Thrilled to have you with me!

I feel truly happy to tell you that this, I do not intend to be a book. Rather, it is like friends chatting up, sharing whatever we can together to enhance the wellness space.

It is my humble belief that any person, in whatever state of consciousness and positioning, is in some special ways, better than a wisdom-book, for the purpose of life & living learning. I must tell you, I have learnt and more importantly, unlearnt, primarily from people. Books somehow are people-material in text-format.

We shall talk about how we all have a ‘warrior’ within us who wins but only ‘randomly’ and how we can make it an ‘all-weather all-season Hero’, who acquires winning as a habitual art. However, first, we have to come down to one common premise, which shall help us is the fruition of the issue at hand – Making Winning A Habit.

There has to be a humble admittance – Any word, however well meant and well spelt, is a possible suspect of ‘misrepresentation’. There is a simple reason.

Do you remember when your flight is about to land, the pilot aborts the landing, jolting your peace, just because something as insignificant as a 'stray dog' happens to be on the runway?

You already know, how similar is the fate of human words, which we all accept as the best and worthy carriers of human 'intentions'. This airplane of human words, carrying good and noble intentions need to make a good, smooth and safe landing on the runway of another human's mind and consciousness, which again is worthy and hugely able.

Still, the good intentioned words sometimes fail to land on the mind of others, as there is some 'insignificant', yet potentially fatal obstacle standing midway the runway!

It is believed, "If the hypothesis is right, the idea is accepted as right". If two people have an assimilative and integrative attitude, one can easily see that root trouble is in subjectivity of the hypotheses. This helps in resolution of conflict of ideas.

Friendship is one positioning, where assimilation and integration about divergent hypotheses has larger accommodative space. A seed is more objectively accommodative in space than a grown up tree. Friendship is seed positioning.

That is why, at the very start, I very affectionately requested you to be my friend and accept this all as one long conversation between friends. Kindly, accept this not as a book but a 'confabulation' between friends. This, I am confident, shall engender smoothness of navigation and fruition of the entire exercise.

As a friend, I must tell you, I have put up a 'price tag' on it to fund my charity endeavors. All proceeds from this and other works of mine shall go to charity.

With all humility and sincerity at my behest, I wish to tell you, it needs to be said that there is only one person on the earth, who can say that he has understood. Otherwise, this domain is reserved for a metaphor called God. This is not available for humans.

It is also a heart-felt realization that our very worthy ancestors, who had the intelligence and courage to face the worst, life made them to, so that we inherit a better beautiful world, have already said almost all good things. What I can do is present them in new set of words with novelty of references.

The only justification of me telling them is that all goodness and wellness ideas and words need to be repeated and retold, to add to their all-pervasiveness.

At the age of 46, I can say with innocence that getting old is such a beautiful and satisfying experience. It makes the 'self' accept the 'utility and fruition' of holistic, assimilative and integrative consciousness. Getting old has probably pushed 'me' close to the 'eligibility' of perhaps beginning to understand as what essentially is there to be understood!

I chat up with you to share with you whatever is part of my consciousness. All wisdoms say, human is designed to live in state of 'flux', a state of instinctive semi consciousness. To jolt oneself out of this, one must challenge itself; something humanity has done since millions of years. What stays with you is what sinks in. Wisdom is what we internalize.

I share with you whatever I have internalized in my life.

God On Vacation, Makes You His Deputy

Think of it. Someday, God chooses to go on a vacation and he makes you His deputy, delegating all his functions! What you shall do? Can you handle it, anyhow, if not as well as He does?

How can we? We do not have even a slightest idea as "how He does what He does". You know the challenge of the situation, as you have faced similar circumstances at times. Your boss goes on leave and you are put in at his or her place, performing all his or her roles for a while. You do it well as you know the 'mechanism' of everything that involves your new roles and performances. After all, you have worked in tandem with your boss.

The simple fact is – A whole range of qualities, including concentration, determination, patience, courage, discipline, mastery, intensity, power, organization, integration, et al, which are required for the success of a role performance can be of little help, if we do not know the 'mechanism' of the roles and functions, we are expected to perform.

That is why, even when we all accept that humanity has the ultimate role of being in the 'Light of God', we at times fail in performing our functions in that cherished role. The Hero, the brilliant warrior that we all are, loaded with a whole range of beautifully amazing qualities, often fails, baffled about the situation.

It is said, “God is in details”. The other variants of the quote are also much in vogue. We all truly believe, goodness and wellness, even evil is in details. The word ‘details’ means, when we dig down, break the situation into smaller fragments, reach to ‘parts’ to understand the ‘whole’; the mechanism of a situation at hand can be revealed for success optimization.

Very right. Wisdom boils down to the objective understanding of details, the “dynamics of the mechanism” of everything. We all know from our experiences of life and living that those ideas or issues of life, the mechanism of which are not revealed to us in totality, remains mired in conflict, confusion and controversy.

For all of us, when we are out of the security of mother’s womb, the first and last awkwardness and challenge is to come to terms with one idea – Immensity and Complexity. The universe we live in, the knowledge we have to acquire, the action and duties we are expected to perform, etc. all seem colossally complex and immense. One life seems too insignificant to deal with the immensity.

However, the core wisdom of all fields – philosophy, spiritualism and even science has been telling us since thousands of years that mechanism of wisdom is not vast. Rather, contrary to our popular beliefs, it is small, simple and above all decisively singular. Those great minds, who said it, were definitively those, who delved deep into the ‘details’. The ‘mechanism’ was unraveled to them and they found it pleasantly simple and singular – very much like the idea of love and God.

In all of us, there is this Hero, who has it all to be a ‘winner’, the genius of this universe. However, this ‘Hero’ is what we can label as ‘Random Warrior’. We all have the determination, patience, courage, discipline and the mastery to be a sure and sustained ‘winner’, like a true warrior. However, as many of us somehow miss the knowledge and acceptance of this ‘mechanism’, this warrior turns out to be only a ‘random’ winner, unable to sustain the artistry of winning.

Once we understand the ‘mechanism’, the ‘Random Warrior’ in us shall become a ‘Hero’ of all weathers and seasons. We shall be then the worthy Deputy of God, the entity; we all have the eligibility to be.

We shall talk about in ‘details’, the “dynamics of this mechanism” to make this ‘Random Warrior’ an all-season “Hero of Sustained Successes”.

Why I say, there is a definite Hero in all of us? The reason is, we all have an in-built and natural ability, a born facility, which makes us ‘eligible’ for understanding the ‘mechanism’. The only trouble is, eligibility is not automatic ‘qualification’. All of us are born with a facility called ‘instinctive inquisitiveness’. This is our born eligibility. However, we need to orient and align our inquisitiveness towards ‘objective knowledge’ to ‘qualify’ as an intelligent person, who is the ‘master of mechanism’. If not, then we are left in lurch as ‘puppet of mechanism’.

Give a toy car to a child and witness the magic of ‘instinctive inquisitiveness’. The child will first taste it, inspect it closely, will attempt to dismantle it into pieces and then try to join the scrambled pieces. This does not however mean, the child has understood the mechanism of car and its making. The kid shall however learn it well later, if this inquisitiveness is persisted and is transformed into a persistent art.

The world we come into is also like a toy to us, when we are child. Our natural inquisitiveness makes us experiment with the toy. We are just a ‘random warrior’ at that time. We may have initial successes, like some kids, who would be successful in joining back the dismantled pieces of the toy car. However, as we grow, we shall need objective knowledge to understand the ‘dynamics of mechanism’ of the toy called the ‘complex world’, we shall share with billions others. We shall need ‘specialization of artistry’ to be an all-weather and all-season Hero.

The crucial element, which converts our natural instinctive ‘eligibility’ into a cultivated and evolved ‘qualification’ is the ‘objective knowledge’ of the ‘mechanism’.

In my previous talks, in the form of the ebook titled, ‘Naked Solutions Of Dressed Up Life Woes’, we discussed about the ‘mechanism’ in periphery. Here, we shall focus primarily on mind-consciousness and its functional mechanisms in details, as it is within our minds that we shall find our true Hero.

It is the mind, which makes us a 'random warrior' and it is the same mind, which holds the potential of we being the all-weather and all-season Hero, the cherished pole-position, for which we all have born eligibility.

Mechanism Of Populism

At the very outset, it has to be admitted very humbly and innocently that the multidimensionality of ideas, the consciousness and the larger domain of sub-conscious mind can lead us to, can be resplendently astounding and even miraculous. That is why, it remains largely beyond the suffocatingly diminutive universe of human language and words we have designed.

Words, we have invented for our communication are largely successful, when they are used for actionable requirements. However, when it comes to using them for reception of wisdom, they are very restrictive in utility. Words are successful in societal-exchange domain, however often flop in the domain of personal and inter-personal utility.

Given the limitations of words in describing consciousness ideas, still, we can say, as the mind-consciousness unravels and promulgates its stunningly satiating templates of asymmetrical super-positioning and vice-versa, not a single human on this earth can resist the exclamation that it is not magic.

It seems, in holistic value summation, that it is mysticism at its best and divinity at its most magnanimous manifestation! That is why, tough to understand through words. Still, if we are in total reception of words, accepting its utility and worth with an affectionate and compassionate heart, we can instill loads of fruition and meaning into them.

All those who understood and accepted the intricate and expansive mechanisms of mind and willingly, spontaneously and consciously gave it to its playful possibilities, they found it colossally self-fulfilling and rewarding.

They proclaimed, 'every song, every dance, all poetry, all magic, divinity, revelation and almost all possibilities are within self; no need to search them and validate them in outside world; not even the need for an expression as it would only be misunderstood'.

Let us understand it with day-to-day life example. The food we eat is felt until it stays up to the throat. After that the body mechanism, which continues to work upon the food, is not felt. The mind has 100 billion neurons and billions of other supportive neurons are working incessantly. We can feel and understand only a fraction of its operative mechanism. Rest is mysticism for most.

This is our design. However, the real Hero is a person, who does not divert his or her attention and focus from the food, even when it is past the 'felt-zone' of throat. We all need to be aware of and receptive towards the journey of this vital food down the tracts till its last processing.

Doctors have been warning us. They say, "Own the onus of the food your mouth shoves to the body, as you are not just your tongue, but the entire body". The idea is to convey the fact that usually, in our restrictive consciousness, we eat in loads what our mouth, especially tongue likes. It is true that the taste buds are restricted to tongue only and as the food goes down beyond it, we do not wish to remember and care about.

However, we are not only our mouth. Our body is an intricate and huge mechanism. There are long food canal, liver, pancreas, kidneys, heart et al and together there are millions of functions that go on within our body, which we do not consciously register. However, they are crucial for our survival and general well-being. The mouth is our conscious mind but rest of the millions of complex functions are handled by our unconscious mind.

A true Hero, cannot restrict its responsibility and attention to just the miniscule conscious part. The unconscious is also our onus as it is the larger domain, which essentially handles our basic health and survival. The real Hero shall always know and respect the 'details' of the entirety of the 'body-mechanism' and shall own the responsibility of the wellness and success of all parts, not only one part.

The conscious-mind in we all, who is restrictively concerned and knowledgeable about only a 'part' of the entire complex mechanism, shall be only a 'Random Warrior'. The all-weather and all-season true 'Hero' shall definitively be aware and responsible towards the 'whole'. The holistic, assimilative and integrative perspective towards the 'mechanism, its entirety is the hallmark of a true Hero. It is where, many of us fail.

We cannot blame ourselves. It is our mechanism too! The conscious part, the mouth, gives us tangibles as instant utility and fruition. The mind consciousness is bound to register the immediate advantage of 'taste-satisfaction' and extend instant thumbs-up. We eat a huge and rich creamy cake and feel so happy. The tongue gives us a huge thumbs-up as it registers big bonus on satisfaction-scale. However, the burst of calamitous sugar, which goes inside the food tract and gets big disapproval and thumbs down from liver and pancreas are not registered on the satisfaction-scale. These organs are rather neutral. The mouth is a vocal and populist showman. The liver however is the silent worker.

The 'Random Warrior' has this tendency of giving in to populism. However, the real Hero shall always have the poise and perspective to see the picture in entirety as the Hero understands and accepts the 'mechanism' not in 'parts', but in holism and assimilation.

The 'Hero' shall never be swayed away or blown out by populism, as it has the holistic perspective to understand that 'success' is not in pampering the mouth with all its 'wants', it is rather in ensuring the larger health and wellness 'need' of the whole body. The Hero understands, "Success is not in having all that we want for instant joys, it is rather in the prudence of having what we actually need for persevered satisfaction".

The Mechanism And More

The mystical mechanism of neurotic interplay buoys up and down our 'self' between the vast oceans of consciousness and sub-consciousness. Only two percent or less of mind's mechanisms we can control, like, we can control our food only until it is not past the throat. Still, we all think, we are genius of some kind, perfected for controlling the probabilistic 'self' and almost everything.

Of course, we are not only mechanism. We are surely more than our mechanism but we are for most times, a mystical mix of 'mechanism' and the 'more'. However, many of us would be least concerned and interested in understanding and accepting the massive intricacies of the mechanism and would be engrossed primarily in the mysticism of the 'more'. Neither mechanism, nor the more can be understood in isolation.

We cannot be concerned exclusively about the success of mouth and tongue. Similarly, we also cannot only be concerned about the success of below the throat mechanism. There always has to be a mix and poised amalgam of both. The segregation is calamitous.

All those, who understood and accepted the intricate and expansive ‘mechanisms’ and the ‘more’, they hit the road to ‘sat-chit-anand’. The word in old Indian language of Sanskrit means – the Absolute Existence, Absolute Consciousness and Absolute Bliss.

We now have the facility. Earlier, the facility to understand and unravel ‘mechanism’ and ‘more’ was purely psychic and philosophical, reserved for a few evolved minds. Even they erred, as wisdom was observance only, not verifiable objectively.

It is now amenable and available to all, with just the willingness and openness of mind. Still, majority are away and aloof from this modern facility. Unfortunately, most of us are egoistically happy in the comfort zone of inertia, blinded by the rigidity of our age-old hypotheses.

There is this dangerous and restrictive mindset to accept all knowledge and wisdom only as subjects for academics. Science also becomes a subject for school and college learning syllabus but never becomes a way of life. All knowledge remains ‘learning’ abilities for grades and jobs but they are seldom internalized and ingrained in our lives. Wisdom when internalized becomes common sense.

All wisdoms are now amenable for easy and quick internalization. Humanity needs a lot of change and new initiations in the learning and educational systems it has so far prescribed for new generations. Not only science, philosophy, psychology, spiritualism, mathematics, history, etc are meant for internalization so that these wisdoms could be an integral and assimilative part of the holistic culture across humanity. All wisdoms need to be internalized to become common sense for humanity at large.

For example, for centuries, we ascribed eclipse to divinity and put the question in the domain of religion. It is now in the rightful domain of secular and scientific knowledge. Similarly, for centuries, we have put ‘consciousness’ in the domain of psychic. New thinking puts it rightly in the domain of secular knowledge of mind mechanism.

For centuries, humanity has struggled with a causality of crucial questions of life and living based on psychic interpretation of realism. For the first time in human history, we are successfully attempting to build up secular and objective paradigms for a logical, measurable and replicable causality based on provable and singular logic and facts.

We now have a wisdom to understand the mechanisms of realisms around us in a completely new light, often against and in rejection of our fixated and wired cultural mind's age-old iconic wisdom. Once we accept the knowledge of the mechanism, the mysticism around the 'more' of humanity, build over centuries by psychic and ingenious minds is cleared. Then, we all open up to a completely new realism.

As and when we assimilate this new thinking, objective wisdom becomes humanity's common sense and soon, the psychosis of minds, the devil of humanity flees away for good.

The James Bond In Us

Most of us love the character of James bond. He is somehow very close to the concept of our all-weather all season Hero. We also love the superman. However, our James Bond is purely human and more like us, but a 'winner' in all tough and almost 'unwinnable' situations.

When we see him coming out a winner in all tough situations, we know why he could. He always does it because he is the 'master of mechanisms'. The best part of his glorious winning ways is the fact that they all seem so spontaneous and habitual. He does not have to move a mountain like our superman to save his beloved. He always knows about a secret pass or a crack opening in the mountain to sneak in beyond it.

We shower his performances with encore and applauds as he pulls out another of his masterly tricks with aplomb, to score over his detractors and conspirators. In all his troubles, he knows a diversion and bypass. Not surprisingly, they are mostly very believable as the winning tricks come out of the same mechanism, which brought about a problematic situation at the first place. This is his heroism – He is the master of mechanisms.

Can we all be James Bond? Why not, but being a James Bond means lots of homework and preparations. And what this homework is all about? It is painful, persevered and postured preparations to arrive at a state of 'readiness', where we have the 'objective knowledge' of all situations, life can put us in.

Present a latest high-tech car to the James Bond, with first-time features anywhere on the globe and James Bond already knows, how to successfully run it and fruitfully use every new feature in all tough and unwinnable situations, which his work may land him in. The reason he could do it is he has gone through the painful process of 'preparedness' of basics, well before he became James Bond, to be in 'readiness', which defines him as James Bond.

And, what is this process of preparedness? We have already talked about it. The process is to be aware and responsible towards the 'whole', not only the 'part'. The holistic, assimilative and integrative perspective towards the 'mechanism, its entirety is the hallmark of a true Hero like James Bond.

Only a person, who is receptive enough to respectfully accept the utility and fruition of every little detail of the mechanism of anything he or she is learning, can be ultimately 'ready' to be in the position of an all-weather all-season winning Hero.

Diagnosis Of Patterns

We have so many examples in our daily lives, where we see that if we have prepared ourselves well for multiple factors and have anticipated rightly the dynamic interplay of these factors, we are successful in having a smooth and safe go.

We are driving a car on the busy highway. Driving itself is a multi-tasking skill. Those, who have better coordination of their eyes, hands and legs, shall be driver with lesser chances of accidents. This is however only one part of successful driving. You also need to have intuitive anticipation towards possible mistakes of not only your own driving, but also of others, who shall be ahead and behind you on the highway. You have to anticipate correctly and in time, if a driver ahead you does something silly. Accident happens not only when you do a wrong, but also when others do wrong with you. You are in trouble both ways.

Moreover, on the highway, you need to know, where those accident-prone zones are and where drivers usually make errors of judgment. There may be a signboards warning you but you must have this pre-knowledge, back in your subconscious. It means, you must be very aware of the entire stretch of the highway.

We can see, how a simple thing like driving a car is such a multi-dimensional skill, where we have to master the inter-play of so many factors. However, as we have become used to all this, we do not feel its burden as these skills have become part of our subconscious mind. The skill has become an auto-function of subconscious mind.

The fact remains that even when we all have been allowed licenses for driving, this does not mean we all are 'Heroes' of the highways. Many of us are only 'Random Warriors'. Many of us are just 'eligible' drivers. To be a qualified driver, one needs to have long experiences of the highway driving. The finer skills, like coordination, anticipation, judgment of error, preemptive moves and precautionary measures, et al come to us only through practice and experience.

There is a very good metaphor of this skill in psychology. It is called 'helicopter-view' consciousness.

For example, you are standing mid-way a five-kilometer road, between point A and point C. As a car starts on the road from point A for point C, the spheres are defined for you at point B, where you stand mid-way. The car at point A is your 'future' as it shall take ten minutes to reach you. As it reaches you at point B, it is your 'present'. The car shall take another ten minutes to move away to reach point C, which then shall become your 'past'.

You can deal with the safety and wellbeing of its passenger only when it comes to the domain of your 'present at point B, where you stand on the road. Before and after that, you have no control over the car and passengers' destiny.

However, if you are given a helicopter at point B and you lift up to a certain point from where you can see the start of the car at point A, its entire journey down to point C, there shall be no future, no past. The entire stretch shall fall in the domain of your 'present' as you can see the car all along the road. As everything is in 'present', you have full control over the safety of both car and its passenger. You can see everything and therefore can put up a warning, before anything untoward is to happen.

Life and its problems are also like the journey from point A to point C. Usually, we are grounded in our consciousness and perspectives towards life and it is like restricting our views at one small point, between the two ends. If we can rise up our consciousness to this ‘helicopter-view’ perspective, we can have a view of our entire life-span as one clear long landscape. Everything shall be in the domain of ‘present’ and within our possible control.

Usually, the conscious-mind in we all is restrictively concerned and knowledgeable only about a ‘part’ of the entire complex mechanism of life and living. This consciousness is a restrictive positioning of a ‘Random Warrior’.

The all-weather and all-season true ‘Hero’ shall definitively be aware and responsible towards the ‘whole’. The holistic, assimilative and integrative perspective towards the ‘mechanism, its entirety is the hallmark of a true Hero.

This facility of conscious mind, to extend the domain of our ‘present’ to past and even future is not something new to humanity. Somehow, this facility or faculty, which some people had in the past, was based entirely on intuitiveness of the mind consciousness. Modern humans can learn the art by simply understanding the mechanism of mind.

It was believed that some people were born with the quality of an ‘intuitive’ mind. There was a belief among masses that they could predict events from past and future. There was also a cult of ‘Tantricism’, an occult tradition as well as mainstream tradition of meditative powers to develop intuition, which was used to predict past and future.

The core idea behind all these was to have a mind consciousness, which could have the receptive brilliance of a ‘helicopter-view’ perspective. In my research, talking with many of them with intuitive power, I found that the ability to predict right about past and future, which masses called magic, the artistry was essentially that of a mind consciousness, which had special abilities of rising above the plane and be able to see things, as the person could see from a helicopter.

The aggrieved people would come to these ‘magicians’ and Tantric and tell them their problems. For example, a woman came and asked the Tantric to trace his son, who had gone missing for last one year. The Tantric listened to the woman and then closed his eyes. Minutes after, he said, he had the divine vision that her son is still alive and he left home on his own accord. Tantric asked the woman to search for the son in a place 500 kilometers east from the place he lived.

The woman found her son after a year in a city around the same vicinity the Tantric had said. I sat with a Tantric and talked about all this. My friendliness to him made him say things, which he would not reveal to others.

He said, “When a person is in trouble, especially for long period, his or her natural abilities for rational thinking is eclipsed. People who generally come to us have little education or unsound reasoning faculties. They tell us everything. We then ask for some specific information about their trouble and about the environment, where the trouble started. We then close our eyes, sit in a meditative consciousness of complete reception. All these information we leave with this meditative unconscious mind for churning. We have evolved this facility to switch off our conscious mind. The intuitive unconscious mind has a strange facility of doing its own strange mathematics. It does its own interpolation and even extrapolation. It may take some minutes or few hours but the unconscious mind finally puts all these information into a template of sorts, where we can see pictures of past and future arranged in a particular order. We then use the faculty of the conscious mind to create a pattern or sequence of events. On this basis, we predict and it usually comes true.”

There were great similarities between what the Tantric did and what doctors used to do 50 years back. Then, there were little specialist diagnostic tests of modern times available to the doctors. For diagnosis, they had to depend largely on the symptoms the patients described of his troubles or any external symptoms visible. The most popular doctor was one, who could diagnose the disease correctly.

Many of the doctors of old school used the power of ‘intuitive mind’ to diagnose the diseases correctly. Many of them practiced the art of meditation, worships and even playing musical instruments to attune and align the mind towards a state of high reception. They depended heavily on details and then used the intuitive minds to work out a pattern, which would then help them in predicting the right diagnosis.

Somehow, we all do it in one form or the other. Just visit a casino to see how the master gambler is the one who is sharp and prompt enough to predict a pattern in all games and make the right choices. It is our mind, which is constantly doing the calculations of the permutations and combinations, scattered all around us. The interpolative and extrapolative mind consciousness is a random faculty of mind, which we all can master to be the 'Hero' of winning habits.

The Answer And The Right Process

The magic of the mind consciousnesses, in deciphering the hidden patterns around us and then successfully diagnosing the winning 'prescription' for solution of all troubles is not easy. It is an art that needs to be perfected with practice. The 'helicopter-view' consciousness does not come natural and instinctive to us.

Once we understand the dynamics of the mind consciousness, with the resource of objective knowledge, which modern and contemporary 'new thinking' has endowed us with, we shall be in a better position to master the art. Let us talk about the mechanism of mind consciousness.

Conflict is the energy, for evolution of all forms, including the human brain, the seemingly most important theatre of conflict, but just a microcosmic model of cosmic conflicts. Stating this is nothing new. Taking a step ahead towards 'new thinking' is to understand the mechanism and processes. It is the lack of proper understanding of conflict, which creates a 'random warrior' in all of us.

Humanity always had some evolved minds, who rose above the conflict and to whom 'the singular answers' of critical questions of humanity as well as the cosmos were revealed. Important it is that the revelations to a handful get eventually transformed into a logical and patterned knowledge for all of humanity. This has always been missing till now, presenting the real challenge for humanity. The new thinking enlists this as 'doable'.

It is like; in an exam, you know the answer of a mathematical question and you write that in the answer sheet but the examiner would not give you any marks for that. This is a 'random warrior' situation. You need to write down the entire process of how you arrived at the right answers. Just knowing the right answers fetches no marks. Even in life, we think we have the answers but as we miss the right process, results are disappointing.

This has always happened to a few great minds in human civilization; they knew right 'answers' but not the right 'process', none of their fault! The mechanism could not be known to them.

That is why; there came the trilogy of 'known-unknown-unknowable' premise. Those who truly arrived at the right answers could not detail the right process and that is why they said, 'real wisdom is only revealed to individuals and cannot be converted into a collective knowledge for all'. It is unknowable but can only be 'revealed'. This proposition still holds good for larger humanity. But we now have the knowledge of mechanism, to lay down the right processes for the right answers.

The larger humanity accepts this 'known-unknown-unknowable' premise as truth – be it religion, spiritualism, philosophy or psychology. It resulted into a very beautiful but also very dangerous proposition for humanity. Those who arrived at the wisdom and when right answers were revealed to them, it was only very natural and instinctive that their minds were filled with compassion as they could see the larger humanity suffering partly from lack of resource but largely because of widespread and deep ignorance.

They felt so full of compassion to see that ignorance is making the very potent and positive 'energy' of conflict into a potent weapon of mass destruction and resultant pain and misery. They chose a way out which, like conflict, created more chaos and confusion than order and peace, which was intended.

Many of those, who arrived at right answers but did not know the process, chose not to speak. First, they never were sure of what was revealed to them were actually right or not as they could not establish its procedural veracity. As they say, 'the wise is never sure and a stupid is always'. The wise is always responsible.

Many of them were also fearful of the social backlash, as even now, larger humanity is full of vengeance and violence for non-conformists. Still, a few chose to speak, mostly out of compassion for the larger ignorance of wider humanity. However, it was impossible even for them to put the wisdom into words that larger humanity could understand and accept. Therefore, what they said was mostly in a language of metaphors and symbols. Why they chose to say it all in metaphors and symbols? It has a reason.

Very early in human evolution, when humans had not even developed language, some of the more evolved brains could detect and establish that there was a pattern all around them in immediate nature, which they could decipher. It was revealed to a few. The later humans also understood it and they chose to express it in metaphors and symbols. Usually, early metaphors were derived from nature. As language was developed, they put up language metaphors.

It is understandable as metaphors were most easily replicable even for an un-arrived brain. The knowledge of process facilitates replication. It had to be as there was a discernible pattern of cosmos, which were replicable in nature. Even later, when language was developed quite well, the metaphors took the shape of verse not prose, as brain would accept the verses more easily. That is why, all ancient human documents or oral traditions of wisdom were written in verse style.

Metaphors are replicable patterns and they are all around us to understand easily. For example, we are told, the life is like a jungle and we have to make our own roads to success by clearing the bushes and trees. And how this success comes? This comes when we as a brain, prune or unlearn some of the info of our subconscious as well as the cultured mind and create a path of higher consciousness.

There is also an Oriental spiritual metaphor of the world being a 'maya-jaal' (plexus of senses). This matches with the scientific pattern of brain functioning in which brain creates a huge branching network of axons, dendrites and synapses. A good and rational human being, a prudent mind has to rise above this network created by a subconscious mind with the help of higher consciousness. We are all told how most get lost in this forest and few succeed in creating the right path.

They chose metaphors because brain accepts most things as pictorial and relates it as templates. That is why, metaphors, which abound in nature around us and can be seen from bare eyes, were chosen.

Despite the worthy compassion of the ancient wise men and their brilliance in selecting excellent metaphors and symbols for laying out the processes of the wisdom they acquired, the average human could not benefit as the processes were very subjectively received. Scientific answers, when laid as procedures have singular and objective reception by all minds and that is why, the technology is universal, even while languages are different.

As these ancient metaphors and symbols lacked objectivity and singularity of reception by all minds and every individual mind accepted them in its own subjective interpretation, they could never be replicated by the society at large. These rather engendered multiplicity of expressions and actions, creating bad replica in the forms of calamitous rituals.

The metaphor system of wisdom dispensation was good only for the arrived brains but for most, the majority of the common masses, even this metaphor was a matter of great misunderstanding and conflict. That is why; ancient wisdom is the most misinterpreted one and bears more conflict of mind than order. Religion and spiritualism remain confused and conflicting domains, ridden with dangerous rituals, all competing to be the right one, at the cost of the denial of others.

Sadly, as is with almost every human enterprise, some of the unscrupulous elements of society at all times, used this confusion, conflict and misinterpretation for their own petty and selfish ends. The religion, spiritualism and philosophy have always fallen on the hands of some of these elements and some confused people.

The humanity has always suffered. These selfish elements converted these meaningful metaphors into set of rituals, which were masterly designs to suit individuals, and a set of individuals who wished not religion but its ownership. Wider ignorance of humanity made it all very easy, they still are.

You may ask, why we are talking in such details about this ‘metaphor-building’ and inherent troubles in it. We are doing it because of the benefits it extends us in being the ‘master of mechanism’, leading us to be the all-season hero. We now list the benefits this process of metaphor-building extends to every individual, if this exercise is done with constant practice and perseverance of art:

1. Every person has to build his own set of metaphors, which he or she accepts after discerning those patterns of life around him or her. As we have said, there are patterns of excellence all around us – both tangible and intangible. We need to decipher them and create our own metaphors for easy references later.
2. What stays is what sinks in. This means, whatever wisdom we can internalize, that alone stays with us and helps. That is why, even when we read and see number of wisdom metaphors all around us, what we ourselves create and accept are what stay with us.
3. Our mind accepts metaphors easily and stores them in active memory, as they are ostensibly pictorial. The mind then saves them as templates, which help us whenever we have the need for tough decision-making in life.
4. The mind is neutral and for excellence, we all need to create an environment around us, which naturally and instinctively prompts us for excellence. As we create and accept many good metaphors as templates for mind, our mind consciousness develops this good habit of discerning ‘thought and emotion-patterns’ in all situations of life, making it easy and automatic for us to see the ‘winning’ position. All these good templates become our internal environment, within which, our ‘winner’ personality excels.
5. Like James Bond, all excellence must come to us as instinctive and intuitive first action. In our daily lives, we do not often have time and leisure to think and then act. That is why, excellence must be habitual. Metaphor-building helps mind create ready templates for intuitive first action decision-making. The all-season winner has to be a habitual hero in all his prompt and first action.

Do Not Be, You Shall Be

Now, the next stage in metaphor building for mental template making is also not an easy task. Just because, this conflict of mind shall always make the inquisitive enquiry about what one should accept as right and what as wrong. Moreover, the most crucial question is – among the loads of symbols and patterns around us, what should one search and find as the right one for excellence?

The wise have said it silently, probably to themselves only, still their talks are everywhere and scattered in so many words. The old wisdom is simple, yet very much shrouded in the veil of mystique. This seems so, because, the sayer of wisdom words probably could not figure out the easy process and mechanism of making the millions understand the inevitability of dualism and conflict and for coming out of it. However, their words tell us the process.

It is so beautiful, yet so perplexing! The wise say, 'don't do anything, yet become everything'. They say, 'give up everything, you get everything'. They say, 'go where you began, you shall arrive'. They say, 'what you experience outside is inside you'. They say, 'seek the zero, get the infinity'. They say, 'keep quiet, the music shall flow'. They say, 'do not be, you shall be'. Etc.

This prescription for coming out of dualism and conflict itself seems mired in larger dualism. The hapless average person asks the arrived, 'are you not mad, are you serious, anyway, how to do it?' The sayer usually smiles and moves away. Some greats would just say, 'do not do, just be'. The hapless remains confused, conflicted and is amply convinced, the wisdom man is surely mad. They pray God to help 'the wise' out of his debauchery.

The journey from dualism to non-dualism is very tough. Religion as well as science says, it is not amenable and available for everyone. It is only for a few blessed ones! This, they say, is not ordinary but ordained by almighty! You would also say that this seems true because, there are not loads of James Bond around, very few Heroes.

The human mechanism also confirms this. Brain structure and consciousness varies and it decides the ordinary and ordained. However, the wise have also said that this tough facility is available for all, even the most stupid of all. Some wise said, "Both stupid and genius can learn; only those even God cannot make learn, who are in the pride of knowing."

The wise says, 'talent is important but what makes a genius is practice not patronage and lineage'. Ustaads, the gurus and wise have said, 'the real master is perseverance of practice'. There is a famous visual metaphor said in this regard by India's most respected poet saint, Kabir. He said, 'The feeble rope, which incessantly goes up and down with a bucket in the well, makes a deep mark even on the stone walls of the well.' This metaphor suggests, even the most stupid can qualify to be a genius, if efforts are sustained and persevered with.

Arriving is all about mind training to lead the consciousness to a certain positioning or situationalism of complete reception. As this happens, the dualism goes away, as it is then clear that what the greats have been talking about the wisdom may seem contradictory but actually, both the conflicting options, though looking mutually exclusive, are and remain simultaneously available. Check this:

God says, 'Stop seeing me, you shall see'. God says, 'Stop searching me, you shall find'. Now, there are semantic connotations also in these words, apart from the dualism, which is purely a mind and consciousness positioning. One feels the dualism in the lines as it says to 'stop' doing something for its 'fruition'. We must understand why there is no dualism in it.

Semantically, the words tell you that actually, you are caught between two simultaneous actions and that is why you do not arrive at either of the two. The lack of linearity and singular focus sways you away from fruition. When you are seeing or searching, you are amid two actions – the effort of seeing and searching and second is the act of seeing and searching. In addition, you are not clear as what you are wanting to see or search because, the dualism itself throws at you so many probable options of seeing realisms.

From the perspective of mind mechanism, as science tells us, the same is happening. You are caught amid two dimensions. The mechanism tells us that when we are in a search or looking, there are two things happening to us – first the search and second the seeing. We see so many things and naturally the brain processes all colors and shapes we see and throws to us multiple options for value-summation or what we call our subjective decision as, what we find and see is actually, what we think we are looking for.

The prescription of wisdom is also susceptible to the conflation of dualism and usually, people land on the wrong and transitional side of the wisdom, which actually shows us the absolute perspective through a transitional shade of consciousness. It may look like the prescription wanting us to opt for an action or a non-action. Actually, it is not. Wisdom just says to be aware of both the simultaneous forces and use them to arrive.

You and me cannot find or search a God or a love. It is there in whatever shape, color or positioning irrespective of our semantic and mental confusion about what and how God and love is. We get God and love not by finding or searching for it but by stopping doing it as, this leads us to be assimilated in God and Love, as both are in everything and everywhere. Here dualism stops and non-dualism is arrived at.

What wise tell us is – the dualism and conflict is not in the object or subject of our desires, rather it is within us. If we are looking for something, we are split and conflicted. Suppose, in a crowd, you get separated from your friend. You start searching him or her, looking out everywhere. You might see so many people and hundreds of faces. Finally, among those thousands of people, you find your friend and become happy.

If we ask you to tell about those people you saw while looking for your friend among the crowd; you shall be troubled. It is because, while you searched, your primary energy was to ‘reject’ those thousands, who did not look like your friend. Your mind was fixed on searching something, which your mind already had fixed.

However, when you are searching for something, which you do not know or do not have an image of in your conscious mind, like your friend’s face; think what trouble and dualism you shall face. You are then searching something but how can you. It is neither tangible nor known to you. You can only search when you have an image in your mind. This is our mechanism, this is our limitation as human.

So, what your mind unconsciously does is create an imaginary or virtual ‘face and body’ of something you are searching for. Interestingly, your conscious self shall be unaware of this unconscious ‘choice’ made by your mind.

When we search for God and love; or larger wellness and goodness ideas, we do not have a firsthand info or face of God, love and goodness. What our mystical mind does is create unconsciously a virtual imagery of them. So, when we search for God, love and goodness, we are actually not looking for the ‘real’ ones, rather searching this ‘virtual’ or ‘imagined’ ones.

The wise tell us, this creates a dualism and conflict within. Love, God, goodness are what they are and not what your ‘virtual imagery’ wants to see them as. That is why, we all remain searching for them in the crowd of life and they remain ‘missing’ and we remain ‘lost’.

The lover and faithful must understand where and what love and divinity is. If he or she thinks that a true love is only that which his or her ‘virtual imagery’ says and accepts, then she is actually denying and drifting away from love and divinity. Love is not in seeing and searching what you think is there for you. It is where it is irrespective of you and your love. Stop doing it and you get love. Same with faith.

Of course, the blame is not on the lovers. The cultured mind and the mechanism of brain have to do with it. Things become very difficult for a mind after the age of 25 to attune and align itself towards a completely new and alien value and belief system, against the populist benchmarks. The imagery already in mind, prompts us to create a 'virtual imagery' of all goodness and this virtual thing is the product of what cultural and subjective elements we have stored in our minds. That is why; goodness has to be ingrained in early childhood and adolescent.

Stop 'doing' it to get 'love' is not easy. This comes from riyaaz; painful and persevered practice. In almost all aspects of your pursuit and endeavors, this dualism would attract you to make you adrift. You shall have to practice hard to understand the undercurrent of dualism and then use the energy of this dualism in arriving at the non-dualism.

This discerning artistry is enacted by our higher consciousness. This consciousness never rejects dualism and conflicts. Rather, it accepts the dualism in its entirety and multidimensionality. It can see both the conscious and subconscious layers of mind presenting the conflict. It understands the nuances of the same mind 'projecting' a virtual imagery and that of the conscious mind wanting the real one. This however needs practice, like all arts.

Sadly enough, people do not have either the mental willingness or strength to accept the utility and fruition of this painful and prolong process of practice. That is why the non-dualism is so rare. Dualism triumphs in this world as it is easy and amenable to average brain and resolve. There have always been greats who have told 'right' things to humanity. However, it is always met with disbelieve and distrust.

The non-dualistic wisdom often gets the label of it being debauch and hypocritical as most people cannot understand the semantic and mental conflation of the dualism. Secondly, even if they get close to it, they would seldom go beyond a lover's 'preference' for 'virtual imagery' of subjective goodness.

Usually, the lover would be happy that he or she has a lover who accepts him or her blindly and then, she happily 'stops' there. The growth and evolution in love stops too as there is a stubbornness to stick to their preferred 'virtual imagery'. Moreover, as his or her ingenuity would prompt, he or she would use all the wisdom in the defense of his or her 'preferred' action.

It is very crucial here to understand and accept that it is not the 'ignorance', which is the worst enemy of humanity. As we deal with it next, there is nothing called 'ignorance' in this world full of humans. What we have everywhere and loads of it is 'subjective intelligence'. 'Nothing' is not such a bad proposition at all. What is calamitous for humanity is 'subjective something'; the personalized 'wisdom', and the artistry of ingenuity to prove it as the cosmic and global wisdom for all.

This has been the most damaging thing for humanity. Love and Godliness are fast becoming extinct. What we all have now is the 'search' and 'seeing' of Love and God. Everyone is in the lookout for Love and God. They are everywhere but seldom within us.

The Somethingness In Nothingness

Talking of 'ignorance', can we say there is nothing called 'ignorance'? The word looks like, at best, an accusation by one for another. Somehow, tragically enough, people often use the word for one-upmanship against competing persons.

There may not be even a handful, who would accept this tag for themselves, even when almost every human being faces this label so many times in his or her life. Actually, more knowledgeable one accepts himself or herself, more ignorant he or she stands to be labeled. This is the way our cultural mind consciousness works!

Nothingness is never a reality as it seems, there is always a 'somethingness' called 'knowledge', tiny bit or colossal but always relative and subjective. In this subjectivity and relativity is the genesis of the accusation, called 'ignorance'.

Often, 'ignorance' at one time presents itself as the ultimate 'wisdom' in a particular linearity of time and space for the same person. In addition, one's wisdom invariably seems 'ignorance' for other. The objectivity of the realism apart, the subjectivity and relativity of situation and position makes it happen.

Sunset in one part of the world is sunrise for another in extreme other part of the globe, even when sun actually never rises or sets. Most of 'realisms' of life present knowledge this way in our popular culture. It is the convenient way to look at reality around us. Goodness of life is like the Sun, which never ever rises or sets but we in our subjective and relative mind consciousness accept this 'virtual imagery' of the goodness of Sun.

The wise and arrived also call it a cyclic realism. Relativity and subjectivism wraps in its warm embrace almost all realism, in one time or other. The trouble is; both sunrise and sunset are realisms at one particular frame of reference. This 'superposition' (ever-presence) of realisms is also an intricate but interesting realism. This however is tough for individuals to accept in normal walks of life.

So, can we say, there is never a 'nothingness', always a 'somethingness' and this something is always subjective and relative, enabling the engendering of the term 'nothing'.

A something, or a knowledge is the 'right' and 'best' thing for an individual but at the same time, it is the source of accusation for other that it is 'nothing' and sheer 'ignorance'. In absolute reality, even nothing is something and even ignorance is some knowledge. There is seldom a vacuum... it is not a natural state of things...!

There always is a truth; subjective and relative it may be. This is the energy, which creates and celebrates the 'label' of 'false'. One's subjective truth is other's 'false'; one's subjective 'good' is other's 'bad'. Sunrise in USA is sunset in India but from the space, a person would say both are 'ignorant' as the two terms are only 'virtual imagery' of the absolute reality of the Sun. Objectivity seems in superposition but never a vacuum.

There may be one truth or good that may truly stand as everybody's truth and good but it cannot stay as one 'objective' truth or good for all for another second as it shall fall prey to the subjectivism of energy of human consciousness. It seems, vacuum cannot stay for long, or probably, it does not even exist. It does not seem like a natural state of things for conscious subjectivism.

Is it that we live in a world that has no singular and objective realism? It is there as it must be there. It is altogether different matter that either we have not yet found it or not yet establish it. Nevertheless, what human consciousness sees and accepts as 'real' is not the objective and singular one, but the subjective one and that is why, the world we live in is seen, observed, accepted and retained as subjective multiplicity. The pluralism of consciousness of humanity makes it happen.

Consciousness is almost always subjective and truths and goodness for each individual has to be in line with this pluralistic subjectivism. This subjectivism ensures relativist words and terms like 'ignorance', 'false' and 'bad' etc. As truth and false, good and bad are in essential nature of conflict and competition, there shall always be strife and battle for one-upmanship and supremacy of subjective truths and goodness.

The world we live in has therefore truly turned into a theatre of insurmountable conflicts and chaos. Be sure, there is no looking back for humanity... it shall always continue its journey ahead.

The key question is, 'Is pluralism and subjective consciousness bad?' As we said earlier, it seems, there is nothing called 'bad'. It is just a relative positioning. So, what is objectively and singularly bad?

It is a tough question; need to be understood. If bad is taken as something which stands against larger wellness of humanity (and not only personal wellness), then it can be safely said that the intrinsic and instinctive energy of 'narcissism' within an individual subjectivism of consciousness is what we can refer to as objective and singular bad.

The simple and understandable to all realism for humanity is – we all live in a world that is a 'totality of multiplicity' of 'subjectivism' and 'pluralism'. This presents to all, one singular, objective wisdom, that is – "Subjectivism is the core creed, therefore, every individual must be very respectful, compassionate and affectionate towards other's subjectivism and never allow narcissism about one's subjective truths to label other's truths as 'false' and 'bad'."

Is it this simple! No. If it were, there would have been no ignorant on earth. We all can always know only a part of the truth or wisdom. So is every entity and individual's position and situation in the cosmos.

Real intelligence is in accepting this relativity and subjectivity allowing the part truth to evolve through holism, integration and assimilation. Narcissism is definitive ignorance. The world has loads of it and this energy ensures, we have many losers, few winners.

The habitual hero within us is one who understands and accepts this life positioning. He has the holistic, assimilative and integrative perspective of realisms. He is bereft of the narcissism of subjective consciousness. His real intelligence is his humble and sincere acceptance of the utility and fruition of every little idea and part truth, which subjective consciousnesses of seven billion people on earth engenders. It is this intuitive mind consciousness of the habitual hero, which enables him or her to discern the 'winning patterns' in tough life situations.

Innocence As Eligibility For Ultimate Intelligence

We now know in considerable detail how our consciousness is very much a function of a 'mechanism' called brain and 'more'. This brain mechanism is a beautifully complex system capable of such miraculous and mystical propositions that it is very hard for average human to accept it all as true. Moreover, this knowledge about the mechanism is still evolving.

We now know and can tell everyone as why and how things happen and how we all can lead ourselves, whether we are a genius or a dumb, to understand all those wisdoms which since thousands of years, have been kept away from common people in the obsolete belief that it cannot be known or replicated for all. Yes, it can!

As experts say, "The human mind is the most amazingly powerful and beautifully synchronized mechanism in the universe. It has instinctive mechanism to universalize goodness as well as evil. What we feed in it is not its concern. This is the role of intellect. The universe has not put us where we are today with any specific purpose of designed goodness. We have to design our purpose. We, as intellectual beings, need to set lofty and larger goals for ourselves and then program and train our minds to attain it."

That is why; the beautiful metaphor of ‘God’ was created by humanity as the ultimate and singular icon of all referrals for individual as well as collective value summation. All lofty and higher ideals (always objective) for humanity were infused into this metaphor for all humans to ape.

This metaphor and ultimate iconism of God and divinity, as archetypal wisdom wished us to follow, needs to be understood, otherwise, the very purpose of its creation shall be lost. The wise believed and very compassionately so, that average human, who is too busy and overwhelmed by daily chores of life in his or her roles at the theatre of life, should not be bothered by the intricacies and details of all goodness he or she needs to follow for good life. They also knew that the most basic and potent instinct in humans and other creatures too is aping – the animalistic nature of doing what others do.

They created the beautiful and very useful metaphor of divinity and infused all goodness of human wisdom into it for all humanity to ape. They also made it a point to tell the average human that what they need to do is never question the mechanisms of this metaphor of divinity and blindly ape them. This was said with compassion, not any bad intention as the wise believed, this would ensure larger wellness for humanity. It did initially.

The trouble started when some unscrupulous elements of society used their ingenuity to manipulate the average and common people, who were in the habit of blindly aping goodness. These elements vitiated the trust and faith of average human and now we have a situation where innocence of trust and faith is considered the sure sign of a born loser.

This now has to be accepted that dualism and conflict, which prevails in our societal environment is purely cultural, devised and designed by we humans itself. The goodness, the divinity, the idealisms of humanity, known to all and so beautifully invested and enshrined in the metaphor of divinity since ages is not something, which religion and philosophy tells us. It is common in all wisdoms – new or old. We just need to imbibe them with innocence.

Those who believe, God wanted all humans to imbibe these ideas and values should also accept that these ideals need to be ingrained in the mind-mechanism to become universalized and this can happen only when we consciously do it.

As we repeat this objective mind training to our brain, the objective goodness would spread all throughout its neural circuitry and then, we would not have to think twice to perform goodness, as it would then become an instinct, and thus an involuntary mechanism, like a hand moving away involuntarily as it touches fire.

A real good human is not one who needs to think and then behave and act good. Rather, it is one, who does not have to think as all his behaviors and actions are instinctively bound to be good. Ask all the greats of different fields of art like music, literature, dance, painting et al and they would confirm that their best is what comes unconsciously to them. However, this stage they could reach after years of hard and painful practice. The all-season greatness of artistry gets ingrained in their subconscious mind. A habitual hero, they could become because they practiced hard and incessantly to make greatness instinctive and an auto-behavior.

We do not consciously remember when we drive a car or cook a meal as it is instinctive, even when they were once learned behavior. Objective goodness is also learned behavior but when we repeatedly practice it, it becomes instinctive.

It is therefore primary to understand what is 'intelligence' and how this intelligence is attained and universalized in human mind and society. It is a primary fact of the universe that realism may be singular and objective but its manifestations to different observers are plural and subjective. Humanity has shades of consciousness and all living beings are in different levels and memes of consciousness.

Usually, we all expect others to be compassionate and considerate towards our subjective and personalized worldviews and consciousness but seldom extend the same sentiment and facility to others. That creates compartmentalized humanity and we all suffer.

We just need to understand that before we can say we wish to be 'intelligent' we all need to be 'innocent'. Intelligence is like a huge beautiful house, which can stand firm and steady on the ground of innocence only.

And, the innocence is in first being compassionate and considerate towards all subjective and personalized worldviews and consciousness and then only expect others to offer the same sentiment and facility to you. Innocence discounts hypocrisy and narcissism.

The next step is be 'assimilative' and 'integrative' towards this pluralism and strive together for a singular objective consciousness. This is the benchmark of 'innocence'. If this innocence is attained and you arrive at it, you shall be fit and eligible for 'ultimate intelligence' of the 'Habitual Hero', which is within you but just needs to be trained.

There is an old oriental wisdom quoted beautifully in Sanskrit language rhymes. It goes like: Vidya dadati vinayam, vinayam dadati patratam. It means; education is meaningful only when it leads you to modesty and if you attain modesty, you are eligible and when you are eligible, intelligence can be attained. Vinay (modesty), the primary condition for 'eligibility', can never come to you if you do not arrive at the 'innocence' mentioned above.

The core idea is, accept the mechanism of consciousness and this mechanism wants you to accept with all humility and modesty the pluralism of consciousnesses. This modesty shall lead you to a stage of innocence where you would rid yourself of the 'hypocrisy' and dualism of action and behavior. As you shall position yourself to this innocence of assimilation and integration, you shall be amenable and eligible to the ultimate intelligence. The position of the 'habitual hero'.

Innocence is the real intelligence and this innocence is not something you are born with. A child's innocence is raw and needs to complete the full cycle of life's dualism. The innocence of a grownup, who understands all pluralism and then assimilates into them while accepting it with humbleness and modesty is the required positioning for arriving at the intelligence.

That is why; practice is the key. We need to understand the mechanism, the mind mechanism and the process of consciousness. Then, accepting the high and lofty ideals and values of humanity, which is the embodiment of divinity and godliness.

We all need to repeat this objective mind training to our brain, the objective goodness would then spread all throughout its neural circuitry and then; we do not have to think twice to perform goodness, as it would then become an instinct, and thus an involuntary mechanism.

We shall then become one with the idea of God and divinity. The process of assimilation and integration of all humanity with singular objective goodness and wisdom would then be completed forever.

Innocence As Procrastinated Virtue

There are ways to a particular problem or trouble. Often, solutions are evolutionary and it takes some good measure of time for them to take shape and then present themselves as occasions and situations where they get unfolded and then accepted. Human troubles, especially the relationship troubles are like that.

Usually people do not afford to wait or keep a date with probabilities of future. Their dualistic consciousness gives them number of ingenious and smart reason for such a choice. This adds more conflicts to an already aggravated trouble.

Also, as most of us would probably admit, often, solutions of a problem are just round the corner and we all probably see it there. Still, coming to it looks almost impossible and as human dualistic mind keeps dissuading people not to see and accept simple things and easily 'available' options as the true solutions; they keep slipping from the hands of people in general.

Solution of problems is not a big task. If you have a problem, you already know it that solution is somewhere 'inherent and embedded' in the problem itself. The milieu around us presents some factors in an 'arrangement', which stand in our disadvantage, at a particular stage of our life positioning and we call the outcome of such an arrangement as a 'problem'.

Often, solution presents itself as some 'alternative' arrangement or placement of the same factors in such a way that they turn advantageous for us, hence qualifying as a 'solution'.

In most cases, especially the modern day problems we face, the artistry of arriving at solutions is not in 'creating' or generating something externally but in 'rearranging' and 'repositioning' the already present factors and elements in some alternative ways.

That is why, as you already know it, we need little 'action' but loads of calm and objective 'reception' in analyzing the 'factors' that essentially constitute a problem. The 'genesis' of solutions is in total and perfect reception of the 'genetics' of the problems.

However, it takes a pure and evolved 'innocence' of consciousness to see and accept simple and very much easily available solutions as the right and imminent one. This innocence is very rare in contemporary societal milieu as the dualistic mind keeps our consciousness in the perpetuity of conflicts, chaos and competitiveness of cultural and intellectual one-upmanship.

The trouble is, often, even this innocence is so much relegated as secondary and procrastinated virtue that it fails in pushing our consciousness to easy and simple solutions lying round the corner.

There is no blame as we know how cynicism has spread its mighty envelop over all emotions of innocence and even intelligence. We all are in such a state of dualistic consciousness where even when we emotionalize innocence with people close to us, we accept and practice it as an 'intelligent art' and not as what it should be as a non-dualistic positioning.

There are persons who are so beautifully and colossally innocent, despite the fact that they have witnessed oceans of negativity in life and around them. They also know it that this innocence is their real asset and true virtue. They also in fact say that they are and believe to be in the perpetuity of this innocence so that their personality and consciousness could never ever be drawn in the negativity of the milieu around them.

Still, their innocence is not helping them with easy and simple solutions of their spiraling personal and relational troubles as the innocence remains relegated 'as secondary and procrastinated virtue' or it is 'performed' as an 'intelligent art'.

No doubt, innocence as secondary and procrastinated layer is not fruitful. Once you miss the chance of availing simple and easy solution through innocence and instead, instead putting ahead your dualistic consciousness to deal with the trouble, it creates a spectrum of behavior and actions your dualistic minds prescribes as 'right and essentially imminent'.

In that state of conflicting mind-consciousness, either you block the straight and short road to solution or you take a diversion to long and complicated road to nowhere. We all prefer 'diversions', as facing the trouble with 'innocence' needs loads of bravery of forgiveness and compassion of hearts. It is not easy to be brave.

Usually, people use the easy and comforting tool of their dualistic consciousness to deal with a problem as primary trouble-shooter. This is primarily because they are used to and familiar with their 'intelligent cultural mind' handling situations for them in most matters. They have won success, using this 'intelligent art' in the past. Naturally, it is a preference.

This dualistic mind offers the consciousness with loads of freaky emotions as options. You have insecurity, ego, anger, old memories in subconscious, previous icons, fear, threat, prejudice, profit-loss judgment, etc, etc as shades available to color your choice as solution to a specific problem at hand.

If we are used to putting our intelligence first and relegating innocence as cushion or secondary option, at times even when we opt to present innocence as first option, the subconscious mind, adapted to intelligent mechanisms, suitably colors even this innocence and the solution naturally skips and slips out of the hand. There are real innocent people who often present their innocence ahead but as an 'intelligent art'. This fails them, especially in personal and relationship troubles.

It is like people saying, 'Honesty is the best policy'. This actually is the 'colored innocence' and cultural-face of an 'intelligent art'. The moment honesty is presented and accepted as a 'policy', it is offered not to innocence but intelligence, which uses even honesty as an emotion with intelligent artistry. The honesty actually is relegated behind as secondary virtue and intelligence of profit-loss calculation becomes primary, as is mandatory for all 'policy-decisions'.

Using innocence as primary virtue for trouble solution is no 'policy'; it is not an art. It is just a simple and easy positioning. Like honesty, it is a way of being. The only true way!

The words surely cannot describe the difference between innocence as a 'policy' and innocence as a 'positioning'. Non-dualism is not an artistry of words and mind. It is a long, cherished and tough process to arrive at and then be in the perpetuity of a position, which becomes the one and only singular objective consciousness.

The habitual hero shall understand and accept this dualism and conflict of innocence and honesty as 'policy' and 'positioning'. He or she shall make distinction between the two choices for all goodness and wellness decisions of life and living. That is why, he or she is a habitual hero!

Let Egoistic Identities Be Compassionate

There are lot many things we all cannot definitively say with utmost conviction that they are the right ones. This is almost a classical position because, we all accept that wisdom and knowledge is no static entity. It is an evolutionary and dynamic thing and the consciousness of a human being is too negligibly and insignificantly small and immaterial to have a good grasp of this colossal dynamism.

Still, this acceptance and larger wisdom apart, it has to be accepted that almost everyone has this feeling at one time or another, or probably perpetually too that what he or she knows is the right thing. The reality remains that whichever approach or perspective we accept as the right one; we tend to believe and accept all those answers, which this accepted approach throws for us as the right one. The consciousness mechanism has been designed this way.

For example, a person who has faith and acceptance that religion and spirituality is the right approach for looking at the realism, he or she would tend to largely believe and accept that religion and spiritualism alone must have all true and right answers of all major or small questions of life and living. This is our mechanism and design.

Now, those believing and accepting that secular scientific knowledge of cosmic realism is the right one, shall feel the same way. 'What is received as real is what is accepted as real'. There can be many approaches and perspectives for looking at the realism. There are different shades and colors of consciousness and different perspectives of realism that these shades lead humans to. Everyone sticks to its choices, which seems a conscious one but has a precarious mix of the subconscious mind positioning.

Somehow, as humanity now has a good measure of knowledge about working of human brain and the resultant consciousness, it is established that the brain is the real hero or culprit in making this happen. If human brain accepts a certain framework or point of reference for the validity and acceptance of a broad value-summation, it would unconsciously lead the human mind to accept all other smaller things under the same framework or point of reference.

This mind-mechanism leads to a human consciousness in an individual where if he or she accepts religion and faith as the broad framework, he or she would innately and subconsciously tend to see every other smaller issues, events, problems, life and living choices as something essentially as compatible to his or her religious framework.

The important point is, is it right? Well, this question again shall have to be processed by a mind, or a mindset, which has been colored and inclined to a particularly 'preferred' framework or point of reference. The answers would never be easy and singular.

There looks like two key questions in such a state where there is a conflict, dualism and pluralism of answers about one question. The first is:

* Can we say that it is always profitable in such a state not to be bogged down by a fixed or fixated singular mindset and allow equal or at least equitable importance to all possible viewpoints and frames of reference?

* Can we say that, it seems, different frameworks or points of reference may co-exist and prevail simultaneously still, particular issue, event, problem or choice may ideally be better handled by one single framework? Some troubles the faith can handle better and still other trouble may be exclusively assigned to medical science or the brain outlook?

If this is interpreted at mind or consciousness level, the problem can be better understood. The human brain mechanism has essentially been designed for 'self' and works instinctively for individual survival and excellence. It accepts even the collective and societal checks and balances in terms of self's survival and excellence. That is why; its value-summation usually is individualistic.

The human brain has the innate mechanism to process all sensory inputs in the subjective iconic reference framework of individual's personalized value system. That is why; human mind would usually prefer personal ideas to collective wisdom.

To ensure that all humans have consciousness, which is conducive and inclined towards a peaceful and co-existing collectivity, it looks right and desirable that the above two questions have an answer in affirmative.

It is observed that almost all societies, where tolerance and respect for plurality is high, it has invariably ensured very high individual freedom and level field for excellence of all. It is a very practical idea that an individual's own freedom and individuality is best ensured where and when he or she is part of a strong and powerful collective believing in and practicing plurality. A strong collectivity is the best guarantee of liberalized individuality.

The other practical part, as we have been continuously talking about is the process of dualism of consciousness finally evolving into a non-dualistic consciousness. We all can start with one belief and then grow to assimilate all other beliefs and as everyone in the collectivity does so, there shall be an evolution where a singular and non-dualistic consciousness may evolve. In the past, human civilizations have done this.

If hydrogen and oxygen remain compartmentalized and egoistically exclusive to each other, there can never be water, the lifeline of humanity. The water has molecules of both but it is neither hydrogen nor oxygen. It is a singular and non-dualistic evolution of dualistic entities, which finally evolved to shed their dualistic consciousness to merge into one.

Let there be water, let there be non-dualistic mergers and union, let water flow everywhere so that humanity survives and thrives. Let dualistic and egoistic identities be compassionate and affectionate enough to rise above 'preferred' mindsets and 'fixated' framework of references, let there be only a non-dualistic consciousness for larger humanity.

Resurrection: Compassion Within Initiates Facilitation

The cultural mind, engendering a very subjective consciousness is a huge facilitator. However, it also is the chief inhibitor of objective consciousness, which is a cardinal positioning for unraveling of a majorly crucial spectrum of wisdom. This is life at its complicated best. That is why, the importance of acceptance of pluralistic mind consciousness.

Human brain is a mega facility. However, one needs to understand its beautifully complex mechanism to begin the journey towards the rainbowish wisdom available for all humanity. The brain is a huge facilitator but then, one must learn to master it to extract from it the 'requisite' facilities of seemingly contrasting and dualistic nature.

This same cultural mind an consciousness is a great inhibitor when it comes to excellence in another, probably alternate realms of life and living like, love, intimacy, compassion, humility, emotional poise, conflict solution, spiritualism etc. In one word, this cultural mind is poorly positioned to handle all matters of life that are intangible, mystical and intricately causal or broadly a-causal, soft and immeasurable.

For example, a culturally superior mind consciousness would make you socially a star and popular but it would be a big flop and calamitous when it comes to intimacy and affection. The simple reason is, the 'cultural mind' is basically the cortex part of your brain which processes emotions that are culturally assigned.

However, as science has now established, when you are in love and complete intimacy, the cortex part of your brain stops working. You are then left with a consciousness, which is almost alien to you. Alternatively, you are simply at loss.

There is another shade of consciousness within your mind that handles love and intimacy well and it is surely not 'cultural'. However, we are in the habit of handling everything with our cultural consciousness and that is why, we fail as a big stupid when in the domain where cultural mind's value summation is not required.

The modern cultural environment is so strong and impactuous that it almost completely covers up our consciousness and lands us in very poor subjectivity of mind. Often, this subjectivity is so pronounced and over-empowering that it enters the consciousness into the prohibited and scary zone of 'psychosis'.

Experts are concerned, more and more people are entering this scary space fast. We have created a living environment and culture which is a huge factory producing 'psychotic' consciousness in bulk!

Then, there is this mega domain of spiritualism and mystical space where this cultural consciousness is actually a big burden for the start of a journey towards wisdom. This very subjective cultural mind is useless garbage, as this domain needs an objective mind consciousness.

The cyclic trouble is; the cultural consciousness creates loads of conflicts and chaos for the person in social space and this hugely off-balances the individual poise and sense of wellness. The psychosis creeps in. The person then rushes to the individual space of consciousness, in search of the missing wellness and poise. In the individual space too, as he or she is used to, the person applies his or her cultural mind and then invites 'psychosis' to completely cover up his or her entire consciousness. This is almost the dead end for a mind!

Both science as well as religion-spiritualism says, “Objectivity for humanity is impossible as the very subjective consciousness melts the objectivity.” They warn, “The truth changes the moment it is observed”.

One can come close to being objective only when it is able to unravel and arrive at a ‘super consciousness’ which is definitively poised between the cultural consciousness and instinctive consciousness.

As we have earlier talked, this singularity of duality is revealed to humanity only after long and persevered practice. This super consciousness is achievable only when an individual starts practicing the art from childhood as later, when the cultural consciousness enters the ‘psychotic’ stage, the reversal to the ‘poise’ position of consciousness is almost impossible.

The psychotic mind is like cement which when turns concrete, cannot be shaped in any other form. Psychosis kills the plasticity of human mind. The earth is gradually being housed by growing number of ‘psychotic’ minds and many of these minds are landing in spaces outside the mainstream society.

Though it is a tough task, if one could get the global data on number of people entering either a hospital, jail, asylum, rehabilitation centers, dubious religious groups, extremist and terrorist groups, or so called Gurus-Babas-Healers-Mystiques etc, it would be apparent that in the last 20 years, the numbers have swelled many times.

This does not include those millions of ‘socially successful’ people, stars, icons, whose ‘psychosis’ itself becomes the rage, fashion, cult, pop culture and even way of life for millions of what is popularly termed as ‘fans’ and ‘followers’. Add to it the millions whose successes in social sphere covers up their ‘psychosis’.

It seems, majority of these millions of minds are beyond redemption, as they would surely and safely call such a person debauch and ‘real psychotic’, who shows them a mirror. The psychosis creates a subjective world for the person and he or she is constantly fed by his or her subconscious mind’s assurances that what they see and accept is the ‘real and actual’ and what others tell them is a big trash.

Most psychotic persons would always say, 'I blindly follow my heart (or soul)'. Or they would say, 'My instincts and intuition always leads me to right decisions and I blindly follow them'. The psychotic mind has already lost the consciousness to objectively see and accept that what they believe as their soul-voice and intuition may actually be the voices of their smart, socially successful and ingenious 'cultural mind'.

The psychosis makes them blind and they think they are happy being blind. The cultural mind feeds them eulogies of the 'virtues of blindness'. They happily follow it.

The human compassion is divinity demystified. It is the simplest, the best and most easily and prolifically available energy on earth. The compassion would always believe in larger and general wellness of humanity and would work for it but even compassion is subject to value summation by the subjective mind consciousness.

It is simple yet tough to accept. God and divinity is everywhere and in everything. Yet, loads of ungodly and un-divine things are making lives of humanity a hell. Why? It is simple. The almighty is nothing but a hugely beautiful metaphor of a brilliant mechanism that is the cosmic realism. The brilliant mechanism has given every creature a mega-specialist facilitator called mind.

Humans have the best-evolved design. If humans cannot make use of this brilliant design well, God and divinity cannot do anything. Like human compassion, divinity is also blocked by the minds. A mind, which has blocked divinity, searches for it everywhere but finds only nothingness.

The cardinal question is, 'is there no way for compassion to help?' The simple answer is, 'Possibility or impossibility is not at the side of compassion, it is rather with receiver'. The rules of renaissance and resurrection is simple, 'the end is the start of an end'. The end of the psychotic consciousness with the help of compassion 'within' one's mind and soul' is the initiation of the journey towards a poised mind consciousness.

The consciousness is like a wave. Waves rise up and lift up the ego and culturally subjective mind consciousness to a level where it automatically falls owing to its own weight of utility and fruition. The wave then falls to merge into the ocean of realism. The wave rises again. This is the chance for resurrection. The fortunate would avail it.

Those With Humility Shall Arrive

Almost everyone would say he or she wants to enjoy life in its fullness and completeness. Some truly conscious minds would also add that life's fullness is not for enjoyment only but also beckons for individual justice to every facet and aspect of life.

Life for all of us is truly multidimensional and a true person should sincerely align his self and personality in such a way that it could help him or her accept, enjoy and do justice to the myriad colors and shades of life's multidimensionality.

This can happen if our consciousness works very humbly and honestly towards 'poise', a balance between every single dimension of life. Everything, big or small about the fullness of life is meaningful and significant for the growth of our conscious from a dualistic position towards a non-dualistic one. We all need to be open to life's fullness and multidimensionality and be brave enough to accept all dimensions as equally important.

The best and most courageous of our endeavors must be assigned to the multidimensionality of approaches and wisdoms for arriving at the diverse realism. There are different roads to one destination and until you get to know about all of them, you cannot be in a position to arrive at the best and most profitable road to the destination. This is the process of growth from dualism to non-dualism.

Generally, we are very hypocritical about life's holism and multidimensionality. We see life's fullness and variety yet get singularly narcissistic about our 'preferred' route. This is again a cultural mind, which does have such a preference. An evolved mind and a non-dualistic consciousness would accept with openness and courage all possible routes to wisdom and realism.

Moreover, as we accept this multidimensionality, we all shall reach a destination where it would be revealed to us that, the essence and core idea of all routes are the same. This is the non-dualism, which we all arrive at after going through the process of dualism in honest and humble way.

We all have been culturally trained to see and accept the traditional wisdom for looking at and answering all questions of life. We now have another facility - the contemporary knowledge of science. It adds wonderful perspective to our existing wisdom and truly helps us in integrating all wisdoms into one singular and non-dualistic perspective for looking at the realism around us.

There is reluctance to accept scientific answers to humanity's primeval questions, as generally, we believe scientific answers are in competition and conflict with our age-old traditional wisdom. This is truly wrong. Actually, science just adds a new dimension by ascribing calculable and measurable processes to arrive at those answers which ancient and traditional wisdom of religion, philosophy, spiritualism, psychology and traditions have provided us.

For example, there has been a traditional wisdom that 'those with thick skins are a bit dumb and far more instinctive'. Modern science just attempts to provide a measurable basis to this 'possible' fact.

Science has now established that specific proteins are responsible for construction of both skin as well as neurons from same tissues in embryo stage in humans. These proteins inhibit the activities of other proteins. In areas where no inhibition occurs, the tissue becomes skin. In areas where proteins do lead to inhibition, the tissue becomes neural. Science very rarely changes popular truths, it rather shows why and how and knowing it always broadens the horizon of wisdom and consciousness.

Now, those who are faith persons are free and at will to accept that this 'protein-inhibition' is done by God and is therefore why God makes different people with different abilities. Those who believe in procedural details would go deep into the mechanism of proteins in the human body. There is actually no conflict between different streams of human wisdom. It is just in our cultural mind. A 'thick-skinned' person is also human and equally useful as a 'wise' person with high intellect.

There is also a tendency among people to either accept things 100 percent or reject it 100 percent. Suppose, a child solves seven out of ten questions and gets 70 percent mark. We then never say he or she failed. He could not get all of them right on this particular exam but still got far more right than wrong.

May be, in next exam, as he or she matures in knowledge, he or she would score higher. However, what we do is, we reject science or religion out rightly and completely even if it answers many of the questions right but still does not answer all of them right. We say science has failed for me or the religion does not work for me.

It is all in our cultural mind. We all need to be trained in assimilation values and not in segregating competition. It has to be accepted that we all have perfect ease to accept traditional wisdom for all answers, as they are actually now part of our genetic pool. Also, we have been in this culture of accepting them since thousands of years.

Naturally, a new wisdom is prone to early and summary rejection at the first instance. Our wellness quotient gets off balance if we accept something new interpretation or basis for something which been for ages there comforting us beyond doubt.

It is tough for the cultured mind and that is why, it takes huge amount of courage to come out of our comfort zones and wellness inertia of segregation to see and accept the utility of a new idea or new wisdom as well as the old wisdom in an integrative and assimilative way. The initial discomfort would eventually lead us to a larger and stable comfort zone as we become truly knowledgeable. However, it takes time.

Then, there is also a huge hypocrisy, which we associate ourselves with when we do not open ourselves with new idea. The faith also does not have all answers. The religion, philosophy and psychology have never ever given us all answers of the process of 'why' and 'how' correctly. There is a particular way of this wisdom and we all accept it. Still, we reject all other ways, even when they are similar and approach the same truth in similar ways.

It needs openness of mind and courage for accepting relativity then only we all reach a stage where we can clearly see that essentially the essence of religion- spiritualism, philosophy and classical psychology is the same with science too. It is just because, the mechanism of the universe is the same. Whichever way we interpret the cosmic realism, it is not going to change.

The trouble with science is also the same as it is with other wisdom. The unpleasant question is, “who is truly religious?” One who prays all Gods and follows all rituals blindly or the one who studied all religious wisdoms scribbled in all ancient texts, understood and rationalized the social and personal values of all rituals and then compared them with modern knowledge to arrive at an integrated, assimilated and synthesized wisdom? The popular answer is the former. Science also has to be taken in totality for someone to be called truly scientific in mind.

Most people believe; faith is best practiced when it is accepted and followed blindly. They say, the moment you question faith or the moment you attempt to rationalize faith mechanisms, you lose the connection with God and divinity. No religious book has ever ascribed God and divinity with this popular idea and practice yet, most of us do it. It is the product of our dualistic and cultured mind.

It has to be understood. A biker rides blindfolded on his bike in popular stunts but he does it only when he has practiced on the same route with open eyes for so many times that he can do it instinctively with blindfold. Change his route and he will fail. Faith never tells you to be blindfolded without knowing the route. However, once you know the route well, it hardly makes a difference whether you are blindfolded or not.

No wisdom ever on earth prescribed blindness, no wisdom ever asks for darkness, none wish people to be like animals with no mind. No wisdom ever prohibited followers not to question as a core principal of faith. No wisdom stopped evolution of mind and knowledge.

It is the cunning creation of the ingenious minds of those, who had the dubious desire of utilizing religion for perpetuity of power and pelf. The wisdom, which continuously allows evolving of consciousness, is the only true wisdom and that happens when it challenges itself from within.

The neo-physics has completely overturned the classical physics. Science now openly accepts multidisciplinary approach and that is why all wings of science and advancements are collaborating and cooperating to find the ‘whys’ and ‘hows’ of humanity’s every question.

There is no discarding of traditional wisdom. There is rather an endeavor to assimilate and integrate all wisdoms into one singular perspective, which could be the basis of one answer to all questions.

Assimilation and integration of human dualism and plural consciousness into a non-dualist mind and consciousness is one huge process that all rational and evolving minds are going through.

Those who have the humility, the courage and willingness to evolve before they die are joining in into this trend globally. Those who are in the inertia of comfort with their hypocritical minds and narcissistic consciousness would never ever shed their dualism and would be least interested. Rationality has never been pop culture.

Between Unviable Yes And Viable No

It is eccentrically fascinating, extremely bizarre, stupidly enjoyable yet, probably the most critical and grim reality of humanity and its living experiences on this planet. We all are into something, which has no parallel in the history of living being, probably anywhere in the universe or must we say in the multiverse!

We had questions, which originated few thousands of years back for we humans but the questions actually had their origins billions of years back. From about ten thousand years, we humans started attempting their answers. Answers first came with religion, then with philosophy and finally, early science stepped in.

Now, the modern humans have the wherewithal of modern science and technology to understand all transcendental questions in a new light and present novel set of answers. Still, the troubles are the same. Even thousands years back, the data which were available for testing the validity of facts and separate fiction from objective fact were very negligible as all facts were billions or millions of years old, negligibly and erratically available.

It is a strange situation. Incidents happened billions and millions of years back but the consciousness and wisdom of humanity to be able to fathom all these happened merely a few thousands of years back.

And as it happened, humans could formulate questions which had their origin way back in time which humans today can hardly visualize even in its best of consciousness as the links, the requisite factual data to all these incidents are missing and can never ever be recreated and reimaged to perfection either in human mind or in a human-created lab. It is a sad thing to say but the fact looks like; the distant past is beyond replication in its finest details.

It is only natural that despite best of scientific advances today and more finesse coming in coming decades, humanity probably cannot find the actual, objective, singular and the right answers. We do not have the requisite data now and cannot ever have, even if we have the consciousness and logistics.

Then, the billion-dollar question is, are the answers to all these questions really important and necessary for successful life and living of humanity in coming centuries? Do we really need these answers for creating a world where all humans have a peaceful, prosperous and enjoyable life and which next generations could inherit from us?

No doubt, if we have a singular answer for all these questions of humanity, we naturally shall be better off. But, as it is apparent that this is just an idealism which shall always remain confined to the realm of 'should' and 'prescriptions', we all need to move ahead for something practically possible which could be actually achieved, despite the above limitations of human consciousness and mind.

The idea is, it shall take another hundreds of years before, science could evolve itself to such a capability where it creates a singular, objective and integrative platform for assimilation of all human wisdom so far to explain all realism, be it physical and cognitive consciousness or pre-cognitive and non-physical consciousness. On the other hand, it may never happen. The later has larger probability!

So, can it happen that humanity drops these contentious and conflicting issues for a while and concentrate on building an integrative, holistic and globally workable and acceptable paradigm, which could be the singular basis of developing a worldview that works commonly for all humans? Accepted, any procrastination is not a welcome thing to do. Especially; when the issue at hand; is of such paramount importance to larger humanity! Still, procrastination is better than confused and chaotic continuity.

A simple and innocent query is; can we drop the larger questions of life and living for a while to focus on so-called smaller questions of humanity? The smaller yet very crucial issues at hand are world peace, sustainable development, an alternative global economy based on larger wellness of humanity rather than pure profit, a compassionate framework for family and social living based on collective wellness rather than individualistic instant self-gratification, etc.

As it seems, humanity has been very well ensconced and in perpetual pursuit of the larger questions and it is actually the smaller questions mentioned above that are being procrastinated for ages.

If compared, we can see that humanity has made larger advancement in understanding and even answering the larger questions but has made very little headway in settling the smaller questions. Many of these issues have rather regressed in the march of civilization and we all are easy victims of this procrastination and regression.

Well, it looks like another presupposition for 'shoulds' and idealistic 'prescriptions' but then, is there a better option? It is as open to unending debate as anything is.

People may say that crucial and cardinal questions, such as what is 'consciousness', what is actual realism, what is life and how things came to be, etc must first be truly answered. Only then there could be a basis for a singular paradigm for a singular worldview, which then could be true basis for building a new and lasting worldview for a rational and lasting world order.

The only rejoinder to these debates is an idea that cardinal questions may never be resolved as the requisite empirical data for this is not available and may never be as they are somewhere billions and millions of years away with so many missing links.

Even if they get resolved in next few hundred years from now, it would take another thousands of years for all humanity to accept them. This is too long a period for all smaller questions of humanity to wait.

It seems only practical that as humanity grapples with larger questions, in the meantime, let us take all smaller questions in all sincerity and urgency as humanity is in such a stage where these questions have put a question mark on the very survival of human species on the earth.

No doubt, we all need our answers right and first but we all actually first need to survive and be rationally empowered to reach up to such a stage in human evolution where we actually remain there to enjoy the answers.

The way our smaller questions have made this world a virtual calamity, it seems improbable that humanity can survive such long till the answers are found and even if it survives that long, will the humanity be in such state of consciousness to even accept and appreciate that?

One may say, it is a Hobson's choice. Finding answers for smaller questions of humanity are far more challenging and impossible than answering the larger question and no amount of answer of larger question can settle the smaller ones.

Then, what we should do? A section of objective people say, humans do not become what they think they should or they would but they become what the randomized and probabilistic energy of stupid engineering of evolution thinks humanity should and would.

However, some great minds of contemporary wisdom appeal, "Let this evolution cease to be as randomized and probabilistic as it had been thus far, let conscious and rational humanity be the new and controlled energy of a new evolution which is well directed and well planned". Is that another presupposition for 'shoulds' and idealistic 'prescriptions'? You decide!

Accept My Gratitude

Being in absolute reception of love wins all fears; makes us rise above the process of 'preparedness' to the ultimate stage of 'readiness'. In this consciousness, all good and cherished ideals of humanity fall in our lap, they fill our being. Love lands us to ultimate empowerment of forgiveness. I most humbly say, I am in innocent reception of the perpetuity of utility of love amid life's futility. That is why; I could muster up the courage to talk to you. I am happily sure; you shall forgive your unworthy friend for his stupidities. Thank you so much for being with me and allowing me to share with you. Big thanks for your precious input in my charity. Wish you an empowered life; with the prosperity of the consciousness, which shall make you the most genius problem-solver of the universe, you are born as.

About Your Unworthy Friend

People say, what conspire to make you what you finally become are always behind the veil of intangibility. Someone called it ‘Intangible-Affectors’. Inquisitiveness was the soil, I was born with and the seeds, these intangible-affectors planted in me made me somewhat analytical. My long stint in media, in different capacities as journalist, as brand professional and strategic planning, conspired too! However, I must say it with all innocence at my behest that the chief conspirators of my making have been the loads of beautiful and multi-dimensional people, who traversed along me, in my life journey so far. The mutuality and innocence of love and compassion always prevailed and magically worked as the catalyst in my learning and most importantly, unlearning from these people. Unconsciously, these amazing people also worked out to be the live theatres of my experiments with my life’s scripts. I, sharing with you all what I have here, is essentially my very modest way to express my gratitude for all of them and you, who affectionately shared my consciousness here. In my stupidities is my innocence of love for all my beautifully worthy conspirators!

Naked Solutions Of Dressed Up Life Woes

Non-Fiction: Empowering Consciousness, Life Wellness, Personal Excellence: word- 23,000
approx: Language-English

Short Description

The world we live in; is what it is, neither good nor bad. It is people, who are the 'Theatre' of all pains as well as joys. The human mind is the most capable and instinctively galvanized mechanism to solve big problems. Still, the same human consciousness is the most potent trouble. The core trouble is, modern day problems are so 'dressed up'; partly by our complex environment and partly by our consciousness that we fail to see the 'naked' reality of the nature of problems. We can see them clearly, if we 'undress' them. It is an art, we all can master. How?

Extended Description

Solution of problems is not a big task. If you have a problem, you already know it that solution is somewhere 'inherent and embedded' in the problem itself. The milieu around us presents some factors in an 'arrangement', which stand in our disadvantage, at a particular stage of our life positioning and we call the outcome of such an arrangement as a 'problem'.

Often, solution presents itself as some 'alternative' arrangement or placement of the same factors in such a way that they turn advantageous for us, hence qualifying as a 'solution'.

In most cases, especially the modern day problems we face, the artistry of arriving at solutions is not in 'creating' or generating something externally but in 'rearranging' and 'repositioning' the already present factors and elements in some alternative ways.

That is why, we need little 'action' but loads of calm and objective 'reception' in analyzing the 'factors' that essentially constitute a problem. We talk like friends about the mechanisms of problems and solutions in an assimilative and integrative way.

Maya And Leela: Utility In Life's Futility

Non-Fiction: Empowering Consciousness, Life Wellness, Personal Excellence: word- 21,000
approx: Language-English

Short Description

Most of us, living in modern contemporary world of complexities, conflicts and confusion, have questions as what a good and righteous person should consider as 'perpetual-utility' in life, amidst the general feeling of 'futility' of everything around. What is this singular life and living positioning, which can make us live the life in a perpetually joyous state of consciousness, endowed with 'true utilities', shunning away all those 'futilities', which land us in pain and regret?

Extended Description

Almost everything, which has a 'utility' at one stage of life, stands a good chance of qualifying for 'futility' later. For all thinking people, the larger conflict of life and living experiences is unraveled and expressed in multi-dimensional 'Cyclical Utility And Futility'.

The inquisitive mind and its curious energy cannot leave a thinking person to rest in perpetuity of peace as the world we live in is colossal and the questions of life and living conflicts and conundrums are infinite. However, we all need to be sure that this unsettling energy of conflict is a huge gift, not a burden.

Hundreds of years back, the old wisdom – spiritualism and philosophy offered us sure answers but in time, they have lost trust with us somehow, as they seem to somehow 'misfit' with modern ideas. We shall talk like friends about these issues in the light of a 'new thinking', which assimilates and integrates all wisdoms – spiritualism, philosophy and science. Being in 'true utilities' of life is essential, as it lands us in perpetuity of infinite joy and wellness.

Why We Flop In Love

Short Description

Love is ideally accepted with three elements of Mystery, Magic and Marvel. The three 'M's' land most of us in inexplicable troubles and pains of love. The magnificent dualism is – love's mystery makes it flamboyantly attractive and joyful. Still, the mysticism engenders loads of confusion, making many of us flop in love. Success of love is in non-dualistic positioning, which is simple and practical realism, most of us refuse to accept.

Extended Description

The dualism is in the mysticism, magic and marvel of love. This mysticism of love is what most lovers get attracted to initially. This suits the consciousness of love. This marvel of love gives the men and women huge kicks of life. Young minds get huge thrills in journeying amidst the mist of mysticism of love as precariousness of the enterprise always has its own joy. Similar is the human desire, when it comes to religion and spiritualism. Mysticism is preferred state here too. However, this mysticism further confuses those in love and faith and this confusion in turn leads to calamitous patterns of behaviors and actions in love. The resultant pain and chaos is cyclic.

However, the new thinking, explains hitherto unexplored aspects of the physical, bio-chemical, emotional and other mechanisms and processes of love, as human mind handles them, in a holistic, assimilative and integrative way. This surely takes away lots of mysticism, magic and marvel out of the age-old notion of love and archetypal imagery of love in society. However, it is hugely helpful in clearing the mist of confusion and chaos around the very core idea of love. This surely makes us be successful in love and relish true love and absolute intimacy.

Literary Fiction: Novel: A Love Story In Catalytic Contemporary Culture Of Conflicts: Word-78,000 approx: Language-English

Short Description

Battling against hypocrisies, sadomasochism and perfunctory pursuits of pop benchmarks of successes, he refuses the passion-oriented male worldview of karma and life's purposes. Metamorphosed by compassion, that love's innocence fills him with, he opts for a journey that takes him far away from the stupidity of self-worth, calculated in terms of personal utility, individualistic possession and unfettered consumption. Does he arrive?

Extended Description

Mayank Mishra, a 34-year old news-editor with a newspaper in an Indian city, takes up the challenges in his personal as well as professional lives; caught between the conflicting agendas of passion and compassion. His passion calls him to battle the hypocrisies, which the popular benchmarks of the societal notions fill up his professional as well as personal universe with. Then, the innocence of love and total intimacy exposes him to compassion, leading him to diametrically opposite life energies, marked by forgiveness. He realizes; he standing beyond the best of the potentials and capabilities of his 'acultured' and uninhibited mind is his own God but he needs an unlearning mechanism to delete the wrong programming of his mind.

In the contemporary worldview, which paints the hypocrisy of art and lies about idealisms; he templates sketches of heroic moments of personal crises to break free from the suffocation of the optionlessness of pop success, with humble reception of the sanity of simplicity and innocence.

How he manages his personal and societal conflicts, rises above his encumbrances and finally picks up a road less traversed for a journey, which makes him feel he has already arrived, sums up the novel.
