $35 trillion to $85 trillion, or by 2.4 times.

After all, the predominately financial assets comprising the world's net worth are merely the capitalization of its underlying income, or GDP.

And there's no basis in either sound economics or basic math for the former to grow nearly four times faster than the latter for two decades running.

Unless the age-old laws of sound money have been repealed by the economic gods themselves, Davos Man is fixing to become nearly as rare as Neanderthal Man.

Or, maybe this has been a case of Piltdown Man all along...

Recall that the latter had been touted by some British scoundrels in 1912 to be a 500,000-year-old homo sapiens and evolution's missing link. Alas, it was a ho-hum 50,000-year-old human skeleton fused with the jawbone and teeth of a modern orangutan.

If You Want Your Money in the Next Five Years...

America is at a crossroads. The middle class is disappearing... government spending is out of control... and the implosion of Bubble Finance will cause the greatest market crash in history. So, if you need access to your nest egg in the next five years and can't afford another market crash, it's time to take matters into your own hands.

Find out what to do, right here.

It took the world about three decades to figure out that Piltdown Man was a hoax.

But the hoax attendant to Davos Man is already plain as day.

By even tolerating Greta's "impending extinction" hysteria and the Donald's hideous "greatest economy ever" boasts, the assembled billionaires demonstrate that they are not 4X geniuses after all.

They're just bubble riders enjoying the great central banking hoax of the 21st century.

Indeed, I suppose some kind of guilt-tripping accounts for the grandly named World Economic Forum's solicitude for the global warming scam and its program-perfect poster girl.

But why in the world would the purported deep thinkers of Davos not laugh the Donald's malarkey right off the stage?

On the way to Switzerland, he tweeted a superlative that would be the envy of the biggest braggart in the school yard...

And he thickened the goo while at the podium in Davos:

America's newfound prosperity is undeniable, unprecedented and unmatched anywhere in the world... America made this stunning turnaround not by making minor changes to a handful of policies but by adopting a whole new approach. Every decision we make... is focused on improving the lives of everyday Americans. We are determined to create the highest standard of living that anyone can imagine.

Folks, that's just blithering poppycock. We're at the end of the longest and weakest business cycle expansion in history, yet real median household income has barely returned to where it stood two decades ago.

The idea that Trumponomics has anything to do with paving the way for the "highest standard of living that anyone can imagine" is just content-free bluster.

The facts show that the American standard of living has been stagnant for two decades. It's risen and fallen with the business cycle, gaining, on average, the grand sum of $87 per year (in 2018 dollars) since 1999.

The $63,179 median income reported for 2018 is undoubtedly the high-water mark for years to come. Yet it represents a mere 2.7% gain from the $61,526 level posted way back in 1999.

Data for 2019 aren't yet available. But it's evident that the various categories of income gain last year barely kept up with inflation. So, real median family income was flat.

And the coming recession in the early 2020s will send the black bars in the chart sliding lower as they did during and after each of the recessions marked by the white space.

[Chart]

Here's the thing.

The Donald's policies have immensely harmed the foundations on which today's tepidly expanding business cycle rests.

Yet there's been no short-run benefit in terms of accelerating overall GDP growth. In fact, we've seen a sharp deceleration of business investment and export growth.

Likewise, the vaunted 70% of GDP attributable to personal consumption spending is being kept alive by borrowing.

Nearly 67% of the gain in personal consumption expenditures since the fourth quarter of 2012, when the U.S. had fully recovered from the Great Recession, has been accounted for by household debt growth.

[Chart]

What the "strong economy" gummets forget, of course, is that, sooner or later, you have to pay the piper. And you're supposed to pay down debt during the "up" phase of the cycle. But that hasn't been happening this time around.

Boast all you want about the "greatest economy ever" to stock-options-rich crowds.

Indeed, it's grade-A bullshit befitting the A-list Davos crowd.

But it doesn't gainsay the unsustainable economic and monetary rot upon which it's all based.

We're heading for a lot of strum und drang in the Turbulent Twenties.

But the alleged adults in the room don't have a clue. They think America's fantasy of "free lunch" economics and unhinged partisan warfare is

[Chart]

If you're sitting on phantasmagorical stock market paper values and not sweating bullets about the implications of central banks' $25 trillion balance sheet, the world's $255 trillion of debt, the Red Ponzi's monumental malinvestment, the Donald's wars on trade, immigrants, and (fiscal) sanity, the Duopoly's assault on constitutional government in America, the Empire's claim to global extraterritoriality, and the statist grab for power in the name of a phony climate crisis, then you are not paying attention.

Each of these force vectors is bearing down on the pathway ahead. One thing stands apart, though...

The net worth of the top 1% has soared from $11.8 trillion to $34.5 trillion, or by 193%. Nominal GDP has risen from $10.5 trillion to $21.5 trillion, or by 106%. And the net worth of the bottom 50% has crept up from $1.4 trillion to $1.7 trillion, or by 17%.

Just 17%.

When the wealth of the top 1% (1.3 million households) is growing at nearly twice the rate of national income and by 11 times more than the bottom half of households (63.5 million households), there's absolutely nothing sustainable about it.

It's the reason why the real extinction threat is not the one Greta's scolding her elders about.

It's Davos Man himself.

- After a rally in the morning, the major indices chopped around for the rest of the session and finished higher.

Analyst upgrades helped a few big names today.

- Nike (NKE) was up 3.1% after a JP Morgan and USB upgrade.
- And Tesla (TSLA) jumped 19.9% with its biggest 1-day jump for Tesla in 6 years after an analyst upgrade.
- Carnival Corporation (CCL) was up earlier in the session. But reports that a cruise passenger tested positive for coronavirus sent the stock 1.8% down.
- Gilead Sciences (GILD) jumped 5.0% after reports that the company is testing a treatment for the virus.
- Alphabet (GOOG) will be in the spotlight tomorrow after reporting disappointing earnings after the bell. The stock is down 4.0% in after-hours trading.

"WHEN TO GO TO THE MATTRESSES David Stockman | February 13, 2020

It's not personal, Sonny. It's strictly business. – Michael Corleone, "The Godfather" (1972)

It's Thursday, so Michael Coolbaugh is here with his regular commentary on markets.

Michael's been busy this week, sharing multiple opportunities for his Delta Profit Traders to participate in this week's upside, including, of course, a way to play the response to the coronavirus outbreak in China...

Mike, as he is also wont to do, has a bit of a history lesson for us today – some pictures of the past that will probably prove also to be prologue before too long.

Indeed, if you want to know why we're heading for a financial train-wreck, just consider the back-to-back statements uttered/tweeted earlier this week by arguably the two most powerful economic players on the entire planet:

Powell: "There's nothing about this expansion that is unstable or unsustainable."

Trump: "BEST USA ECONOMY IN HISTORY!"

Powell: "The U.S. economy is in 'a very good place.'"

Trump: "When Jerome Powell started his testimony today, the Dow was up 125, & heading higher. As he spoke it drifted steadily downward, as usual, and is now at -15. Germany & other countries get paid to borrow money. We are more prime, but Fed Rate is too high, Dollar tough on exports."

Notwithstanding the Donald's routine "low interest" dig at the Chair of the Federal Reserve, the real scary thing is that the two took turns praising the unpraiseworthy.

After all, how could anyone in their right mind praise an economy that's gone more than a decade with virtually no gain in industrial production?

The fact is, the business cycle hasn't been outlawed by the economic gods. And it has always and everywhere defeated central bankers who think they partake of the divine.

So, we are now at the expansion's 11th hour, a point 147 months from the pre-crisis peak of the last cycle in November 2007.

And here's all we have to show for it:

manufacturing output is still down by 2.1%;
Gas and electric utility production is still lower by 1.5%; and total industrial production has barely crept forward by 3.9%, a 0.32% annual rate of gain.

We'll address in the February issue of The Stockman Letter – coming next week – the spurious notion that the Donald has made America great again.

For now, here's Mike with some clear warning signs about what's happening in the market...

Where There's Smoke

By Michael Coolbaugh

If you have a moment, I'd like you to join me for a trip back in time...

It's March 1999, and you're a trader on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

Everywhere you turn, there are signs of extreme euphoria.

Qualcomm Inc. (QCOM), already trading at a price-to-earnings ratio of 60x, is beginning to break out for a mind-bending run from $5 a share to $100 over the next nine months.

Cisco Systems Inc. (CSCO), boasting a healthy price-to-earnings ratio of 83x, is also well on its way to nearly tripling over the same nine-month period.

And don't forget those that are no longer around today: Pets.com, Boo.com, Worldcom.

The list goes on...

Now, you're not alone in thinking the world has gone mad. But anyone who tries to short this runaway market gets taken out faster than Michael Corleone took care of the heads of the other five New York Mafia families.

You know you can't let anyone outside the family know what you're thinking, but the "Tarantella" isn't your tune.

So, sure, you could sit this one out.

But you know that when Michael moves to Nevada, there will be enormous opportunities here in New York.

How can you position yourself for success without first losing your shirt?

If You Want Your Money in the Next Five Years...

America is at a crossroads. The middle class is disappearing... government spending is out of control... and the implosion of Bubble Finance will cause the greatest market crash in history. So, if you need access to your nest egg in the next five years and can't afford another market crash, it's time to take matters into your own hands. Find out what to do, right here.

Well, there was a way.

The trade in question resides in the foreign exchange arena. And, outside of global macro trading communities, this arena isn't well known to the public.

I'm talking about the euro-yen cross (EUR/JPY). The EUR/JPY cross is well regarded as a sign of risk sentiment. A rising EUR/JPY cross indicates stronger risk appetite whereas a falling cross means there is greater demand for a safe-haven currency, like the Japanese yen.

Now, I'm not suggesting anyone should go out and attempt to trade FX, especially non-U.S. dollar crosses. Rather, my intent is to reiterate one of my most fundamental trading principles.

And that is this: In almost any case, we should be trading in the direction of the larger trend.

See, if you had the wherewithal to realize the world was out of control as early as December 1998, there were "risk-off" trades you could have made and were with the trend. In this instance, my gauge shows that the trend of EUR/JPY turned bearish as early as November 1998.

In fact, if you bet on a falling EUR/JPY cross, you would have made nearly 37% by the time the S&P 500 Index topped out and witnessed its own shift to a bearish trend in October 2000.

And, while it doesn't quite compare to the meteoric rise in the Nasdaq Composite between November 1998 and October 2000, this "risk-off" trade would have outpaced gains from holding the S&P 500 over that same period.

Pretty staggering if we consider this doesn't even adjust for variances in volatility between asset classes.

Fun fact: If we were to "volatility-adjust" these figures using today's volatility readings, it would imply gains of approximately 87% for the EUR/JPY trade versus about 35% for the S&P 500.

But enough of the past.

The really cool part of all this is, given the lengthy list of similarities between 2000 and the present moment, it's quite intriguing that the same trade is available today...

[Chart]

Again, I'm not recommending anyone run out to trade foreign exchange.

It does, however, bring me to one more very important point that I shared on social media just the other day...

There are times when trade expression and construction are just as important – if not even more critical – than the idea. Some of this simply boils down to my philosophy of trading in the direction of the larger trend.

The other part is this: Despite the push for FAANG stocks and passive indexing from Bubblevision, there will be a time when you really need to think about what exactly your trade expresses and how you construct that trade.

[Chart]

Because, as highly respected researcher on sentiment-driven decision-making Peter Atwater suggested the other day, the market now seems to be playing with fire...

Actually, This Is "Personal Business"...

The combination of the coronavirus outbreak in China and the quadrennial return of presidential politics in the U.S. has replaced the Trade War as the primary risk for investors.

That's because, as we've been saying for some time now, this is the most politicized market in history.

And the Tweeter-in-Chief is still in charge. So, the situation is changing almost by the minute.

It's "Impeachment!" in Imperial Washington and all over the Mainstream Media. It's "Easy Money!" on Wall Street and across Bubblevision.

And it seems as if the whole world has, indeed, gone mad.

Amid this chaos, prices will continue to rise and fall, trends will continue to develop and dissipate.

Here's where I usually say, "Well, The Stockman Letter is made for times like these"...

And I can say that because we brought aboard Michael Coolbaugh to update our design to help us better navigate to not only the safest harbors but also the most promising opportunities.

Today's Highlights:

Yesterday, traders were optimistic about news that coronavirus cases might be slowing down. But with China confirming 15,152 new cases and 254 more coronavirus deaths, there was news that cases have actually spiked.

After a wild ride, all major indices ended the day with a loss.

Airline stocks and casino stocks were hit hardest after the grim coronavirus update:

American Airlines (AAL) finished lower by 1.3% and United Airlines (UAL) lost 1.5%.

Las Vegas Sands (LVS) and Wynn Resorts (WYNN) dropped 2.6% and 2.3% respectively.

Cisco (CSCO) was an earnings loser today, dropping 5.2% after reporting a drop in revenue.

Tesla (TSLA) is trying to take advantage of the recent jump in stock price by raising some capital. The company was up 4.8% today after announcing a $2 billion common stock offering.

David Stockman | February 10, 2020

When one boy among a dozen throws a stone into the air, crying out, that ‘what goes up must come down,’ it is very likely so to happen.

–Theodore Sedgwick, Hints to My Countrymen (1826)

The ill effects of monetary central planning are nearly endless. Foremost among them, though, is its corruption of the financial and economic culture.

There is simply no end to the rot. Consider the Donald’s proposed budget for fiscal 2021. Unveiled on Monday, the plan includes cuts to the Welfare State. But it also includes massive increases for the Warfare State. And, well, of course it does those things.

There’s one other thing, though, and it demonstrates as much as anything that the rot has reached all the way to top. Here’s the estimable and aggravated David Rosenberg with the only “data” that really matter:

[insert]

We are so torn from reality. And it’s only going to get worse.

Constant intervention by central banks to prop up stocks and other risk assets leads to exactly the wrong kind of discounting and, therefore, rampant, unnatural complacency.

Instead of pricing in the myriad factors that would upset growth and earnings, markets militantly discount nearly every manner of risk. Buyers do so upon the conviction that the Federal Reserve has their back and won't tolerate any sustained correction of equity indexes.

Indeed, every coronavirus-driven selloff is met with Bubblevision's "buy the f*ing dip" mentality.

There is, apparently, nothing that man, god, or infinitely foolish power-grabbing and war-mongering governments can do anywhere that monetary central planners can't fix.

So, Wall Street's reckless business of pricing in perfection and ever-rising price-to-earnings multiples are nothing to sweat.

The screaming proof for that predicate surely was the market's 30% surge last year in response to the pathetic Powell Pivot. That was January 4, 2019, exactly after the 19.9% plunge for the S&P 500 Index during December 2018.

In a monetary heartbeat, the Fed threw to the winds a long overdue plan for normalization of interest rates and its balance sheet and did the unthinkable.

In the face of the lowest headline unemployment rate in 50 years and a still-expanding business cycle, our monetary central planners abandoned planned rate increases and instead cut them three times to an idiotic 1.55%.

And that occurred even as it shit-canned "quantitative tightening" and started flooding the market again with $425 billion of freshly minted cash during the final quarter of the year.

[insert]

That's OK, though, because we have Michael Coolbaugh on the case...

If You Want Your Money in the Next Five Years...

The Father of Reaganomics has returned with a dire warning: "Trump may be the Great Disruptor, but he's going to fail at one of his core campaign promises. And his failure could cost you your freedoms AND your wealth."

To learn more about Stockman's prophecy and to find out what you can do to protect yourself, your family, and your assets, just go here.

Historians will surely mark the 2019 Powell Pivot as one of the most mendacious episodes of central banking ever.

There was no "emergency" extant in the domestic or international financial markets during the fourth quarter of 2018. Yet the Fed was pumping credit at a $1.6 trillion annual rate – a that even exceeded Ben Bernanke's furious printing during the depths of the Great Recession.

As we've often discussed, the very idea that the mighty U.S. economy couldn't stand the 2.40% money-market rate that prevailed on the eve of the Powell Pivot is a bad joke.

The trend rate of inflation change, as measured by the stable CPI less food and energy, stood at 2.21% on a year-over-year basis in December 2018. It posted at 2.25% in December 2019. It never dropped below 2.00% during the entire year of furious Fed retreat and liquidity pumping.

The cowards in the Eccles Building would have us believe that a 15 to 20 basis point real rate of interest in the money markets – essentially a funding arena for Wall Street speculators and carry traders, not Main Street households and businesses – would kill prosperity in its tracks.

That's nonsense.

After the Christmas Eve bloodbath last December, they were in deathly fear of an accelerating Wall Street hissy-fit.

[Chart]

So, they invented an excuse: an insurance cut to keep the expansion going. But they had only one purpose: to stimulate the blow-off top that delivered the casino right into the jaws of the coronavirus and all the other real-world risk vectors coming down the pike as the Turbulent Twenties get underway.

This capitulation and coddling would be bad enough if the only thing it did was to intoxicate the traders and gamblers and induce them to get in way over their skies.

But Wall Street doesn't operate in a vacuum. It's a massive, elaborate, and potent signaling system. And it encourages every manner of dangerous and uneconomic behavior on Wall Street and Main Street alike.

If stocks were trading at rational price-to-earnings multiples, of course, they could probably tolerate a pandemic or two. Sooner or later they do end, and human ingenuity does find ways to recapture over time the lost output and interruption costs that they entail.

But when the signal is to "buy the f*ing dip" – over and over and over – because monetary central planners are riding to the rescue, well, it's time to mark the exits.

DEEP STATE DECLASSIFIED

David Stockman | February 11, 2020

Rage against this injustice; let your lives burn with a flame of decency. – Xu Zhangrun, “When Fury Overcomes Fear” (February 4, 2020)

God bless our monetary central planners:

Federal Reserve Chairman Jerome Powell said the central bank is “closely monitoring” the extent of global economic disruptions from the coronavirus in China, singling out a risk that has made officials more likely to lower interest rates than to raise them.

The critical dynamic here is “confidence.” Neither Wall Street nor Main Street can be allowed to become hesitant or afraid, lest they stop borrowing and speculating and buying.

But controlling the narrative is not the same as controlling the virus.

Here's Chris Scott, in an excerpt from his regular Tuesday dispatch on the state of things between the U.S. and China:

Because of the scale and scope of the crisis as well as the speed with which it's developing, authorities haven't been able to control information.

When it comes to information that they can control, it seems the powers that be, and specifically Xi Jinping, are totally lost.

There's more from Chris – who cut short a recent trip to China because of the coronavirus outbreak – below.

[Chart]

For my part here, let's note that authorities outside the Middle Kingdom have no more interest in accurate death totals being released than the Communist Party of China. So, official agencies and the corporate media dutifully parrot implausibly low statistics as if they reflect reality.

At the same time, China has now placed hundreds of millions of its citizens under quarantine.

Workers can't leave their homes. Factories are idle. Ports have stopped shipping. International airlines are suspending flights to and from the country.

China's economy is grinding to a halt.

More than 300 Chinese companies are seeking bank loans totaling at least 57.4 billion yuan ($8.2 billion) to help to soften the impact of the outbreak, reports Reuters.

According to TechNode, AccorFoxconn, the iPhone manufacturer with factories in southern China, hasn't been allowed to restart its operations in many locations.

One broad estimate shows that a $10 billion decrease in Chinese manufacturing output would reduce the rest of the world's output by $6.7 billion.

South Korea, Japan, and the U.S. in particular are likely to feel the impact. The ripple effect on peripheral industries could imperil production worth about $65 billion.

It's not just the economy, either.

That's OK, though, because we have Michael Coolbaugh on the case...

Chinese are tracked by the world's most sophisticated system of electronic surveillance. As Reuters notes, this crisis provides authorities with justification for even more sweeping high-tech social control.

Indeed, partial lockdowns in Beijing and Shanghai have been announced, according to the SCMP, even as Zhejiang Province next door to Shanghai has begun to relax some controls.

Let's turn it back over to our man who was literally just on the ground...
Requiem for a Chinese Dream

By Chris Scott

Since I warned last week against shrugging off the economic impact of the new coronavirus, things just about went off the rails from the standpoint of China's ruling elite.

In the span of just a few days, disturbing stories and images spread across Chinese social media in a manner not seen since before President Xi Jinping's Herculean efforts to tame the internet proved mostly successful over the past several years.

News that a young physician named Li Wenliang who was reprimanded for early warnings of the epidemic died were punctuated by a striking image of the 34-year old in his intensive care unit. People anxiously followed social media posts of care workers pacing nervously outside the room.

What really gave the story legs to be shared along with messages of disgust and horror by seemingly everyone on China's Facebook-like WeChat messaging app was the bizarre timeline of reporting. Li's death was reported by several prominent Chinese news sources late Thursday night – prompting an immediate public uproar – only to be retracted without a clear explanation.

It appeared to netizens, helped by reporters waiting outside of Li's intensive-care unit, that specialists at the hospital were ordered by fearful party officials to shock the young doctor back to life and keep his heart beating.

Everyone's "moments" feed – basically the Chinese equivalent of your Facebook "news feed" – was filled exclusively with comments and shared stories about this event. Just think about that for a second. This was not tribal. Even some party stooges that post news simply to advance the official agenda were posting about this.

The story went far beyond the realm of something that party leadership could attempt to reign in.

More terrifying were the images of residents being dragged out of their apartments to face forced quarantine.

More disturbing still were photos of rows upon rows of hospital beds set up in large arena-like settings, with little if any medical equipment.

Rudderless in a Perfect Storm

Because of the scale and scope of the crisis as well as the speed with which it's developing, authorities haven't been able to control information.

When it comes to information that they can control, it seems the powers that be, and specifically Xi Jinping, are totally lost.

Xi himself has been a no-show for almost this entire ordeal. His recent appearances in official media have been largely limited to meetings with foreign dignitaries. From the standpoint of the official narrative, it seems they have been trying to keep his hands clean from the quarantine efforts.

That might allow him to lay the blame on others, such as Premier Li Keqiang, who until the outbreak had been sidelined since Xi took power. Premier Li was the first to be sent directly to ground zero in Wuhan as cannon fodder.

But Xi is having second thoughts, it seems. On Monday he made his first “front-line” appearance, face mask and all, visiting a hospital in Beijing set up to deal with coronavirus patients.

Things have gotten so bad that several prominent critics of Xi Jinping in Beijing – figures who tend to keep their powder dry in the current political climate – have felt emboldened to speak out in blunt terms.

A professor at Tsinghua University (think MIT and Harvard combined in terms of prestige), Xu Zhangrun, penned a piece last week explicitly blaming Xi Jinping and the Chinese Communist Party for the outbreak. Here’s a translation of that essay.

The legal scholar was publicly reprimanded early last year when he criticized Xi Jinping’s decision to abolish term limits, arguing that Xi was undoing decades of work to build a consensus-driven government.

Another prominent critic of the party in Beijing, Rong Jian, felt courageous enough to offer up a bunch of juicy quotes to the New York Times, in a sign that this virus battle has weakened the authority’s ability to clamp down on speech without facing a backlash.

“It’s a big shock to the legitimacy of the ruling party. I think it could be only second to the June 4 [Tiananmen Square Massacre] incident of 1989. It’s that big,” he said, adding, “There’s no doubt about his control over power... but the manner of control and its consequences have hurt his legitimacy and reputation.”

That is a sentiment I’ve heard multiple times from people who have been in Beijing watching Chinese politics since the 1980s. This is the single biggest threat to the elite in Beijing since then – by a very wide margin.
The Writing Is on the Wall

And, as the country braces for the economic blowback, the true scale of the crisis is quickly unfolding before Xi's eyes.

There are three epic battles that he must face at the same time: an epidemic with no clear path to containment, a political challenge not seen since 1989, and a hit to the economy that could finally blow up the debt bomb.

"THE ACELA CORRIDOR AND ITS FANTASTIC MORALITY

David Stockman | February 12, 2020

It's discouraging to think how many people are shocked by honesty and how few by deceit. – Noël Coward, "Blithe Spirit" (1941)

...

This decade-long bubbled-up "recovery" since the Global Financial Crisis/ Great Recession has come with considerable costs.

Among others, it's reduced the Acela Corridor to a Fantasyland. On any given day, you only need contemplate prevailing headlines and memes to see it in action.

I leave it to Sven Henrich to provide all the context you need in just two tweets...

He speaks more of Wall Street here.

But Imperial Washington's dream is at least as fevered, as evidenced in a recent Bubblevision appearance by Rep. Kevin Brady.

Brady, a Republican from Texas, happens to be the author of the $1.7 trillion Christmas Eve tax cut paid for on Uncle Sam's tapped-out credit card.

But, just a couple weeks ago on CNBC, he had the gall to say it's working as planned, it's increased Imperial Washington's revenue take, it needs to be made permanent after most of the individual cuts expire in 2025.

For crying out loud...

That was within a day of the Congressional Budget Office publishing the 10-year fiscal outlook summarized in the table below.

It projects $13.2 trillion of new debt over the next decade and a deficit of 5% of gross domestic product (GDP) into the indefinite future.

Folks, our debt-to-GDP ratio will hit a Greece-style 150% within two decades.

Yet even that dire scenario assumes no recessions occur, ever again, and that the Trump-GOP tax cuts are allowed to expire in 2025, as scheduled.

It also builds in the positive deficit impact of myriad expiring loopholes and out-year spending cuts, which otherwise keep getting deferred as their effective dates draw near.

[Chart]

What Brady and his ilk are really after is a permanent extension of the Trump tax cuts that would increase the flood of red ink by another $3.8 trillion over a 10-year period.

That sure would expose the scam perpetrated in 2017, when the cuts were made to abruptly expire in order to stay within the 10-year revenue loss prescribed in the budget deal.

And it would also bury the nation even deeper in public debt.

But factor in just a mild recession between now and 2030. Also, account for the absolute political certainty that scheduled out-year spending cuts get deferred (they were put there in the first place for “window dressing” purposes). And, I hate to break it to you: Those expiring tax cuts and loopholes will get extended – K Street will see to that.

So, the true baseline deficit over the next 10 years is closer to $20 trillion.

And total public debt would hit $43 trillion before 2030.

When asked about trillion-dollar deficits and whether defense cuts should be part of the solution, Brady wasted no time spewing the GOP’s risible talking points.

And that means only when Democrats are ready to give them political cover will Republicans talk entitlement reform.

Likewise, since combined defense and non-defense “discretionary spending” is only $1.4 trillion out of a $4.6 trillion outlay budget, it’s not really the problem.

Here’s the thing, and it’s a mouthful...

If you insist on taking the headline defense budget from $550 billion, which was already way too high, to $740 billion, as Trump's GOP has done since 2016, and you don't put a scratch on $2.9 trillion per year of entitlement spending until the Dems embrace it, you don't have the right to promise even more trillions of tax cuts, no matter how appealing the proposition is as a matter of philosophy or equity.

Sixty-five years ago, President Eisenhower got it right when he said that the high Roosevelt-Truman tax burden must come down. Ike also had it right that the GOP had to earn the right to relieve the taxpayers by first cutting spending and balancing the budget.

Today, GOP of Trump and Brady stands for just the opposite.

They propose to cut taxes morning, noon, and night. They goose the defense and discretionary spending budgets year after year. And they blame Democrats for the resulting deficits because they're unwilling to attack the Welfare State.

And that's why America is heading for fiscal catastrophe.

David Stockman's Chilling Prediction...

The Father of Reaganomics has returned with a dire warning: "Trump may be the Great Disruptor, but he's going to fail at one of his core campaign promises. And his failure could cost you your freedoms AND your wealth." To learn more about Stockman's prophecy and to find out what you can do to protect yourself, your family, and your assets, just go here.

Republicans form the party of the Warfare State, Democrats champion the Welfare State, and never the twain shall face fiscal scrutiny.

The GOP's risible hypocrisy is highlighted by two sets of figures in the CBO table.

The first is that the sum of mandatory spending and interest expense will rise from $3.1 trillion in 2019 to $5.7 trillion by 2030. That's a gain of 83%. But Brady and his GOP colleagues insist they can't and won't do a thing about it until the Democrats sign a blood oath not to campaign against Social Security and Medicare cuts.

And that will never happen.

The second is that the federal revenue share of GDP is only 16.4% in fiscal 2020 and would stay at 17% or less indefinitely if the expiring Trump tax cuts are made permanent. But spending is heading for 23.4% of GDP by the end of the decade.

And that's even under the CBO baseline without the increased interest expense burden of extending the tax cuts and the likely recession-driven downturn in receipts sometime during the coming decade.

And the latter will surely happen. As it is, the current expansion is already the longest in history. By 2030, it would be more than double the 119 months of the 1990s expansion. And that one happened under far better circumstances.

Duration of Economic Expansions Since 1945

Quarters

[Chart]

That's why the GOP's tax cut fairy tales are so lame. They aren't remotely "paying for themselves." And there's not a snowball's chance in hell that even more tax cuts would relieve the massive structural deficit depicted in the CBO table.

Here's what's happening in a nutshell...

The spending side of the federal ledger is being driven to historic highs by the demographic tsunami of Baby Boom retirements hitting the Welfare State budget. At the same time, neocon/neoliberal interventionist domination of the Duopoly is ballooning the Warfare State budget.

That's even as Republican tax policies are taking receipts to modern historic lows relative to national income.

[Chart]

For instance, measured at business cycle peaks, the Reagan budget took in receipts of 17.6% of GDP in 1987, the Clinton budget collected 19.7% of GDP in 2000, and the Bush revenue take was 17.8% of GDP in 2007.

It was 16.3% in 2019.

Indeed, Imperial Washington's fiscal fantasy is now plain as day.

That's Enough About the Blob...

The combination of the coronavirus outbreak in China and the quadrennial return of presidential politics in the U.S. has replaced the Trade War as the primary risk for investors.

That's because, as we've been saying for some time now, this is the most politicized market in history.

And the Tweeter-in-Chief is still in charge. So, the situation is changing almost by the minute.

It's "Impeachment!" in Imperial Washington and all over the Mainstream Media. It's "Easy Money!" on Wall Street and across Bubblevision.

And it seems as if the whole world has, indeed, gone mad.

Amid this chaos, prices will continue to rise and fall, trends will continue to develop and dissipate.

Here's where I usually say, "Well, The Stockman Letter is made for times like these"...

Defendant Trump responded to my pleas by violently striking me in the face with his open hand and screaming that he would do whatever he wanted. "RUNAWAY TRAIN <https://www.deepstatedeclassified.com/runaway-train/>

David Stockman | February 06, 2020

It was like when you make a move in chess and just as you take your finger off the piece, you see the mistake you've made, and there's this panic because you don't know yet the scale of disaster you've left yourself open to. – Kazuo Ishiguro, Never Let Me Go (2005)

...

It's yet another "green" day on Wall Street, folks, as this central-bank-driven rally continues. The Dow Jones Industrial Average may not breach 30,000 tomorrow or even Monday, though not for any lack of monetary central planning...

Days – weeks; heck, months – like this are why we have Michael Coolbaugh guiding us along this market's treacherous terrain. His system – focused on facts and data and trend and momentum – will help us profit on the upside as well as on the downside.

Now is a time to take some upside. If you're in on The Stockman Letter, you've followed along with multiple trade alerts – including one today – about the market and some actionable steps you can take to maybe build some wealth. If not, today is a great time to signup.

Today's alert was particularly compelling, as it included a pretty "insidery" tip on how to use a particular option strategy to "trade around your position." To invoke a phrase good basketball coaches who build winning teams with strong defense use, you've got to keep your feet moving.

Michael's doing that for us. And good defense, of course, often translates into good offense...

OK, here's Mike with his latest observations on the market...

How to Spot Impending Disaster

By Michael Coolbaugh

Have you ever seen a train wreck up close in person?

OK, I don't mean literally because, thankfully, they are quite rare.

But let's talk figuratively for a moment.

When tech stocks went parabolic in 1999, most grizzled veterans knew it would end badly.

When Bitcoin went bonkers in 2017, yet again most scorned traders knew it would end badly.

And, now, here's Tesla (TSLA), which managed to run over just about anyone who dared to bet against its meteoric rise.

But, rest assured, just as with every case before it, the high school students posting Instagram videos of how "easy" it was to make thousands of dollars trading Tesla stock over the short course of morning breakfast... this, too, will end badly.

This isn't to opine on the merits of Tesla's technology, operational efficiency, or its wildest business prospects.

Rather, the party in Tesla will end badly for one reason and one reason only: It's just the latest case of human greed gone wild.

But, while everyone else is so laser-focused on Elon Musk's proclivity to taunt short-sellers around the world, I want to direct your attention to another train wreck, one that appears to be traveling at a much slower pace.

I'm talking about the North American oil and gas industry.

Read This Book Before the 2020 Election!

Contrary to what many believe, we're in a far worse... more dangerous spot than we were just two years ago. The Deep State has emerged out of the shadows to steal our democracy and put your assets... savings... retirement... and everything you've worked so hard for, at risk.

Learn how to protect yourself today!

You see, the great thing about identifying slow-moving train wrecks is that they can provide a self-replenishing list of what are called 'derivative' trades.

Not "derivative" meaning a financial contract like futures or options, but, rather the "knock on" effects, like the slip of one icicle and quickly turns into a disastrous avalanche.

Take for example, falling interest rates...

Everyone immediately identifies the first-order effect: rising bond prices. But how is it that some traders manage to turn a 5% rally in bond prices into a 50% gain for their total portfolio?

Sure, some employ a lot of leverage. But the true mastery comes from identifying the second-, third-, fourth-, and even fifth-order effects.

Lower interest rates mean cheaper mortgages, cheaper mortgages tend to lead to more home purchases, more purchases push home prices higher, higher home prices incentivize more activity from homebuilders, more activity by homebuilders creates more demand for lumber.

As you can see, these links can run quite deep...

It's why I so thoroughly enjoy finding a certain macro theme, because when the market begins to suggest my thesis is correct, I stick with it for a period of time. I stick with it to try and ride the avalanche all the way down the mountain.

So, you'll have to forgive me, but we're talking about that pesky yield curve again.

Just last week, I pointed out that the evidence continues to suggest the yield curve does, in fact, still matter.

I won't harp on the mechanics again; I've already demonstrated at great length how the yield curve has direct implications for bank lending activity.

Assuming this standard economic theory still holds any weight, we can see how a drastic tightening in lending activity could spell doom for an industry that, to this point, has received an endless stream of capital.

In other words, we can start to evaluate the second-, third-, and fourth-order effects.

Here's what I mean...

According to Moody's Investors Service, the North American oil and gas industry is facing a crippling wall of debt maturity over the next four years.

It is unclear how they will repay it all. Shareholders and private-equity investors have been burned in recent years attempting to buy at the bottom. Banks are in retreat. Bond markets have shown little indication that they are open to any but the oil patch's most attractive buyers.

I get it; just about everyone knows the energy sector appears cheap. But we have to ask ourselves, "What will spark a turnaround?"

Here's a major reason why...

[Chart]

The black line representing the U.S. dollar on this chart is inverted to better demonstrate the correlation. A “rising” black line would indicate a weaker U.S. dollar.

Extensive cuts from OPEC+ couldn’t do it.

An Iranian torpedo to Saudi Aramco facilities couldn’t do it.

The U.S. assassination of an Iranian general and subsequent tensions across the Middle East couldn’t do it.

The U.S. has, defiantly, become energy independent. And, while we’re fully capable of fulfilling our energy needs internally, the excess oil must be exported.

In fact, the combination of a stronger U.S. dollar and rising oil prices is now a double whammy to foreigners who import oil from the U.S. If foreigners struggle to purchase our excess oil, well, we have a serious supply-and-demand problem.

When a certain asset fails to sustain a rally on what seems like an endless stream of positive developments, it’s often a sign there’s something structurally wrong.

Barring an earth-shattering move by J. Powell & Co. that would significantly weaken the U.S. dollar – and, believe me, with all the “not QE,” they have been trying – the downward pressure on the price of oil, and, with it, the stocks of various energy companies, will only continue to increase.

Crisis and Opportunity

This is the most politicized market in history. And the Tweeter-in-Chief is still in charge. So, the situation is changing almost by the minute.

It's "Impeachment!" in Imperial Washington and all over the Mainstream Media. It's "Easy Money!" on Wall Street and across Bubblevision.

And it seems as if the whole world has, indeed, gone mad.

Amid this chaos, prices will continue to rise and fall, trends will continue to develop and dissipate.

Well, The Stockman Letter is made for times like these. And we've updated our design to help us better navigate to not only the safest harbors but also the most promising opportunities.

The stakes are as high as they can be heading into 2020. Markets appear to be straining, catching up to an economy that's been weak and getting weaker for years.

The Donald is tied up in the day-to-day movements of the major stock indexes like no president before him. The increasingly desperate incumbent will do anything he must to hold the White House.

It's a major tipping point. And there's no telling what the Donald's great disruptions could do to your wealth.

You've got to be nimble to win in this market... and we're here to help you do that.

To common sense,

David"

The urge to save humanity is almost always only a false-face for the urge to rule it. Power is what all messiahs really seek: not the chance to serve. This is true even of the pious brethren who carry the gospel to foreign parts. – H.L. Mencken, Minority Report: H.L. Mencken's Notebooks (1956)

...

Turns out equity indexes can go down, after all...

Today is the first trading session since last Friday that the S&P 500 Index, the Dow Jones Industrial Average, the Nasdaq, et al., have wallowed in the red.

These are just details, though, at this point. As Michael Coolbaugh noted in an alert to his Delta Profit Trader subscribers this morning, "The objective stats still suggest that the risks are tilted towards the negative side.”

As you well know, my read of the macro picture is that we’re heading for a disaster of epic, empire-toppling proportions. “Coronavirus” seems a matter of convenience for authority at this point, post-facto justification for that which they would have done in their behalf anyway...

In fact, the more monetary central planners attempt to keep the hope of Imperial Washington Consensus alive with their liquidity spigots, the more they ensure such an historic outcome.

At the same time, this kind of volatility – the up-moves as well as the down-moves – does create opportunity.

This week, Michael identified a total “insider” move on an options strategy we have in place for The Stockman Letter, and he’s also used this insane rally to position Delta Profit Traders for solid upside across a number of names in specific sectors that fit with our larger narrative here.

Yeah, that’s a mouthful. Simplify it by clicking here to get specifics on Michael’s trading system...

Meanwhile, it must come as a shock to the Tweeter-in-Chief that markets are down on Jobs Friday...

Of course, the Donald is a billowing bag of wind on economic matters, the following passage from his fawnfest with Bubblevision’s Joe Kernen all the evidence of that you need...

Kernen wonders about negative interest rates and the possibility they haven't worked well elsewhere. Mr. MAGA doesn't hesitate with a fog of incoherence:

Well, they don't know yet. It's so new. And you look at other countries where they actually have negative interest rates, negative in a positive way. I mean they're actually getting paid – they make a loan and they end up... getting paid.

I want to know who are the people that buy. Okay? Who are the people that buy and they invest in Germany and end up getting, you know, less money at the period of time – so I – have to find these people [sic]

But – no, if Germany – and – we're the most prime in the world. We're the leader in the world. We have the dollar, and the dollar's very strong. A lotta – a lotta things are happening. But, you know, we're paying higher interest than other countries because of the Fed. If we were paying less, I would do it, and I'd pay off a lot of debt.

And what did Mr. Bubblevison have to say in response to that miasma of mental diarrhea?

“Right.”

In other words, “If you say so, sir!”

On the matter of ultra-low rates, Kernen wanted to know if Jerome Powell is still in the doghouse or whether he's finally getting the Federal Reserve's price control mission right with respect to the cost of money:

“Is Chairman Powell out of the doghouse?” this financial journalist asks. “Is he – are rates where they should be? Are you satisfied with the situation? Are we at a good level now, do you feel?”

Folks, this goes to the very heart of darkness that envelopes today’s financial world.

How in the hell does any President of the United States – let alone our current stumblebum – know where rates “should be”?

The question is no less galling if asked of any of the 12 only slightly more knowledgeable members of the Federal Open Market Committee.

If You Want Your Money in the Next Five Years...

America is at a crossroads. The middle class is disappearing... government spending is out of control... and the implosion of Bubble Finance will cause the greatest market crash in history. So, if you need access to your nest egg in the next five years and can’t afford another market crash, it’s time to take matters into your own hands.

Find out what to do, right here.

The free market’s enormous and inexhaustible capacity for price discovery simply cannot be supplanted, matched, or even faintly approximated by the state – whether that’s the Donald or a cabal of monetary central planners.

Given the enormous size, speed, complexity, and interconnectivity of the money and capital markets – especially in today’s algo-driven world – it doesn’t require much thought at all to recognize that price discovery is a job for markets, not apparatchiks.

That’s the real irony of Bubblevision’s embarrassing fawning in the face of the Donald’s economic gobbledygook.

Kernen and his ilk have been marinating so long in Bubble Finance that they’ve developed a huge collective blind spot when it comes to the single most important pricing function in all of capitalism.

That is, the pricing of money, debt, equity, and their derivatives, which, in turn, drive the flow and allocation of capital throughout the entire economy.

Well, if Wall Street is disconnected from Main Street, it’s because irresponsible and/or innumerate authority make it so.

Kernen, in particular, has long postured himself as the great capitalist, conservative, and defender of markets against the encroachments of Imperial Washington’s meddlers and redistributionists.

Yet he doesn’t find it strange at all that the Fed not only pegs short-term interest rates to the exact basis point but, in the process, dominates, distorts, and smothers the money and capital markets in their entirety.

This stubborn, wholesale rejection of the free market in finance rests on a crucial unexamined predicate: that Wall Street-determined financial asset prices might be “correct” on the bourses and in the bond and money trading pits but they would be bad for Main Street and the performance of the macroeconomy.

That’s the essence of today’s tyranny of monetary central planning and the malignant speculation, malinvestment, and rent-seeking it enables, backstops, and propagates.

Meanwhile, there is absolutely no reason to believe that what is actually good for Wall Street – honest price discovery – would not also be good for Main Street.

But can you really blame the Donald alone for the economic crackpottery he’s wont to espouse? After all, what he told Mr. Bubblevision a Davos is just standard Wall Street/Fed folly with a cherry on top:

Now, with all of that, had we not done the big raise on interest, I think we would have been close to 4%, and I could see 5,000 to 10,000 points more on the Dow. But that was a killer when they raised the rate. It was just a big mistake. And they admit to it. They admit to it. I was right. I don’t wanna be right, but I was right.

That all of this has led to a financial fantasy world cannot be gainsaid.

Consider what Jamie Dimon said on CBS’s “60 Minutes” recently about the rosy health of the American consumer and therefore the U.S. and world economy:

The consumer, which is 70% of the U.S. economy, is quite strong. Confidence is very high. Their balance sheets are in great shape. And you see that the strength of the American consumer is driving the American economy and the global economy. And while business slowed down, my current view is that, no, it just was a slowdown, not a petering out.

Really?

Let's Get Practical

The combination of the coronavirus outbreak in China and the quadrennial return of presidential politics in the U.S. has replaced the Trade War as the primary risk for investors.

That's because, as we've been saying for some time now, this is the most politicized market in history.

And the Tweeter-in-Chief is still in charge. So, the situation is changing almost by the minute.

It's "Impeachment!" in Imperial Washington and all over the Mainstream Media. It's "Easy Money!" on Wall Street and across Bubblevision.

And it seems as if the whole world has, indeed, gone mad.

Amid this chaos, prices will continue to rise and fall, trends will continue to develop and dissipate.

Here's where I usually say, "Well, The Stockman Letter is made for times like these"...

And I can say that because we brought aboard Michael Coolbaugh to update our design to help us better navigate to not only the safest harbors but also the most promising opportunities.

And he's doing that. He's also launched a complementary investment newsletter, Delta Profit Trader, that promises "higher frequency" engagement with markets.

Click here to view the "Delta Profit Summit," where Michael explains his whole approach to investing in this environment.

The stakes are as high as they can be heading into 2020. Markets appear to be straining, catching up to an economy that's been weak and getting weaker for years.

The Donald is tied up in the day-to-day movements of the major stock indexes like no president before him. The increasingly desperate incumbent will do anything he must to hold the White House.

It's a major tipping point. And there's no telling what the Donald's great disruptions could do to your wealth.

You've got to be nimble to win in this market... and Michael's here to help you do that.

This Week's Highlights:

- What a week!
- Stocks were up nicely Monday, rallying after a strong open.
- Then on Tuesday, the S&P gapped higher and rallied again. And by the close, the S&P had erased the previous week's losses.
- An unconfirmed coronavirus breakthrough and better than expected ISM Non-Manufacturing PMI data helped stocks rally on Wednesday. And with a push higher in the last hour of trading, the S&P and NASDAQ made new record highs.
- On Thursday, the S&P, DOW, and NASDAQ all made new record highs after China announced that they are cutting tariffs in half on $75 billion in U.S. goods (a move planned with the Phase One deal).
- But on Friday, stocks dropped. But after 4 winning days and a march to record highs, a pullback was in order.
- Although stocks dropped on Friday, the S&P still managed to have its best week since June.
- Here's what traders are focusing on:
- Earnings – As of Friday, 64% of the S&P 500 companies have reported Q4 earnings. And according to FactSet, 71% of the companies that have reported earnings have reported better than expected numbers.
- Jobs – On Friday, the Jobs Report was released with mixed results: 225,000 Non-Farm Jobs were added (vs. 163,000 forecast), but the Unemployment Rate was up a tick to 3.6% (vs. a 3.5% forecast).
- Coronavirus – Traders shook off coronavirus concerns for most of the week. But on Friday, China confirmed 31,131 cases and 636 deaths in the country. With reports that get worse and confirmation that the virus continues to spread globally, coronavirus will remain an issue. And it's uncertain just how much it will impact the global economy..

Andrea Cyr Al Peia we tried to warn them! No one could have predicted the extent of enabling he would come to receive.

For me, 2016, a warning to all indeed; albeit unheeded. Prior to that it was astonishment how feds, doj, courts et als were falling all over one another to cover-up substantial trump crimes. The answer, not obvious at first, was that they were all looking for that easy payday, one way or another. Laundered money needs a place to go. Stolen money, from the government, boondoggles, now emoluments in a very big way, needed protection/cover; hence, guilty mobster/criminal trump who needed protection/cover from prosecution. They're all a bunch of criminal slugs, dependent on the illegal funds which are mindbogglingly huge, in the trillions. Democrats/republicans indistinguishably dirty; ie., White House Threat: 'Vote Against the President and Your Head Will Be On A Pike'

Al Peia Absolutely true! trump's a mobster/gangster! The feds/state law enforcement, courts federal/state have been covering up for him for decades. The real america, as I replied to Doug, 'Quite right Doug; but, meaningfully lawless society is more to the point since we have loads of laws but for some american criminals, ie., trump et als, they're literally the real 'untouchables' (Elliot Ness, truly the legendary untouchable died a broken man, pauper, the real american story). Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, even California (opposite their current positions) covered for mentally ill mobster/criminal trump et als. Lesson: In america, big crime pays, and pays well. america is a complete and total fraud!' ... [The tv version of 'The Untouchables' featured an italian, Robert Stack (probably some guilt feelings belying his heritage). I'd love to see a spoof on the big screen of the american reality, "The Touchables". americans by nature are always for sale.

obama/holder/BIDEN ... Remember those guys? [To be fair and balanced, there's also the bush/cheney/paulsen axis of evildoing/war crimes/fraud in the factum, etc.] "It's the revolving door at its most despicable. Eric Holder spent six years as attorney general, and failed to prosecute banks for their criminal wrongdoing or put any bank executives behind bars. Now, he's set to rejoin his old white-collar criminal defense firm, making millions each year helping Wall Street bankers avoid criminal consequences.¹ Worse, it was just reported that the firm, Covington & Burling, has kept an empty 11th floor corner office for Holder awaiting his return. Combined with Holder's purchase a year ago of a $1.5 million condo just 300 feet from his new office raises serious questions about how long Holder knew he would be getting a major payday from his old firm even while it continued to represent companies under Department of Justice investigation. If the firm and Holder agreed on a future job offer, that alone could violate criminal laws.² ...”

This Week's Highlights:

It was another wild week of trading.
But in the end, stocks finished the week higher.

Here's what traders are focusing on:

Coronavirus

The virus has now spread to 12 countries and the numbers out of China continue to get worse. On Saturday, China said there are 68,500 confirmed cases and there have been 1,655 deaths. But the real numbers could be worse: China has been reluctant to work with the CDC...a possible sign that China is being less than transparent about the virus and confirmed cases.

Earnings

More than 77% of S&P 500 companies have reported earnings. And so far 72% have beaten earnings expectations.

This upcoming week is a short trading week, with markets closed on Monday for Presidents' Day.

"FROM NO. 1 AND NO. 16 TO NO. 45

David Stockman | February 17, 2020

For most Americans the Constitution had become a hazy document, cited like the Bible on ceremonial occasions but forgotten in the daily transactions of life.

– Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., “The Imperial Presidency” (1973)

...

Today, we honor George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, two of the most significant figures in American history.

No. 1 and No. 16 wouldn't recognize No. 45. Nor would they recognize any “chief magistrate” of the 20th century, much less anyone else who's “administered the executive branch of the Government” in the 21st.

Teddy Roosevelt made the “bully pulpit,” while FDR set the stage for new superpowers to replace the old. And Ike teed up the “military-industrial complex” for his successors – including JFK, Tricky Dick, my old boss, both Bushes, Slick Willy, and Barry the Bomber – to make it an “imperial presidency.”

But nobody and nobody brings the kingly authoritarianism like the Donald.

So, let's be reminded, today, of the humility and the dignity that used to grace the office.

Here are opening and closing paragraphs from President George Washington's "Farewell Address" and the "Bliss Copy" of President Abraham Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address"...

"Farewell Address"

September 19, 1796

Friends and Fellow Citizens:

The period for a new election of a citizen to administer the Executive Government of the United States being not far distant, and the time actually arrived when your thoughts must be employed in designating the person who is to be clothed with that important trust, it appears to me proper, especially as it may conduce to a more distinct expression of the public voice, that I should now apprise you of the resolution I have formed to decline being considered among the number of those out of whom a choice is to be made.

I beg you at the same time to do me the justice to be assured that this resolution has not been taken without a strict regard to all the considerations appertaining to the relation which binds a dutiful citizen to his country; and that in withdrawing the tender of service, which silence in my Situation might imply, I am influenced by no diminution of zeal for your future interest, no deficiency of grateful respect for your past kindness, but am supported by a full conviction that the step is compatible with both.

Though in reviewing the incidents of my Administration I am unconscious of intentional error, I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. Whatever they may be, I fervently beseech the Almighty to avert or mitigate the evils to which they may tend. I shall also carry with me the hope that my country will never cease to view them with indulgence, and that, after forty-five years of my life dedicated to its service with an upright zeal, the faults of incompetent abilities will be consigned to oblivion, as myself must soon be to the mansions of rest.

Relying on its kindness in this as in other things, and actuated by that fervent love toward it which is so natural to a man who views in it the native soil of himself and his progenitors for several generations, I anticipate with pleasing expectation that retreat in which I promise myself to realize without alloy the sweet enjoyment of partaking in the midst of my fellow-citizens the benign influence of good laws under a free government--the ever-favorite object of my heart, and the happy reward, as I trust, of our mutual cares, labors, and dangers.

"Gettysburg Address"

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent, a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battle-field of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we can not dedicate – we can not consecrate – we can not hallow – this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us – that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion – that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain – that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom – and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

A Steady Lead

The combination of the coronavirus outbreak in China and the quadrennial return of presidential roulette in the U.S. has replaced the Trade War as the primary risk for investors.

That’s because, as we’ve been saying for some time now, this is the most politicized market in history.

And the Tweeter-in-Chief is still in charge. So, the situation is changing almost by the minute.

It’s “Impeachment!” in Imperial Washington and all over the Mainstream Media. It’s “Easy Money!” on Wall Street and across Bubblevision.

And it seems as if the whole world has, indeed, gone mad.

Amid this chaos, prices will continue to rise and fall, trends will continue to develop and dissipate.

Here’s where I usually say, “Well, The Stockman Letter is made for times like these”...

And I can say that because we brought aboard Michael Coolbaugh to update our design to help us better navigate to not only the safest harbors but also the most promising opportunities.

And he’s doing that. He’s also launched a complementary investment newsletter, Delta Profit Trader, that promises “higher frequency” engagement with markets.

Click here to view the “Delta Profit Summit,” where Michael explains his whole approach to investing in this environment.

The stakes are as high as they can be heading into 2020. Markets appear to be straining, catching up to an economy that’s been weak and getting weaker for years.

The Donald is tied up in the day-to-day movements of the major stock indexes like no president before him. The increasingly desperate incumbent will do anything he must to hold the White House.

It’s a major tipping point. And there’s no telling what the Donald’s great disruptions could do to your wealth.

You’ve got to be nimble to win in this market... and Michael’s here to help you do that.

“THE RED PONZI LOOKS FLUSHED

Before mass leaders seize the power to fit reality to their lies, their propaganda is marked by its extreme contempt for facts as such, for in their opinion fact depends entirely on the power of man who can fabricate it.

– Hannah Arendt, “The Origins of Totalitarianism” (1951)

...

Late last week, following a staff meeting, Chris Scott, who recently had to cut short a long-planned visit to China, emailed our editor with a note about the coronavirus:

Don’t think this story is going away tomorrow. The below interview is eye-opening. I had cold symptoms at the end of the “14-day” incubation period (Chinese studies suggest it is 24 days), but the CDC said I wasn't eligible for testing (and their testing kits were faulty anyway), nor did they recommend isolation. Some studies show that the vast majority of cases only show mild cold symptoms.

And that's what's happening across the globe. This a viewer comment on the below video:

“Yet, when I did the right thing and went to the hospital here in Australia as I had some symptoms and we were in Hong Kong and the Philippines until late Jan 2020, they told me I was a borderline case and I would not be tested...umm sorry WHAT?.....And, apparently THAT advice came from our National Health Dept. Never mind, that I am an elementary teacher around students all day. If that is the government's response, then this is going to explode.”

Seems strange to me that authorities everywhere are just pretending this is going away and will “work out fine,” as Trump said. That doesn't seem plausible based on what basically all of the research shows.

And here's our correspondent with the latest on the outbreak...
Two Ways to Die: Choose One

By Chris Scott

Over the coming days and weeks, the managers of China's grand experiment in “state capitalism” – or “market communism” or whatever term you prefer – have the unenviable task of choosing between two grim fates for their country's people.

Disease, or unemployment?

Apparently, the “People's Leader” Xi Jinping is leaning towards the former – unless you live where he does in Beijing, where they've stepped up quarantine restrictions.

The most important development this week is that the man chosen to spearhead the national COVID-19 response, Premier Li Keqiang, sounded just about ready to declare victory

Here's what Li said in a meeting on Monday:

Positive results have been achieved in the prevention and control of the epidemic through great endeavor... The possibility of a wider epidemic outbreak has been avoided through strengthened prevention and control measures, the meeting noted, adding that a positive trend has emerged nationwide in curbing the epidemic.

There's very little evidence that this thing is over. But there are growing fears of widespread unemployment resulting from the impact of strict quarantine measures on businesses.

China's biggest job recruiting website said this week that a survey found a full 10% of firms were "on the verge of death."

About a third of those surveyed said they were planning job cuts, and another third weren't prepared to pay employees on time.

In that context, the positive tone may just be a ploy to get people back to work. The primary source of legitimacy of the Chinese Communist Party's leadership has always been and will always be economic growth and prosperity.

These charts will explain why the dead bodies piling up in Wuhan (which, many claim, are being vastly undercounted) are less scary than potential blow to the economy from this crisis.

Here's a look at average road congestion across 100 cities in China...

This is coal consumption by power plants...

[Chart]

Here are daily property sales in 30 major cities, in thousands of units...

[Chart]

And this is the wholesale price index for food...

[Click to Enlarge]

There are essentially two potential outcomes from this crisis in the short to medium term. It's impossible to tell which one is more likely because experts simply don't have enough information yet to gauge when the pandemic will come under control.

If it comes under control within the next several months, Xi and his lackeys will claim triumphant victory.

They've done this successfully in the past, including when dealing with a devastating earthquake in Sichuan province more than a decade ago, and the SARS outbreak before that.

If the crisis lingers into the summer, the blow to the economy would be devastating in a way the earthquake simply couldn't: It affects the whole country.

And that's also crucial element to remember about the new virus itself. While the suffering has been mostly concentrated in one province, the disruption has been nationwide and hasn't spared the well-connected and those in the middle and upper-middle class. It has also been much worse in scale than the SARS outbreak.

Wall Street, and many veteran China politics watchers, see this resolving itself and ultimately turning into a win for the party – “We got through this because of the strength of our system, not despite it,” the official narrative will read.

Judging from recent stock-price movement, that's the base-case scenario for Wall Street.

But China still hasn't really gotten back to work yet. We must wait and see whether optimistic words from Beijing will be followed by a resumption of coal burning.

If this drags on and the economy fails to heat back up, this represents a tail risk on par with the 2008 financial crisis.

“Tail Risk?” “Crisis?” Look No Further...

"Resilient? Ridiculous! <https://www.deepstatedeclassified.com/the-red-ponzi-looks-flushed/>

David Stockman | February 19, 2020

When plunder becomes a way of life for a group of men in a society, over the course of time they create for themselves a legal system that authorizes it and a moral code that glorifies it.

– Frédéric Bastiat, The Law (1850)

...

In case you were still wondering, The Wall Street Journal has already explained it all:

The Dow industrials added as many as 500 points on speculation that economic growth will prove to be resilient as fiscal and monetary policies blunt the impact of the coronavirus outbreak on China's economy.

That's news-ticker fodder from two weeks ago. But, of course, the Dow Jones Industrial Average is up big again today on refreshed hope of a quick end to the story.

To quote our U.S.-China correspondent Chris Scott, "Don't think this story is going away tomorrow."

I read that as both observation and admonition.

That's because China is going offline and off the rails at the same time, as Red Emperor Xi Jinping imposes marshal law and places upwards of 50 million citizens under house arrest.

Supply chains all over the world are buckling.

What started with Hyundai Motor Co. and its sister Kia Motors Corp. suspending auto assembly lines in South Korea was crystalized by Apple Inc.'s (AAPL) announcement that it would miss revenue guidance for its fiscal 2020 second quarter.

But there is no fear on Wall Street. The coronavirus will be gone by spring, at which time any hits to sales and earnings will be excused as one-time inconveniences and dismissed as ancient history.

Oh, but the giddy cheer in the casino is not rooted in a decent regard for capitalism's inherent risks and volatilities.

It's all down to worship of all-powerful economic agents of the state.

[Insert]

The fiscal and monetary authorities are presumed to always and everywhere have the back of financial speculators. They exist mainly to underwrite Wall Street's entitlement to ever-rising asset prices, world without end.

These rallies to new highs are not about "resilience."

They're owing to blind faith that central banks will come to the rescue with still another tidal wave of dishonest money, that China will remain the world's "growth engine," that concentration of financial, economic, and political power is the way to foster and sustain permanent prosperity.

Remember, the Red Ponzi we allude to is a debt-entombed freak of history, now – more than ever, perhaps – rooted in the cult of an infallible and all-powerful Great Leader...

That's exactly how the Red Ponzi is rolling these days as the coronavirus tightens its grip. State-controlled media have deified Xi as the veritable savior who will single-handedly deliver the nation from the pandemic's clutches:

A People's Daily front-page editorial said the battle against the coronavirus is a "people's war," and as long as the great Chinese people "more closely rally around the CCP with comrade Xi Jinping as the core," they will be able to win this war.

Xinhua News Agency summarized Xi's orders on controlling the virus outbreak, again saying that Xi "has been personally directing, and personally planning" everything on this matter. And, thanks to his efforts, things are done effectively and orderly.

The Communist Party chief of Hubei province, Jiang Chaoliang, a former top banking executive, said in a press conference that the Hubei government will "deeply reflect" on their performance controlling the virus outbreak, so to learn the lessons, as instructed by Xi Jinping.

Indeed, it puts you in mind of exactly 54 years ago, when, after being cloistered for months plotting to regain control of the Middle Kingdom, Chairman Mao returned to duty by taking a record-breaking swim – allegedly 15 kilometers in a mere 65 minutes – at the Wuhan Bridge on the Yangtze River.

The message was that if the aging Chairman could conquer the mighty Yangtze, surely the nation could brave the economic and political storms then raging and overcome the adversities that had attended the failure of the Great Leap Forward and the tens of millions of famine deaths that stalked the land as a consequence.

Of course, even the Great Man is not always right. After Mao completed his legendary swim in Wuhan, he launched the even more catastrophic Cultural Revolution. But his swimming speed record holds to this very day...

Even in the more credulous times of 1966, the outside world laughed at Mao's feat.

But not so much today, even in these more cynical times, regarding the current Chairman of the Communist Party of China.

The Great Helmsman and world-historic killer's heir and assign, Xi Jinping, is feted by the assembled billionaires and grifters at Davos, heralded on Wall Street as the genius who can make the trains run on time and gross domestic product (GDP) grow quarter after quarter after quarter with uncanny predictability and regularity.

Look, not a single even quasi-capitalist economy in all of recorded history has ever posted results remotely like China's in the modern era.

Yet purported capitalists on Wall Street and in Imperial Washington assume global growth can't/won't falter because – coronavirus or no – Chairman Xi will just keep swimming.

Then again, if you believe the following chart, you're probably buying the dips along with your Florida swampland. At some point, credulity has no antidote...

[Chart]

The statisticians who concocted this simulacrum of a GDP chart are now busy flooding the world with propaganda and misdirection about China's alleged herculean efforts to vanquish this virus.

Stunts like building a prefabricated prison/tomb-like "hospital" in 10 days in Wuhan are fronted as evidence of Xi's absolute power to stop the pandemic cold and right the ship of state.

The reality is the new tsunami of credit and commands from Beijing will only accelerate the Red Ponzi's eventual rendezvous with entropic decay and dissolution.

You simply can't subject a people or their economy to this kind of unrelenting flow of centrally directed credit and command and expect a stable, sustainable, low-error outcome.

That's the real reason why reasonably free markets are not optional and roughly honest monies are essential.

The fact that China is not the marvel of reliability and relentless growth that it's cracked up to be has dire implications for the rest of the planet.

China consumes more than 58% of the world's $360 billion semiconductor supply because it's the computer-age assembly shop of the global economy. And, by the way, that figure was just 18% back in 2003, when the far less virulent SARS episode occurred.

So, if the Red Ponzi finally reaches its breakdown point, we're not talking just about its 19% share of global GDP.

We're talking about a horrendous potential disruption of the entire supply of gadgets and goods upon which the world vitally depends.

The Fed and other developed-world central banks have even less power to foster sustainable prosperity than even Chairman Xi.

Xi can, apparently, still build modern day pyramids – or scores of empty cities, 60 million unoccupied apartments, hundreds of unvisited shopping centers, thousands of miles of untraveled highways, hundreds of little-used train stations, airports, public arenas, and other public baubles, and hundreds of billions worth of redundant industrial capacity for steel, cement, and construction infrastructure.

These get totted up into GDP in Keynesian fashion, even if the embedded debt and malinvestment results in the eventual diminution of wealth, not its expansion.

But monetary central planners in the U.S., Japan, and Europe have been printing money so egregiously for so long that they no longer have any measurable impact on Main Street.

And that is why all this talk of “resilience” is simply ridiculous.

The Donald is tied up in the day-to-day movements of the major stock indexes like no president before him. The increasingly desperate incumbent will do anything he must to hold the White House.

It's a major tipping point. And there's no telling what the Donald's great disruptions could do to your wealth.

You've got to be nimble to win in this market... and Michael's here to help you do that.

To common sense,

David Stockman"

Today's Highlights:

Stocks opened higher and never looked back!

One of the main reasons behind the rally are reports that the coronavirus seems to be slowing down. On Wednesday, there were 1,749 new cases which is the lowest number of new confirmed cases since late January. In the afternoon, the Fed released minutes from their January meeting. The minutes showed that the Fed believes rates will stay at current levels for now.

With today's gains, the S&P and NASDAQ finished with new record highs. Tesla (TSLA) was on the move again today after an analyst upgrade. The stock finished with its best close ever. Up 6.9%, Tesla closed at $916.96 a share.

All the light had fallen away from the world, with only the fog illuminated now. Even the stars struggled against the black, managing only the slightest pinpricks of twinkles through a gloom that was both everywhere and nowhere at once. It wasn't the dark of night; it was the tenebrous shadow of bad omens.

- C. Robert Cargill, Dreams and Shadows (2013)

...

I want to get to Michael Coolbaugh's weekly market commentary pretty quickly today, because he's got some more fascinating things to say about the present setup, including this: "Something BIG is brewing!"

But, first, I want to point out that even some corners of Wall Street are starting to turn a little darker.

This morning, the banned-from-Twitter shit-stirrers over at Zero Hedge shared the following notes hot off the Quantitative Derivative Strategies desk at Morgan Stanley:

Fed 'liquidity' has powered the S&P 500 to a 16% gain since they announced Permanent Open Market Operations in October 2019, while the NDX is up a cool 26% (total returns). The rally makes sense in the context of a Fed that is continuing to print money until at least April, and beyond that likely continues to try to fight the structural forces of deflation with the only tool they have. But at the same time consensus is that the rally in Tech/Growth continues, and investors should be increasingly concerned with some of extremes being priced into markets....

Turning to the data – first consider that breadth over the past six months has been the narrowest since at least 2005, with only 38% of S&P 500 constituents outperforming the index.

Here's the chart depicting the breadth data...

[Chart]

Here's one more alarm: "The five largest companies are all Tech names and currently make up 18% of the S&P 500 market cap, but less than 14% of the total S&P 500 earnings..."

Now, here's Mike...

This Is All Very Ominous

By Michael Coolbaugh

Something BIG is brewing!

Back in late December, and again in late January, I touched on the possibility of a Currency War to begin the new decade. Most of this type of scenario-building centers around not only the words coming from monetary central planners but their blatant actions as well.

There were hints as far back as a few months ago. And then there was the occasional road sign like the European Central Bank (ECB) press conference in late January.

If you haven't been paying attention to the flashing neon billboard, well, it's time to take notice.

It's not so much that the ECB, the Federal Reserve, the Bank of England, or the Bank of Japan have told us anything different in the past two weeks.

Nope; we're past the stage of listening to what they have to say.

What I'm focused on is the resounding message from global markets that fiat currencies are in a spiral. Here's gold priced in euros...

[Chart]

This is the Midas metal priced in Japanese yen...

[Chart]

And, for good measure, here it is in Chinese renminbi...

[Chart]

So, with every other fiat currency across the globe devaluing against the same benchmark, should we expect any different in relation to the U.S. dollar?

[Chart]

Forget the fact that monetary central planners-gone-Kardashian haven't explicitly told us they're devaluing these meaningless pieces of paper. They've already cranked up their printing presses into overdrive!

So, yes, gold appears quite attractive to begin the new decade.

BUT...

Early indications suggest the Fed mistakenly brought a water pistol to a super soaker free-for-all.

Here's what I mean...

Despite a valiant effort to pull one over the eyes of the public, the Fed's "not QE" program has not been enough to weaken the greenback. In fact, the U.S. Dollar Index just broke above the high set in September 2019, just before the Fed went back to the well.

[Chart]

Unfortunately, that's only the beginning.

What we have today is a toxic concoction of extreme complacency, based upon the illusion that monetary central planners will always remain firmly in control, and an over-indebted global economy.

[Chart]

The problem with an over-indebted global economy is that much of it comes in the form of dollar-denominated debt due to the U.S. dollar's status as the “global reserve currency.” It is almost literally the focal point of the whole financial world.

So, what we find is that when the global economy slows, investors begin to pull money from the riskier parts of the world; think “emerging” and “frontier” markets like Argentina or Nigeria.

It’s also why the greenback is the recipient of your traditional “safe-haven” bid when capital flows out of more fragile economies.

Well, wait, I’m not done...

Today's Highlights:

Stocks slide...but it could have been worse!

The major indices opened lower, but a little more than an hour into the session the major indices were positive.

But then out of nowhere stocks tanked: Between 10:45am and 11:45am ET the major indices dropped more than 1.3%. But what was really strange is there wasn't a catalyst or much of an explanation for the drop.

After the 1-hour slide, stocks bounced back. And by the close the major indices had erased a large part of the morning losses.

Morgan Stanley (MS) joined the "broker wars" today with a deal to buy E-Trade (ETFC) for $13 billion. Morgan Stanley finished the day with a 4.6% loss while E-Trade jumped 21.8%.

Gold (GC) hit a 7-year high today with a 0.6% gain.

I believe that to fully comprehend this horrific american scenario encompassing decline and fall, the following are helpful and instructive. First, an understanding of biological anthropology is helpful, particularly as pertains to breeding populations as regionally exist throughout america. Second, a thorough grasp of psychology is crucial given the alarming prevalence of severe mental illness throughout america and at all levels of society. Third, command of the subject generally denoted as criminology is necessary to fully enable successful approach to the uniquely pervasive levels of criminality throughout the united states. I believe word pictures in the minds eye of america's devastating plight can be derived from such profound literary works as: 'Lord of the Flies'-Golding; '1984', 'Animal Farm'-Orwell; and, given the wall obsession of mental case mobster thief in chief trump, the film, 'Escape From New York' (america - full wall enclosure/containment of american criminality to america)-Carpenter.

"TODAY'S MONETARY POLICY: SATIRE, RIDDLE, OR JOKE?"

David Stockman | February 21, 2020

All the light had fallen away from the world, with only the fog illuminated now. Even the stars struggled against the black, managing only the slightest pinpricks of twinkles through a gloom that was both everywhere and nowhere at once. It wasn't the dark of night; it was the tenebrous shadow of bad omens. – C. Robert Cargill, Dreams and Shadows (2013)

Is the market starting to take seriously the facts on the ground?

Well, the Dow Jones Industrial Average was down more than 300 points by mid-morning, and the Nasdaq Composite is off by 1.3%.

Whether today – or Monday, or Tuesday – is The Day, “Something BIG is brewing!” as Michael Coolbaugh noted at the top of his regular market commentary yesterday.

Indeed, we've been discussing the onset of the next crisis for quite some time now. So far, the Federal Reserve and its flood of liquidity have kept things afloat.

But, down below, things are getting heavier and heavier and heavier...

This, folks, is a picture of debt being monetized – hand over fist – as Wall Street's rally rages and Main Street's growth stagnates.

To bring it home, while “modern monetary theory” oozes in, let's make some comparisons.

We're are now at the expansion's 11th hour, 147 months from the pre-crisis peak of the last cycle in November 2007. Here's what we've got to show for all the monetary central planning in the world...

[Chart]

Manufacturing output is still down by 2.1%. Gas and electric utility production is still lower by 1.5%. And total industrial production has barely crept forward by 3.9%, a weak 0.32% annual rate of gain.

Here are the same three basic industrial production measures for the slightly shorter 126-month span between the June 1990 pre-recession peak and the next cycle peak in December 2000...

[Chart]

This is what a real recovery and a "strong" economy looks like. During that 126-month span between recessions, manufacturing output rose by 56.5%, gas and electric utility output increased by 30.9%, and overall industrial production expanded by 47.3%.

It's an altogether different economic planet.

And it's one that's apparently been lost for the duration.

That's because, at 127 months of age and in the context of a massively bloated financial system rife with egregious speculation and reckless leverage, the current expansion's days were already numbered.

And then came the Donald's Trade War.

And now comes the Red Ponzi's coronavirus.

The world has simply not changed so much in the last 10 years that a decade of no industrial growth equates in any way, shape or form to the 1990s decade of solid industrial output growth.

Meanwhile, the Tweeter-in-Chief's idea that "Germany and other countries get paid to borrow money" and that therefore the Fed is derelict in not racing them to the bottom is just plain bonkers.

In fact, it's the persistence of negative real money market interest rates for more than a decade that gives rebuke to Fed Chair Jerome Powell's claims about the stability of the cycle.

Here's the picture for the real economic boom of the 1990s and its 47% gain in industrial production over the course of the 126-month peak-to-peak cycle.

[Chart]

For most of the period except for the early recovery period in 1992-94, the Fed's policy rate exceeded the stable inflation rate by 200 to 300 basis points.

It cost real money to engage in carry-trade speculation on Wall Street – even as Main Street investment, production, and growth proceeded apace.

Now, here's what has the Tweeter-in-Chief up in arms...

[Chart]

During the 143 months since April 2008, the federal funds rate has been above the inflation rate – that is, positive in real terms – during a grand total of just eight months.

And for most of the period, it was deeply below the running inflation rate.

Indeed, those eight months of barely positive real rates occurred even as the Powell Pivot, which commenced on January 4, 2019, less than a month after the Fed's policy rate went positive, was heading back into subzero land.

That's a faster and even more complete retreat than Churchill famously made at Dunkirk in 1940, as evidenced by the current spread.

As of December 2019, the trimmed-mean Consumer Price Index was up 2.37% year over year, meaning that the policy rate at 1.55% stood 82 basis points underwater in real terms.

So, tweet what you will, Mr. President; this economy is not "great." And, Chair Powell, testify as you will, but don't expect us to believe the system is solid, stable, or sustainable.

When the egregious financial bubbles the Fed is now inflating finally burst and induce another Main Street recession, the household sector will be lugging $16 trillion of debt.

And most of it is held by the bottom 80%, who have virtually no cash cushions or rainy-day funds beyond their paycheck.

Can You Handle the Truth?

The combination of the coronavirus outbreak in China and the quadrennial return of presidential politics in the U.S. has replaced the Trade War as the primary risk for investors.

That’s because, as we’ve been saying for some time now, this is the most politicized market in history.

And the Tweeter-in-Chief is still in charge. So, the situation is changing almost by the minute.

It’s “Impeachment!” in Imperial Washington and all over the Mainstream Media. It’s “Easy Money!” on Wall Street and across Bubblevision.

And it seems as if the whole world has, indeed, gone mad.

Amid this chaos, prices will continue to rise and fall, trends will continue to develop and dissipate.

Here’s where I usually say, “Well, The Stockman Letter is made for times like these”...

And I can say that because we brought aboard Michael Coolbaugh to update our design to help us better navigate to not only the safest harbors but also the most promising opportunities.

And he’s doing that. He’s also launched a complementary investment newsletter, Delta Profit Trader, that promises “higher frequency” engagement with markets.

Click here to view the “Delta Profit Summit,” where Michael explains his whole approach to investing in this environment.

The stakes are as high as they can be heading into 2020. Markets appear to be straining, catching up to an economy that's been weak and getting weaker for years.

The Donald is tied up in the day-to-day movements of the major stock indexes like no president before him. The increasingly desperate incumbent will do anything he must to hold the White House.

It's a major tipping point. And there's no telling what the Donald's great disruptions could do to your wealth.

You've got to be nimble to win in this market... and Michael's here to help you do that.

To common sense,

David"

LAS VEGAS – “President Donald Trump’s choice to stay at his own Las Vegas hotel each night during the western states swing that wraps up Friday likely cost taxpayers a million extra dollars as well as diverted thousands of them into his own cash registers.

Previous presidents on extended trips away from the White House typically stayed in the city of each day’s final event, or traveled to the city of the following day’s first event. Trump, instead, traveled back to Las Vegas each night from California, Arizona and Colorado to overnight at his Trump International Hotel – requiring several extra hours’ flying time on Air Force One, a plane that costs taxpayers about a quarter-million dollars per hour in the air.

“At this point in his presidency, there’s no way to look at it other than Donald Trump is using his position and taxpayer dollars to make money for his businesses,” said Jordan Libowitz with Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics in Washington. “This is beyond a conflict of interest. This is corruption, plain and simple.””
