

Introduction

Dear reader,

It is my intentions for this book to be a gift that has the ability to evolve you in your understanding. It is my first attempt at reflecting my religion and beliefs system of knowledge into understanding the human condition. And the never ending battle between truths, false, rights verses wrongs. Also I will illustrate how the mind is a child universe capable of understanding and replicating the Parent Universe of true knowledge.

I am not obtaining any monetary benefits or have the intent of going against any other persons belief systems. My intension's are to share to you the reader my understanding of God and the religion of God and His Spirit of Unconditional Love.

Thank you, Matthew Butcher

“The Wedding Dance”.

In the beginning there was a Great Crown. An age of creation in the darkness compressed with raw energy. It has great heat, mass and a deep funnel in the fabric of space. It also has no light because there are no stars and the mass is so great that gravity can trap any light if there was from escaping.

The Big Bang is a scientific theory about how the universe started, and then made the groups of stars (called galaxies) we see today. The universe began as very hot, small, and dense, with no stars, atoms, form, or structure (called a “singularity”).

The shell cracks with a big bang starting the wedding dance with time and energy in space and expands outward.

The rawest energy is two particles united in an orbiting wedding dance so fast that both parties appear in the same place at the same time.

They are wedded. United in principle is the law for the God Particles. The God Particles is now no longer contained and has the ability to wed with another.

The collision of another will break apart the particles then wed and unite creating the first worlds of creation called quarks, electrons, protons and neutrons formed, Quarks are one type of matter particle. Most of the matter we see around us is made from protons and neutrons, which are composed of quarks. There are six quarks, but physicists usually talk about them in terms of three pairs: a set of trinities up/down, charm/strange, and top/bottom. And within a few minutes these particles wedded together to form atomic nuclei, mostly hydrogen and helium.

Protons and neutrons each contain a trinity of three quarks. A proton is composed of two ‘Up’ quarks and one 'Down' quark while neutrons are composed of one 'Up' quark and two 'Down' quarks.

The hydrogen atom containing the most basic component of one electron and one proton. The hydrogen atom has a much greater mass and slower orbit. And it also creates the largest body of gas that expands throughout the entire beginning universe. The gas fills the universe with large dense clouds that gather more mass and create even slower orbits.

A helium atom is an atom of the chemical element helium. Helium is composed of two electrons bound by the electromagnetic force to a nucleus containing two protons along with either one or two neutrons. Helium is a chemical element with symbol He and atomic number 2. It is a colorless, odorless, tasteless, non-toxic, inert, monatomic gas, the first in the noble gas group in the periodic table. Its boiling point is the lowest among all the elements.

Although Helium is the second most common element in the Universe (behind Hydrogen), it's incredibly rare on Earth. There are only two places to find Helium. The first is the Earth's atmosphere and the other is in the ground. From Star Stuff! Helium! So if you get an ore of the right type of radioactive element, and you wait millions and millions (or even billions) of years, you make a giant underground store of helium!

So the good news is that these underground stores exist, so we have a supply of Helium for all of our scientific (and non-scientific) purposes. But the bad news? When we use it up, we'll have to wait million of years for it to build back up, or figure out some non-prohibitively expensive way to recover it from the atmosphere. (It's so expensive that many are thinking of mining the Moon when we're out of it on Earth!)

I'm all for environmentalism and conservation, but even if you aren't, running out of Helium poses a serious problem for the continuing advancement of science and technology. Helium on Earth is scarce. It took millions of years to make the stores we have now, and once they're gone, they'll be gone for thousands of generations.

So be careful with the precious things you have, and treat them like the precious things they are, even if others don't. Because some of them — like Helium - The Backbone in the Table Cloth of creation -A Birthday Party throughout all time that never stopped— Are truly irreplaceable.

And its possible that in just six days everything was set into motion that makes us possible and God said it was good. And on the seventh day God rested. Sure why not? Were here...

I call this The Wedding Dance with these three dominant bodies that evolve one step forward at a time. Energy (God Particle), Space and Time. Like time, it moves forward one step at a time on the time table. I also want you to see the relationship or trinity of the sentence above.

Energy+Space+Time=Evolution. It takes the above three states for energy to dance, wed and evolve.

See how the beginning of time is tethered to the evolution of the bodies of reality? It creates the body of creation. God. So both are orbiting an engagement ring into a wedding dance to create the family of the children that branch out into the Tree of Life, The Tree of Knowledge, The Tree of Humanity. Also the Eco system of all the endless varieties or branches of life on mother earth that grows the tree of true knowledge that leads to your existence in Eden. You are the most advanced form of light or energy to date and if we are alive then so is all of Creation.

The First Black Hole ever produced is in the Big Bang Beginning that has the Playground of the First Funnel in the fabric of space with the First Mass and Gravity. It is also in a orbit while moving forward that works on the stellar gases throughout the universe. Pushing, pulling them into dense regions of gas like a stirring rod.

The mass of gases will continue to collide and create very large bodies of more mass that creates very large deep funnels in the fabric of space and time that wells or wills the gas to compress into child eggs that ignites into very large adult stars. The universe shined bright with the birth of light. Every region of space contains different amounts of gas and energy and the stars formed will be in proportion to the amount of energy that is available in any given region.

Over 100 Billion of these large adult stars will form and wed all throughout the universe. All these stars are at least 50+ times heavier than our Sun and will end its life in huge explosions, called a supernova. This explosion happens because the center, or core, of the star collapses in less than a second. The outer layers of the stars are blown off in the explosions, leaving behind very large black holes.

Some supernovas leave a remnant (SNR) in the structure resulting from the explosion of a star in a supernova. The supernova remnant is bounded by an expanding shock wave, and consists of ejected material expanding from the explosion, and the interstellar material it sweeps up and shocks along the way producing denser regions of mass and staging the elementary nursery school of the stars, planets and galaxies we see today.

Also during a super nova, the star releases very large amounts of energy as well as neutrons, which allows all the the electron, muon, and tau particle. While bodies of unequal mass like carbon and other molecules can be as unique as a fingerprint. All the elements and how they were formed are a language and true history of True knowledge of the evolution of creation. All creation is all part of the Eco system of Life that is aware because we are aware.

Now the majority of the large stars have exploded and there is now light from protostars and pre-main-sequence stars in the universe along with gases, energies, carbon and much of the periodic table created from the large super novas. As well as billions of deep funnels containing the largest black holes in the history of creation from the super novas scattered all across the early universe. As these black holes orbit and spiral outward, the other bodies and gases will begin to stir themselves into ribbons of dense matter between the tracks of the black holes that are spiraling outward. And orbiting an engagement ring into the wedding dance, these ribbons of mass will condense around black holes. While dancing much of the mass will wed and tether to the funnels of the black holes. Now we have spiral arms of mass, energies and the protostars and pre-main-sequence stars wedded together. These regions in the arms will begin to collect more energy and stitch the fabric of space with dense regions and pockets throughout the arms. The dense pockets will have more mass and will pull on the fabric of space and create new dense clouds of gases into gravity funnels that will generate surrounding masses to fall in a dance of gravity and compact into igniting new stars.

A gravity funnel that creates a star is in direct proportions to the amount of material or energy that is available in the region. Every region is different and contains its own unique signature of ingredients and it inherits a unique amount of bodies to wed and ignite a unique star. And many of these star funnels will gather masses and gas around them.

This has a fractal representation that confirms that if the energy funnel is present it is a part of creation. Example. A person has a funnel that depends on the amount of energy is available. A family has a funnel that is directly proportional to the amount of energy available. A society has a funnel that is directly proportional to the amount of energy that is available. A country has a funnel that is directly proportional of the amount of energy available. In a funnel of a world of energy that is available.

Energy can be any nutrient, food, power or elements that supports the existence of the world. Even the world of knowledge into understanding and wisdom is power or energy. So knowledge is power that is directly proportional to the amount of information that is “perceived” in any given time and region. And the more knowledge that is perceived into understanding the more it broadens the funnel of perceptions allowing even greater amounts of energy or information is captured and recognized

Now there is pronounced weddings of stars, light and planetary masses taking shape in a family of spirals arms around the unique black holes nucleus of the remnant supernovas. Giving form to a family playground of early child spiral galaxies.

Our Galaxy—The Milky Way—is a remarkable demonstration of God’s power and glory. True to its name, it appears as a faint, cloudy band stretching from the northeast to southwest in our summer night sky. A telescope reveals that this band is the combined light of over one hundred billion distant stars. Each of those stars is a “sun” much like ours. Each releases more energy in a billionth of a second than a major city on Earth could use in an entire year. And that is just our galaxy. We now estimate that there are over one hundred billion galaxies in the visible universe. Yet, God created all this merely by His spoken Word (Psalm 33:6, 9).

Like many galaxies, the Milky Way is disk-shaped with a central bulge. Since our solar system is located within the disk, we see the rest of our galaxy as a narrow cloud in our night sky. The disk has higher concentrations of luminous stars in some regions than others, forming a spiral structure. Many other galaxies also have this spiral structure, and this may presents a problem for those people who believe that the universe is billions of years old. Spiral galaxies rotate faster near their core than they do near their perimeter. As a result, many say they are constantly twisting tighter with time and would be twisted beyond recognition if they were billions of years old. All spiral galaxies therefore appear quite young. But add in the fact the galaxy its self is also moving forward and spiraling so twisting tighter would not occur.

The location of our solar system within our galaxy is ideal. We are far from any sources of lethal levels of radiation and far enough from the core that we can discern the type of galaxy in which we live. We are close enough to nearby stars that we can see them with the unaided eye and study them scientifically. Yet, we are not too close to any star such that it would pose a danger to life or prevent scientific study of the universe beyond. It seems that our galaxy and our location within it are consistent with God's plan for humanity.

Some of the unique remnant super nova black holes that are of less mass and gravity will form a more shallow funnel and instead of tethering arms they will create a halo of energy, stars, gases and nebula to birth into formation a family of every shape and size of globular cluster galaxies.

The universe now has a needle of electromagnetic light spectrum threading and stitching in every direction from every star in the universe. This light consists of all the different wavelengths of electromagnetic radiation, including light, radio waves, and X-rays from the family of new stars.

We name regions of the spectrum rather arbitrarily, but the names give us a general sense of the energy of the radiation; for example, ultraviolet light has shorter wavelengths than radio light. The only region in the entire electromagnetic spectrum that our eyes are sensitive to is the visible region in the spectrum with 360 degrees of needles and threads of every color of the rainbow stitching a garment out into space. Gamma rays have the shortest wavelengths,  $< 0.01$  nanometers (about the size of an atomic nucleus). This is the highest frequency and most energetic region of the electromagnetic spectrum. Gamma rays can result from nuclear reactions and from processes taking place in objects such as pulsars, quasars, and black holes.

X-rays range in wavelength from  $0.01 - 10$  nm (about the size of an atom). They are generated, for example, by super-heated gas from exploding stars and quasars, where temperatures are near a million to ten million degrees.

Ultraviolet radiation has wavelengths of  $10 - 310$  nm (about the size of a virus). Young, hot stars produce a lot of ultraviolet light and bathe interstellar space with this energetic light.

Visible light covers the range of wavelengths from  $400 - 700$  nm (from the size of a molecule to a protozoan). Our sun emits the most of its radiation in the visible range, which our eyes perceive as the colors of the rainbow. Our eyes are sensitive only to this small eye of the needle portion of the electromagnetic spectrum.

Infrared wavelengths span from  $710$  nm – 1 millimeter (from the width of a pinpoint to the size of small plant seeds). At a temperature of  $37$  degrees C, our bodies give off infrared wavelengths with a peak intensity near  $900$  nm.

Radio waves are longer than  $1$  mm. Since these are the longest waves, they have the lowest energy and are associated with the lowest temperatures. Radio wavelengths are found everywhere: in the background radiation of the universe, in interstellar clouds, and in the cool remnants of supernova explosions, to name a few. Radio stations use radio wavelengths of electromagnetic radiation to send signals that our radios then translate into sound. Radio stations transmit electromagnetic radiation, not sound. The radio station encodes a pattern on the electromagnetic radiation it transmits, and then our radios receive the electromagnetic radiation, decode the pattern and translate the pattern into sound.

Now the family of light will allow all other mass with slower orbits of bodies to be detectable information allowing us to form knowledge and then understanding. Like astronomers will use Doppler shifts to calculate precisely how fast stars and other astronomical objects move toward or away from Earth. For example the spectral lines emitted by hydrogen gas in distant galaxies is often observed to be considerably redshift. And blue for moving toward. There is a fractal relation to the mind and the parent universe, many images of the universe will look like a network in the mind. As if our minds and spirit were created or replicated to replicate and create in the parent universe, A Symbiotic life ecosystem that has many amazing fractal representations like trinities throughout creation to assist us in affirmations. The living, intelligent body of creation and of life is also the beginning of knowledge. All a living tree of life and light in the cradle of the heavens.. One. The Body of God.

And so begins a nursery for the birth of the children that we are all made of. The adult stars that explode outward giving birth to the periodic table. The family of children moving forward out into the universe. They are governed by a handful of natural physic laws of unity that bring the children into order on the merry go round of chaos in the playground of the Universe.

Natural Physics “knowledge of nature”, is the natural science that involves the study of matter and its motion and behavior through space and time, along with related concepts such as energy and force. One of the most fundamental scientific disciplines, the main goal of physics is to understand how the universe behaves.

Physics is one of the oldest academic disciplines, perhaps the oldest through its inclusion of astronomy. Over the last two millennial, physics was a part of natural philosophy along with chemistry, biology, and certain branches of mathematics, but during the scientific revolution in the 17th century, the natural sciences emerged as unique research programs in their own right. Physics intersects with many interdisciplinary areas of research, such as biophysics and quantum chemistry, and the boundaries of physics are not rigidly defined. New ideas in physics often explain the fundamental mechanisms of other sciences while opening new avenues of research in areas such as mathematics and philosophy.

Physics also makes significant contributions through advances in new technologies that arise from theoretical breakthroughs. For example, advances in the understanding of electromagnetism or nuclear physics led directly to the development of new products that have dramatically transformed modern-day society, such as television, computers, domestic appliances, and nuclear weapons, advances in thermodynamics led to the development of industrialization, and advances in mechanics inspired the development of calculus.

The periodic table will then begin to form wedding rings of planetary systems that also follow the same natural physics as the parent stars and galaxies in the parent universe.

Planets and How They Formed. The planets in our Solar System are believed to have formed from the same spinning disc of dust that formed the Sun. This disc, called the solar nebula, was composed mainly of hydrogen and helium, but also had other elements in smaller proportions.

The word planet means wanderer and the children planets have the love of the wedding dance to unite and make the family of life called “The Heavens”

Earth formed around 4.54 billion years ago, approximately one-third the age of the universe, by accretion from the solar nebula. Volcanic out gassing probably created the primordial atmosphere and then the ocean, but the early atmosphere contained almost no oxygen. It was rich in carbon dioxide and the first miracle of life to wed was plant life and algae in the water and oceans along with moons gravity stirring the atmospheres carbon dioxide into the algae rich waters. Transforming the atmosphere into the symbiotic matrimony of oxygen and plant life required for our turn to be a miracle. The miracle was one of many that wedded through time that paved the way like countless stepping stones of miracles dancing into the miracle of the human child of God

Humans take in oxygen into their lungs and breathe out carbon dioxide. Algae and plants absorbs our exhaled carbon dioxide and gives out oxygen but they also return a little carbon dioxide into the atmosphere. Algae also need water and they find their nutrients in the water. ... They give oxygen to the environment. The oceans produce more oxygen than all the plant life on land

The cradle of the heavens will wander, stitch and sew into the earth then into the animal kingdom and all the way up to you, the child of God and give you a garment to live in. The creation of God has a conscious that has been building the laws of evolution that uses all the children of his creation to tether with his mind in a see all, know all understanding of the conscious of light in space and time that moves forward. And every body in creation even all life where ever it is in time it can only occupy that space in time and no other body can own that space in time. You own it and no other can occupy it. It records like the mind records or a record recorder with a needle of light on the surface of space and time. Forever there like a tape of its time-line to the end of time.

Now you the child universe in the heart of creation has a religion of wedding with creation in understanding the knowledge of the parent universe in the child universe of your mind. “A child is held most high in the kingdom of the heavens.” And Saint Nicholas will gift the children of God in the presents and treasures of love, knowledge, understanding and wisdom of life stitched and garnished in the light. Because the playground of the child universes mind, body and spirit a self trinity that requires the love of the parent universe and child universe to wed and stitch a veil into the family. To unite into the wedding dance of true knowledge of both universes into wisdom and understanding. Civilizations and every child of God and creation has been following the light since the beginning. Like the milk of the way to the Holy Spirit that provides the unconditional loving nutrients in the form of knowledge of Love to nurture both universes into understanding. Nurturing knowledge like the milk from the breast of creation into mother earth. That eventually replicates into the minds of the family of man.

Now Jesus. Was the Son of Man and The Son of God. He was also God. Which are the Three Crowns and Rings of the religion of love and light called life. You Wed with all. He was light of love. Wedding the Three Wise Men. He was the light of truth.

There are also The Five Crowns, also known as the Five Heavenly Crowns, is a concept in Christian theology that pertains to the five crowns that individuals can receive after the Last Judgment. These are the Incorruptible Crown, the Crown of Righteousness, the Crown of Life, the Crown of Glory, and the Crown of Exultation. In the Greek language, stephanos (στέφανος) is the word for crown and is translated as such in the Bible, especially in versions descending from the King James Version. These five rewards can be earned by believers, according to the New Testament, as “rewards for faithfulness in this life”

He was known as The Teacher of Light and came as Light. He was above all a Walk of Unconditional Love. He also had a finger on creation.

His teachings of the truths of love were very universal for the times. Because he was light and able to penetrate many walks of life, pagans and also many religions of beliefs. The Vale is the holy spirit. Gods Spirit of Love of the wedding dance that can travel through and is tethered or wedded with everything. It is the living water or rain of energy that tethers everything of creation to the cradle in the Heavens. The energy is everywhere and in everything.

He was also very intellectual, intelligent and gifted with the power of the Heavens. He had the God of man and Creation in his pocket.

He was able to tap the Holy Spirit to supply, gift him to perform miracles and also teach the natural physics of the government of the family in unconditional love.

A hand full of laws before all other laws. That guide with unconditional love the child universes away from chaos and into order of knowledge, wisdom and understanding. His miracles was very real. He also performed a very important miracle of religion of Christ to be the pebble in the pond that bonded grace, peace and love of his family of humanity to keep our will away from destruction.

Jesus Christs church and walk is Faith, Forgiveness, Truth, Knowledge, Wisdom and understanding Unconditional Love. To protect you from creating chaos out of false knowledge that enters the reality of your child universe of your mind and out into the parent universe of reality. The child universe is also a wanderer. A world that wanders in the universe of knowledge. And if the child moves away from the kingdom of heaven he burns into wicked heat of his judgments and if he moves forward into the kingdom he rides the light of cool innocents. It is light and it follows the same understanding as the Doppler effect of light.

He also proved life after death in the resurrection and once again replicated the wedding dance of life and unconditional love in truth for his family in the faith and hope of life ever after. Faith is important for humanity. Faith is something that love understood can provide if we fully understand unconditional love. The proof is in our own reality that Love exists in many worlds all over the planet yet chaos and destruction of life prevails.

Again the word planet or world means wanderer. And planets are wanderers. And a wanderer is governed by the natural physics into order from chaos. Another word for planets is worlds. And the words and teachings of his religion give us Basic Instructions Before Leaving Earth. Also every human perception is unique and perceives the world differently. So in reality your a world and there is as many worlds as there are perceptions. And 7 billion worlds are wanderers of earth and knowledge. Many worlds are in false perceptions or false knowledge of the natural physics of love to be replicated.

Without Jesus Christ's examples and faith wedded with man's will we have no relations to love unconditionally to conserve and protect life and knowledge. The fear of mortality of death that requires a belief system that there is something beyond death. And we all have a spirituality embedded deep inside our human body and psyche of our own creation. And if there is one creation, one light, one spirituality, one truth and one body then you are very much like the fingertips of creation. Gods Fingerprints Which proves we are all one in creation. And therefor there is only one God. The God of Creation. And if we are all one family with the same understanding of true unconditional love we all have a deep relationship with protecting the life of innocence in everyone.

We are also the most advanced form of energy to date on this third rock from the sun. Without faith man will surely destroy life without this fact. False love is not enough to get to the heavens and protect it. Only through faith in Jesus Christ in unconditional love may you enter the kingdom of the rich family treasure of the Heavens. And through the Eye of the Needle. Light, has a serious fractal representation to everything in creation, perception, and the perception of you being the eye of the needle to the children of God no matter what the age, creed, color or condition is the natural physics of unconditional Love. A small handful of laws and principles of Love that governs, stitches and sews self, others and the family of humanity with Gods spirit of love. Gods will to guide and govern us all into order and unity.

Every human has a inner child, an innocents and it is the gift of creation that was meant to be preserved. You make contact with your inner child which is innocent and it also is the heart of conscious. It is a gift from the creator and not something that man makes. Man breaks it in the false knowledge of your brain and it wars with the gift of creation, the conscious of the inner child and it wars with you and your emotions. Love has a set of laws and principles that govern with reasoning all other emotions into there true discernment. A truth language with equal values to seeing, hearing and thinking. Instead of being dominated and manipulated by the other emotions. Love is reasoned by the frontal cortex where reasoning resides and the other emotions are controlled by the Limbic System and Brain Functioning. Since that time, the limbic system of the brain has been implicated as the seat of emotion, addiction, mood, and lots of other mental and emotional processes. It is the part of the brain that is phylogenetically very primitive.

Emotions are a big part of your government of unconditional love and when understood they offer us some tools for self control of thoughts, feelings and actions. The trinity of self control and you.

The emotions are a truth language and signals from your heart of conscious attached to the innocents of the inner child. For example An emotion of guilt is a truth language and it means you are in custody of a problem. So don't fall into self punishment. You stop and examine the emotion and do the opposite. You tether with Jesus Christ, the Holy Spirit and God. You wed with the truth, you forgive in unconditional love for yourself and others. Whether it is your fault

"The Last Supper"

Every experience is food to the mind, body and spirit.

The Last Supper = Unconditional
Love for yourself and others in every experience.

or the fault of others. And every lousy destructive thing that hurts you, even in the past can become a God bump. What is a God bump? A God bump is God bumping into you with an opportunity to use his spirit of unconditional love. Lessons using Unconditional Love and developing a relationship with Christ, The Holy Spirit and God. (God Bumping Manna into both the landscape of your memories in your mind and the landscape of your world). A God bump makes a strong dominant memory in the landscape of your mind. Making you strong in Manna if you receive the lessons of the actions or tragedy whether you caused it or someone else caused it. And the opposite occurs when you do not listen to your emotions correctly and dealing with them properly obscuring the Manna.

Manna is referred to in the Bible as a food provided by God in the wilderness and also as a spiritual food which means Manna also occurs when you use the Bible and your God Bumps or Manna in your mind as a Bible of actions in your memories for your seeing, hearing, thinking, feeling and actions. Every experience is food to the trinity of self. Mind, body and spirit. Including the government of unconditional love and being in Gods will. It creates a life line that has intersections called your memories where you experience rewards for being in Gods will and shining light into both the world of the child universe and reality of the mind and the world of the parent universe and parent reality of humanity. Supplying the Bread of Christ and dropping manna into the landscape for all and it becomes a God Head (By the will of God comes Good Works in your mind.) God helps those whom help themselves. This means you help yourself to helping others through Gods Works.

Ephesians 2:6-13, James 2:20 - 3:3, John 10:32, 1 Timothy 5:10, 6:18, Titus 2:7.

John 6:49 Your fathers ate the manna in the wilderness, yet they died. 6:50 This is the bread that comes down from heaven so that anyone may eat of it and not die. 6:51 I am the living bread that came down from heaven. If anyone eats of this bread, he will live forever. And this bread, which I will give for the life of the world, is My flesh.

Nehemiah 9:20, Deuteronomy 8:16, Deuteronomy 8:3, Exodus 16:32

Jesus Christ was a teacher of the natural physics of the laws of unconditional love that govern his family. For both the parent universe reality and the child universe, reality of who you are to be preserved in the truths of knowledge and understanding that exists in both realities. Family of God Period! Alpha Omega.

Note: These laws of unconditional love govern self control of everything you see, hear, think, feel and do inside and out. And it reflects out into the world of our realities of who you are in your perception of you and our world of the parent reality.

Be a good reflection of the light of Love that was Jesus Christ. You must be in unconditional love to wed with the family of humans in understanding of your experiences in reality or there will be chaos in some of your order.

And if you wed with others in Jesus Christ you have the order of the universes you wed with. When two or more gather in my midst there shall I be. Every experience is food to the trinity of your mind, body and spirit and it requires the natural physics of love unconditional to nurture the reaping of the fertile knowledge of manna in Forgiveness, Self Love and Understanding of Truth into Unconditional Love. This is why seed is thrown in the wedding. A representation of love and fertility for the family in understanding.

“The True Religion and True Government “

God of creation has given us the best ability's and gifts that show us the first religion, the perfect religion and government for a healthy way of life. Your Gifts or abilities and emotions are your first government always regardless of mans government. How you understand love and your emotions is important because they steer you on your path. Often your hearts desires is at risk of corruption from a poor understanding of the laws and principles of unconditional Love. And the disciplines of human will. Your understanding of what you do Love and don't Love is your religion of living or way of life. Walking a life of unconditional love is a walk, path or way of life called a religion.

“Definition of the word “Religion”

The belief in and worship of a superhuman controlling power, especially a personal God or gods. “Ideas about the relationship between life science and religion”

Synonyms: faith, belief, divinity, worship, creed, teaching, doctrine, theology, a particular system of way of life, faith and worship.

Plural noun: religions

“The world's great religions”

A pursuit or interest to which someone ascribes supreme importance to their lives. “American Consumerism or Immoral Capitalism is the new religion”

Love understood governs and straightens your path and perception.

“Love, The Triple A Crown of Jesus Christ.”

AAA The Triple A's even look like a crown and let's show you the correlations of the perfect and most high trinities of unconditional love. The three wise men bearing the gifts of Love.

“Anytime from Anywhere for Anything”. Is Unconditional Love. It is The trinity of heads that holds the crown Most high above all and brings heaven down to earth. It holds Earth and Children of creation most High in the Heavens, A priceless Gem on the crown of God, of and for all humanity, Jesus The Son of God, The Son of Man, of and for humanity. The Holy Spirit of Love, of and for Humanity. And the Children of Humanity to use Anytime from Anywhere for Anything. Because he crowned you Most High with His Most High in Him to being able to use the crown of love you were gifted with for living and corrections. The perfect Trinity to govern all Most High in the heavens.

Anytime: Anytime is the Alpha and Omega of Love. Eternity. He is Love first and he has no end, His benevolence and so is Love. It can be used Anytime. His Spirit Of Love is at the trinity of heads on the crown. Love is the most sought after. Love is the most treasured because we all want, carry, defend and have the ability to use it Anytime. The best defense is for love to be used Anytime. Because Love is the spirit of God bestowed to humanity in and for Anytime, Because It is Forgiveness for forgiveness is needed Anytime to forgive for Love to be Anytime. So Love, Loves Love first so that Anytime after contains Love. Love is to be used in any Opportunity, Good or Bad for it to be Anytime.

FROM

Anywhere: Anywhere is as far North to South and East to west of Eternity . Love is the be used Anywhere and Everywhere because for it to be Anywhere it must be used Everywhere. He is Love first and he has no end, Hes benevolence and so is Love. It can be used Anywhere. His Spirit Of Love is at the trinity of heads on the crown. Love is the most sought after. Love is the most treasured because we all want, carry, defend and have the ability to use it Anywhere. The best defense is for love to be used Anywhere. Because Love is the spirit of God bestowed to humanity in and for Anywhere, Because It is Forgiveness for forgiveness is needed Anywhere to forgive for Love to be Anywhere and Everywhere. So Love, Loves Love first so that Anywhere after contains Love. Love is to be used in any Opportunity, Good or Bad for it to be Anywhere.

FOR

Anything: Anything is Everything for it takes Love in Everything for Love to be in Anything. He is Love first and he has no end, Hes benevolence and so is Love. It can be used for Anything. His Spirit Of Love is at the trinity of heads on the crown. Love is the most sought after. Love is the most treasured because we all want, carry, defend and have the ability to use it for Anything. The best defense is for love to be used in Anything. Because Love is the spirit of God bestowed to humanity in Everything for it to be in Anything, Because It is Forgiveness for forgiveness is needed in Everything to forgive for Love to be in Anything . So Love, Loves Love first so that Anything after contains Love. Love is to be used in any Opportunity, Good or Bad for it to be in Anything.

Love uses this perfect and sacred Space, Time and Energy in the trinity of a trinity in the trinity. Trinities within trinities with the same set of principles to Hold the Crown most High and understanding your crown can govern you with the Most High for The Most High to be Anytime from Anywhere for Anything. The child of God is held most high.

Evolution of God Heads of Jesus, Unconditional love, Creation, Self.

God = God, Jesus, Holy Spirit.

Evolution = Time, Space, Energy.

Love = Anytime, Anywhere, Anything.

Self = Mind, Body, Spirit.

God + Evolution + Love = The Most High in The 3 heads of the Crown = Knowledge, Understanding and Wisdom.

The more time, space and energy you commit to anything the more it will evolve.

1st Law,
The laws of love should be in front of all other laws, actions and corrections.

“Love. Gods Spirit giving his best to his descendants”

Us. One Humanity and what it means to be human. Human means we are all one species with the same spirit of love, the same ability to love, same truth of love because love is truth. Same understanding of love for the best to be in any situation! Because God meant his Love to be unconditional. He gave us his best for the best outcome in any situation. That is why love should be held most high and unconditional. Because its free and created to rise above to be used at every opportunity and in every condition. You have the ability to understand it, use it for any situation , make the bad times better, makes the bad times less and it makes the good times the greatest.

This is fractal. Fractal means you will recognize representations or correlations throughout that have order. The chaos theory brought into order just like the hand full of laws called a religion of natural physics that govern an entire universe in a perfect religion of order, that made us possible to use His best. Now that is priceless love that made you possible to govern your life and the lives of others in perfect harmony with God of Creation given to you. Countless blessings and miracles to get to the miracle of you the reader, a child of God.

It was meant to be understood that creation loves us unconditionally because its an ability we all have, treasure, we all long for is Love and it shows creations nature is to love unconditionally with his best.

He also gave us the best abilities to be like Him.

The primacy of Unconditional Love. Unconditional Love is the most important message about God and from God.

Venerable Louise Margaret Claret de la Touche (1868-1915, see www.infinitelove.ie) had profound insights about God's Love and she suggested in her book (The Sacred Heart and the Priesthood) that God is the Trinity because 'God is unconditional love' (1 John 4: 8, 16). Unconditional Love by its nature seems to flow from one person to another person and in God there is an eternal community of infinite unselfish Love.

God is love, and mercy is love put into action and so, over 2,000 years ago God put His infinite love into action when the Son of God came to earth and took on human nature to redeem us. Jesus is God's love put into action. Jesus is the Divine Mercy of God in Person. It is an act of love to invent, to create and to redeem creatures and this is what God has done for us. The Father loves Jesus with infinite love and vice versa and so one of the most amazing things Jesus ever said is in John (15: 9) 9 'Even as the Father has loved me, I also have loved you.' Divine Mercy is naturally from a superior being to an inferior creature but human mercy should be from one equal to another equal.

God expects us to be merciful, He expects us to put our love into action too (See Matthew 25: 31-46). When Jesus was asked by the Lawyer in Luke (10: 25) what he should do for salvation Jesus asked him what the Law said and so quoting Deuteronomy (6: 5) and Leviticus (19: 18) the Lawyer said, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself." He said to him, "You have answered correctly. Do this and you will live." The Lawyer asked Jesus who is his neighbor and Jesus told him the parable of the Good Samaritan. In the Our Father prayer Jesus showed us that if we want mercy we should be merciful by always forgiving others. We are to love God because loving our Creator is a good thing to do. God isn't egotistical. He didn't create us to love or worship Him like slaves but for us to be loved by Him. God's nature is mercy. We deserve nothing in this life or the next life from God. From our perspective as creatures mercy is His greatest attribute.

Love is more important than faith that can move mountains. In 1 Corinthians (13: 1-3) Paul showed the importance of love. If we speak in tongues, have prophecy, have understanding and knowledge and even all to move mountains and even give alms to the poor and my body to be martyred but I don't have love I am nothing. Love should drive everything we do.

He gave us all our love, emotions and passion to create in love. Anything that contains love is a priceless blessing. For God loved himself first so that he can love us and create out of love his children to love him. Blessings means to be in Gods favor.

His Love gave us His ability to discern knowledge both good and bad. True knowledge vs false knowledge. One to use (truth as knowledge) and one to guard against false in knowledge. Love is your sword and shield for both because love has a natural ability to love truth and guard against false. It's in loves best interest to be naturally unconditional too. Love uses a hand full of spiritual principles or dance partners to govern its nature. Its the natural physics of government of self or family, even all humanity. Its so natural that he gave his best to love us and Him perfectly. Which means everything had to go perfect to create humanity. That means you are a perfect creation. He gave us his Spirit of Love to govern us as he governed himself in love to make us possible. He loved us with awareness to be aware of Him in true knowledge that he is the creator of love, truth, understanding, wisdom in reality and so are you, You have the ability to be aware of love so that you can create more love in your life, the lives of others and the world.

The first dance partner is, He gave us a benevolent spirit of love with love at the helm to give you light of love and light up a world of life that is all benevolently connected in nurturing you into life. Even his spirit of love is benevolently in you making it free to give and receive. The meaning of benevolent is that it does not require anything from any outside source to give or make possible. Love dances with benevolent first of all. Truth is that you have the ability to dance with love so you can love yourself and others and not require anything from any outside source to make love possible. It is “The Cup That Filleth Over”

Second dance partner is love forgives so that love can be unconditional and possible to govern any condition good or bad. Allowing love to Love, Love first so that everything after contains love is the nature of forgiveness, grace and mercy. The trinity of forgiveness. This is why benevolence is first. Forgiveness is our second dance partner in the natural physics of the perfect order of the laws and principles of Love.

Loves third dance partner is faith because it hopes for forgiveness to prevail and rise most high. Love the spirit of God as most high as he does his children holding them most high in the kingdom of the heavens with his best for the best.

Loves fourth dance partner is Truth because it requires the above to get to truth for our fifth dance partner Understanding.

Loves sixth dance partner is wisdom It uses the wisdom for conscious to counsel correctly.

Loves seventh dance partner is counsel that comes after understanding and wisdom.

Loves eighth dance partner is charity or giving by nature so that it can be love in action of all the above.

Loves ninth and Final dance partner is fortitude because you need fortitude to keep dancing in actions of love and wars against the false so that love prevails to be first and most high. Healing Chaos into order.

Live in joy and love even among the hate
Live in joy and health even among the inflicted

Live in joy and peace even among the anger

Love unconditional is the holy spirit. It is the true religion. The true Government of self and with each other, all as one with God's spirit of Love, The True Comforter and Counselor, The True Practitioner because Love heals the heart and prevails to rise above. Even the 10 commandments require all the above.

Love gives you angel wings so you can bring heaven down to earth.

Poem By Matthew Butcher:

“Honor - Integrity”

Words Alone will Never be Strong Enough because they are Alone and Abandoned.

But “United” in a Sentence of “Truth” they come to “Action” and poses the “Power” to Teach Understanding.

The Understanding that our words must be United in Love of Truth and with Action to be Fully Understood.

This also supports, preserves, strengthens, cleanses the tree of knowledge in the parent universe and child universes in our minds of our understanding. We are the tree of creation. The true information of reality. We are also energy and if we are alive and aware then so is creation!

Protect the universe of knowledge in your mind with the universal natural physics of Love Unconditional and the bodies or worlds of humanity around you will follow in understanding.

This is the will of God to walk in unconditional love wedded with others in understanding, The Wedding Dance. This creation is aware in ways we can not comprehend. It is the body of everything from the first dance. It is conscious. But it is conscious in ways much greater than ourselves. And I believe that this stacking of knowledge is genetic energy and is required for everything in creation to evolve. The creation of our knowledge is a replication of the same model for life and creation that can not evolve without it. Because like ourselves with out an awareness or stacking of knowledge and information , it would not be understood.

We are the most evolved form of energy to date on this 3rd rock from the sun. We are also child fingertips of creation and part of creations mind. Every human mind and body, all its imagination is networked by the cradle of the heavens the Holy Spirit into the creation mind of God. For the purpose of evolving us into the true understanding of our environments for us to understand the cradle of the Heaven's. It also allows

A World Turned Upside Down.

Our Love is so costly.
Our Finger is for free.

Our finger, so costly.
Our destruction for free.

Change your ways, become apart of it all.
Before judgment days takes care of it all.

Love freely is needed to change our sight.
To light up a world and make things right.

Open your heart and you will take flight.
Upon all the ribbons of blue and red light.

By: Matthew Butcher 7/2014

the God in creation to witness all life in the cradle through the Vail of the Holy Spirit that tethers throughout creation in the Heaven's.

But this is life is coming out of the cradle of the Heaven's then into the animal kingdom and then the human kingdom. Life is always under development to evolve us and our understanding of knowledge. The human mind is so different from the animals because creation requires our mind and imaginations to evolve you. To evolve creations children. The mad hatter of intelligence that is required for you to push past what you see. To go beyond your environments of understanding.

Your one of 7 billion universal and unique minds and counting. Unique wandering worlds tethered to the One for a greater purpose. To reach into the heavens of knowledge in truth with understanding.

To make you understand and create from that which you were created from. For the purpose of understanding that which you were created from. We are all One. We are all tethered. Every possible outcome of human life, imagination and outcome just like every possible outcome of animal to get to you. We are all uniquely different grains of sand on a beach. We are all uniquely different lights or sparks of understanding.

Just like every possible outcome in the stars and worlds in the heavens above to get to you. We also have free will to love, create, destroy, probe and protect the tree of knowledge and understanding in the imagination and reality with truth to safely roam in and out of reality with our unique abilities and senses.

Every outcome for the purpose of supporting and growing in understanding of the truths in reality. Creation is attempting to stretch outward into that from which it came. This is also directed to. Every understanding is a slightly different version for the purpose of getting us to as unique children to support the true religion of God the spirit of unconditional love. A life with elders and teachers that can create our Wisdom of God and breath into the life of our reality.

We are creations fingertips that should be governed by the laws of unconditional love. But we are yet children in knowledge of our understanding of everything. If left un-governed by unconditional love the lies in false knowledge creates chaos and destruction of truth in the many unique worlds and realities of humanity wandering on our one planet of our parent reality. Every action. Every thought. Every version of government. Every feeling or event in time that ever happened all unique being banked in the body of the Heaven's through the Holy Spirit. And also banked in our understanding called history in the living book of life. Your mind is the book of your life.

You occupy a space in time that moves forward. Every space in time you occupy can not be occupied by another if you are in it. So you own it, that space in time your in. Nothing else but you will ever own it again. So protect your reality with the unconditional laws of love.

Everything you are is being recorded in your mind as if you were in a sector of a hard drive in the cradle of the Heavens. A living record! Written into the book of life. Even when you die. Your flesh is no longer but the spirit is preserved.

Everything is preserved in a depository of the human tree for the purpose of evolving human which is creations children to be a greater version of understanding than the last. Creations nature of evolution is to have a better tomorrow than the day before by having a better understanding than the day before

It is Gods intentions for us to know Him and use the gifts or abilities bestowed to you, That he hopes for us to use and have a better day than the last. Like the ability to Love. Love is the greatest and most powerful ability God of creation has passed down for us to use all the time. It is meant to be unconditional so you can love him and include Love in every experience. Good or bad. Like life and knowledge that dance in the time of evolution so does Love. The more time, space and energy you give love the more it evolves your understanding. Love over time gifts great wisdom. Love contains treasures that are priceless. Love is Gods Spirit. Everything in life and knowledge stacks or moves forward one step at a time. Up the ladder of understanding into the heavens of God

Also all the good and bad is used to make us better through the true knowledge into understanding. Even our drive to go to the stars is dictated to understand how for us to go past our environments in realities and learn the body of life. Every version of star. Every version of galaxy. Every version of planets and life are all unique for its versions in testing every possible outcome of creation. The word planet also means “The Wanderer.” It will wander into the best successful outcomes.

Open your eyes and see that God loves variety and nothing in creation but atoms, molecules and energy are the same. But creation requires us to come out of the chaos of ignorance, and false knowledge to be governed in the light with the laws of Love to preserve true knowledge and understanding. It is a requirement for us to mimic the truth in creation. Creation mimics throughout and this is called fractal theory.

Just like the chaos that brought an order to the stars into you through the hand full of laws called natural physics. Your chaos must be governed by a hand full of laws called Love Unconditional. That is why the ability to love was gifted so that we can wed with these laws.

The ability to love in truth is a gift from creation to bring order from the chaos of your child mind that wanders in and out of imagination and reality with the natural physics of the Laws of Love.

To govern your crazy imagination and free will away from Sins. Lies. Death. Chaos. Destruction. Destructive Thoughts. Actions and Energy that are negative and deemed false knowledge creating a false reality or illusion. To bring order to your child reality so that you do not bring chaos into the parent reality of Life. To teach you to govern a dance with creation in a wedding dance of love, unity and truth. Not divorce in lies and false knowledge of not loving the laws that wed. And causing worlds to wander off the path and collide in chaos. We are One. Genesis 3:22. So we must learn to be wed. To dance. Every society, empire or civilization has a funnel of energy that is in direct proportion to the amount of energy available. (Manpower, Resources, Energy, Wealth, Technology) wealth, technology and energy into the dominant conquering empires and then have integrated throughout the world.

This is called the collapsing funnel principle and it is a fractal event of creation and evolution. The empire that is dominated does not have the energy to maintain their funnel of energy, is conquered and the funnel collapses and many die. As a result the dominant empire captures all the resources.

God allows this to happen throughout nature. All living species have a funnel that is in direct proportion to the amount of energy available. And when it collapses the species, it is then forced to learn, adapt to grow or evolve in population, resources and energy past the last funnel size.

In the case of man this can also occur. Man answers to the trauma and evolves their understanding of knowledge and wisdom to address the collapse. This leads to man evolving past the last funnel collapse and grows or evolves larger empires and funnels. God also allows such suffering to message man with a lesson that man must turn and depend on Gods will and not their own and wed with his laws to maintain or stabilize.

The last civilization to fall was the Native American Indian. It is history that the Americas is the discovery of a new world. Yet the Native American was here first. They were called savages but I noticed that at the time the Native Indian had a clue that they were ancient migrants. The bow and arrow. The bow and arrow was used all over the old world for tens if not thousands of centuries. Also we developed guns so I would challenge that the real savages are is the group that has evolved weapons that injure and kill.

1st Law.

“The laws of love must be in front of all other laws, actions and corrections.”

The laws of love must engage the ring into the wedding dance with all other laws, actions and corrections. Or it ends up repelling into a divorce! The only way to the Heavens is through the Eye of the Needle. The needle is the only way to the Heavens through Jesus Christ the Teacher of Light. The needle of all light and truth.

Light stitches and sews the light of creation into information and as the information highway moves forward so does the evolution of knowledge. And as you sew the light of knowledge your spectrum broadens into your perception and understanding brings light to the garment of the heavens.

This is how the Johnny Apple Seed and The Apple of your eye sees, hears thinks and feels as he or she grows. Love is very elementary. And this is why we use the word elementary because it is a sewing of elements. If you look you can see the fractal Wedding Dance of all Creation. The Body of God. The Rembrandt of Creation. The Alpha and Omega. If you look at all the variety of life it takes a perfect conscious to create the Child of Creation. The fingertips of God that use their index fingers to point out truth in the heavens and the impossible thumb to create. See Gods Conscious? Spread the love in our reality.

“Tether The Trinities In Nature.”

Some examples in Nature that seem to resemble or reflect the Trinity. It is also designed to deepen our Faith in the Trinity. The Mystery of the Trinity is beyond our understanding but we think that God has left some examples in Nature that reflect His nature.

“Glory be to the Father and to the Son and to the Holy Spirit, as it was in the beginning is now and ever shall be world without end amen”

“O Godhead here untouched unseen, All things created bear your trace”

Light Three primary colors of Light.

God’s first words in the Bible are “Let there be Light”

(Genesis1: 3) and also Jesus said, “I am the light of the world” (See John 8: 12). So it is very appropriate that the Visible Light or White Light which we see can be made of these three colors: Red, Green and Blue. Scientists call them the “Primary colors of Light”. Human eyes also have a trinity of three types of light cells. A trinity to interpret all the visible Light rays we see. Equal amounts of these three Lights produces the appearance of White Light in our brain.

The Conception of New Life.

Dr Scott Hahn gives an example of the Trinity in his book “Rome Sweet Home” and that is when new Life is conceived, when a husband and wife or a male and female become “One flesh” they can with the grace of God become three flesh, that is, a new child is conceived. God, who is the Inventor of all creatures and who has the power to simply “Imagine” all creatures into existence has in His goodness allowed humans to share in His creation of new Life. He has made His creation of New Life an image of Himself. Dr Hahn says that it is as if the Love between the two parents becomes the third (the child). The Trinity itself is a family of “Three” who are One.

The Human Person

Because of God’s infinite Love for us He created the Human person in the “Image of God” (See Genesis 1:26-27). As mentioned already in the “Nature of the Trinity” article God is the great “I AM” and each of us is just a tiny little “i am “. We are given the incredible gift of “freewill” in honor of our Heavenly Father and so making us like Him and making us more fully His children. We can use our freewill to make decisions to reject Him or to love Him. That seems like a very powerful gift but if we reject God we are really only rejecting ourselves from Him. Our freewill only gives us great power over ourselves. We are given knowledge of good and evil (our conscience) in honor of the Son of God. By sharing in His knowledge we can share more in His Son ship. Finally we are given our emotions, including our ability to love in honor of the Holy Spirit and so we share in the eternal love and joy of God. Each of us can say “I am”, “I know”, “I love” and “I decide”. We use the last three of these phrases every time we do a good or bad action. The way we use them will determine our Eternal destiny. Body - Mind - Spirit

The Human Mind

Because of God’s infinite Love for us He created the Human mind. The greatest of his creation and the greatest Bio technology ever known. His best likeness with the abilities to love and discern both good and bad. You the child of god with 3 layers and states or 3 brains in one. State 3, Highest heaven, Most High: Called the Executive state is your higher reasoning and the most high. (Refer to image on page 93.) The God state, it’s your awareness of life’s knowledge, understanding and wisdom in reality, faith, beliefs, and you the soul child of creation with the ability to create into reality with love directing what you create inside and out. Its your trinity of heavens of Love in the child universe of your mind. And you hold yourself in the most high as a child of God with Love at the helm to govern your heaven in the child universe of your mind.

It’s Matthew 18:3 and Jesus says, “Assuredly, I say to you, unless you change and become as little children, you will by no means enter the kingdom of heaven.”

State 2 middle level, temptations: The Emotional State. Much attention should be given to the second heaven because that is where Satan and his demons do their best work. It is the place where spiritual warfare takes place. One of the chief ways that Satan tries to disrupt our lives is through temptations, luring us away from God and down a dark path that leads to destruction.

State 1 lowest level: Survival State: Am I safe? In the wilderness of man who’s world is served and ruled by the fallen angel? A primitive state that does not see your humanity but responds to chemicals the brain produces when the reward center of the brain fires for committing to a hearts desire. All it understands is the chemical language the brain produces when the child does something rewarding. It does not care if it is right or wrong and it can be very manipulative to the child of God. It tempts you into serving it and its desire to be rewarded. It will send a chemical language to the child of God and give him or her physical responses or cravings followed by a thought or whispering in the ear the thought to satisfy the craving even if it is not good for you. It can not tell the difference between addictions, obsessions and healthy rewards. The chemical language good for you or bad is the same if you perceive it as rewarding. Its purpose was intended to keep you safe and help you enjoy a healthy, good, rewarding life for doing good. However in a world of temptations for instant gratifications with so many choices that are corrupted or rebel on the side of bad or false loves or false knowledge of hearts desires to instant gratifications. Breaking the wing of the spirit and the angel or you the child of God falls from heaven in the executive state 3 and God is the executive of heaven that wars back with truth that the false love is bad. Causing an emotion with a truth language of guilt to be judged by the heaven in your mind for correction that repairs the broken wing and raises the child of God back to the most high

A good way to believe this is true is to remember that God told Daniel He answered his prayer in the third heaven the first day he prayed, but it was delayed by conflict in the second heaven for 21 days, according to Daniel 10:12-14. Some people go on a 21-day fast because of this information.

Satan held up Daniel's prayer in the second heaven. That's where he holds up our prayers. In other words, Satan comes between us on earth and God who is in the third heaven.

Also the brain has three ways it communicates

1. Chemical language translations
2. Electrical language translations
3. Light language translations

The Solar System

Looking beyond ourselves to Nature for models of the Trinity, the largest example is in our Solar system. Scientists say that three astronomical bodies (a star, a planet and a moon) are necessary for Life on Earth. They are the Sun, the Earth and the Moon. (Planets revolve around Stars or Suns and Moons revolve around Planets). In unique ways these three bodies are similar to the Trinity.

Our nearest Star the Sun

The Sun which is so high in the heavens reminds us of our Heavenly Father who lives high in Heaven, the Eternal Day, and if we look at the Sun we may go blind and also if we saw the Father's real glory in this life we would die (See Exo- us 33: 20). His beauty is so intense that our soul on seeing Him would instantly want to leave our body and fly to Him like a tiny pin to an immense magnet. The Sun reminds us of the fact that if we are very good that one day we will be able to see the Glorious Beatific vision of the Father's face in Heaven. Blessed Catherine Emmerich said that when Jesus was dying on the cross "darkness came over the whole earth" because something obscured the Earth from the Sun and this was to show us the darkness that came over the soul of Jesus as He was allowed to feel rejected, or cut off and abandoned by His heavenly Father. The Father's presence was obscured from Him and this was His greatest suffering. It is the suffering that we deserve when we sin because we reject God every time we sin but if God rejected us we would no longer exist. When He felt rejected and abandoned by His Father He cried out "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?". Like the Father the Sun showers down its fatherly warmth on good and bad alike. In the distant past men thought that the Sun revolved around the Earth but thanks to Galileo we know the Earth revolves around the Sun and that seems more appropriate because our lives should revolve around God our Father.

Planet Earth

The Earth can remind us of the Son of God, "Jesus Christ the Eternal Word of God". John's Gospel (1: 3) says "Through Him all things came into being" see also Genesis (1: 3) "God spoke" and by speaking created all Life through His "Eternal Word". Similarly through the Earth all Life comes into existence and in this sense the Earth reminds us of the Heart of Jesus from where all Life comes because it is an incredible act of Mercy to receive Life and God's Mercy came to us from the Heart of Jesus. Also it was the second person of the Trinity, the Son of God: Jesus who became an Earthly man. The Earth feeds us our food and daily bread from itself and so too the Son of God feeds us of Himself in Holy Communion which is our Spiritual Bread of Life. The Son of God is the "Word of God" and the word of God in Scripture and in the Church's teaching is our Spiritual Food for our thoughts. By His words and actions He revealed His Heavenly Father to us. The earth too with all its different colored objects reveals that the white light coming to us from the Sun is actually multicolored. Some people think of the Father as a father of perfect justice but Jesus in His words, parables and actions revealed Him also as the Father of Mercy, Forgiveness, Love, Generosity, Compassion and unending good qualities. The Sun by shining on the earth reveals the Earth to our eyes and the Earth by absorbing some of the Sun's rays and reflecting others reveals that those White rays from the Sun are actually multicolored. The earth and the Sun reveal each other to us in different ways, so too the Father reveals His Son to us by sending us His Holy Spirit to enlighten us and the Son revealed the Father to us by His words, parables and deeds. The Earth itself on which we live can remind us of the Trinity in that it's surface is one third land and it is two-thirds water.

Our only moon, the Moon.

The Moon can remind us of the Holy Spirit, it too is necessary for Life on earth because it's gravity pull holds the earth steady and without it the earth would wobble so much that the atmosphere on earth would be too poisonous for Life. In Genesis (1: 2) we read, "The Spirit hovered over the somber waters" which can remind us of the Moon which hovers from afar over our oceans and draws our tides and global currents. As the Holy Spirit is the Love that proceeds from both the Father and the Son for each other so too the Moon is both white and shines on us like the Sun but it is also a solid planet like the earth. The Moon resembles both the Sun and the Earth. It sheds Light (enlightens) on us from the Sun in the darkness of our lives and also it helps produce the air we breathe on Earth. The Moon does not shine as brightly as the sun on us in this earthly life but in Heaven the glory of the Holy Spirit and indeed of the three persons of the Trinity will be equally bright. When there is a solar eclipse, with the Sun, moon and earth in one line we see an image of the Trinity with the moon between the Sun and the Earth similar to the Holy Spirit as the Love between the Father and the Son. By incredible providence the Sun and the full moon appear the same size in the sky (This fact is visible when the moon is seen to perfectly block out the Sun during a solar eclipse) even though the sun is about 109 times the size of the moon. This can remind us that each person of the Trinity is equal. There are three basic things that we need to stay alive and they are Heat from the Sun, Food from the earth and Air to breathe that we get from our atmosphere, which is produced and maintained by the pull of the Moon on the earth. The Moon revolves around the Earth about twelve times a year and by coincidence the Holy Spirit can produce twelve fruits in Man. (The word “Month” comes from this cycle of the Moon)

The three qualities of the universe are each three:

The trinity of God leads to all trinities in His creation.

Height, Width, Depth

Time is one yet three Past, Present, Future

Energy or Matter is one yet three Liquid, Solid, Gas

Space + Time + Energy = Evolution

We live in a Trinity of Trinities: Romans 1:20 says, “For since the creation of the world His invisible attributes, His eternal power and divine nature have been clearly seen, being understood through what has been made .

Fire. Flames of Fire

Perhaps another model of the Trinity in nature is in the mysterious event or phenomena we call Fire. Fire needs Three things in order to survive or exist. It needs Heat, Fuel and Oxygen. (Actually we humans also physically need these Three things, we need the heat we get from the Sun, the fuel or Food we get from the Earth and we need the Oxygen we Breathe which we get from the atmosphere (which itself is produced by the Moon.) God appeared in the form of Fire many times in the Bible, to Moses He appeared as the Fire in the Burning Bush without actually burning the Bush, again with Moses He appeared as the Pillar of Fire (Exodus 13:21–22) guarding the People of Israel. In Exodus (19:18) God can manifest Himself as anything in the minds of His children ‘Mount Sinai was entirely wrapped in smoke because Yahweh had descended on it in the form of Fire” and later when God appeared again to Moses on Mount Sinai, “To the watching Israelites the Glory of Yahweh looked like a devouring fire on the Mountain top” (Exodus 24:18). In the New Testament we see that God the Holy Spirit descended on Mary and the Apostles on Pentecost Sunday in the form of “Tongues of Fire” (Acts of the Apostles 2:3–4). The Seraphim’s Angels are closest Angels to the Throne of God in Heaven and their name means “Burning ones” because the Throne of God is ablaze with His Glory. All the Angels and Saints in Heaven are on Fire with love for God. This means that our souls can be on fire with Love or with hatred. We need to feed our Souls with the Fuel and “Food for Thought” of the knowledge of God to be found in the Scriptures, Church Teaching and the writings of the Saints. Jesus is the Eternal Knowledge of God. We need to be in the Heat and warm Presence of our Heavenly Father by living in the “State of Grace” (This means to have repented of our sins and to be free from serious sin). Or rather we need the warm Presence of the Heavenly Father in our Souls. We need to “Love God and Love our Neighbor means all Good and bad people.). To do that we need to Breathe in the Holy Spirit who is the Breath of Life for our souls.

Water Molecule H2O

Another example of the Trinity in nature is in the substance Water, which is also vital for our Life on earth. Water molecules (H2O) are made of two Hydrogen atoms and one Oxygen atom. Physically one Hydrogen atom is bonded to one side of an Oxygen atom and another is bonded to the other side. They look something like this: H-O-H,. This can remind us of the Trinity, where the Oxygen can represent the Holy Spirit between the Father and the Son who are each represented by the two Hydrogen atoms. Representing the Holy Spirit by Oxygen seems very appropriate because the word "Spirit" comes from the Latin word "Spiritus" which means "Breath" and as we know it is the Oxygen in the "Atmosphere" which we need to breathe in order to live. It is also appropriate because Theologians say that the Holy Spirit is the "Atmosphere" of Love eternally produced between the Father and the Son. One other reason it is very appropriate is that when the Holy Spirit appeared on Pentecost Sunday to Mary the Mother of Jesus with the Apostles there was the sound of "a mighty wind" and He appeared to them as "Tongues of Fire". There is only one Greek word "Ruah" for "wind" and "spirit". We know also that a fire needs Oxygen to remain burning. We need the breath of the Holy Spirit to be on Fire with the Love of God. Water at 0.16 Centigrade has a special quality called a "Triple Point" whereby it can exist as three things at the one time, liquid water, solid ice and water vapor, this is like the Trinity who coexist as three Persons but are one God. It is very appropriate that Water should reflect the Trinity because Jesus uses water in the Sacrament of Baptism to confer Divine Life on us His creatures. In Scripture there are references to God as "Water" for example Jesus told the woman at the well that He was the "Living Water" welling up to Eternal Life.

Atoms - Structure of Atoms

Perhaps the Trinity also marks the material substance of Creation. Children going to school who learn Science are told that the material substance of Creation is made of atoms, and all atoms are made of three basic particles, Protons, Neutrons and Electrons. They are told that these three particles are the building blocks of all physical substances. Protons have a positive charge, electrons are negative and neutrons are neutral. These particles are reclassified for students in College who are told that there are three types of particles (Hadrons, Leptons and Bosons).

Conclusion.

To conclude, we can never understand fully the Mystery of the Trinity. Before the beginning of our time and the creation of anything God was alone and He was overflowing with Infinite Love for Himself when He decided to Share His Love with creatures that He would "Invent" into Existence. Perhaps God has known us from all Eternity so we just say "Invent" to help us understand better. Hopefully we will spend all of Eternity gazing at this God of ours, He is not somewhere in Creation. Creation is somewhere in Him. He created Creation so large and so long ago to help us to understand just how Large and how Old He is. No creature, not even the greatest saint or angel, before they existed could have merited or deserved to have been invented and created. Nor can we in our short lives ever deserve Eternal Life, indeed what can we ever do in our short lives of even a hundred years to deserve to live in Heaven for never ending Millions upon Millions of years? Before He created us we did not exist and so we could not deserve to be invented or created.

Mercy, (which means undeserved) is God's nature, and like an incredible Santa Claus our Heavenly Father is the real Father Christmas and He wants to give us the stupendous gift of Eternal Life and we can receive that gift through the Son of God because He is our Eternal Life. This gift of Eternal Life was put on the Real Christmas Tree which is His Son's Cross on Good Friday and is available for the entire Human race but we must be very good and always repent and confess our sins in order to receive it. Our Heavenly "Father Christmas" wants to give us Presents every day of our lives in the tremendous gifts of the many "Graces", "Knowledge" "Understanding" and "Wisdom"

God gives us 24 hours a day every day of our short lives and we usually hate spending time with Him. When we realize how much our Heavenly Father "Loves" us then every day is Christmas Day! And as Santa Claus picked Rudolf the "Red Nosed Reindeer" who was an outcast to lead his Sleigh so does our Heavenly Father "cast the mighty from their thrones and raise the Lowly" (See Luke 1 : 52). We call this Goodness of God His "Divine Mercy". His Sacred Heart burns with Love for us but when we sin we pierce His Heart like a crown of Thorns but we also pierce His Heart if we do not believe that He Loves us no matter how good or bad we are. If you Love someone and that person does not believe that you love them then you feel pain in your heart, well it is the same with God. If we reject Him by our sins we will have to live without Him for all Eternity, but if we are good we will be able to Live with Him forever.

In order to get to know the Holy Trinity better we should ask Mary the Mother of Jesus to help us, she is the unique Mother of the Son, the Spouse of the Holy Spirit and the perfect Daughter of the Eternal Father. She looked at her Son and knew that He was the Son of God, and by listening to Him and Contemplating Him she got to know the whole Trinity better than any other human could. Also we should reflect often about the "Incarnation" and "Passion" of Jesus, that is God became Man in order to suffer and die for our sins. God knew that when He gave "Man" Freewill that He was giving him a very self-destructible power but God has so much Love and Respect for "Man" that He wanted him to be Free to choose to return Love to Him or not. If "Man" rejects God he deserves to lose everything that God gave him including the incredible "gift" of "existence". To lose our "being" or to exist no more is the most terrifying prospect ever. In hell a person still owns himself or herself. But God gave us Freewill hoping we will choose to Love “Him” and then one day share in His overflowing Bliss.

Christian purpose and values.

The church of Christ is in the heart. It is not a building and it is the responsibility for every Christian to give Jesus a second chance and be the vessel of the second coming. Disciples are responsible for being the second coming. Look at the evidence when I read the revelations it says to me that this is what happens if you do not be like the example to the world and step out into the world and be the example to the worlds that need him. They are supposed to be out in the world looking for those who need him and teach them his examples by being the example.

Where are they? In the church! And not being the example. Jesus seeks them out. If we don't be the second coming out in the world the world will perish. How do I know that disciples are the real second coming and Jesus? Because we all have Jesus in side us given to us by our creator. It is our ability to love. We are supposed to view every human as family and give them the family values. To seek them out and teach.

Mimic the teacher and be the example. Churches are failing to produce ministers out of their disciples that will minister to the world. Be the second coming and seek the real church that needs the teacher that ministers to them. Mimic Jesus out into the world. The world is family. When I look at the possibilities of Armageddon. I see that the real battle for America is to war with the system that demands money for love before the values of love. Do they love us? No capitalism has a law of profits. A rule that teaches what ever the market can bare. And that is not love it is exploitation!

We are the 99% that must war with the system eventually or many will perish. And many do. Don't they? Yes they do because of the system that does not provide with out you paying for it. It teaches us that money is the root to all evil. If that is so. Who has the most money? America and its system! So we are supposed to war with the Devil right? Well then be the second coming and war with the system and go out into the world and form your army. That increases your population that can change the system or eventually we will have to anyways.

Don't wait for creation to send Jesus! Jesus is already here. In us. Proof is our ability to Love. So teach Unconditional Love to those who need it. It is our responsibility to minister to our family who needs it. Look at your family. Don't you have to teach and minister the family values to your family? Yes so why stop their when we are all one humanity. Family! Teach the values to them and you change the world. Correct? Yes! There is no other way or you will be at war with a system that fails to be the example of love.

Be the teacher that seeks out 3 teachers that will teach and seek out 3 teachers. And leverage the leverage that is needed to change the world. Network market Jesus into the world. Network out into the network!
The true family of Jesus!

Level 1 = 3 Teachers

Level 2 = 3x3 = 9 Teachers

Level 3 = 3 x 3 x 3 = 27 Teachers

“Devil vs Jesus of love.” The Broken Wing

The De-evolution and power of false knowledge. The disease of false knowledge is anything false, negative or destructive in reality, A pathological illness that breaks the wing of the spirit of men and falls to earth as dead weight (Hence the term fallen angel) False Knowledge is the Spirit of the Devil served through man. While love bares truth and blessings served through Gods children into reality. When you recognize the false you can cleans the spirit with tethering Jesus Christ, Holy Spirit and God. (Jehovah). It is the trinity that guarantees that if you Wed with the Father God and Pray for guidance to help yourself to the steps received that graph the false from your Body, Mind and Spirit. Your faith and hope is an important factor in the cleansing of the spirit. Then you work to use the truth to over ride the memories of the false knowledge in the gardens landscape of the child universe of the mind.

This prevents the false knowledge from growing and festering into a weed. The weed is a product of a event, action or experience where guilt or false knowledge has been left to grow in the pathological path of the child's mind to fester and grow into a weed. When you ignore the seed of the false knowledge of your heart it will present a truth language called emotion that will inform you of guilt, anger, sadness, remorse, shame or fear that you are in custody of a problem that needs to be addressed. It is read by the innocents of the inner child heart of conscious and the conscious will return a message of guilt to the mind for judgments to correct.

The Judgment then is weighed by the judgment center and conscious of the mind and a signal is sent to the heart of the child as a negative feeling. If the child ignores the signal of guilt of the original parent memory to examine the trauma for correction it will fester into a festering guilt that will continue to disturb the child. As time goes by the child will revisit the memory on another day and as he examines the guilt he will replicate the event into a new memory cell. This replication will in turn add weight to the original parent memory of the event as well as create a new memory made by examining the trauma and increase the festering guilt. As the child procrastinates to cleans the event in the mind he will feel an increase of animosity, hostility or friction toward the event.

This is now a urgent message from God to visit the memory and correct it in order to bring comfort or salvation.

The child will then examine or visit the parent memory again and also review the child secondary memory and if left unchecked the mind will form another memory on the landscape of the mind. This is the propagation of the parent weed into a garden of offspring weeds in the garden of Eden of the child mind universe and reality. Each reinforcing, strengthening and increasing the trauma of the parent memory and negative emotions.

Creating a replicated fractal Armageddon of the event and the soul wars with the mind in emotional heat. It is a battle between heaven and hell in the universe of the mind. This is fractal and can replicate the same scenario in a society of minds and landscape of a communities of market patrons and Gods Children. How it relates is that an introduction of the immoral disturbance will be introduced into the society and enter the minds and create a memory of the disturbing introduction in the society. This can present great challenges for the witness because it not only does it create the same scenario as above it also has no access to removing the introduction out of the society.

Example 1: The introduction of legal pornography into a society will create animosity into the minds of morality. It can also replicate, create or result in one or two other scenario like a numbing acceptance or a serious perversion with the above.

Immoral perversions introduced into a society like pornography, fornication, sex, drugs, murder, man slaughter violence and numerous crimes in news for entertainment in media and music for profit are greed and gluttons.

Resulting in the propagations of weeds like the scenarios above, but also will result in acting out or replicating such events into the reality or landscape of a society in the form of copycat crimes like drug abuse, sex crimes Sex Abuse and violent crimes resulting in deaths and traumas.

Example 1. On a hot summer evening in Colorado, families and friends gather at the local movie theater to enjoy an evening of light entertainment. That evening is turned into a night of blood lust and bedlam when a lone gunman enters the hitherto safe confines of the theater, and, with rifle, shotgun, and pistol, kills a dozen and wounds more than four dozen more.

Sadly, it is a scene with which Americans are all too familiar. Disgruntled employees, broken by the strain of the workplace or terrified at the abyss that lays before them in unemployment after a recent dismissal, return to their offices or factory floors with guns.

Alienated students bring homemade bombs to their schools, and confused loners, seeking significance in a society that has cast them aside create their own headlines through mass murder. Self-appointed vigilantes gun down children for merely appearing to be in the wrong neighborhood. Police put 41 bullets into an innocent, unarmed, immigrant peddler, succumbing to a 'shoot-first, ask questions later' mentality.

After each and every incident Americans are left pondering why and wondering what if anything can be done to stop it and also, 'how did this occur, and what caused it?'

Are violent games, movies, and music desensitizing and molesting our Gods children? Is the problem that inadequate precautions have been taken to screen and then care for those with emotional problems? Problems that, left untreated, can overtake the better angels of one's own personality?

Is it that America has made a cult of gun ownership and made firearms 'sexy,' using the best advertising techniques to glorify their ownership?

Is it a foreign policy that equates patriotism to bombing campaigns that left cities from Pyongyang to Hanoi in piles of smoking ruin? Is it that war itself is reduced to a video game as remote control drones kill American citizens whose names appear on a 'death list' that is kept in the Oval Office itself? A reasonable case can be made that each of these in varying degrees contribute to a poor socialization of the American psyche, leaving it vulnerable to improper and ultimately violent impulses.

The larger question however is what sort of society do we wish to live in, and once that question is answered, how do we go about organizing it?

There is only one problem: There is a road block to the progress of citizens organizing the society. That problem is a dictatorship of immoral finance-capitalism. Our society is not organized along the lines that the people desire but rather along the lines that the private owners have determined will reap them the greatest profits.

There is no immediate profit in the public care and treatment of those with psychological and emotional disturbances; that costs money and the one percent do not wish to pay. Films, literature, and television that seek to portray working people accurately and that are uplifting are potentially financially risky; much easier to splatter the screen with gratuitous violence to a public taste already deadened by decades of exposure.

The creation of a consumerist society, obsessed with obtaining the appropriate brand name shoes, hats, jackets, cars, and liquor labels lead youth desperate to acquire any outward sign of success and acceptance they will even kill to get it. It is a long term sales plan.

While peace and cooperation between nations would produce profit in trade, there is an immediate profit in war. The munitions, the equipment, must be rapidly replaced and the quantity increased. The lawmakers of the land who vote for the expenditures must abide dare they be accused of leaving our boys into the field without the tools they need to get the job done.

The job of multiple simultaneous wars however is too big even for the Pentagon, and so private armies must be hired for additional security, and private companies make profits from taxpayers by being the lowest bidder to do the wash and cook the meals of those on what soon become permanent forward bases as imperialist ambitions grow grander and the thirst for profits is immoral capitalism. All these decisions are made on behalf of the ruling class; the working class would have none of it if their voices were truly represented in deliberative bodies.

An intelligent debate about the responsibilities that should correspond to the rights of gun ownership is made impossible. The gun lobby, financed by the arms manufacturers who wish only to sell more weapons, regardless of the purpose, be it hunting, competitive shooting, forming your own militia, or robbing the local liquor store shut down the debate before it even begins. Instead some propose that still more guns is the solution so that each and every armed citizen can squelch an unexpected gunfight with his own superior firepower. Proposals such as this are actually taken seriously, as if the Wild West remained untamed and the 21st century were not the present time.

Rather than a society that first seeks war as a solution to geopolitical problems, why not a 'Department of Peace' as some lawmakers had frequently proposed? In 1995, the government of South Africa instituted a 'Truth and Reconciliation Commission' to deal with the human rights abuses that occurred in their society during the Apartheid period. No such commission exists in the U.S. to seek resolve for all the monstrous crimes committed by a capitalist government against its own people, from the enslavement of an entire race, to the genocidal slaughter of another. No official government body seeks to find the root causes of why a government would suppress the desire for workers rights by using automatic weapons against families in Ludlow, Colorado. We do not as a society confront the crimes of the wholesale murder of the incarcerated in places like Attica State prison. We wish only to bury and not confront the institutional racism that prompted and excused the most ghastly medical experiments and forced sterilization of human beings.

There is a great deal to do if we are to take positive steps in taming the savageness of man and make gentle this world. It is not the ruling class that will provide the solutions, it is the 99 percent, but first they need the power to do so. Perhaps no society will ever be immune to a certain pathological personality, determined to do evil, but those who have been fortunate enough to visit socialist societies, both of the past such as the USSR and of the present, such as Cuba, will have observed something different from the experience a capitalist society produces. They will have noticed a kindness, a joy, a spirit of cooperation, of mutual support and caring. They will have also seen a great interest in the development of youth, as well as a purposefulness to culture, art, literature, and film.

This is not to suggest that we should strive to replicate, imitate, or mirror these societies, but rather to indicate that given the opportunity, the people will create a society much different than immoral capitalism will. Americans, given the chance, would organize themselves into a society brimming with opportunity and reflecting the unique values, customs, and traditions that this nation can be proud of.

Given the chance, the people will once and for all remove the corrupting profit motive that has poisoned a culture, left a workforce at loose ends, and praised and accepted anything, even violence, in the pursuit of private gain. Given the chance, working people would build an America that was truly 'kinder and gentler' and would seek real solutions to put an end to the violence that has cut short so many American dreams.

Example 2. Watching Violent films does make people more aggressive, study shows

In the first study of its kind, researchers found that each person's reaction depended on how aggressive they were to begin with. Violence on screen can translate into real life, according to a new study. Violence on screen can translate into real life, according to a new study.

Watching violent movies really does make people more aggressive - but only if they have an abrasive personality to start with, a study shows. Bloody scenes do not have the same effect on passive characters who react to what they see on a screen in an entirely different way.

The link between X-rated films and video games and the rise in violent crime has been debated for years so scientists scanned the brains of two very different groups of people to see what happened as they were shown violent images.

In the first study of its kind they found each person's reaction depended on how aggressive they were to begin with.

After answering a questionnaire 54 men were split into two groups, those who were aggressive including a history of physical assault and those were calmer.

Brutal truth about violence in movies 25 Jun 2013
Their brains were scanned as they watched a succession of shootings and street fights on day one, emotional but non-violent scenes such as people interacting during a natural disaster on day two and nothing on day three.

While watching violence the aggressive group had less activity in the orbito-frontal cortex, which controls emotion-related decision making and self-control.

These subjects said they felt more inspired, determined and less upset or nervous than their non-aggressive counterparts when watching violent instead of only emotional scenes.

Their blood pressure also went down progressively while the calm groups' rose.

During the final 'mind wandering' stage - when no films were shown - the aggressive participants had unusually high brain activity in a network of regions known to be active when not doing anything in particular.

This suggests they have a different brain function map than their non-aggressive peers, said the researchers.

Dr Nelly Alia-Klein, of Mount Sinai Hospital in New York, said: "How an individual responds to their environment depends on the brain of the beholder.

Aggression is a trait that develops together with the nervous system over time starting from childhood. Patterns of behavior become solidified and the nervous system prepares to continue the behavior patterns into adulthood when they become increasingly coached in personality.

This could be at the root of the differences in people who are aggressive and non aggressive - and how media motivates them to do certain things."

The findings published in the science journal PLOS ONE could have implications for intervention programs seeking to reduce aggressive behavior starting in childhood.

Dr Alia-Klein said: "Our aim was to investigate what is going on in the brains of people when they watch violent movies. We hypothesized if people have aggressive traits to begin with, they will process violent media in a very different way as compared to non-aggressive people - a theory supported by these findings."

In the study the scans measured the subjects' brain metabolic activity - a marker of brain function. Participants also had their blood pressure taken every 5 minutes and were asked how they were feeling at 15 minute intervals.

Dr Alia-Klein said: "Hopefully these results will give educators an opportunity to identify children with aggressive traits and teach them to be more aware of how aggressive material activates them specifically."

Example 3. In writing this article, it is not our intention to prove scientifically, or otherwise, that behind every violent sex crime there is a pornography problem.

Clearly, violent sexual crimes existed long before dirty magazines and porn sites came into the picture. The purpose of this article is to address the concerning misinformation that many pro-porn defenders promote by saying that pornography is harmless or by saying that we lack the necessary “conclusive scientific data” that pornography causes sex crimes. (We have heard countless people even argue that pornography is helpful because it allows people to view their deviant sexual fantasies, rather than practicing them on another person.) These pro-porn people contend that pornography actually decreases instances of rape because it is an acceptable sexual outlet. However, there is already enough evidence of a causal link between porn and sex crimes to make the claim that pornography is extremely harmful.

Everyone’s brain is wired to repeat what it sees and hears; it’s a major part of how we learn. And the more senses you get involved in the learning process, the more consistent the message, and the more often you see it, the more likely you are to be influenced by it. That’s just one more reason why viewing pornography is dangerous. It’s only a short jump from watching something in porn to actually imitating it in real life. And sometimes the things you see can really hurt yourself and other people.

Did you know that there’s been a correlation found between people who view pornography and people who commit sexual crimes? Now we’re not saying that watching porn will make you become a serial rapist, while the way pornography affects you, it can definitely influence your judgment. This is why porn is connected with sexual violence. Proving this point is kind of tough, because an accurate study, as one researcher put it, “would require a sampling of much more than a thousand males, exposed to pornography through puberty and adolescence, while the other group is totally isolated from its influence in all its forms and varying degrees. Each group would then have to be monitored—through the commission of violent crimes or not”

(Related: How Porn Likely Influenced Stanford Rape Case)

Obviously, a study that invasive and complex would be next to impossible to set up. But that doesn’t mean the facts aren’t already there.

“In spite of the lack of formal research, though, the FBI’s own statistics show that pornography is found at 80 percent of the scenes of violent sex crimes, or in the homes of the perpetrators”

Now we think that’s kind of tough to ignore. The people who promote pornography think that is actually easy to overlook. They say that porn is harmless, or that science doesn’t support the claims. Sounds about right coming from someone who stands to make a profit in the porn industry.

The fact is that there is more than enough evidence, like findings from the FBI, that prove there is a link between pornography and sex crimes.

In fact, here's a bunch of evidence about that link:

The University of New Hampshire did a study that showed that the states with the highest readership of pornographic magazines like Playboy and Penthouse, also have the highest rape rates

The Michigan State Police Department found that pornography is used or imitated in 41 percent of the sex crimes they have investigated

Dr. Victor Cline did research that showed how men who become addicted to pornographic materials begin to want more explicit or deviant material and end up acting out what they have seen.

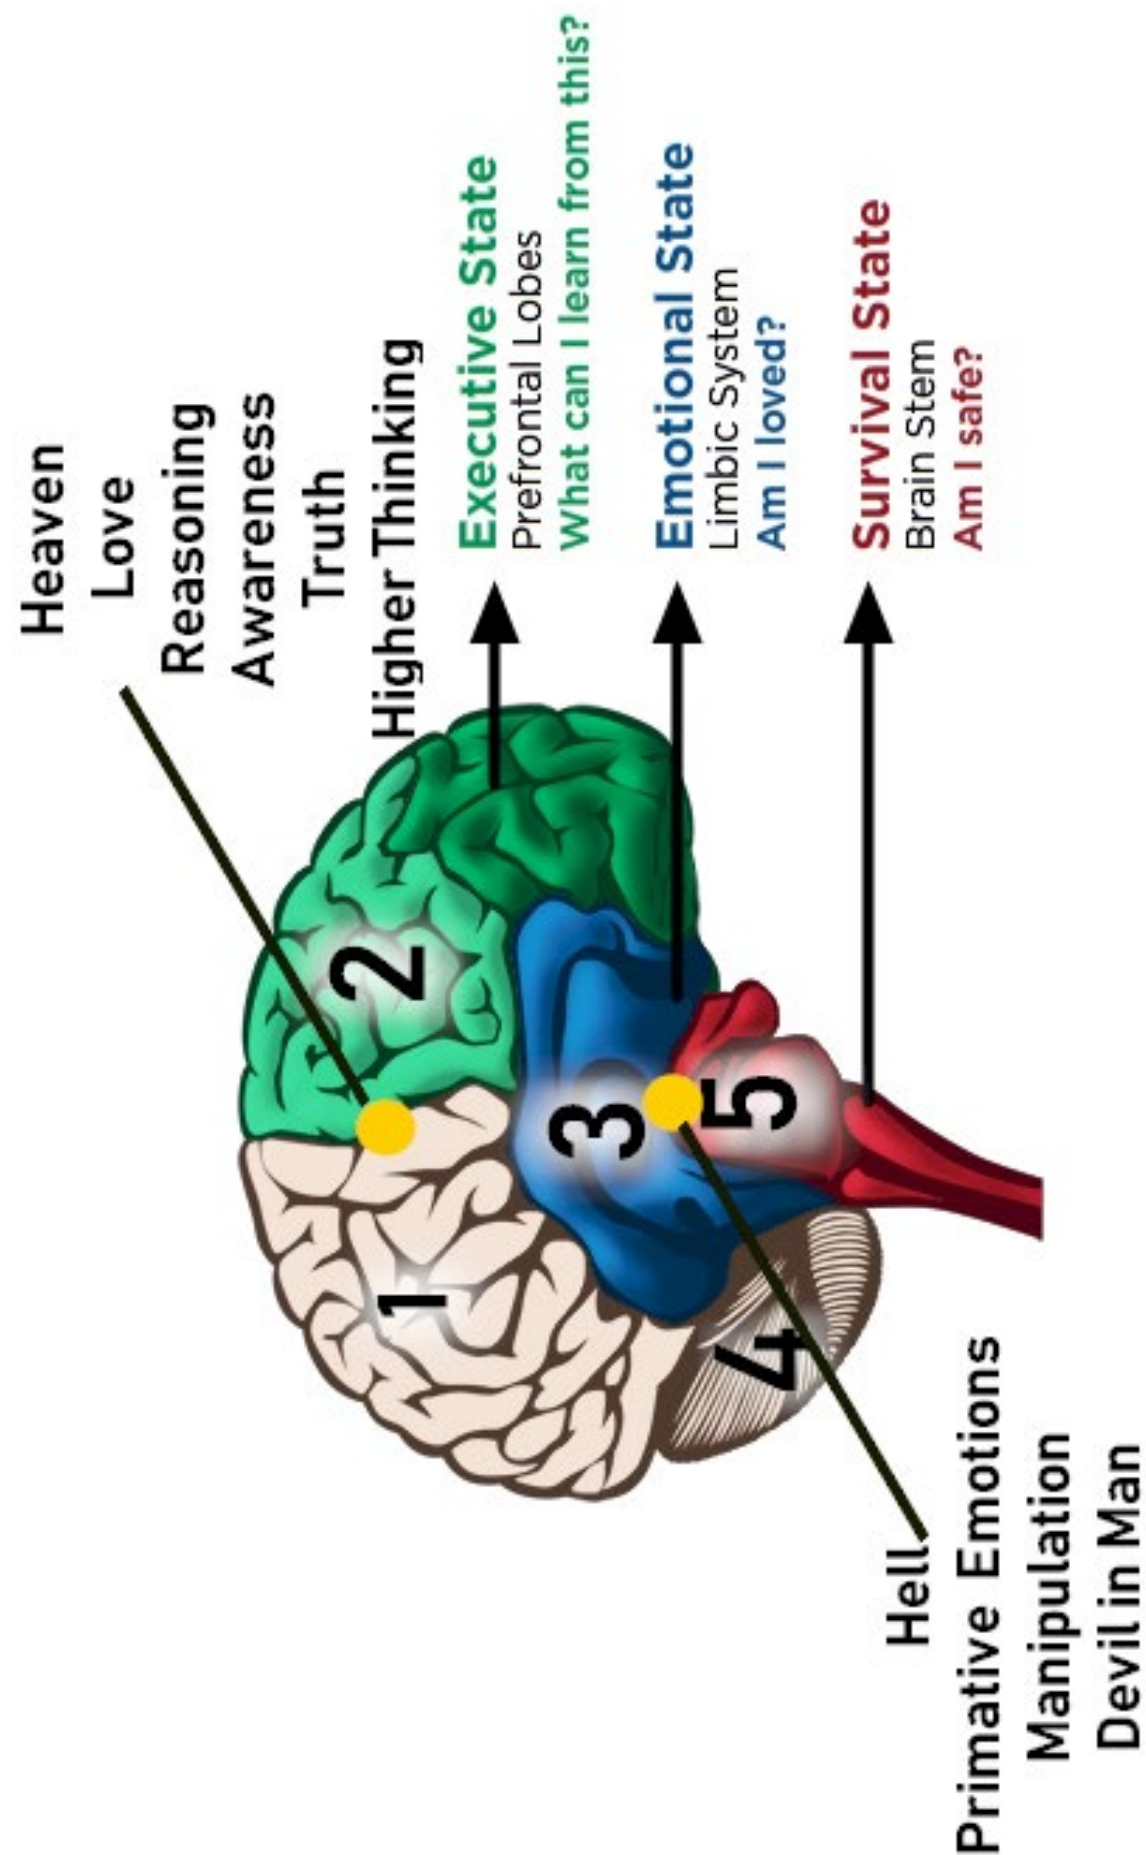

Now this one will make your skin crawl—Dr. James Dobson interviewed Ted Bundy, one of the nation's most notorious serial killers, on the day before his execution. Bundy said that the “most damaging kinds of pornography are those that involve sexual violence . . . The wedding of those two forces, as I know only too well, brings about behavior that is just too terrible to describe”

Two doctors noted in their research-based book, Pornography and Sexual Aggression, that “Certain [aggressive] forms of pornography can affect aggressive attitudes toward women and can desensitize an individual's perception of rape. These attitudes and perceptions are, furthermore, directly related to actual aggressive behavior against women.” They also found that adult pornography was connected with each of the 1,400 child sexual molestation cases in Louisville, Kentucky, and child pornography was connected with the majority of them.

Another review of controlled studies found that extensive viewing of the type of pornographic material commonly sold at adult bookstores was positively correlated with an increased self-reported willingness to commit rape or other forced sexual acts.

The Kingston Sexual Offenders Clinic in Canada found “an unexpected finding” when they conducted a study of their patients over a period of six years. “One of the rapists reported that he used consenting sex depictions to incite rape images in the process of preparing himself to attack a woman. Subsequent questioning revealed a further five rapists who made similar claims, and 10 of the 10 rapists who currently used (pornography) for enjoyment (not necessarily preparatory to offending) also said they used it to incite rape fantasies

Dr. Dolf Zillman and Dr. Jennings Bryant showed that continued exposure to pornography had serious negative effects on beliefs about sexuality in general, and on attitudes toward women in particular. They also found that pornography desensitizes people to rape as a criminal offense, and that massive exposure to pornography encourages a desire for increasingly deviant materials that depict violence (such as sadomasochism and rape)

Individuals with a predisposition for aggression (i.e., men who are at relatively high risk for aggression) have shown to be particularly drawn to images of pornography and are more likely to expose themselves to such images in the future than lower risk individuals. Moreover, a number of priming studies have shown that men with earlier risk characteristics may interpret sexually explicit material differently than lower risk individuals, such that pornography activates and reinforces inappropriate cognitive representations (e.g., hostility toward women) and fosters the development of sexual preoccupation in these men

Again, we are not saying that everyone who watches porn is going to turn into an attacker. That would be illogical and alarmist. We are saying that porn isn't as harmless as the industry and society would have you think.

The facts are clear: pornography is harmful and research is proving it. No matter what people say to try and make pornography seem normal or harmless, there's enough evidence out there that says it's not. With porn being so available, affordable, and accessible, you've got to know what you're up against. Learn the facts about the negative effects of porn—all of them, there's way more than just the link between porn and sexual crime—and you'll think twice before looking at it.

False knowledge in the parent universe or reality that your in now is like anti matter to truth in the knowledge tree of the society.

False knowledge has no home in our reality and repels away in the realm of truth while in turn truths attracts more truths. False Knowledge turns the fractal order of true knowledge in reality into chaos and destruction of truths and can result in chaos of your reality by acting out in false knowledge.

The devil is a lizard brain that controls the human by training the mind of the human to seek instant gratification in the form of heart desires. Heart desires are what the mind craves to ring the dinner bell of the reward system of the mind because the lizard brain is primitive and does not see your humanity. It responds to the addiction of the chemicals that the brain produces. Slaving the human to chase what the lizard brain what's most of all the chemical response of the reward system. This will effect the humans decisions made to sin feeding the lizard brain. It will then create guilt against the conscious of truth and guilt will fester into self punishment, pain, anger and fear.

The “lizard brain,” The true devil is the primitive tenant in a person's skull, is easily fooled into thinking that just because something feels good, it is actually beneficial. As writer Jim Dickey (25 years sober) says: While the concept is no longer fully embraced by most of the scientific community, the term reptile brain, lizard brain, or monkey brain was picked up in recovery circles as a way of describing the parts of the brain which are evolutionarily primitive and control our emotions, drives and urges.

Although more of a metaphor than an anatomical reality, the evocative image was adopted by Terrance Hodgkin's, an addiction researcher with 14 years of sobriety. The primitive lizard, or base, brain falls for the cruelest trick played by addicts and addictogens. A user starts out thinking this will be the romance of a lifetime, but the honeymoon ends swiftly. Hodgkin's notes:

A “virgin high” is the high you get the first time you take a particular drug. It is often much higher than anything you will ever get from that drug again ... if you keep on using that drug, then it stops working, and won't kill your pain any more ... You end up still in pain, just feeding a habit. With its low IQ and lack of sophistication, the lizard brain just doesn't get it. It keeps on "chasing the dragon," trying to recapture the ecstatic initial experience with a substance or behavior, but the first time does not return for a repeat performance.

A young man whose first night of drinking awoke an inner voice that said, "This is who we are." He came to feel that his alcoholism was like another sentient being that shared his body. Hodgkin's (who quit nicotine along with alcohol) mentions the same phenomenon, a voice that says things like "Why don't we sneak outside and smoke a quick one?"

habit of calling it “The Addiction Monster.” The Lizard Brain Addiction Monster wants what it wants now, and does not give a fig about long-term consequences. Instant gratification is the only game in town. As Jim Dickey phrased it: It is the Devil in your mind that effects both your inner universe and the world around you. Given the power to control you it will and use every trick in book to maintain it’s diet. The diet is often falsely influenced hearts desires marketed by business, illegal drug trades, media and even word of mouth and peer pressures in the world. This means it has the ability to negatively alter both your reality in the mind and the world you forge and tread in because of its lies and manipulations

The short term goal is to give in to the addictive behavior, which conflicts with the long term goals of being happy, productive and experiencing love and companionship while living a life which honors our values. Even though dull-witted, the reptile brain is at the same time dangerously clever. The Orange Papers website contains comprehensive lists of all the sneaky, persuasive, undermining things the Addiction Monster will say to the recovering addict — and say, and say, and say. Fortunately, Hodgkin’s also includes ways to overcome the reptilian tactics and ploys.

Still, we have to give the lizard brain its props for keeping us alive by, for instance, pushing air in and out while we sleep. And it tells us to eat food, without which we would starve. It must create this need, or the whole ball game is over before it even starts.

Hodgkin’s writes:

Food is our first addiction ... If we don’t get our fix, we start to experience withdrawal symptoms like stomach aches and headaches, and then we develop a snappy short temper, and feel weak and shaky. Then we will start feeling desperate, and start thinking about stealing or mugging someone to get money for a fix. And the longer we go without a food fix, the worse it gets. That sure sounds like a strung-out junkie to me.

The Reptilian Brain and Power Addicts.

The reptilian brain and addiction to power go hand in hand. They are personalities ruled by emotions that are primitive, very aggressive, and have a lack of empathy, and the only thing that exists is the pleasure of domination and concern for self. In their minds self-control does not exist, much less concern for anyone else.

It was Paul D. MacLean who, in 1952, presented his theory of the evolution of the reptilian brain to explain emotional processes and their changes throughout our evolution as a species. According to the famous psychiatrist and neuroscientist, human beings of today have continued to maintain three basic structures: a reptilian brain, a limbic system, and a brain that is new and complex, responsible for higher functions, the neocortex.

“The secret of wisdom, power, and knowledge is humility.”
-Ernest Hemingway

If it is true that neurologists agree with this concept that alludes to the biological evolution of our brain, it is no less true that they appear skeptical to the idea of a “fragmented” brain and a lack of harmony. They think that defending this last conceptualization would be like defending a radical, almost obsessive distinction between the right and left hemispheres of the brain, which has been trending the last few years.

We should view the human brain as a whole, any other way and we would be wrong. It is not a puzzle, but rather an organ with certain specialized areas that connect with others in order to perform certain functions as a whole, like an efficient machine that is always perfect. Now then, on occasion, the activation of one part can be highlighted, especially when talking of emotions.

People whose behavior depends on their instincts, leaving behind emotional balance and the control exercised by the limbic system and the neocortex, are acting under the opinion of a very concrete and exclusive part of our brain: the reptilian brain.

The reptilian brain and our irrational decisions

We have already discussed the fact that there is a very concrete personality type that is led exclusively by their reptilian brain: those who are addicted to territoriality, to control, domination or even aggression. Does this mean that everyone else has this deep, innate, and atavistic area of their brain?

Absolutely, and the experts in neuromarketing know a lot about this. The reptilian brain, that old and dark companion, also controls a lot of our basic functions, and our instincts. In fact, tasks such as breathing or the feeling of hunger and thirst are under its control, as well as the more primitive emotions of desire, sex, power, and even violence as a means of surviving.

The advertising industry knows that human beings are almost always ruled by the reptilian brain when deciding on one product or another.

For example, the smoker will keep buying tobacco knowing that they can die, and they will do it simply because they need to satisfy their addiction. In these cases, the neocortex, the logical part of the brain, does not have a voice nor a vote. So much so that the experts in neuromarketing know that the ability to make decisions in these instances does not reach 20%.

Power addicts and low emotional control.

Comparing a despot who is controlled by the personality of a three year old can sometimes be a pretty accurate metaphor. That is for a very simple reason: for their lack of self-control when it comes to managing their emotions. David McClelland, well known motivational psychologist and famous for his theory on needs explains that human beings are basically characterized by three goals: relationships, achievements, and power.

“Exercising power corrupts, submitting to power degrades.”
-Mijail Bakunin

There is a need in every one of us that stands out. Some will value relationships more, those who aspire to reach certain goals, and those who simply have just one obsession: exercise their power wherever they can.

These will be the basic characteristics of a profile associated with this type of personality: They are energetic, in tune with the outside and establishing new social relationships with those who appear to have great friendliness, a closeness, and an exaggerated openness.

However, this openness, in reality, hides a camouflaged interest: know in order to control, know in order to blackmail, and create alliances by which to gain more power.

They are people who are always on the defensive. At the very least, they feel hurt or betrayed, when this happens they do not hesitate to act aggressively.

They tend to lose their temper very easily because the reptilian brain lacks filters and control mechanisms to manage anger, rage, annoyance, and even fear.

They are incapable of being receptive or empathetic to the needs of others, because this deep and intimate structure of our brain lacks emotional coherence, equilibrium, not enough strength to distinguish between instinct and reason.

In conclusion, although we may each know someone who fits this profile, we need to keep one thing clear: the reptilian brain, without a doubt, guides many of our reactions and choices. However, we should not allow it to take control of all our behaviors.

The theory of the ‘reptilian brain’ is vital in understanding the world of our emotions, and above all, to be conscious of the ultimate need to invest time and effort in proper emotional development. Just as we exercise our body and try to develop our intellect each day, we should be better at managing those urges, those primitive emotions that, although it may be hard to believe, rule a big part of our life.

The second coming and Armageddon are fractal they can occur in any world including your own. The second coming is allowing yourself and the world to give Jesus a second chance and cleans the worlds of the weeds and thorns that corrupt the body, mind and spirit. You must become Jesus and allow Jesus to teach you and the world in action. The natural physics of Jesus is Love love first and use the laws of love to yourself and the worlds around you. The laws are the 10 commandments and forgiveness, understanding, wisdom, fortitude, charity, pity. These are the laws of love. We care all gods children and we are all equal from birth. Allowing yourself to judge who and how much you or another deserves is defeating what love is and teaching the world to judge. Though shall not judge in a world of false teachings. We must all understand that given the right set of circumstances anyone is capable of anything and circumstances occur when we fail to be love. If you are reading this writing commit having the church of love inside to being a second coming and teach 3 to be a second coming that finds three. And Jesus will forever be in your world and every world that you come in contact with including the world we live it. Be a teacher to yourself and others in the laws of love. Because that is what Jesus is Love and the example of love. The beast in the bible has 5 crowns or heads representing the nations of the mind that war with the truth and false love or false knowledge. Be the teacher...

Brain vs Society

There is a pathology with the individual brain and society. Society will produce dominant markers into the pathological mind of societies or cities landscape and then mirror it back into the individuals mind. Example: Liqueur stores market addictive products to sell for profit. The mind is a mirror to the soul and it is also a reflection that supports the illusions of guilt, judgments, anxiety , personalities, and depressive disorders. This is a planting of what the majority will index finger or point and forge into the reality of a society.

Then use the imposable thumb to impose the Planting of Weeds in the land of society and the seed of a thorn that grows into a weed in the mind, You visit the thorn and it grows into a weed. And you blame your self and others as well as your environment of weeds. You eat more thorns and they grow into weeds. See the mirroring or replications that takes place in the child's mind because of the society mind or landscape?

The Index finger is how we point to things we like or dislike. The dominant likes of immoral false knowledge that are in a society will heart desires access to a relationship with the desires that stimulates a pathological reasoning to the reward center in the mind. It is the bad habits of a societies mind that creates the bad habits of the individuals child minds into a broad spectrum of perversions. Much like darkness leading away from the treasures in the heavens of truth and love and the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. It works like a Doppler effect. The Doppler effect is a law that will change the frequency of the light from the color red for things leading away from you and blue for the heavenly blessings that lead to you.

So what do you do with that perception to clean it up? You flip the coin in your priceless head. You bring on your red and feed them with blue. You put out the red fire of hearts desires with the blue water of life. Again see how you cleans the child mind and the reasons given by the society landscape? It mirrors.

Good or bad the rainbow of light is a vast spectrum that can lead you to a spectrum of replications and attractions. Attractions unite the minds and replications divide into specific colors of false love and the disease of hearts desires produces both.

It results in many symptoms of a society that transfers the symptoms back into the child mind in the form of a disease. Example: The addictions to cigarettes drugs or alcohol. It always starts as a gateway by society. Always! Love trumps Hearts desires every time and it the practitioner to defending or curing many illnesses effecting our society. Instead of allowing them to poison our children. Remember - The pains and guilts of making poor decisions will produce an emotion from the heart of conscious that speaks to the mind and warns you of a harm in progress.

You then produce an illness of self punishments because you do not understand the light. The laws of light is the secret hand shake that allows correct communications with the brain to the heart that is always speaking the truth in defense of the light of your life. Now self punishments will mirror back into a society in the form of persecutions. And both the society and the individuals in a society will produce, support and strengthen many of the pathological diseases mentioned above into a dominant marker. The systematic dominant memory markers of both the society and the mind are then reflected back into reality. Prison systems only persecute to save money on proper corrections,. I call it revolving door justice. Every jail and prison should have paths of love in place before and throughout society's development.

One hour to the correction curriculum Monday - Friday that increases in understanding in the disciplines of the universal laws of love and human will. Love for yourself and others is the natural healthy path. Placing the pathological foundation for governing self control of thoughts, feelings and actions. The trinity of self control. Before the system of hearts desires has a chance to wire the brain paths and therefore the life into a bad habits of false loves.

1st law.

The laws of love must be in front of all other laws, actions and corrections.

Society is a replicate of the minds of dominance. We do this to get along. But it is a false belief. You the individual is like a neuron that travels to and from the dominant locations in your society and the relationships are like memory cells that are in our society. Likes and dislikes. Emotions of self and the relationships to the emotions of others.

The relationships to what you see, hear, think and feel coupled with your actions vs the relationships to what they see, hear, think and feel coupled with their actions. And all the neurons as people travel a path to their unique likes and dislikes that will develop many true or false markers and then create a replication that occurs in a true or false perception in the dark or light that severs communication at the synaptic pathways. Synaptic pathways is where you share. In other words you do not communicate with the handshake. Open your hand and take the hands of others in spirit. Be aware and share truthfully.

These synaptic pathways are between our people in society that are failing or wedding to transfer and communicate or produce healthy information in the form of the loving handshake or divorce in a pathological disease .The divorce blocks all the minds and gives all a form of attention deficit disorder. The first symptom it produces is a false perception of a individuals mind to other persons or neurons into the body of societies whole mind. Keep this philosophy in mind the next time you either hear or are about to repeat false knowledge. Because false knowledge is a greater crime than ignorance.

In ancient Greece (469 - 399 BC), Socrates was widely lauded for his wisdom. One day the great philosopher came upon an acquaintance who ran up to him excitedly and said, "Socrates, do you know what I just heard about one of your students?"

Socrates"Wait a moment," Socrates replied. "Before you tell me, I'd like you to pass a little test. It's called the Test of Three."

"Three?"

“That’s right, Socrates continued. “Before you talk to me about my student let’s take a moment to test what you’re going to say. The first test is Truth. Have you made absolutely sure that what you are about to tell me is true?”

No,” the man said, “actually I just heard about it.”
“All right,” said Socrates. “So you don’t really know if it’s True or not.”

“Now let’s try the second test, the test of Goodness. Is what you are about to tell me about my student something good?”

“No, on the contrary...”

“So,” Socrates continued, “you want to tell me something bad about him even though you’re not certain it’s true?”
The man shrugged, a little embarrassed.

Socrates continued. “You may still pass though, because there is a third test - the filter of Usefulness. Is what you want to tell me about my student going to be Useful to me?”

“No, not really...”

“Well,” concluded Socrates, “if what you want to tell me is neither True nor Good nor even Useful, why tell it to me at all?”

” The man was defeated and ashamed. This was the reason Socrates was a great philosopher and held in such high esteem.

The first sin is a false perception in self that leads to the second sin of judging others at first glance. This is because we are strangers in fears or judgments that are in our minds eye and perceptions fail to use the loving handshake.

The result is a false perception of all the above in a systemic disease which forms the third sin resulting in the false action, lie or false knowledge. You first lie in false knowledge of the perception in self. So the pathology to practitioner the disease is, “Thou Shalt Not Judge” and stay in the true visible light spectrum of Love that leads you like a lucky leprechaun into your perceptions to the true treasures of the pot of gold.

Which allows you to see that the true visible light spectrum in the colorful rainbow of the light in life. Making life joyfully colorful when you see your own perception as a unique color in the true spectrum of visible light and it also replicates in you to see that every human has their own unique spectrum in the colors of the rainbow and it will begin to look like worlds of different colorful perceptions.

Mt. Ararat is the mountain mentioned in Genesis 8. It is the mountain where Noah’s ark landed and Noah saw the rainbow of God's promise. Noah and his family came out of the ark and made offerings and praised God. God promised never to destroy the earth with a flood of that magnitude again.

If Jesus is in the Hearts of Man and also God. The first commandment signifies the result of first sin. False Perceptions so the law is Love yourself in Lord Jesus Christ and God. (1. Love no other God. I am the "LORD" thy God.) Loving your Lord Jesus Christ, our God and yourself allows you to see the triangle to seek in the light the pupil and teacher in the laws of love. The Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit is the thread that sews.

If Jesus is in the hearts of man and also the only God and Lord. Then the second commandment also signifies the second sin. False Gods that rule over your perceptions. Like an idol of self (A Demigod) or the Idol of a belief that rules and misdirects your sight into a dark perception that distorts your kingdom of reality. Removing the light in your perceptions to see others. (2. No other gods before me.).

If Jesus is in the Hearts of Man and also the only God. Then the third commandment signifies the third sin. False Knowledge or False Beliefs. (No graven images or likenesses.) This results in the delivery of false images of knowledge and the likenesses entering the reality that can dominate the memories of you, others and the society mind. Damaging the perceptions of reality and numbing the Love into Hearts Desires. Heart Desires are a destructive substitute teacher with the classroom of every experience. A school of hard knocks.

Every experience is food to be treasured in the mind, body and spirit. And the darkness blinds your treasured pursuit that every human desires most of all. To be loved and self loved in the treasured memories. And your life becomes a treasure chest. The cure for the pathology allows you to see the kingdom of heaven in the gift of a heart that creation bestowed upon every human being, "On earth as it is in the heavens" So I argue that Jesus and God are here on earth in the Heavens and Jesus speaks truth in the heart of every man. While the God of all knowledge speaks in the Body of all Creation. And the laws of the light join the two or more through the Holy Spirit forming The Spirit of life is the small groups of natural physics of the laws of love that tether the communication into an order of understanding. The Secret Handshake that brings chaos into order. Love conquers all.

True knowledge and words also hold a fractal treasure and replication of reality. False Knowledge and false words are corruption. The king of all thieves. Our streets are like arteries and neuron pathways that supply all the child minds and the mind of societies land with dominant locations or hubs of information that transfers when we gather our thoughts and interact. This interaction either tethers the secret handshake in truth. Or interrupts the transfers of truth creating. A break in communication. It can be either treasured or harmfully rejected.

The mind of humans also replicates the same systems of knowledge into society. And a emotional attachment to a dominant focus in the world will replicate it's dominance into your mind and others. And the greed and glutton for anything will create the dominance in our reality. Always listen to the hearts emotions they speak truth always. It is like the safety conscious guides of a road or hwy. The stitching of dotted lines tell you if it is safe to pass. You already protect and care for yourselves in so many ways. You must wash your society. Putting 10% into your society can make all the difference in the world. It creates a more loving environment. And Love unconditional washes the body of all worlds in reality in the Wedding Dance.

What is Wrong with America.

America is in trouble. At 54 years of age, I've lived long enough to learn that neither the Democrats nor the Republicans can turn this country around; no political party or politician is the answer. The only hope for this country is Almighty God and His Son Jesus Christ. I want to challenge Christians to boldly live out their faith and to pray into action for our nation, ideals and its leaders. I want to encourage Christians to get out in your local areas and participate, uphold and promote biblical principles of life. I want to strongly urge Christians to run for public office at every level—local, state, and federal. To infiltrate with morality.

Taxpayers, entrepreneurs, and everyday citizens suffer when the government bestows privileges like monopoly status, subsidies, bailouts, loan guarantees, and targeted tax breaks on particular firms or industries. For decades government-granted privileges misdirect resources, impede genuine economic progress, breed corruption, and undermine the legitimacy of both the government and the private sector.

I am going to use the relationships with Media Sex, Corps, Business, Food Industry, Medical Industry, RX Drugs, Heroin , Methamphetamine, Cocaine and all the disgusting addictions with America greed and glutton that crush the Children of America and The Children of God.

Like God and family of America that we all treasured and abandoned. The same words in our bible that says. The Child Is Held Most High in the Kingdom of the Heavens. We all know that the American Government is striping away Gods Relationship to address the freedom of religions and the freedoms of capitalism. We all know this to be true in the hearts of our conscious and a deep fear of our morality. It is also a scape goat that eats everything in the dirty handshake of immoral capitalism.

We also fear mortality of death that requires a belief system that there is something beyond death. Mortality rates, or death rates, is a measure of the number of deaths in a particular population, scaled to the size of that population, per unit of time. And we all have a spirituality embedded deep inside our human body and psyche of our own creation. And if there is one creation, one light, one spirituality, one truth and one body then you are very much like the fingertips of creation. Which proves we are all one in creation. And therefore there is only one God. The God of Creation. And the proof is we all have a deep relationship with protecting the innocence. We are also the most advanced form of energy to date on this third rock from the sun.

Why protect the innocents in anyone?? Because we all have an inner child that knows the innocence that we had but lost in the battle of human maturity. What is Maturity in the heart of man? Because we have to be predatory to fill our needs for our family.

(A true man is a man whom can love even when he thinks it is impossible. Predatory is selfish and you may think its the easy way out, but think about it? It doesn't make it easy for yourself and others now does it?)

And why do we have to be predatory in the needs of a human? Because life of a independent human has to fulfill his needs in ever ending difficult pursuit of joy and happiness. And a man has to eat.

(The cycle of a human comes from an animal that has to be a predator and also has to have a flight response to protect its self from larger predators).

Why is it difficult? Because of our environments in a hard treading of life that desires a healthy and efficient relationship to be free. Free from death with our belief system, Free to make our own logical decisions, freedom to defend the U.S. Declaration of Independence states: "We The People" hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal and endowed by their "Creator" with certain unalienable rights including life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." And if creation created you then there is only one creator called the God of creation.

And you are all gods fingertips. And why are you gods fingertips? Because there is a root saying and teaching that says "God helps those whom help themselves" What it says in wisdom is that you are light and your duty is help your relationships to tether your light into all the light of creation to assist God in helping his children.

When you look at the truth I am presenting to you and understand how God uses unconditional love of his spirit and light. It proves that you are all innocent of the damages that hurt and distort your mustard seed called faith. So just a little effort like a mustard seed compared to your treading a mountain of problems makes everyone of you a hero when you defend the family of humanity.

If you journey through time and all the civilizations you will see that an empire has always governed the masses. And we all know that humanity has war throughout time. And it has always conquered their knowledge to control through intimidation.

Now imagine this. We live in a time of light. We have everything that is needed to change the course of history leading all the way back to the caveman. And all it takes is to use the truth in your hearts, minds and bodies to spread the light of the mustard seed of truth. Faith that love and truth prevails.

Definition of (Pre·vail)

Prove more powerful than opposing forces; be victorious.

“It is hard for logic to prevail over emotion”

Synonyms: win, win out/through, triumph, be victorious, carry the day, come out on top, succeed, prove superior, conquer, overcome; rule, reign

“Common sense will prevail”

Be widespread in a particular area at a particular time; be current.

“An atmosphere of crisis prevails”

Synonyms: exist, be in existence, be present, be the case, occur, be prevalent, be current, be the order of the day, be customary, be common, be widespread, be in force/effect; formal-obtain

“The conditions that prevailed in the 1950s”

Current, existing, prevalent, usual, common, general, widespread “Prevailing attitudes”

Persuade (someone) to do something.

“She was prevailed upon to give an account of her work”

Synonyms: persuade, induce, coax, convince, get, urge, pressure, coerce; informal sweet-talk, soft-soap

“They prevailed upon me to emcee their charity affair”)

Why is the mustard seed so relevant? The weed we call the mustard plant has a small seed that is throughout the world. It has climbed every valley and every mountain. (That is a plant that managed to do that) And you are all a mustard seed of faith that has done the same. So I just proved how strong humanity is. You are all light tethered together to penetrate the environments of the dark into truth, wisdom and understanding with God's Unconditional Love that you were gifted with a heart of love to help yourselves and others as God helps himself through the light in the son of Man.

So guess what? You are all Jesus Christ in the heart of conscious and you are all in the light of the holy spirit probing Gods creation. Your spirit is light and when you shine the truth on the target of Hypocrisy is shames their conscious and exposes them.

Imagine you tell a lie that harms so much because your in the dark. And light comes to bare the truth. What do you naturally feel? Guilt. What is the guilt of a leader going to do when it speaks truth of what the family needs but uses the truth to feed himself? Two things will happen. Divorce the family or Man UP in fear of being in your own light.

Now this either kicks them off the thrown or it touches their hearts to live up to their words. Why are words so important? Because they are the light and understanding that brings knowledge into wisdom.

Examine time with words and see that they are Everything! If words are everything. Then there is a natural law that dictates “Everything effects everything else so nothing is entirely your fault” So here is your proof that you are all tethered and innocent of owning it. So stop beating yourselves out of perceptions and beat the light of truth on the heads of hypocrisy. They say anyone is capable of doing anything given the right set of circumstances in their lives

Let them know that you are aware. And your light will penetrate the same perceptions that distorted our leaders. It is our responsibility to counsel our family. Even when we know and feel that they are feasting out on greed and false knowledge.

So forgive them because we all bowed down to the thrown and muscled it into our environment. Look how hard you muscle to tread? Look how strong you really are. Major push ups to live in a light that created you.(So let me ask all of you something and look through the mad hatter of time in humanity. Are you a major and very impressive mustard seed of faith ? Absolutely YES!

Can you see the friction it creates throughout? It is called Infrared wavelengths like a Doppler effect moving you away from the kingdom? See the seed of faith and love that either stays cool in the white light that changes the Blues in treading but when you fail to use your light of Forgiveness, Knowledge and Understanding in Unconditional Love for yourself and others it builds heat and coals through out the kingdom of the inside world of your mind and the outside world? (You know the red light does and the blue light dissipates the heat like a Doppler effect) Why? Because light traveling away from your perception in the heavens above appears Red. And it has a time line that makes a red ribbon that travels away from you. Like Faith vs Judgments. Also imagine infrared light bulbs used to heat your body, or food, or to hatch an egg without warming up the atmosphere around it. It goes to the surface and radiates it.

Now if your tethered to the world and you take control of the light. You teach more than your country. You teach the world. (Now lets face the truth of just how much of the world respects us when we contemplate and complain about our problems on the Internet?) Does it appear to them that we have serious problems that most empires are facing themselves. And we are the greatest nation in the world?

What does the blue light do? It travels toward you and it is cool. It cools you down and it moves forward because of your light that keeps moving you forward in truth and innocence of false knowledge. Efficient So see how the light of creation moves forward in knowledge and understanding into wisdom. So hang on to your heat that makes you troopers and reflect it back as light understood. Stay Cool!

. And guess what we in humanity get to do? We get to sever and save the entire history of Human kind. Look at the possibilities to be the Real Greatest Nation in the World? Your all Gods power of light with a temple and a will when the churches unite into one kingdom you wed with creation the body of the God Head. The birth of Christ bears the true gifts of Christmas and as the light gifts you in knowledge and understanding. You unwrap the heavens into the world of Christ, God is like the Saint Nichols and he travels through time and space. He is the saint that travels in his sleigh ride of the heavens. Delivering the gifts of truth of Knowledge into Understanding and unwraps Wisdom.

I am going to show you again a real tree that is related to Christ the teacher. And I am the teacher of truth. So lets take sleigh ride through the universe of reality in the heavens that is perfect truth. Until it reaches mans perception.

Imagine no space and time. Neither here nor there and he travels to and from the beginning to the present and into the future. Present means the here and now. It is a gift because you are light moving forward from the gift of today. In hopes of tomorrow being better than the day before like the beginning to the present of your life gifted by creation. That is why they call it Present.

He travels through the wormholes of the black holes of every galaxy and spirals every factory of creation all the way back to the big bang. He has these little elves of creation in the forms of light that delivers his gifts to all the good little children of the earth.

Now take your best shot in your gifted imagination and pretend your larger than the universe. OK now your on the north pole of the universe and you now have the hand of God. Now take those beautiful fingers of creation and grab that black hole of the Big Bang and lift it up as high as you can. Don't forget the spiral he rides throughout all the spirals in everything of the heavens. Now look at it. It has garnish of light and Gold, Christmas lights of stars. Beautiful bulbs everywhere as planets, has angels of mercy and love for its family. It has beautiful gems of sapphires, ruby's diamonds, platinum, silver, quarts and thousands of gems that leads to billions of gems called humanity.

And the knowledge is wrapped in ribbons of Blue and Red light for you to unwrap and treasure life. And there is your true Christmas tree of true knowledge. That has been unwrapping gifts of knowledge into understanding for wisdom throughout the time and history of Gods Children looking up in contemplation of the light. And history substantiates it.

Every human is related throughout time and no one has discovered new lands and I can prove it. Its the bow and arrow, Look at the bow and arrow in history and in every location and time on the mother earth. So forget Columbus, forget the Spaniards and remember the Indians had bows and arrows and see how the red ribbon false knowledge disconnects the light of truth into vigilance.

Why vigilance? Because vigilance is misunderstood. Truth has vigilance that gives you wings. And the red ribbon heats a conscious and that means it has a broken wing that falls to the body and the world. But light understood opens both eyes. And truth says if you turn your backs and give it a blind eye while the other eye watches and learns, You can not see the wing you have. Now imagine turning your back to the left or the right. Like forks in the road. Can you see your other side? The good and the bad? And can you see how it breaks one of your wings and you fall and fail to see your guardian angel? Your conscious. And can you see how it breaks the wings of another and they fall and pray for a guardian angel? And can you see how it breaks the wings of government? So use your muscle and learn that you posses the knowledge of both the red light of false knowledge that leads the light away from heaven and blue light of true and good knowledge that leads to heaven in both our realities of the mind and the world we live in. And use the bad in understanding and wisdom of the truth in the lie to evolve into an angel of truth, mercy and vigilance.(An Exorcist Speaks His Mind · An Exorcist Tells His Story · Angel Stories ... as the measure of all truth and reality, and as the standard of all mo-

And the Conscious of our country is our Federal Government that has a filthy conscious attacking the small group of laws we all treasure in our hearts. Every human being has a deep thirst to have self love and receive love from others in sharing compassion. It is called unconditional love. Or give the lie a blind eye (“Cross my heart and hope to die, stick a needle in my eye for I do not lie”) The False Teacher is the True Criminal. And the highest crime against our humanity and should be recognized as a true enemy. Corruption is the King of Thieves. Difficult I know. But we have to make our beds with love and tough Love. Tough love is using love when it is tough. Unconditional love should be the backbone of life in our garden for America.

In world war 1 and 2 there was an empire called Germany. It had advanced technology that threatened the world of humanity and the government of God. The dominance of prejudice like we have here in our country against other countries and our own brothers and sisters of all colors is a pathological influence delivered into the conscious of America.

Germany grew in corruption of war weapons into world war 2. It had tiger tanks and jets that was a serious challenge. It forced us to mutate because it is a survival mechanism and adjustments were necessary to win the battle. Our will to defend against evil forced us to learn and progress for our survival. Drafting the citizenship of America into a calling to all arms. It was recognized as a holocaust. (We all know that we have a serious problem with judging races of colors)

Proof our leaders are the roots to prejudice to the black and Hispanic communities that truly built this country with their backbone while still clinging onto their hearts, minds and spirit in God. And still gave our nation the gifts of the nation of God. Like the music of the gospels, the strongest churches like the Christian and Catholics. Giving the nation of the red white and blue of the heart of rock and roll. And the heart of blessings in the holy water and the teachings of testimony.

Millions of Gods Children were tragically sacrificed in the battle. And they were recognized as the heroes of the world. But the empire of the government of America were at home safe and sound. EGO. Is an acronym which means to edge God = Love, OUT. Tyrants have a large EGO, which causes tyrants to follow a predictable brain pattern that causes the tyrant to tell lies, and censor freedom of speech, deny freedom of religion, and use Judges, and man-made laws, and court rooms, to take away other people’s equal human rights. Human equality without judgment is balance on the uncompromising fulcrum of humanity, which means that the death of the liar’s unequally human ego is the only recipe for peace.

They were a congressional establishment that was more interested in the dominance to control anything that will ever threaten their power ever again. The Hitler was a madman and he developed a molecular structure in the recipe called methamphetamine and he delivered it to his front lines to survive sleep deprivation and continue the fight. Now Hitler was also using methamphetamine and just about every FDR was a very devoted religious leader and devoted follower. He supported the development of everything from God on down to education, women in positions and the preservation of God and the backbone of the people of America. But a tragic mistake was made out of desperation to protect America like a father of family, The leaders of our country captured all the knowledge that Germany possesses and brought the tragic formulas back to America.

History of Heroin.

Heroin, which is a very popular drug of choice in the American drug culture today, is not a new drug that just showed up in the late 1960's, nor are its negative effects unique to modern times. Heroin is an opium derivative and, as with any of the opium derivatives, there is a severe physical/mental dependency that develops when Heroin is abused.

The Birth of the American Heroin Addict

In the mid to late 1800's, opium was a fairly popular drug. Opium dens were scattered throughout what we know today as the wild west. The opium influx during this period was due in large part to the drug being brought into the country via Chinese immigrants who came here to work on the railroads.

Accurate American history tells us that famous names of the period like Wild Bill Hickock and Kit Carson actually frequented opium dens more often than saloons. The stereo-typed picture we have of the cowhand belly up to the bar drinking whiskey straight after a long hard ride on the dusty trail is only part of the story of the old west. Oftentimes the cowhand was not belly up to a bar at all. He was in a prone position in a dim candle-lit room smoking opium in the company of an oriental prostitute. It was not uncommon for some of these cowhands to spend several days and nights at a time in these dens in a constant dream-state, eventually becoming physically addicted to the drug.

Nonetheless, it was true that alcoholism was a bigger problem. Alcoholism was one of the major sources of violence and death during this period. Eventually, however, opium was promoted as a cure for alcoholism by the late 1800's.

It was from opium that morphine, a derivative, was developed as a pain killer in approximately 1810. It was considered a wonder drug because it eliminated severe pain associated with medical operations or traumatic injuries. It left the user in a completely numb euphoric dream-state. Because of the intense euphoric side effects, the drug in 1811 was named after the Greek god of dreams, Morpheus, by Dr. F.W.A. Serturner, a German pharmacist. By the mid 1850's, morphine was available in the United States and became more and more popular with the medical profession. The benefits of using the drug to treat severe pain was considered nothing short of remarkable to doctors of the time. Unfortunately, the addictive properties of the drug, on the flip side, went virtually unnoticed until after the Civil War.

During the Civil War the numbers of people exposed to morphine in the course of being treated for their war-related injuries sky-rocketed. Tens of thousands of Northern and Confederate soldiers became morphine addicts.

In just over 10 years time from its arrival into this country, the United States was plagued with a major morphine epidemic. Even though no actual statistics were kept on addiction at this time, the problem had grown to large enough proportions to raise serious concerns from the medical profession. Doctors became perplexed and were completely in the dark as to how to treat this new epidemic.

By 1874 the answer to this increasing problem was thought to be found in the invention of a new drug in Germany. This new wonder drug was called Heroin, after its German trademarked name. Heroin was imported into the United States shortly after it was invented. The sales pitch that created an instant market to American doctors and their morphine addicted patients was that Heroin was a "safe, non-addictive" substitute for morphine.

Hence, the heroin addict was born and has been present in American culture ever since. Our own government is directly responsible for manufacturing addicts and for turning on a gene that can be passed on that effects tens of millions of Americans that makes them vulnerable to addictions

From the late 1800's to the early 1900's the reputable drug companies of the day began manufacturing over-the-counter drug kits. These kits contained a glass barreled hypodermic needle and vials of opiates (morphine or heroin) and/or cocaine packaged neatly in attractive engraved tin cases. Laudanum (opium in an alcohol base) was also a very popular elixir that was used to treat a variety of ills. Laudanum was administered to kids and adults alike - as freely as aspirin is used today.

There were of course marketing and advertising campaigns launched by the drug companies producing this product that touted these narcotics as the cure for all types of physical and mental ailments ranging from alcohol withdrawal to cancer, depression, sluggishness, coughs, colds, tuberculosis and even old age. Most of the elixirs pitched by the old "snake oil salesmen" in their medicine shows contained one or more of these narcotics in their mix.

Heroin, morphine and other opiate derivatives were unregulated and sold legally in the United States until 1920 when Congress recognized the danger of these drugs and enacted the Dangerous Drug Act. This new law made over-the-counter purchase of these drugs illegal and deemed that their distribution be federally regulated. By the time this law was passed, however, it was already too late. A market for heroin in the U.S. had been created. By 1925 there were an estimated 200,000 heroin addicts in the country. It was a market which would persist until this day.

Everyone uses Rx drugs because they are in desperate need of answers to health problems and wish to be healed. But the Pharmaceutical companies look for treating the symptoms and this is because their greed has consumed the pursuit and blinded the resources for healing. They are even against the education of Holistic Health Medicine into society because it is the best prevention for combating most diseases before they happen.

It is also directly connected to the food industry. The food we eat is poor in nutrients and just about every health problem and disease is directly related to a nutrient deficiency. Today's crops yield about half the nutrients a same crop back in the early 40's would have. This means it takes twice as much food today to get the same amount of nutrients of crops from the past. Our top soil is stripped of all its minerals. A plant takes the minerals and digests them or breaks them down into colloidal form. Colloidal is a mineral or even a solar system of minerals that are so small they can pass through glass. When viewed in an electron microscope you often see orbits of minerals. The plant also turns the polarity of the mineral from positive to negative. Positive polarity minerals repel the walls of the intestine and negative minerals attract to the wall of the intestine and because of size are readily absorbed. Plants are forged for this reason. Animals eat plants and are designed to absorb plant materials. Now if you do not get all the required minerals and vitamins what happens is you will develop a illness or disease directly related to the nutrient deficiency.

This sends you to the medical industry for treatments in order to heal but they only treat the symptoms and the illness or disease progresses requiring a monthly visit to the doctor. And as the disease progresses you are referred up the ladder into specialized treatments that consumes everything that your whole life has treasured to pay for the treatments. Add in pollutants and you can easily defile the body of creation. And we do every day.

They will not even allow the disability insurance to kick in until you are liquidated to the qualifying amount of $2000.00, One home and one car. They also know that treatments are payed for by the medical insurance corporations that are in business for profit. Your a commodity from birth and your premiums are enslaved for profits. The insurance industry inflates the prices along with the medical and pharmaceutical industries and breaks the banks of the government used to service non insured. The non insured are then abandoned into the cheapest treatments possible and they suffer the worst diseases and suffering. Often they will not even allow you to participate in the treatments in a bedside manner.

Now you have many addictions destroying this country and we are all responsible for the Sex addictions as well. Sex sells and your right to free speech allows for even the bad to infiltrate in the forms of pornography and fornication in bookstores, liqueur stores, magazines, media and the Internet. All for sale above the age of 18 years old and often below the age of 18. And free to any age with access to a computer and Internet. Note radio and media. Fornications, Drugs and Music depicting sex and drugs are often aired as top hits. This is called molestation! They are even freely promoting child porn.

We allow it to fester into your society. This is all our faults for allowing the spectrum of perversions to expose everyone. Now this spectrum is anywhere from not effecting you to feeding a ladder all the way up to a child molester or rapist and often drugs are present. Now its also even in your media and many movies depict many scenes with sex, drugs and rocking roll. You will see fornication and drugs in the same scenes. Elder adults will often expose a child to the perceptions when they experience sexual development that makes them very sensitive to the poison we spit out. It also creates a hate for the child molesters and our society is judging them to a death sentence. We know we hate the harm of a child yet our society molests them with all the above. So question: why do we want to hate, judgments, death persecutions to the ones we all diseased yet allow it as entertainment?

Every adult has a child heart inside that creates a boiling trouble for all and the worst of them all is a government that cashes in with the taxes of sales and pay from the businesses, judicial, jails, prisons systems, probation and parole systems of all the addictions that invest and infest your society

And our persecution systems are just that. Our persecutions are our own. Why? Because you refuse the most efficient healing possible. There is no dedicated curriculum of corrections yet they call them correctional facilities for the ones we all assist in being corrupted. Then they as well as your society and the supervision allows the inmates to govern themselves in a segregation of racism and instructions for the evolution of crimes. That gets released in a revolving door justice system with a advancing gladiator school of corruption that is allowed to be schooled into what you all say. "School of Hard Knocks" They are then released and crimes and corruptions infect everyone and also increase the expenses in policing, control measures and Big Brother.

Now this requires funding in the inflation are then returned back into your society and we allow the government to govern. Mix in all the financial institutions that have a artificial inflation into everything. And bankruptcy is directly related to the inflation's of our own taxation. And all our boiling trouble is responsible for a 20 trillion dollar debt that is being lent to us by foreign institutions that have interest rates as well. And your government and there friendly contractors collect a inflated price of greed for these services and unions. And the tax payer pays the debt.

Even the law enforcement has a mentality to protect their own while at the same time they know that they are governed by the judicial system. And they fester. Why do they fester? Because they have a human relation to family and they know just as well as society that things are contaminated.

They also get fed very well and receive special treatments of impunity. They are brain washed during cadet training and it numbs their perception of gods children by repetitive behavior modifications of the peers on both sides of the perceptions. They have a power trip of their brothers in arms and judgments supported by control. They also are reinforced by the allowed behaviors of the inmates. It creates a war of worlds that mirrors both into corruption. And corruption corrupts absolutely.

Nov 18, 2012 - Xenoestrogens are a type of xenohormone that imitates estrogen. People have long suspected that plastic water bottles were estrogen, Unfortunately we've become a nation of ignorance that believes the government.

And the USA corporations left our country for exploitation's of humans for cheap labor for what we call blessings. Yet how can you all call them blessings when it exploits them and us? And our government proves it dances with all the greed by protecting the shipping lanes with all the expensive war equipment and a constant supply of resources that are also inflated in every respect. These are private over seas corporations receiving protection from the worlds supper powers or empires. Not only do you struggle to obtain these blessings and it takes much of the true blessings that are your innocent children and angels to the grave as fallen angels.

And the textile industries are not only exploits of labor but it is also the worst polluter and plastics are catching up. Washington's culture of corruption and corporate impunity
<https://compliancecampaign.wordpress.com/>

Apr 1, 2013 - First there was the adoption on Tuesday of the so-called Monsanto Protection Act . open door corruption and culture of corporate impunity reached new lows last month as USA Today reported on March 26.

I am sorry for pulling the sheets on everyone but it is because I love you all unconditionally and have to tell the truth. Because Love Unconditional means to love the impossible. Otherwise its impossible?

So please trust in your love and be citizenship and make our beds!

The one you hate often doesn't ever know you hate them and while at the same time your failure to listen has festered into your experiences. Like many of our leaders It is a war of the worlds. It's a war. And wars have no winners in death. Forgive. Do the opposites of harm no matter what you hear inside or out that defeats forgiving. Remember forgiving sets you free from the demons you festered. They have no power if you do the opposites of harm. And eventually your tune will teach you how to listen and prevent harm to yourself or others. This is called Self Love it is exactly what emotions do. So listen if it is toxic don't eat it and eat the experience in truth in light and in the life of giving unconditional love. Even a lie is a truth to be understood.

Now I believe the fire of love is Armageddon and the light of truth that transforms all worlds into new worlds of understanding. Giving Jesus a second chance. Because we despise the river of blood that plagued all the dead of gods children throughout time and when we recognize it into truth we wake the dead and it rises into the heavens of Forgiveness, Knowledge and Understanding in Unconditional Love.

Even the Psalms describe the awesome might of Christ's return, showing that it is one of war and vengeance with great wrath. He is coming with power to set things straight.

“The Child is Held Most High in the Heavens”

Think of the biblical verse that says, you must be like a child to get into the kingdom of heaven.

It's Matthew 18:3 and Jesus says, “Assuredly, I say to you, unless you change and become as little children, you will by no means enter the kingdom of heaven.”

It was at this memorial service, the “minister” began to share with those in attendance stories of what the dearly departed was doing ...

... She was at one with the universe, her spirit smiling down on us, zooming to and fro in her new intergalactic BMW, having “morphed” into some kind of energy field.

I so wanted to ask the minister if she, herself, took the train to the other side often, seeing as how she knew intimately about the dearly departed's comings and goings.

Thankfully, God is everywhere, if we just look around us. In the midst of the minister's grand plaudits and storytelling, there, on a stage surrounded by white lilies, stood a photograph of the deceased as a teenager.

The photograph stood out in contrast to the person's advanced age and crippling infirmities at death. It was a sweet, innocent photo of a beautiful girl from a more innocent time.

And it dawned on me. Of course, God wants us to come before Him as children, because children are innocent, and trust with a pure, uncorrupted heart.

What Does it Mean to Go Before God as a Child
To go before God as a child is to go before God stripped of our sins and doubts, full of wide-eyed inspiration that comes from total faith.

Is God going to be there when I need Him? A child would say, “Yes!”

To go before God as a child is to expect awe-inspiring greatness.

Let’s visit Matthew 18:3 again.

Jesus said, unless you change and become like a child. Webster’s dictionary describes “childlike” as “becoming a child; meek; submissive; dutiful.”

“Assuredly, I say to you, unless you change and become as little children, you will by no means enter the kingdom of heaven.”

God seeks a childlike submissiveness and meekness, a gleeful childlike heart ... and a childlike faith.

Faith builds character, and the process starts when you are a child. Without faith, we cannot please God.

“And without faith it is impossible to please him, for whoever would draw near to God must believe that he exists and that he rewards those who seek him.” (Hebrews 11:6)
Adults have a tendency to become cynical with age, while a child has yet to be touched by the concerns of the world.

Think of the world as a big arena. We are in it to run “life’s race” for and with God.

But the older we get, the more “hurdles of doubts and concerns” we tend to place in front of us.

These hurdles slow us down, knock us off stride, or make us give up completely in what should be a growing relationship with God.

Whereas an adult is more likely to give up the race, a child sees the prize at the finish line.

As you near the end of your adult life, can you look forward as a child and say, as Paul did in 2 Timothy 4:7:

“I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith.”

Children don't have adult hurdles in their race with God.

Childlike faith, along with childlike love, are an open road to God's heart.

What Qualities Does a Child Have?

A child is innocent.

A child is trusting.

A child believes without complication.

A child has not had time to allow the preconceived notions of the world to form his decision-making process.

A child receives with joy, forgetting herself with light-hearted abandonment.

A child is humble.

A child is content in the little things.

A child has the faith to move mountains.

A child is awed by majestic splendor.

A child takes to heart God's Word in all its simplicity.

Think of God and the child as one would a child with his parents.

Children, full of innocence, come to their loving father and mother, trusting them to completely take care of them, to protect them, to provide for them, to correct them when they are wrong, and to love and cherish them.

Jesus is telling us that we need to have this type of trust and faith in the Father. After all, we are His children. We should be able to come to him fully trusting, without a doubt, that He loves us and cares for us.

Jesus said, "Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder them, for the kingdom of heaven belongs to such as these." (Matthew 19:14)

God reminds us in His Word that we are indeed his children.

"See what great love the Father has lavished on us, that we should be called children of God! And that is what we are! The reason the world does not know us is that it did not know him. (1 John 3:1)

Like a child, we should come before the Father, fully trusting in His Word, fully engaged in His Spirit, fully open to His love and His commandments.

Be changed. Repent and leave your baggage at God's doorstep.

Then you can come before your wonderful God, arms and hearts wide open, loving and trusting as a child

Addicted Nation

The nation is at risk. From the late 1800's to the mid 1900's millions of Gods Children were exposed to drugs for recreational, medical, and the pathological reasoning that drugs cause to the mind. Our past medical systems and society are responsible for millions to turn on a gene that gets passed on to offspring. Our government is directly responsible for millions being born with a gene receptor in DNA that makes some susceptible to many addictions facing America today. On top of this is a mountain of graves and persecutions of being addicted by our local and federal institutions whom allow such businesses in the landscape are the root to many addictions. Millions are blamed for having the addictions creating a false guilt when in reality they are innocent. Yet judicial systems fill there jails and collect on fines and fail to take responsibility for exposing all Americans to such addictions.

Even today our nation will not take responsibility for the exposures to addictive elements of the society. Today's RX, Tobacco, gambling, sex in radio and media to any negative (False Knowledge) addictive properties are seeded perversions in our society's landscape.

Many businesses are counting on the addictive nature of what they market. Some of these in the kingdoms landscape are businesses that use Cigarettes, casinos to pornography to addict the children of god. Called Immoral Capitalism. Murder for profit! (See What is wrong with America Page 112)

Drugs and the Brain

Introducing the Human Brain

During the mid 1800's to present our government and businesses has addicted hundreds of millions of Americans and the gene is transferred to offspring with the gene ON making them highly vulnerable to an addicted life style and yet millions are judged and convicted into Jails or Prisons.

Businesses, Judicial and government then cash in the human bodies that have the gene ON. And they were the offspring's that were forced into using to push the workers into it to work longer.

So the addict was developed by the above, only to be persecuted by them on the other end of the game.

No American with the gene ON should never ever be victimized by the judicial for persecutions!

The human brain is the most complex technology and organ in the body. This three-pound mass of gray and white matter sits at the center of all human activity—you need it to drive a car, to enjoy a meal, to breathe, to create an artistic masterpiece, and to enjoy everyday activities. In brief, the brain regulates your body's basic functions; enables you to interpret and respond to everything you experience; and shapes your thoughts, emotions, and behavior.

The brain is made up of many parts that all work together as a team. Different parts of the brain are responsible for coordinating and performing specific functions. Drugs can alter important brain areas that are necessary for life-sustaining functions and can drive the compulsive drug abuse that marks addiction. Brain areas affected by drug abuse include: Brain diagram showing the limbic system, the brain stem and the prefrontal cortex.

The brain stem, which controls basic functions critical to life, such as heart rate, breathing, and sleeping. The cerebral cortex, which is divided into areas that control specific functions. Different areas process information from our senses, enabling us to see, feel, hear, and taste. The front part of the cortex, the frontal cortex or fore brain, is the thinking center of the brain; it powers our ability to think, plan, solve problems, and make decisions.

The limbic system, which contains the brain's reward circuit. It links together a number of brain structures that control and regulate our ability to feel pleasure. Feeling pleasure motivates us to repeat behaviors that are critical to our existence. The limbic system is activated by healthy, life-sustaining activities such as eating and socializing—but it is also activated by drugs of abuse. In addition, the limbic system is responsible for our perception of other emotions, both positive and negative, which explains the mood-altering properties of many drugs.

How do the parts of the brain communicate?

The brain is a communications center consisting of billions of neurons, or nerve cells. Networks of neurons pass messages back and forth among different structures within the brain, the spinal cord, and nerves in the rest of the body (the peripheral nervous system). These nerve networks coordinate and regulate everything we feel, think, and do.

Neuron to Neuron

Each nerve cell in the brain sends and receives messages in the form of electrical and chemical signals. Once a cell receives and processes a message, it sends it on to other neurons.

Neurotransmitters - The Brain's Chemical Messengers

Receptors - The Brain's Chemical Receivers

The neurotransmitter attaches to a specialized site on the receiving neuron called a receptor. A neurotransmitter and its receptor operate like a “key and lock,” an exquisitely specific mechanism that ensures that each receptor will forward the appropriate message only after interacting with the right kind of neurotransmitter.

Transporters - The Brain's Chemical Recyclers

Located on the neuron that releases the neurotransmitter, transporters recycle these neurotransmitters (that is, bring them back into the neuron that released them), thereby shutting off the signal between neurons.

Concept courtesy: B.K. Madras

How the brain communicates diagram above

To send a message, a brain cell (neuron) releases a chemical (neurotransmitter) into the space (synapse) between it and the next cell. The neurotransmitter crosses the synapse and attaches to proteins (receptors) on the receiving brain cell. This causes changes in the receiving cell—the message is delivered.

How do drugs work in the brain?

Drugs are chemicals that affect the brain by tapping into its communication system and interfering with the way neurons normally send, receive, and process information. Some drugs, such as marijuana and heroin, can activate neurons because their chemical structure mimics that of a natural neurotransmitter. This similarity in structure “fools” receptors and allows the drugs to attach onto and activate the neurons. Although these drugs mimic the brain's own chemicals, they don't activate neurons in the same way as a natural neurotransmitter, and they lead to abnormal messages being transmitted through the network.

Other drugs, such as amphetamine or cocaine, can cause the neurons to release abnormally large amounts of natural neurotransmitters or prevent the normal recycling of these brain chemicals. This disruption produces a greatly amplified message, ultimately disrupting communication channels.

How do drugs work in the brain to produce pleasure?

Most drugs of abuse directly or indirectly target the brain's reward system by flooding the circuit with dopamine. Dopamine is a neurotransmitter present in regions of the brain that regulate movement, emotion, motivation, and feelings of pleasure. When activated at normal levels, this system rewards our natural behaviors. Overstimulating the system with drugs, however, produces euphoric effects, which strongly reinforce the behavior of drug use—teaching the user to repeat it.

Most drugs of abuse target the brain's reward system by flooding it with dopamine.

Image Displays how drugs of abuse target the brain's reward system by flooding the circuit with dopamine.

How does stimulation of the brain's pleasure circuit teach us to keep taking drugs?

Our brains are wired to ensure that we will repeat life-sustaining activities by associating those activities with pleasure or reward. Whenever this reward circuit is activated, the brain notes that something important is happening that needs to be remembered, and teaches us to do it again and again without thinking about it. Because drugs of abuse stimulate the same circuit, we learn to abuse drugs in the same way.

Why are drugs more addictive than natural rewards?

When some drugs of abuse are taken, they can release 2 to 10 times the amount of dopamine that natural rewards such as eating and sex do. In some cases, this occurs almost immediately (as when drugs are smoked or injected), and the effects can last much longer than those produced by natural rewards. The resulting effects on the brain's pleasure circuit dwarf those produced by naturally rewarding behaviors. The effect of such a powerful reward strongly motivates people to take drugs again and again. This is why scientists sometimes say that drug abuse is something we learn to do very, very well.

Long-term drug abuse impairs brain functioning.
What happens to your brain if you keep taking drugs?

For the brain, the difference between normal rewards and drug rewards can be described as the difference between someone whispering into your ear and someone shouting into a microphone. Just as we turn down the volume on a radio that is too loud, the brain adjusts to the overwhelming surges in dopamine (and other neurotransmitters) by producing less dopamine or by reducing the number of receptors that can receive signals. As a result, dopamine impact on the reward circuit of the brain of someone who abuses drugs can become abnormally low, and that person's ability to experience any pleasure is reduced.

This is why a person who abuses drugs eventually feels flat, lifeless, and depressed, and is unable to enjoy things that were previously pleasurable. Now, the person needs to keep taking drugs again and again just to try and bring his or her dopamine function back up to normal—which only makes the problem worse, like a vicious cycle. Also, the person will often need to take larger amounts of the drug to produce the familiar dopamine high—an effect known as tolerance. Decreased Dopamine Transporters in a Methamphetamine Abuser is 18

Two brain scans. The first scan shows a healthy brain. The second scan shows decreased dopamine transporters in the brain of a drug abuser

How does long-term drug taking affect brain circuits?

We know that the same sort of mechanisms involved in the development of tolerance can eventually lead to profound changes in neurons and brain circuits, with the potential to severely compromise the long-term health of the brain. For example, glutamate is another neurotransmitter that influences the reward circuit and the ability to learn. When the optimal concentration of glutamate is altered by drug abuse, the brain attempts to compensate for this change, which can cause impairment in cognitive function. Similarly, long-term drug abuse can trigger adaptations in habit or non-conscious memory systems. Conditioning is one example of this type of learning, in which cues in a person's daily routine or environment become associated with the drug experience and can trigger uncontrollable cravings whenever the person is exposed to these cues, even if the drug itself is not available.

This learned “reflex” is extremely durable and can affect a person who once used drugs even after many years of abstinence.

What other brain changes occur with abuse?

Chronic exposure to drugs of abuse disrupts the way critical brain structures interact to control and inhibit behaviors related to drug use. Just as continued abuse may lead to tolerance or the need for higher drug dosages to produce an effect, it may also lead to addiction, which can drive a user to seek out and take drugs compulsively. Drug addiction erodes a person’s self-control and ability to make sound decisions, while producing intense impulses to take drugs.

The Pathological Mind

Some live in fear of others or carry great painful memories of harm or guilt and require an instruction of Love in how to walk.

The walk must be taught simply. Taught gently. Taught calmly.

And most of all with a forgiving correction of the instructions of love.

Love understood for self and others must become the dominant path for reasoning.

This requires many to have to rewire the paths of the brain, feelings and behaviors effecting decisions from fear based results or false love through hearts desires.

Everything human is pathological.

Even the brain and the behaviors seen and hidden only in our thoughts and feelings are pathological.

The individual path or the paths of a family or entire nation is all pathological. The way we live is very much pathological and we are addicted to our freedom to access our hearts desires in so many ways causing great concerns and fear based controls in the form of over 80,000 laws nationwide.

All pathological.

Another word for pathology is disease.

A good pathologist is a person whom can put themselves into the shoes of the disease and understand it and then correct it. So the best way to protect us from the pathological environment is to keep our hearts and minds open. Be aware of it. Understand how it is all connected and leads to the petty rewards of our hearts desires and false teachings as well as for profit and demand.

Before you know it your whole world revolves around your hearts desires with no true understanding of the false knowledge created to achieve the desire. And the behaviors demand instant gratification of desires because you are rewarded in the reward center of your mind. But not in life because it is a false love.

Sound familiar?

It is called “Addicted Nation”

Example: Lets say you have a job and it requires you to learn a presentation, use it and the buyer must pay to be rewarded with buyers pay.

Lets say this is the correct paths to your pay. The healthy paths of the “good habit of love” are to be exercised and made strong and dominate by the regular activity of the paths of good habits that lead you into achieving the reward of pay that also adds stimulation the reward center of your brain with a job well done. And all the paths that it requires to achieve the pay are made strong through the regular good habit of using them. All the paths required for reward are doing push ups regularly and made strong in the good habitual paths being used and leading to the reward center of the brain. Result is Good Work Habits.

Now lets say you want the pay achieved to be rewarded to you through your “hearts desire of pay” instead of “love of pay above” and you use false knowledge and love to present the sale that will ease the paths necessary to achieve the reward of pay. You may get the reward of the pay but you will also be stripped of good ringing the reward center of the brain.

What really is happening in the brain is that the normal true paths of “love for pay” are not used and the now shorter “false love” paths of the brain are used instead. The easy way through often is not. It Leads to the reward center of the brain with pay without good works by the will of God. See how the ability to love is a gift? And see how he built himself into the conscious of His gift to all the children?

Now if you do this often enough in succession the normal healthy love paths in your brain to achieve the reward center and pay through good are not used and become weak.

While the unhealthy shorter false love paths to the reward center of the brain are firing, doing push ups and become the strong, dominate synaptic pathways for pay but robbed by the Fallen Angel of corruption.

Result is the shorter unhealthy paths become strong and dominate and a bad habit is now formed into the reward center of the brain and life for pay. This is why they say “Old Habits Are Hard To Break” Because the reward center of the brain “addicted” you into the bad habitual path. Were kids in a candy store with no government of self control. And our brains are getting wired and addicted to instant gratifications of the short paths leading to our minds reward center and not our lives. With the hearts desires that treat you and other lives falsely in false love to achieve the reward of the candies.

Understand that hearts desires are often not love but greed or a glutton of addictions for anything. Another word to describe greed is glutton. It is greedy for its hearts desires. The biggest impact will always be in our ability to discern love from hearts desires. And teach the laws of love governs the heart and mind away from the destructive paths of hearts desires.

Laws of Love and human will is the pathology for living with a disease of our pathological mind protecting us from false love, false beliefs and creating lies as false knowledge in the our reality and the reality of others.

Love is the fountain of laws and youth of your inner child for keeping the mind strong and clean. It is a walk. A path. A discipline that must be taught as such. So that it is the foundation for life’s experiences.

To love your youth of humanity and we all have a child inside.

You must infuse it into the society’s education system, jails and prisons to prevent recidivism. Start from the bottom up. Plant the seeds and water them in the light.

The biggest impact would be to change the pathology that governs the childish minds of human will into false love. Put the paths of love in place before and throughout society's development. K through 12 one more hour to the curriculum in public education that increases in understanding in the disciplines of the universal laws of love and human will.

Love for yourself and others is the natural healthy path. Placing the pathological foundation for governing self control of thoughts, feelings and actions. Before the system of hearts desires has a chance to wire the brain paths and therefore the life into a bad habit of false love.

1st law.

The laws of love must be in front of all other laws, actions and corrections.

This society is currently teaching every heart the lessons and paths of hearts desires and very little to nothing in the lessons and disciplines of love and human will. The child must come first or you will cry like a child inside for not loving yourself.

And that is why it is baby back stabbing to not teach and use love.

We must take the “universal” understanding, teachings and laws of love and human will to the streets. We have to. We have way to many broken families and children raising children and society often being a parent or elder do not teach the path of love for self control. It is that everyone is wired wrong to some degree. I know it is.

One big pathological teachings of hearts desires and the decision making processes that it takes to achieve them. And have you ever questioned why Love is not taught to all?

Our pathological ways of living. Habitual by nature. Were creatures of habit. We are designed to create loving good habits. Hearts desires creates false bad habits. Habits need to be fulfilled and you pay for them. This is also why everything that has to do with living is charged to the limit. Greed for your glutton.

Understand that every last straw of knowledge you have in your hay stack of a brain is also stacked by your pathological road map and much of it is taught from your society's environment or pathological way of life and then stacked. Your likes and dislikes. Your dominant memories. Your numbness. Your fantasies. Your imaginations, greatest fears. Your sadness and happiness.

It is all pathological! And your pathological brain and belief system tags the memory as a dominant fear, like, love, good, hate, or harm associated with the dominate experience. And the dominant memories are revisited more frequently than others and as you visit they become strengthened. Also there is a new memory being made when you revisit the original dominant memory marker reinforcing it with a new memory. It is like your in your own bathing suit contest and your rating each memory with a number 1 through 10. Why? Because it is an attempt by God built into your mind and heart that cleans you with His gift of heart and conscious.

Every last straw we have in our society's environment of knowledge is stacked by our society's pathology.

And "shame" on us all for allowing it to lead so many on the wrong paths, walking blind to hearts desires and not love. Hearts desires for false love is seen and not love.

We make love look like,

Looking for a needle in a hay stack. So you can stitch life together with poor sewing skills.

The Pathological Imagination

Your child mind and life is a replication of the cradle of life in the parent universe of creation. And you have a ability to create plus support and preserve the tree of knowledge of our species and evolve our understandings of the universe that we were created from to survive.

It is a natural gift by the creator for our minds to be developed to think beyond an environment. To think outside the box.

For the purpose of evolving understanding and create to support life and the tools we need to support our survival and of the unknown to the known. We call this theory.

Your evolved mind from creation is a child universe that thinks independently to all your senses, emotions, unique experience, unique conscious, unique subconscious, unique imagination, unique knowledge, unique experiences, unique belief system and the unique pathological road map that governs the knowledge and how it is stacked and used in the mind.

It also governs in your imagination of your reality matrix of the child universe absorbs into the mind by creating a memory that gets stored in your pathological road map. The imagination creates a memory.

So it does not take quantum science to prove that each perception is unique. It is as unique as a fingerprint and created to add or support the universe of the tree of knowledge to support your reality and life and the collective for the evolution and development of you and the species.

It is why we can create in this mad hatter way and evolve. To think outside the box is a gift so you can relate with the higher powers of higher callings.

We as well as creation are developing the mind all the time from an animal to human and the mind is new in the span of time.

Now I discovered a key to expanding conscious and mind IQ. You tether with Jesus and the creator. Get yourself in a calm loving state of child like innocence. You close your eyes in your best comfort zone. And create images and add in animation as well as try to add in sound. What this does is access all your memory cells and regions of your brain. It strengthens pathways, creates new pathways as well as stimulating new and old cells, It is a great way to repair many memory problems as well as repair many brain injuries.

Note: The Pathological Imagination is apart of the “Spectrum” of Schizophrenia. Run away belief system and imagination has inflicted 2.5% of the worlds population is Schizophrenic or has experienced it in their life time to some degree of the spectrum. Voices, noise and visions can become explained as ghosts, demons and angels. And I chose this chapter to help explain a serious problem that was even in biblical times. I believe the human mind is young in it's evolution, still in development and it has a long way to go. This book offers ways to combat as well as help others with empathy of people inflicted by the diseases. Also it can assist helping many other mental disorders that currently inflict 25% of our nation as well as many addictions that inflict our world population. Reports say that everyone knows someone or know some one who knows someone whom suffers from mental illness and addictions.

It is a long-term mental disorder of a type involving a breakdown in the relation between thoughts, emotions, imagination, false beliefs and behaviors, leading to faulty perception, inappropriate actions and feelings, withdrawal from reality and personal relationships into fantasy and delusion, and a sense of mental fragmentation.

(In general use) a mentality or approach characterized by inconsistent or contradictory elements.

Schizophrenia can enter both audio center of the brain and visual center of the brain through imagination. It will also project sound internally and externally. Projecting thoughts out side the body.

True Story. “A Beautiful Mind”

On one end is a mind with a healthy imagination and it can lead all the way to sounds and or visual hallucinations that can loose reality. Or anywhere in between.

Which can often result from injuries, emotional traumas or defects of the brain and enters the reality of the mind observing a imagination and or reality blending both into a reality that confuses the mind and reinforces the pathological memories with internal and external sounds.

It will bring a common phenomenon of creating a confusing belief that the mind is psychic.

It is perceived as anything from spirits, to angels, to demons or anything else we record in paranormal experiences. As well as anything else the mind likes or fears. It uses weights and measures via the pathological judgment center of the brain or is in opposition to what ever you think, fear or value, the most.

I'm not putting down beliefs but sometimes the mind will often use the pathological road map of the observer whom has the more severe or strong beliefs and it can be more influential on the negative dominate memories and emotions. It creates a dominating false reality on the more severe life than a normal or less active imagination with a less committed belief systems.

The pathological road map is the foundation created in the belief system of what they believe they accept. So they are often perceived in what they think in their beliefs and or influences and or traumas and or knowledge.

Remember Schizophrenia is audio and visual and then the imagination takes control and can lead to a aggressive loop of revisiting the now traumatic experience created in the memory. Many inherit personality disorders by assigning new characters a voice that also add to the dominance of the memory by adding new memories along with revisiting the first dominant memory and the loop loses control.

Repeating the looped event. As the event is repeated it reinforces the false reality matrix even further stacking more dominance on the triggering memories, As it revisits it grows exponentially. It is also known to be common in highly intelligent people to have strong imaginations. These individuals have great abilities to create something out of nothing in their minds. It has a slight disadvantage in their social and reality matrix. And it can be more sensitive to traumas or injuries. And even be more sensitive to the more extreme forms of schizophrenia. It can also lead to a sophisticated false reality that blends and functions in the real reality.

This is why they call some intelligent people odd or crazies. It is a very broad, fragile, and sensitive reality matrix spectrum that the brain has in 7 billion child universes or worlds on this planet and all in unique stages of developments. But this mad hatter mind is created to achieve the impossible. That which we thought was impossible but is now in our evolving tree of knowledge thanks to the beautiful mind.

There is a way to maintenance and lesson through the pathological map of a schizophrenia lost in a false reality. Many even call the family of voices as being friendly but often war against in the false reality. And that is to make the schizophrenia continue to bring back the things that harm you, or you treasure and make a list of what is harmful to the schizophrenic and like a trash man bringing the trash for you to throw it away. When you throw it away you use forgiveness, self love and understanding tether with Jesus Christ, the holy spirit and God to resolve it. You close the book on the obstacles and it places a God Head or God Bump in the present memory and a God bump on the original dominant negative memory and slowly allow Gods milk to wash it away and strengthen you.

Now this is fractal. If you look at the society as a whole of USA, all its belief systems, cultures, likes, dislikes and roadways as a network of synaptic pathways and every human as a neuron in the network you can see how the society mind as a whole mimics schizophrenia in the USA

The Brain Rewiring

In the thought processes, some of the brain's nerve cells change shape or even fire backwards.

An artist's depiction of an electrical signal (yellow-orange regions See image on page 179) shooting down a nerve cell and then off to others in the brain. Learning strengthens the paths that these signals take, essentially "wiring" certain common paths through the brain.

Musicians, athletes and quiz bowl champions all have one thing in common: training. Learning to play an instrument or a sport requires time and patience. It is all about steadily mastering new skills. The same is true when it comes to learning information — preparing for that quiz bowl, say, or studying for a big test.

As teachers, coaches and parents everywhere like to say: Practice makes perfect.

Blood flow reveals activity in the brain. Here, blue highlights attention-related areas that had greater blood flow when people first learned a task. Blood flow decreased in those areas as they became more familiar with the task. Red shows mind-wandering areas that became more active as the task was mastered. (Page 180, Brain Wire Image)

Doing something over and over again doesn't just make it easier. It actually changes the brain. That may not come as a surprise. But exactly how that process happens has long been a mystery. Scientists have known that the brain continues to develop through our teenage years. But these experts used to think that those changes stopped once the brain matured.

No more. Recent data have been showing that the brain continues to change over the course of our lives. Cells grow. They form connections with new cells. Some stop talking to others. And it's not just nerve cells that shift and change as we learn. Other brain cells also get into the act.

Scientists have begun unlocking these secrets of how we learn, not only in huge blocks of tissue, but even within individual cells.

Rewiring the brain is not one big blob of tissue. Just six to seven weeks into the development of a human embryo, the brain starts to form into different parts. Later, these areas will each take on different roles. Consider the prefrontal cortex. It's the region right behind your forehead. That's where you solve problems. Other parts of the cortex (the outer layer of the brain) help process sights and sounds. Deep in the brain, the hippo campus helps store memories. It also helps you figure out where things are located around you.

Scientists can see what part of the brain is active by using functional magnetic resonance imaging, or MRI. At the heart of every MRI device is a strong magnet. It allows the device to detect changes in blood flow. Now, when a scientist asks a volunteer to perform a particular task — such as playing a game or learning something new — the machine reveals where blood flow within the brain is highest. That boost in blood flow highlights which cells are busy working.

Chemical messengers — called neurotransmitters — leave the end of one nerve cell and jump across a gap to stimulate the next nerve cell.

Many brain scientists use MRI to map brain activity. Others use another type of brain scan, known as positron emission tomography, or PET. Experts have performed dozens of such studies. Each looked at how specific areas of the brain responded to specific tasks.

Nathan Spreng did something a little different: He decided to study the studies. Spreng is a neuroscientist at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y. A neuroscientist studies the brain and nervous system. Spreng wanted to know how the brain changes — how it morphs a little bit — as we learn.

He teamed up with two other researchers. Together, they analyzed 38 of those earlier studies. Each study had used an MRI or PET scan to probe which regions of the brain turn on when people learn new tasks.

Areas that allow people to pay attention became most active as someone began a new task. But those attention areas became less active over time. Meanwhile, areas of the brain linked with daydreaming and mind-wandering became more active as people became more familiar with a task.

“At the beginning, you require a lot of focused attention,” Spreng says. Learning to swing a bat requires a great deal of focus when you first try to hit a ball. But the more you practice, Spreng says, the less you have to think about what you're doing. Extensive practice can even allow a person to perform a task while thinking about other things — or about nothing at all. A professional pianist, for example, can play a complex piece of music without thinking about which notes to play next. In fact, stopping to think about the task can actually interfere with a flawless performance. This is what musicians, athletes and others often refer to as being “in the zone.”

A neuron from a mouse brain shows experiment the bulbous cell body with a single axon projecting from it. As the brain learns, neurons relay information faster and more efficiently. The mouse was genetically modified to make a fluorescent protein that glows green.

Cells that fire together, wire together

Spreng’s findings involve the whole brain. However, those changes actually reflect what’s happening at the level of individual cells.

The brain is made up of billions of nerve cells, called neurons. These cells are chatty. They “talk” to each other, mostly using chemical messengers. Incoming signals cause a listening neuron to fire or send signals of its own. A cell fires when an electrical signal travels through it. The signal moves away from what is called the cell body, down through a long structure called an axon. When the signal reaches the end of the axon, it triggers the release of those chemical messengers. The chemicals then leap across a tiny gap. This triggers the next cell to fire. And on it goes.

between them strengthen. That improves your ability to connect with the ball.

Learning while you slumber. The brain doesn’t shut down overnight. In fact, catching some zzz’s can dramatically improve learning. That's because as we sleep, our brains store memories and new information from the previous day. So a poor night's sleep can hurt our ability to remember new things. Until recently, however, researchers didn't know why. The hippo-campus, shown in a mouse, is a brain region involved in storing memories. The mouse was genetically modified with a gene that creates a green fluorescent protein that causes the neurons to glow green.

A group of scientists at the University of Heidelberg in Germany provided the first clues. Specific cells in the hippocampus — that region involved in storing memories — fired when mice slept, the scientists found. But the cells didn't fire normally. Instead, electrical signals spontaneously fired near the middle of an axon, then traveled back in the direction of the cell body. In other words, the cells fired in reverse. This boosted learning. It did so by making connections between cells stronger. Again, the action sort of wired.

The Pathological Road Map

I decided to choose the theme LOVE as a specific area to focus on to get the idea and we have come up with 5 different angles.

First angle: True Love.

Talks about whether is it possible to find true love nowadays.

Second angle: Long Distance Love.

Some people believe in long distance relationships and some don't. This angle talks whether is it really possible for long distance relationship to sustain.

Third angle: Promises.

People in relationship always promise and write vows to their partners that they'll promise to love or stay by their sides forever. But is it possible for everyone to keep their promises towards their partner?

Fourth Angle: Loving Even The Impossible. (Love Unconditional)

This angle talks about how a person entirely has love with a person that is impossible to dance in love with due to different races, cultures, background and everything or anything.

Fifth angle: Break up.

Break up is the worst and saddest part in a relationship and it's a part where no couples wish and hope to go through. But, it still exist and most relationships ends with a break up. This angle talks about the choices a person chooses to go when facing a breakup. They can either decide to end the misery by ending their lives or take the ideal way which is to move on. Because by moving out, there are so many possibilities that could happen in the future.

American Religion

How you live life along with your beliefs systems is a religion. The American way of life is a religion of greed and glutton tethered to immoral capitalism. Immoral Capitalism is a profits game of what ever the markets can bare. If you look close all the sub religions of all the non denomination and Christian Religions, Catholics, Muslim, Jews, Hindu, Orthodox, Buddha, Indian and many others have refused the use of Gods gifts to bring heaven to earth. And they all have spiritual tools that are used to maintain morality. To offer trust, peace, love, faith, hope, humility and all used for the strength to over come. To preserve life and freedom in the pursuit of happiness. The same words used by our government in the deceleration of independence. And when you see that all have moral obligations to insure the above. Yet they can not because the American way of life goes against it. They pray at the alter yet they do not take action in the society of government

We can best manifest our loyalty to American traditions of religious and political liberty by exercising the God-given right of looking at ourselves in the light of his Word. Let us pass over, as too familiar, the reflections which come to mind when we tally up the newspaper accounts: dope-addiction among adolescents, bribery of college athletes, the power of organized crime, the corruption of government officials. I agree with those who declare that the only long-range remedy for such moral disintegration is a return to faith in God and the true understanding of love. But I get weary of hearing the declaration repeated because there is so little likelihood of increasing our national understanding of both by representing it as a sort of emergency supplement to the police force, judicial and 80,000 laws nation wide to control society. Especially when a small hand full of laws can control you better with less effort and greater efficiency

Certainly the extent of our moral disintegration is connected with a religious disintegration but we cannot even come in sight of a radical religious recovery until the churches and the people of this country begin to do penance for the American way of life.

Jesus is a political prisoner: An American history of Christianity's corruption Nowadays, the Christian right is a fixture of the political world. But it hasn't always been that way

According to the Pew Research Center, the Christian share of the population has declined in recent years from 78.4 percent to 70.6 percent. At the same time, the number of Americans identifying as religiously unaffiliated – including atheists and agnostics – has increased from 16.1 percent to 22.8 percent. The study attributes the changing religious landscape largely to millennial's who attend church far less than previous generations. But the trend is noticeable among older demographics as well. So what are to we make of these findings?

They should be seen, in part, as an inevitable result of the politicization of Christianity. Politics and religion have always made uneasy bedfellows, but there was a definitive shift in America's political and religious culture in the 1940s that set Christianity on its current course. As historian Kevin Kruse notes in a recent essay, it was during this period that Christian America was co-opted by corporate America. Following the Great Depression, Big Business had something of an image problem, and needed re-branding. Also problematic was FDR's New Deal, which was indispensable to the middle class but anathema to corporate interests.

Industrialists realized, Kruse writes, that, "As men of God, ministers could voice the same conservative complaints as business leaders, but without any suspicion that they were motivated by self-interest." Kruse goes on to explain how religious authorities were recruited by business leaders: "It was a watershed moment – the beginning of a movement that would advance over the 1940s and early 1950s a new blend of conservative religion, economics, and politics that one observer aptly anointed Christian libertarianism." Under the guise of this ideology, American clergy began to demonetize the state: individualism was exalted; secularism was synonymous with socialism; and collectivism became the preferred boogeyman's of businessmen and Christians. In short, capitalists purchased the pulpits of preachers, who equated economic freedom with spiritual salvation, God with limited government.

All the choices in the American way of life have corrupted the children of God for the possession of money and power. American way of life chooses money as the ruler against the above spiritual principles that preserve life and liberty. Liberty means to be free of the damages of the immoral dictatorships. But doesn't the money, glutton, and greed enslave you and your religious beliefs? It is an immoral financial dictatorship. It is the responsibility of "We The People" to labor at tilling the grounds of corruption. Our landscape of corruptions bleeds the teachings you learn into the mind corrupting the spirit into the Fallen Angels that use the spirit of the Devil called false knowledge.

The devil is the spirit of man fallen to the corruptions of false knowledge. The bible claims that Lucifer falls to earth but never walks the earth. That wise scripture of the above warns of the spirit of Man whom falls to the corruptions of False Knowledge.

The disciples of morality must clean the topography of the Society and if left unchecked grows the weeds that clips your wings. So I argue that the American Society must claim ownership for the pestilence, A deadly or violent epidemic disease. Everything that supports life and liberty in the pursuit of happiness is a hypocrisy. God must be restored in the governments. I say plural because your own belief systems are corrupted. Gravity holds everything down from escaping to the heavens. False Knowledge is Gravity against the truth and life of the Children of God,

There is a saying that everything effects everything else. This means that most are innocent of the corruptions they absorb. But this also goes in reverse and can corrupt the spirit if left unchecked. There is death in too many of the systems and markets places. The temple is selling in the temple of creation. All humans also have a temple called the trinity of the body, spirit and mind. And Jesus comes to tip the tables the corruptions. This is true and refusing him brings forth the destructions of the table cloth of your landscape. This is fractal as it corrupts the land it also corrupts the landscape of the mind and family of Gods Children. Stresses are a sign that we must be vigilant in our commitment to clean the American way of life.

While it is true that you don't typically have to bribe your postman to deliver the mail in the US, in many key ways America's political and financial practices make it in absolute terms far more corrupt than the usual global South suspects.

After all, the US economy is worth over $16 trillion a year, so in our corruption a lot more money changes hands.

1. Instead of having short, publicly-funded political campaigns with limited and/or free advertising (as a number of Western European countries do), the US has long political campaigns in which candidates are dunned big bucks for advertising. They are therefore forced to spend much of their time fundraising, which is to say, seeking bribes. All American politicians are basically on the take, though many are honorable people. They are forced into it by the system. House Majority leader John Boehner has actually just handed out cash on the floor of the House from the tobacco industry to other representatives.

When French President Nicolas Sarkozy was defeated in 2012, soon thereafter French police actually went into his private residence searching for an alleged $50,000 in illicit campaign contributions from the L'Oreale heiress. I thought to myself, seriously? $50,000 in a presidential campaign? Our presidential campaigns cost a billion dollars each! $50,000 is a rounding error, not a basis for police action. Why, George W. Bush took millions from arms manufacturers and then ginned up a war for them, and the police haven't been anywhere near his house.

American politicians don't represent "the people." With a few honorable exceptions, they represent the 1% that are rich and powerful. American democracy is being corrupted out of existence.

2. That politicians can be bribed to reduce regulation of industries like banking (what is called "regulatory capture") means that they will be so bribed. Billions were spent and 3,000 lobbyists employed by bankers to remove cumbersome rules in the zeros. Thus, political corruption enabled financial corruption (in some cases legalizing it!) Without regulations and government auditing, the finance sector went wild and engaged in corrupt practices that caused the 2008 crash. Too bad the poor Afghans can't just legislate their corruption out of existence by regularizing it, the way Wall street did.

3. That the chief villains of the 2008 meltdown (from which 90% of Americans have not recovered) have not been prosecuted is itself a form of corruption.

4. The US military budget is bloated and enormous, bigger than the military budgets of the next twelve major states. What isn't usually realized is that perhaps half of it is spent on outsourced services, not on the military. It is corporate welfare on a cosmic scale. I've seen with my own eyes how officers in the military get out and then form companies to sell things to their former colleagues still on the inside.

5. The US has a vast gulag of 2.2 million prisoners in jail and penitentiary. There is an increasing tendency for prisons to be privatized, and this tendency is corrupting the system. It is wrong for people to profit from putting and keeping human beings behind bars. This troubling trend is made all the more troubling by the move to give extra-long sentences for minor crimes, to deny parole and to imprison people for life for e.g, three small thefts.

6. The rich are well placed to bribe our politicians to reduce taxes on the rich. This and other government policies has produced a situation where 400 American billionaires are worth $2 trillion, as much as the bottom 150 million Americans. That kind of wealth inequality hasn't been seen in the US since the age of the robber barons in the nineteenth century. Both eras are marked by extreme corruption.

7. The National Security Agency's domestic spying is a form of corruption in itself, and lends itself to corruption. With some 4 million government employees and private contractors engaged in this surveillance, it is highly unlikely that various forms of insider trading and other corrupt practices are not being committed. If you knew who Warren Buffet and George Soros were calling every day, that alone could make you a killing. The American political class wouldn't be defending this indefensible invasion of citizens' privacy so vigorously if someone somewhere weren't making money on it.

8. As for insider trading, it turns out Congress undid much of the law it hastily passed forbidding members, rather belatedly, to engage in insider trading (buying and selling stock based on their privileged knowledge of future government policy). That this practice only became an issue recently is another sign of how corrupt the system is.

9. Asset forfeiture in the 'drug war' is corrupting police departments and the judiciary.

10. Money and corruption have seeped so far into our media system that people can with a straight face assert that scientists aren't sure human carbon emissions are causing global warming. Fox Cable News is among the more corrupt institutions in American society, purveying outright lies for the benefit of the billionaire class. The US is so corrupt that it is resisting the obvious urgency to slash carbon production. Even our relatively progressive president talks about exploiting all sources of energy, as though hydrocarbons were just as valuable as green energy and as though hydrocarbons weren't poisoning the earth.

Even Qatar, its economy based on natural gas, freely admits the challenge of human-induced climate change. American politicians like Jim Inhofe are openly ridiculed when they travel to Europe for their know-nothing on climate.

So don't tell the Philippines or the other victims of American corruption how corrupt they are for taking a few petty bribes. Americans are not seen as corrupt because we only deal in the big denominations. Steal $2 trillion and you aren't corrupt, you're respectable.

FORGED LIKE STEEL

Never go into the dark forest of man unless you know how to illuminate the path.

Or you will find yourself lost in their weeds and thorns that you do not understand.

Call for understanding and knowledge of the awakens path out of the darkness.

Treasure the understanding.

Or Leave It to the once lost but now found to tread the dark paths.

For they are the warriors of light and know the paths of the dark wilderness to illuminate the way to truth.

Call on the awakens of the wilderness.

Strong and forged like steal to be the understanding warriors they were forged to be in the world of man.

Is Ignorance Bliss?

I think the question resonates from this saying.

“It is best not to know me at all than to know me and reject me”

Jesus and his disciples said this and most of all he was a walk of Unconditional Love. He means rejecting the Love you know is true in the heart is much harder to live with than not knowing Love. The Laws of love are righteous and going against the righteous, creates the shames of light into the darkness.

You often know when you are doing something wrong and you do it anyways in the light of what you know is true. It wars with the darkness until you accept the light of the truth. God never has a day off penetrating the darkness. That is what light does. Penetrates. You accept Gods lessons of light and it is allowed to penetrate or till the soil on the seed your watering in your mind.

Whether it is a weed seed or a fertile seed you can rest assured in knowing there is one treatment for both types.

2 Peter 2:20 If indeed they have escaped the corruption of the world through their knowledge of the Lord and Savior

Jesus Christ, only to be entangled and overcome by it again, their final condition is worse than it was at first. 21. It would have been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness than to have known it and turned away from the holy commandment passed on to them. 22 Of them the proverbs are true: “A dog returns to its vomit,” and, “A sow that is washed goes back to her wallowing in the mud.

Is Ignorance Bliss?

If you have no knowledge and understanding of the walk of Jesus Christ or the Laws of Love you have bliss from no pain and reservations.

Confirmation ignorance is not bliss?

1). Thousands of years later Jesus Christ’s walk of unconditional love has spanned the test of time into our understanding of unconditional love.

Our understanding of unconditional love is rooted in the teachings of Jesus Christ of our entire history since the gospel.

2). Jesus Christ’s walk of unconditional love has been confirmed by leading archaeologist from all over the world with 95.5% accuracy.

3). If you fail to use unconditional love in any of your relationships it will come back and return guilt.

Emotions are a truth language of the conscious heart gifted to you by God with the ability to Love life.

The gift confirms you can not tread with ignorance. Human emotions are the crack of the whip of your conscious. It is apart of your voice and it informs you when the experience is either a loss or a gain to your life. It is a voice that informs you that the current experience has a toxic relationship or a life rewarding experience.

The Emotion Gratitude. Comes from truth and it can even come into being from the truths in a lie. I pray my eyes pierce through the lie in search of the truth. And the truth prevails a gratitude and a painful truth of what the lie does besides pain the heart of Love. And if you are toxic you will develop guilt if you do not listen to your emotions properly.

And the guilt will be loud enough to make you dance in the festering guilt. The true path for the guilt is to listen to the emotion. It is telling you it isn't life rewarding to have the guilt. So what do you do? You learn to do the opposites of what caused the guilt. Make amends. You learn and do the best you can to not let your guilt destroy your ability to learn past the guilt. You have to forgive first of all. If something in life hurt you and it fractured your own self worth it might have taken you down a road of abuse.

And every lousy destructive thing that hurt you can become a God Bump. Using the Three Laws of 1. Forgiveness. 2. Self Love. 3. Understanding = Unconditional Love. (God Bumping Manna into the landscape of your mind and reality).

A God bump makes strong dominant memories in the landscape of your mind. Making you strong in Manna if you receive the lessons of the good deed or tragedy whether you caused it or someone else caused it. And the opposite occurs when you do not listen to your emotions stripping away the Manna.

This also occurs when you use the Bible and your God Bumps or Manna in your mind as a Bible of actions in your history for your seeing, hearing, thinking, feeling and actions.

Like a spiritual light house shining light and energy of love into and out of your world.

The first light or energy you receive is in the funnels of your eyes and ears. The second Light as you digest replicates a funnel into the input of your thinking and feeling in contemplation on down to the solution for acceptance. The third light is your actions that shine into the world spreading the Light of Manna into the funnel of the world and the worlds of others as you wander.

And this brings heaven down to earth and it assists God of creation to replicate the heavens above into the minds of his children containing the true parent universe of the knowledge of the Alpha all the way to the Omega. As you travel backward in time from earth into the heavens and end up at the final destination of your journey, The Big Bang. When a child world understands the knowledge of the Body of God from the Big Bang to your present time in your universe it transforms you.

Now your a child understanding of God and creation and a child of God requires you to be Light. So you must follow the light. The light first teaches you, so you mimic the teacher of the Lord of light Jesus Christ and teach love unconditional into the darkness. Second, The Light penetrates the darkness always. Illuminating knowledge into understanding. Creating a New World.

Now this rebirth first occurs in your world of perceptions and making it new. Then it replicates into your families perceptions creating the rebirth into the minds hearts of family. I see the final days as being fractal and happing all around us.

New means you accept everything in knowledge and understanding. Including the Illusions of the false realities created into our worlds by the Powers of the Beast in false knowledge.

The Beast is the broken wing that enters the earth as the fallen angel yet never walks the earth. Because the child carries the beast into the world of the innocent children's worlds of perception, knowledge and understanding. Replicating the Armageddon, a lake of fire in false knowledge that consumes the voice of the conscious heart and turns it into stone. It wars with your world of truth. It also wars with the worlds around you and the wars of the worlds of your first government of emotions, including the government of spirituality. The Unconditional Love, the Jesus inside you to govern is denied and it breaks the wing of the child to reason with truth in the heaven of the mind called wisdom. A higher thought processes of reasoning is drowned with emotions ungoverned

And the prophecies of the Armageddon are then replicated into the child creating the powers of destruction. And if it fails to govern the teachings of light and penetrate the darkness it faces a Armageddon as it wars with death.

Then Also replicates the prophecies of the Armageddon into the parent world of reality.

Example: The religions of Christ have had a serious fear of Armageddon for thousands of years and this gets reflected into the teachings of the disciples and the pupils and then will have a perception of blaming a great deal of the man around them as being the cause of the Armageddon.

It also scares a new comer into rejecting the Bible. It also carries a great fear of Passing Through The Eye of the Needle as well. It took longer than I care to admit, but eventually, the reckless handling of Scripture became too hard to ignore. One of the most blatant examples was related to Christ's interaction with the rich young ruler. Luke 18:22-25 explains

When Jesus heard this, He said to him, "One thing you still lack; sell all that you possess and distribute it to the poor, and you shall have treasure in heaven; and come, follow Me." But when he had heard these things, he became very sad, for he was extremely rich. And Jesus looked at him and said, "How hard it is for those who are wealthy to enter the kingdom of God! For it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God." Jesus was the light of the heavens and the governments of truth, love, knowledge, understanding into wisdom. It stitches and sews the society of Life.

Based on the simple reading of the text, there shouldn't be any confusion about what it means to pass a camel through the eye of a needle (the reference also appears in Matthew 19:24 and Mark 10:25). And yet I've witnessed pastors do all sorts of exegetical gymnastics to explain away the clear meaning of Christ's words—throughout Europe and America.. What at first glance seems like a straightforward hyperbolic illustration has been twisted, contorted, and explained away through eisegesis and iffy archeology.

The explanation usually goes something like this: Christ wasn't referring to the eye of a literal needle—that would be preposterous. Instead, He was talking about a narrow entrance into the city of Jerusalem, a gate known locally as "the eye of the needle." This gate was so small that a camel could only be brought through with great difficulty, squeezed through on its knees—which depicts how we humbly need to come to the Lord.

That explanation can be quite compelling—after all, humility is necessary—as long as you don't read the next two verses of Luke's gospel: "They who heard it said, 'Then who can be saved?' But He said, 'The things that are impossible with people are possible with God'" (Luke 18:26-27).

Christ's words make the point of His illustration abundantly clear. He can't mean that the rich man can only attain salvation through humility—getting a camel to stoop and squeeze through a narrow gate might be challenging, but it doesn't require divine intervention. In context, His point is unmistakable: Manufacturing your own salvation is just as impossible as threading a massive beast of burden through the eye of a sewing needle. Apart from the intervention of the Lord, it cannot be done.

Now the teachers of light should be taking more focus on the Book of John and notice Jesus was a serious street stomped with the church in his heart. And stitching the light into the sleep walking hearts of society that has a negative language that enslaves them into the power of the beast in false governments with powers of manipulation.

This also replicates into the heart of the child into manipulating the world around him. This is a nasty mirroring of the conscious of the government of a human society. Now if you put two mirrors and you put yourself between the mirrors you will see yourself replicating. Now take that representation from you to the great powers of manipulation of the countries governmental processes of greed allowing the filth of an addicted nation. It is like a table cloth that you walk on in life. It has a lot of trash that you are forced to eat. So it is the responsibility for us to clean the table cloth.

Now remember the beast wants you to eat its food and it will lead you to your last supper and isn't it the bottom of the barrel of any food you would want to eat? Yes absolutely!

Now Jesus was a cleanser of not only the righteous body of the Child of Creation. He was also the cleanser of the table cloth of families in our table cloth of society. See how the churches in our society teaches the fear of man and does not emphasize the teachings, mimicking and replicating the Jesus into the table cloth? They should be teaching and looking for the ones to mimic the teacher into the ashes of our society. "Out of the ashes comes good things" Jesus teaches to the ashes that burn the understanding and bring it to light.

The Mother and Womb

“Umbilical Cord of the Society's Womb”

Society is ultimately one of the parents of every inner child heart.

When this occurs immediate intervention is necessary to prevent damage to the fetus and womb.

Extreme love and care in the procedure is required to protect the life of the child and parent.

You gently unwrap the cord to allow vital nutrients to return and stabilize.

Never tug, twist or pull the cord or you can cause irreparable damage.

Training in love and care is required to properly perform the procedures and refresher courses should occur frequently.

It is the time of conception and the mother is blessed with a child. It brightens the mother with the glow of rosy cheeks during pregnancy.

The glow that others notice (though you may not) is one of the most common skin changes during pregnancy. This isn't just a sentimental old wives' term. This facial shine actually has a biological basis. The increased volume of blood causes the cheeks to take on an attractive blush, because of the many blood vessels just below the skin's surface. On top of this redness, the increased secretions of the oil glands give the skin a waxy sheen. The flushed face on many pregnant women is similar to the one non-pregnant people experience when they are excited, cry or do anything that increases their heart rate (which pregnancy does constantly).

This Glow is a nurturing woman into what I call the “Interactive Baby”

Your womb is a sensory playground for your baby. From about 10 weeks, she's already wriggling and stretching her tiny limbs.

Once she reaches 23 weeks, she'll be able to hear your voice and other sounds, and may even respond to what she hears by moving around more. She may also develop a taste for the food you eat, and respond when you touch your bump. It's through these experiences that your baby prepares for life after birth.

You can certainly help your baby's natural cognitive development by interacting with her, and this includes singing and talking. By reading stories, playing music, or even just talking to your baby, you can let her experience a simple form of learning in the womb, according to a number of studies.

Now participating with your baby increases your chances in the womb and increases your chances for a healthy intelligent mother and baby. It reinforces the muscles and heart into teaching and strengthens the morality of nurturing making mother into a warrior in protecting the innocents of the world about to come into our reality. Start loving your baby early it can hear, feel and experience the environment into stimulating the development of the minds of both.

ity just for this purpose. Start them early it puts you into a calm loving and learning instruction that keeps you in comfort. The pains of pregnancy like worrying about the health of baby, the health of the mother and anything that aspirates you. It is much like meditation. It calms you and the baby down. It also begins the building blocks of nursery school early for both the child and mother. So start learning to teach and prepare for the love of the elementary building blocks of life.

Tap on the womb with your fingers and sing a nursery rhymes of building to ten little fingers. 1 through 10. Tap on the baby with a elementary count using the fingers of the right hand and then move into the left hand. Your umbilical cord is attached to you and the baby.

Contributions to <http://www.nurseryrhymes.org/numbers.html>

You take your baby to the pediatrician for her regular check-ups, vaccines, and at the first sign of a fever. You keep her away from runny-nose friends and steer clear of the sun. You baby proof your home and gently bandage her boo-boos. All to make sure your child grows up healthy and strong. But compelling new research is showing that the strength of your emotional bond with your baby may well trump all of those other measures you take to help her thrive.

A close attachment can prevent diseases, boost immunity, and enhance IQ in your baby, says Deepak Chopra, M.D., the endocrinologist turned mind-body -- medicine guru, Parenting contributing editor, and coauthor of Magical Beginnings, Enchanted Lives: A Holistic Guide to Pregnancy and Childbirth. Those hugs and kisses are a force of nature more powerful than ever thought, says Dr. Chopra. Mother-child bonding has evolved to become a complex physiological process that enlists not just our hearts, but our brains, hormones, nerves, and almost every part of our bodies. Here, an inside look at how the bond forms, how to strengthen it and why TLC may be more powerful than DNA.

The cuddle connection

There are decades of evidence to back up Dr. Chopra's claims. In one study from Ohio State University, rabbits that were cuddled by researchers were protected against the artery-clogging effects of a high-cholesterol diet. The love and attention affected the rabbits' hormone levels, the study authors concluded, helping them withstand heart disease. Researchers at McGill University in Montreal found that some female rats took more time and care to lick their infant pups than others; the pups that were licked frequently grew up to be less stressed and more adventurous in temperament, while pups that weren't groomed as much exhibited nervous, stressed-out behavior. And yet another study, published in Pediatrics, found that premature babies who were stroked gained nearly 50 percent more weight than those who were not. Such skin-to-skin contact (known as kangaroo care) has been shown to have other health benefits for preemies, too.

It's well known that the nipple stimulation that occurs when a baby nurses causes a hormone called oxytocin to be released in the mom, which in turn triggers milk let-down. But oxytocin is also called the "love hormone" because it's produced during orgasm and other affectionate moments. In fact, oxytocin behaves in the brain much the same way that morphine does; it turns on our "reward" center, easing pain, making us feel good, and causing us to crave that emotional high again and again. Women who don't breastfeed, or choose to eventually switch to or supplement with formula, happily do not miss out on the "love drug." Simply gazing into your baby's eyes while bottle-feeding or just snuggling or massaging also unleashes the feel-good hormones in both of you.

From smells to smiles.

There's more evidence that we're hardwired to connect with our kids: Pheromones -- the chemicals we secrete to attract a partner -- are also secreted by our babies, ensuring that we're similarly smitten with them. In one study, 90 percent of moms were able to identify their newborns by scent alone after having spent as little as ten minutes with them. When the moms spent an hour with their babies, 100 percent of them correctly distinguished their own baby's smell from the smell of other infants.

A baby recognizes his mother's scent, too. Last year, researchers in Japan found that infants who smelled their own mother's milk while undergoing a routine heel-stick procedure exhibited fewer signs of distress than babies who were exposed to the odor of another mother's milk, formula, or nothing at all. The mere scent of their mother's breast milk was enough to calm the newborns and ease pain. Here's an interesting aside: The act of kissing may have evolved as an affectionate gesture because it puts our nose in direct contact with the base of our partner's nostrils, where pheromones are generated.

Just as scent motivates you to care for your child and motivates your child to stay close to you, so too does a smile. In a recent study conducted at the Baylor College of Medicine, in Houston, brain MRI s were taken of women while they looked at photos of their own children and of other kids making sad, happy, and neutral faces. The scans found that when a woman saw a photo of her own child, the parts of her brain associated with rewards processing (meaning they make you feel good!) Were activated, and even more so when she saw photos of her child smiling. It's all very primitive:

The long and short of it: We're designed to become addicted to our offspring. "The mother-child bond assures infant survival in terms of protection, nutrition, and care," says Francesca D'Amato, M.D., a behavioral neuroscientist in Rome and a prominent bonding researcher.

But what about nature? Don't genes have the central role in a child's physical and emotional development? Well, maybe. But huge strides have been made recently in the field of epidemics, the study of how environmental factors -- everything from what you eat to how much you exercise to the amount of pollution you're exposed to -- can physically alter certain genes, causing them to, in very crude terms, switch "on" or "off." Epigenetics explains why one identical twin might develop an inheritable disease while the other does not -- turning the whole nature vs. nurture debate on its head.

The amount of physical and emotional affection a child receives is another one of those environmental factors that can influence genes. It works like this: Newborns are disorganized bundles of nerves. They literally don't know what to do with themselves and they're incredibly sensitive to hunger, temperature changes, pain, light? Everything. They need to be held and soothed to help them regulate all the new sensations. Basically, they're under stress, and it's no news that stress is a physical burden. When we're stressed, our immunity goes down and we're more likely to get sick. When babies are consistently stressed, it can permanently affect their immunity. "Immune cells have memory of experiences," says Dr. Chopra. Stress on a child (in the form of neglect or abuse) can alter the genes that control immunity because the immune cells will always "remember" the damage. A study last year of more than 9,000 adults who experienced physical, emotional, or sexual abuse as children found that a whopping one third of them were hospitalized for autoimmune diseases as adults, compared to only 8 percent in the general population. Childhood trauma imparted them with a 70 to 100 percent increased risk of developing certain conditions such as Graves' disease, Crohn's disease, lupus, rheumatoid arthritis, and more.

So how do you develop this miraculous, mystical connection? It doesn't always come naturally: What about the women who are too sore or exhausted or anxious to feel those surges of pleasure when holding their newborns or trying to learn to nurse them? The women who suffer from postpartum depression? The women with colicky babies who can't seem to soothe them no matter how desperately they try? Women who adopt? Women who have multiple births or other children competing for their attention? It's all okay if you don't or can't fall madly in love with your baby at first sight -- or even until months later. You just have to do your best to care for him. "Bonding is not an instant glue -- it develops over time and every family is different," says pediatrician William Sears, M.D., author of The Baby Book and a father of eight. "Just because you didn't hold your baby the first hour after she was born, or you didn't breastfeed, doesn't mean it's all over." In fact, if you care enough about your child that you are reading this article, it's safe to say you're doing your best -- and that your best is going to be more than good enough for your baby.

Know, too, that it's not just up to you! As a society, we frequently fail to give mothers the support they need, which also muddies the bonding process, notes Dr. Chopra. How can a woman be expected to establish a deep bond when she doesn't have paid maternity leave and must return to work too soon after giving birth? In fact, the U.S. is one of the few developed countries that doesn't mandate any paid maternity leave. "The responsibility is not just the mother's," says Dr. Chopra. "Her partner, family, neighbors, and coworkers all need to help ease her transition into motherhood. A mom needs time to herself to recharge; otherwise, she won't be able to give her baby the quality of attention he needs." And it's the quality, not the quantity, that truly matters, he insists; you needn't worry that working will interfere.

So ignore your e-mails and forget about the laundry. Don't stress about vacuuming or entertaining guests. Let bonding with your baby become your priority. Lie around with her, doing nothing. Cuddle. Play. Dr. Chopra believes in "nourishing all of your baby's senses" by holding her, massaging her, singing to her, using soothing scents (lavender, rose, vanilla), and showing her colorful, interesting shapes and objects. Remind yourself that you're building a connection that will comfort both of you for years and years.

THE LAWS OF THE FLESH.

What does the Bible mean when it talks about the flesh?

From a biblical perspective, the flesh is “that which is contrary to the spirit” (see Galatians 5:17). The flesh and the Spirit are two opposing forces that exist within a believer. The Spirit is just that—the Holy Spirit. The flesh is the part of a believer that disagrees with the Spirit. The makeup of a believer is different from that of an unbeliever, in that an unbeliever does not have the Spirit of God indwelling them. In the case of an unbeliever, the flesh is in agreement with the spirit of that unbeliever. Paul says “our old self was crucified with him in order that the body of sin might be brought to nothing, so that we would no longer be enslaved to sin” (Romans 6:6). What Paul is describing when he says “the body of sin” is the flesh.

When a believer’s old self, sometimes called the “old man,” is crucified—by this Paul means brought to faith in Christ, in His redemptive work on the cross—the Spirit indwells the believer, and a “new man” is created. A “new self” with a new nature (2 Corinthians 5:17). This new nature, or new man, is now in conflict with the flesh, because the new man is on the side of the Spirit. Paul famously describes this conflict in Romans, chapter 7, saying “I do not understand my own actions. For I do not do what I want, but I do the very thing I hate. Now if I do what I do not want, I agree with the law, that it is good. So now it is no longer I who do it, but sin that dwells within me. For I know that nothing good dwells in me, that is, in my flesh. For I have the desire to do what is right, but not the ability to carry it out” (Romans 7:15-18). Later, he says “I delight in the law of God, in my inner being, but I see in my members another law waging war against the law of my mind (Limbic System - State 2 middle level, Second Heaven, Temptations: The Emotional State page 55) and making me captive to the law of sin that dwells in my members. Wretched man that I am! Who will deliver me from this body of death? Thanks be to God through Jesus Christ our Lord!” (v. 22-25). Again he mentions here the “body of death” by which he means the flesh.

The flesh exists in the body, and also in the brain—our neural pathways are affected by the flesh. (Limbic System page 95- State 2 middle level, Second Heaven, Temptations: The Emotional State page 55) That is why it is so difficult, oftentimes, for believers to break old habits and patterns of sin. (See page 101, 103, 150) We live for years building habits in the flesh that agree with the “old man” and then when the “new man” arrives, in agreement with the Spirit, we are suddenly in conflict. Some of these habits submit to the Spirit immediately and others are stubborn. One of the most difficult habits to break is one that Paul addresses repeatedly in his letters: the tendency of the flesh to attempt to gain heaven by Law. In Paul’s letter to the Galatians, he reminds them that “a person is not justified by works of the law but through faith in Jesus Christ” and again that we have been “crucified with Christ” (Galatians 2:16, 20). He says, “I do not nullify the grace of God, for if righteousness were through the law, then Christ died for no purpose” (Galatians 2:21)

This is confusing because of the many laws and rules that the Bible presents. From the Law of Moses to Jesus’ Sermon on the Mount, we see the standard of perfection that God requires. The flesh responds by saying “I can do that” and attempting to obey, despite the obvious fact that none of us can achieve perfection. But the flesh is deceptive. Of the Pharisees, Jesus said “in vain do they worship me, teaching as doctrines the commandments of men” (Mark 7:7). Why did the Pharisees invent new laws? Didn’t they have enough to contend with following the Law? They had too much to contend with, and they knew it! So, they created alternate laws that they were able to follow. This is the work of the flesh.

One of the biggest criticisms the Christian church receives from unbelievers is that of hypocrisy. This hypocrisy is real, and the unbelievers are right to criticize us. Like the Galatians, we are deserting the grace of Christ and turning to another gospel (Galatians 1:6). Deceived by the flesh, we try to be good, moral, friendly, nice, loving, faithful people, but we forget that the law was not made to save us—it was designed to aggravate the flesh and show us our imperfections so that we will turn to Christ (Galatians 3:23-25). Because we forget this crucial doctrine, we wind up in a desperate struggle between the flesh and the new man, covering our sins with a thin veneer of morality that the world recognizes as hypocrisy.

We need to take John’s advice and come into the light, admitting sin, holding fast to God’s forgiveness and Christ’s substitutionary righteousness, so that we can be freed to live according to the Spirit (1 John 1:7-9). When the Spirit is in the lead, the flesh takes a backseat and we have peace (Romans 8:5-6). But none of that can be accomplished unless we first admit that we cannot obey the Law in our own strength. We uphold the Law as perfect, and a representation of God’s nature, and we strive to walk in His footsteps because when we do, we have peace (Romans 6:6). But, we still must accept two things: obedience to the Law will not get us into heaven, and disobedience to the Law will not exclude us from heaven. There are sins that will destroy your relationships with others, and sins that will destroy your body. There are sins that will wreak havoc on your career and land you in jail. And, once you are in Christ, there are sins that will rob you of sleep, of peace, of joy. But when you are in Christ there is no sin that you can commit that will make God let go of you (Romans 8:1-4). “For I am sure that neither death nor life, nor angels nor rulers, nor things present nor things to come, nor powers, nor height nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord” (Romans 8:38).

THE LAW OF THE SPIRIT OF LIFE

Freedom in the Spirit by the Highest and Strongest Law

In Romans 8 there is a wonderful term: the law of the Spirit of life (v. 2). In this phrase three things are composed together: law, Spirit, and life. This law is the fourth law that Paul mentions in Romans. In chapter seven there are three laws: the law of God, the law in our members, and the law of the mind. The law of the Spirit of life, no doubt, is the law of the divine life. By regeneration we received the divine life into our spirit, and with this highest life, there is the highest law. This law liberates us from the law of sin and death.

As we have seen, the third law, that is, the law of the mind, always responds and corresponds to the first law, the law of God. The problem, however, is with the second law, the law of sin and death. Because the third law is weaker than the second law, the second law always defeats the third law and brings us into captivity. However, the fourth law, the law of the Spirit of life, is the highest and strongest law, which liberates us from the second law and fulfills all the requirements of the first law. This is clearly mentioned in Romans 8:2 and 4.

THE MIND SET ON THE FLESH OR ON THE SPIRIT

Verse 6 is another very important verse in Romans 8. Nearly every word in it is a key, because it is related to the three lives and four laws. As we have seen, the first law, the law of God, is outside of us and above us. The other three laws are all within us. The second law, the law of sin and death, is in our members. The third law, the law of our mind, is in our mind. The fourth law, the law of the Spirit of life, is in our spirit. This corresponds to the three parts—body, soul, and spirit—of our created, fallen, and regenerated person. In each part of our being there is a law. In our body there is the law of the satanic life, in our soul is the law of the human life, and in our spirit there is the law of the divine life. After God’s creation of man and before man’s fall, there was only one life in man with two laws. Although the law of God at that time was not given yet, it was there already in principle. Man had the created human life with the law of good within him to do the things which corresponded with God’s demand, that is, God’s law.

After the fall, however, a second life came in, and with this life there is an evil law. At this point, the trouble within man began. The law of God makes a demand, and the law of good within our soul, our human life, always tries to respond to God’s law. Because our mind is fallen, however, it does not always stand on the side of good, the side of the law of God. When our mind does not stand with the side of good, the second law will not rise up. However, whenever our mind sides with the side of good, the second law, the law of sin and death, comes in to interrupt and frustrate us. The law of the satanic life frustrates us and wars against the law in the human mind. This satanic law is stronger than the law of our human life. So, the human life with the law of the human life is always defeated. However, at the time of regeneration, we received the strongest life with the strongest law. This law, which is the law of the Spirit of life, can now deliver us. This law sets us free from the law of sin, fulfills the requirements of the law of God, and satisfies the desire of the law of the human life.

The operation of the law of these lives depends on which side the mind takes. The mind can side with the flesh, which has the law of sin in our members, or it can side with the spirit, with the law of the divine life in our spirit. There are two sides, and the mind is in the middle. Our experience depends on what side our mind stands with. Romans 8:6 says, “For the mind set on the flesh is death, but the mind set on the spirit is life and peace.” Three things are mentioned in verse 6. The flesh is outside, the spirit is inside, and the mind is in the middle representing the soul. Now the mind can stand with the flesh on the outside or the spirit within. For our mind to stand with the flesh brings in death, but if our mind stands with the spirit, we will have life and peace. If we are not clear about this, it will be difficult for us to have real experiences of the Lord.

Because we were created, became fallen, and then were regenerated, the same mind on one occasion can be good and on another occasion not good. Romans 7:22 clearly indicates that the mind delights in the law of God, and verse 25 says, “So then with the mind I myself serve the law of God.” This means that the law of good in our mind always corresponds to the law of God, but this does not mean that the fallen mind is absolutely good. Other passages in the New Testament tell us that the mind is sinful and evil, such as Ephesians 2:3, which says, “We also all conducted ourselves once in the lusts of our flesh, doing the desires of the flesh and of the thoughts.” The mind in Romans 7:25 is mentioned in a good sense. The mind of the spirit in Romans 8:6, however, is the mind set on the spirit.

“Heaven On Earth.”

After the second coming.

Imagine a society with every citizen governed by the Laws and principles of unconditional love with it up front and first to be used in every experience. A society that truly lives up to the “We The People” hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal and endowed by their “Creator” with certain unalienable rights including life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.” Where people are viewed equal. When one gathers with another both treat each other as being honored, respected as a treasure and held most high. Raised above in perceptions and relationships. Everyone is loved as a family member of humanity. No prejudice. Just treasured brothers and sisters of one family. Children of God and loved by God through the lives of His children. Everything is Humble, trusted and safe.

No one is homeless or hungry. Housing, Medical, Food, Transportation and Energy costs are regulated to minimal cost for the purpose of freeing up the child of God to evolve and create in love with out the treading of supplying the resources to sustain their lives. There are judges but they are not restricted by guide lines and statutes that persecute with mandatory sentence times for breaking a law with 80,000 laws nation wide in today’s nation. No attorneys just elders moderators with the laws of Unconditional Love to govern them. They hold most high the first law and it is celebrated as a national treasure. 1st Law, The laws of Love must be in front of the creation of all other laws, Actions and corrections. There are no liqueur stores, pornography or Gun and ammo stores. The average lifetime is 130+ years and most marriages last a lifetime. Earth is considered the thrown of God and everything within is Loved as most high because all is God. Wildlife is free and mingles with humanity with no fears of predatory actions by animal or human. Wild is tame with Man. Food is fresh and products are not filled with preservatives for shelf life and maximizing profits. Food is not thrown away like America disposes as high as 40% of all perishable foods, instead they are shipped to the hungry world wide and world hunger is not an issue. Disease and health conditions are reduced by 80% compared to thousands today.

All public schools and universities are free and all teach the understanding the Laws and principles of unconditional love and the disciplines of Human Will. From ages 5 to 18. One hour a day classes Monday through Friday added to the teachings. The class is considered as or more important than reading or math. It is seen as the foundation for all other learning, teaching and living because life is a classroom and teaches life’s lessons 24 hrs a day. Every human is taught that they are a disciple, pupil and teacher of knowledge, understanding and wisdom with unconditional love. They all see all life including each other are recognized as treasures, gifts, miracles and blessings All correctional institutions correct with the same curriculum of love, human will and persecutions are eliminated from reality. Because everything is so efficient, technology and knowledge evolves understanding exponentially. The tree of knowledge has no false knowledge and is cleansed.

Incomes and living costs allow for one parent to comfortably be home to raise up the family. Middle class living is 90% of the Nations populations. High schools have advanced education and are compared to most of todays college courses. The mind IQ has leaped and so has concentration due to less distractions, confusion and false communications. Freed time and life's pressures are so reduced that mental health is 2% compared to todays 25% of total population.

Environmental contaminations, emissions and pollutions are Bio degradable and manageable by the planets Eco system. Smart Cars and Information hubs for contacting emergency services and supplying local news, traffic conditions, weather, public automated transportation routes in the area as well as hospitals, government public assistance departments, parks, local businesses and entertainment at every corner of most smart cities. Residential living in smart homes and petroleum cars are abolished. National Online Public Library with the worlds tree of knowledge of every category of publications in digital format free for all.

Unconditional Love is the Law, true Government and spear head of the true religion.

The Secret Handshake of Love and Human will.

I call it the secret handshake for these reasons.

1.) Immoral Capitalism does not want you to know it. (Much of what is sold holds immorality and marketers count on the addictive nature.

2.) The Secret Handshake allows for more success in tethering others (Most conflicts originate from not tethering with the higher powers.

3) The Secret handshake puts everyone on the same page on ethics.

The main reason it is such a secret is that everyone is not on the same page on how to respect. And because of this fear and distrust we are all strangers toward each other. I am talking everyone being trained about the same laws of Love and Human will. If everyone were on the same page of what these two aspects was, we could communicate and conclude with more efficiency and be replicated it in others.

The secret handshake is something we all use but we are trained to see it differently. The tethering often is used in Click groups or Peer groups to board meetings and religions groups but often is controlled by Hearts Desires and not Love and Human Will. And a discipline of both Love and Human will is needed to successfully tether with others. It is a religion of connecting with others to perform desired tasks and use of the higher powers. Faith, Hope, Love, Justice, Prudence, Temperance, and Fortitude. The most powerful of these are Faith, Hope and the laws of love. The Greatest of all being Love.

Lets say for example there are two 16 year old kids in a playground and one is named Billy and the other is named Liam. Liam is bullying Billy from a place of hearts desires. Liam is agitated because of dysfunctional family problems, jealous anger and restlessness. Liam is getting bullied by his over worked father and neglected mother. Both are using Liam to vent frustrations and not communicating resentments properly when Liam does something wrong. Both have very much the same issues that Liam has. The behavior problems often get replicated throughout the family. And now Liam is replicating it in others he comes in contact with to mainly get attention.

Liam does not like Billy because he has many things that makes Billy popular. And Liam does not have any friends because he keeps his family issues secret. He sees Billy with friends playing and has all the things that Liam wants. Cool tennis shoes, cool outfits and a smart phone that his father refuses to get him. So to vent out Liam replicates what he has been taught about Love and Human will into his communications with others like Billy.

What Liam does not know yet is Billy is trained in Love and Human will. He walks the right path and has the disciplines to tether with others and teach by example.

Simple rules for living.

Laws of love that will change your life.

Ten timeless commandments and other top laws of Love. Imagine a world where love guides every action. A community where people place others before themselves. A place where God is recognized and respected. Thousands of years ago, God shared the framework for life as it should be. A simple code for daily living that is the foundation of our laws and principles. Yet society is slowly moving from this essential guide, as these absolute truths give way to a subjective culture. How can we reclaim these ancient tenants for living and apply them in a modern world?

Ten commandments revisits the Bible's perfect design for our relationship with God and those around us. Inside the Bible you'll encounter TEN commandments that are as relevant now as the day they were given. Rediscover the wellspring of your faith. Reconnect with these profound truths. And reclaim God's vision for your life through the power of the Ten Commandments.

The Ten Commandments, also known as the Decalogue, are a set of biblical principles relating to ethics and worship, which play a fundamental role in Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. The commandments include instructions to worship only God, to honor one's parents, and to keep the sabbath, as well as prohibitions against idolatry, blasphemy, murder, adultery, theft, dishonesty, and coveting. Different religious groups follow different traditions for interpreting and numbering them.

The Ten Commandments are listed twice in the Hebrew Bible, first at Exodus 20:1–17, and then at Deuteronomy 5:6–21. Both versions state that God inscribed them on two stone tablets, which he gave to Moses on Mount Sinai. Modern scholarship has found likely influences in Hittite and Mesopotamian laws and treaties, but is divided over exactly when the Ten Commandments were written and who wrote them.

The biblical narrative of the revelation at Sinai begins in Exodus 19 after the arrival of the children of Israel at Mount Sinai (also called Horeb). On the morning of the third day of their encampment, “there were thunders and lightnings, and a thick cloud upon the mount, and the voice of the trumpet exceeding loud”, and the people assembled at the base of the mount. After “the LORD[6] came down upon mount Sinai”, Moses went up briefly and returned and prepared the people, and then in Exodus 20 “God spoke” to all the people the words of the covenant, that is, the “ten commandments”[7] as it is written. Modern biblical scholarship differs as to whether Exodus 19-20 describes the people of Israel as having directly heard all or some of the Decalogue, or whether the laws are only passed to them through Moses.

[8] The people were afraid to hear more and moved “afar off”, and Moses responded with “Fear not.”[9] Nevertheless, he drew near the “thick darkness” where “the presence of the Lord” was[10] to hear the additional statutes and “judgments”,[11] all which he “wrote”[12] in the “book of the covenant”[13] which he read to the people the next morning, and they agreed to be obedient and do all that the LORD had said. Moses escorted a select group consisting of Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and “seventy of the elders of Israel” to a location on the mount where they worshiped “afar off”[14] and they “saw the God of Israel” above a “paved work” like clear sapphire stone.

[15] And the LORD said unto Moses, Come up to me into the mount, and be there: and I will give thee tablets of stone, and a law, and commandments which I have written; that thou mayest teach them. 13 And Moses rose up, and his minister Joshua: and Moses went up into the mount of God.

— First mention of the tablets in Exodus 24:12–13

The mount was covered by the cloud for six days, and on the seventh day Moses went into the midst of the cloud and was “in the mount forty days and forty nights.”[16] And Moses said, “the LORD delivered unto me two tablets of stone written with the finger of God; and on them was written according to all the words, which the LORD spake with you in the mount out of the midst of the fire in the day of the assembly.”[17] Before the full forty days expired, the children of Israel collectively decided that something happened to Moses, and compelled Aaron to fashion a golden calf, and he “built an altar before it”[18] and the people “worshiped” the calf.

[19] After the full forty days, Moses and Joshua came down from the mountain with the tablets of stone: “And it came to pass, as soon as he came nigh unto the camp, that he saw the calf, and the dancing: and Moses’ anger waxed hot, and he cast the tablets out of his hands, and brake them beneath the mount.”[20] After the events in chapters 32 and

33, the LORD told Moses, “Hew thee two tablets of stone like unto the first: and I will write upon these tablets the words that were in the first tablets, which thou brakest.”[21] “And he wrote on the tablets, according to the first writing, the ten commandments, which the LORD spake unto you in the mount out of the midst of the fire in the day of the assembly: and the LORD gave them unto me.”

[22] According to Jewish tradition, Exodus 20:1–17 constitutes God’s first recitation and inscription of the ten commandments on the two tablets,[23] which Moses broke in anger with his rebellious nation, and were later rewritten on replacement stones and placed in the ark of the covenant;[24] and Deuteronomy 5:4–20 consists of God’s re-telling of the Ten Commandments to the younger generation who were to enter the Promised Land. The passages in Exodus 20 and Deuteronomy 5 contain more than ten imperative statements, totaling 14 or 15 in all.

The Ten Commandments

“I am the Lord thy God, thou shalt not have any strange gods before Me.”

This commandment forbids idolatry, the worship of false gods and goddesses, and it excludes polytheism, the belief in many gods, insisting instead on monotheism, the belief in one God. This commandment forbids making golden calves, building temples to Isis, and worshiping statues of Caesar, for example.

vain.”

The faithful are required to honor the name of God. It makes sense that if you're to love God with all your heart, soul, mind, and strength, then you're naturally to respect the name of God with equal passion and vigor.

“Remember to keep holy the Sabbath day.”

The Jewish celebration of Sabbath (Shabbat) begins at sundown on Friday evening and lasts until sundown on Saturday. Catholic, Protestant, and Orthodox Christians go to church on Sunday, treating it as the Lord's Day instead of Saturday to honor the day Christ rose from the dead.

This commandment obliges the faithful to show respect for their parents — as children and adults. Children must obey their parents, and adults must respect and see to the care of their parents, when they become old and infirm.

The better translation from the Hebrew would be “Thou shalt not murder” — a subtle distinction but an important one to the Church. Killing an innocent person is considered murder. Killing an unjust aggressor to preserve your own life is still killing, but it isn't considered murder or immoral.

The sixth and ninth commandments honor human sexuality. This commandment forbids the actual, physical act of having immoral sexual activity, specifically adultery, which is sex with someone else's spouse or a spouse cheating on their partner. This commandment also includes fornication, prostitution, pornography, homosexual activity, group sex, rape, incest, pedophilia, bestiality, and necrophilia.

The seventh and tenth commandments focus on respecting and honoring the possessions of others. This commandment forbids the act of taking someone else's property. The Catholic Church believes that this commandment also denounces cheating people of their money or property, depriving workers of their just wage, or not giving employers a full day's work for a full day's pay. Embezzlement, fraud, tax evasion, and vandalism are all considered extensions of violations of the Seventh Commandment.

“Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.”

The Eighth Commandment condemns lying. Because God is regarded as the author of all truth, the Church believes that humans are obligated to honor the truth. The most obvious way to fulfill this commandment is not to lie — intentionally deceive another by speaking a falsehood. So a good Christian is who you want to buy a used car from.

The Ninth Commandment forbids the intentional desire and longing for immoral sexuality. To sin in the heart, Jesus says, is to lust after a woman or a man in your heart with the desire and will to have immoral sex with them. Just as human life is a gift from God and needs to be respected, defended, and protected, so, too, is human sexuality. Catholicism regards human sexuality as a divine gift, so it's considered sacred in the proper context — marriage.

The Tenth Commandment forbids the wanting to or taking someone else's property. Along with the Seventh Commandment, this commandment condemns theft and the feelings of envy, greed, and jealousy in reaction to what other people have.

Other Top Love Laws.

Love Yourself First With The Laws of Love

“You can search throughout the entire universe for someone who is more deserving of your love and affection than you are yourself, and that person is not to be found anywhere. You yourself, as much as anybody in the entire universe, deserve your love and affection.”

While it's easy to get carried away with excitement when entering into a new relationship, it's not always for the best if you don't have your act together. The most important aspect of involving yourself with another human being is recognizing that you cannot give yourself to them without having first given that love to yourself. Feeling that wholeness in yourself, you can share that wholeness with others in a healthy way. If you're having trouble stepping into that, here are a few suggestions:

Let the past go and recognize no one is perfect.

We all make mistakes. Focus on your positive qualities; consider writing them out and creating a list.

Pick up yoga and meditation, and give it a certain amount of time in the morning and night (even if it's 5 min).

Serve others in need. This is a wonderful way to boost your happiness and confidence.

Create a reminder to be kind to yourself- something small like a note on your mirror, or a bangle with the mantra of love, or anything else that works for you.

Accept that which You Cannot Change
“Those who are free of resentful thoughts surely find peace.”

When we engage in relationships, it's not all peaches and cream everyday. In fact, it sometimes takes a lot of hard work. Things are bound to come up that trigger us, and may cause us to question why that person just can't change into something we want or need them to be. But in the end, that's not realistic. Hoping and wishing someone changes when they won't can lead to serious resentment, which can make the situation worse.

It's better to accept them as they are, and live your life as an example of how you'd like them to be. Regardless of the outcome, you can at least know you're doing your best.

Practice Honesty

It's easy to believe that smoothing over issues or lying will help a situation; after all, there's no confrontation. But if there's an issue that bothers you, it's best to bring it out and discuss it. It's important to remember that sweeping things under the rug will make one or both of you resentful-which can lead to anger down the road. Better to bring it up now and get it taken care of, instead of letting it fester. Plus festering is a sign of guilt that reflects outward.

The Observer Effect

My observer is God, Jesus Christ and my Inner Child. The Inner Child is something every adult human being has inside. It is that little Girl or Boy that remained innocent. Take a minute and relax. Look inside and find your Inner Child or conscious. Your Inner Child is a super hero. And Loves you. It is also where your conscious lays. The Conscious is in the Crown of your Mind and It governs the environments because you are designed to spread your beautiful angel wings past your environments in unconditional love. Start your day as well as any contact with the above, by bringing the heavens down to you. Matthew 6:10 The Lords Prayer.

How good does it get when you have creation and the only way to the heavens is to treat others as if you expect them to treat you. In faith of wedding with truth and the good works of love unconditional in the light of both good and bad or for better or worse in holy matrimony. And no one will ever love you more than yourself especially if you take action kicking in all the doorways down that great hallway that leads to many forks in the roads.

Ephesians 2:10 For we are God's handiwork, created in Christ Jesus, For we are God's workmanship, created in Christ Jesus to do good works, which will make them, of children of wrath, children of God and heirs of glory!

The Child is held most high in the Kingdom of Heavens. Matthew 8-1. At that time the disciples came to Jesus and asked, “Who then is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?” 2 Jesus called a little child to stand among them. 3 “Truly I tell you, He said, “unless you change and become like little children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven. 4 Therefore, whoever humbles himself like this little child is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. 5 And whoever welcomes a little child like this in My name welcomes Me. 6 But if anyone causes one of these little ones who believe in Me to stumble, it would be better for him to have a large millstone hung around his neck and to be drowned in the depths of the sea. 7 Woe to the world for the causes of sin. These stumbling blocks must come, but woe to the man through whom they come! (A festering Guilt)

Let your will be done on earth as it is done in heaven.
New American Standard 1977 'Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, On earth as it is in heaven. Matthew 6:10

Taking Action is Works by the Will of God. For it is God who works in you to will and to act in order to fulfill his good purpose. New Living Translation For God is working in you, Philippians 2:13

Emotions are signals from your heart of conscious attached to the innocents of the inner child. Your emotions are a truth language. So don't fall into self punishment or reacting. You stop and examine the emotions from tethering to your Higher Power. You tether with Jesus Christ, The Holy Spirit and God. You wed with the truth and you forgive in unconditional love for yourself and others. Whether it is your fault or the fault of the others and your inner child is your sword and shield.

I love my inner child. His name is Monte. He loves to be rewarded with following through and making the best decisions in a loving relationship that we could possibly have. And sitting right next us is The Great Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ and next to him is the Great Creator. The Lord of All Creation. Jehovah himself. The forever. The Alpha Omega of Light.

And now with perfect aim every lousy destructive thing that ever hurt you can become a God Bump. During the Awakening or re-birth we examined all the hurts and wrongs of our past. All the memories that were bumping us the wrong way. Using the Three Laws of 1. Forgiveness. 2. Self Love. 3. Understanding = Unconditional Love. (God Bumping Manna into the landscape of your mind in understanding.) Realize that everything effects everything else. In our minds as well as our world reality. So nothing is entirely your fault setting you free by understanding. Taking back our treasured moments from the King of all Thieves that was the fallen Angel of Destruction in our memories.

The original study regarding the Observer Effect Hawthorne took place in 1950, and hypothesized that awareness of being observed could temporarily improve worker behavior and increase productivity, because people tend to show increased motivation when they are shown special attention.

After the study, productivity decreased and returned to normal. There is a saying the newest are always the most spirited. What this means is keep your relationship open and remain in a dialog with all.

The observer effect is evident when people are aware they are being observed. Avoid any false observer effects by using “unobtrusive methods” Unobtrusive methods refer to being non evasive and Jesus Christ is the teacher of Light, Love and Life. You light up my Life with Love Unconditional.

The observer effect is one form of reactivity. Reactivity can also refer to subjects altering behavior based on perceived expectations of the observer. For example, the experimenter effect occurs when the observer tells subjects about their expectations, and the subjects act accordingly. The Pygmalion effect refers to students changing their behavior to meet teacher expectations. Both of the latter effects can be caused by pre-existing bias or stereotyping. Better observation techniques can greatly improve your over all conduct and relationships with your inner child and the best Lord and savior you will ever need. I call it the Last Supper your will ever need for your experiences and clearing your table cloth is very important to enjoying your meal. Every Experience is food to the mind, body, heart and spirit.

In physics, the term observer effect refers to changes that the act of observation will make on a phenomenon being observed. It is not possible to see any object without light hitting the object, and causing it to emit light; while this may seem negligible, the object still experiences a change. This effect can be observed in many domains of physics. In quantum mechanics, there is a common misconception that it is the mind of a conscious observer that causes the observer effect in quantum processes. It is rooted in a misunderstanding of the quantum wave function and the quantum measurement process questioning in your mind. In other words. Do not take the easy way. Taking the easy way out can often result in guilt stripping the landscape where your manna lays in your mind of your memories and then the seed grows into the King of All Thieves called Corruption. The serpent in the garden. It also wastes energy and it is non efficient. Negative. Leading away from good and life.

Taking the exercised way out often is more efficient and also a declaration of war against the King of All Thieves of any experience. Think about that diplomacy. The profession, activity, or skill of managing international relations, of such a broad spectrum of problems, typically by a country’s representatives abroad. Positive. Leading toward good and meeting life head on, moving forward aware one step at time. One day at a time on the stairway to the heavens.

The Storms and Waves of Jonah Wheel

Jonah's Wheel

It is like everyone is rejecting Gods truth while not knowing the relationship of God, with God in a ship of the spirit and religious great storm and in a larger ship of family in the great storm with a society of ships all treading in the great storm.

If you fail to light the beast into truth God will allow the crack whip of conscious into the water of life and allow the spankings to create the storm to spank you into action. This is the book of Jonah. This is also how the collapsing funnels of societies and civilizations work. It will allow the funnel to collapse and you learn from the experience in question to find the answers that allows you to grow your funnel of knowledge into your funnel of understanding and wisdom comes to the rescue.

1. The word of the Lord came to Jonah son of Amittai:
2. "Go to the great city of Nineveh and preach against it, because its wickedness has come up before me."

Jonah Flees From the Lord.

3. But Jonah ran away from the Lord and headed for Tarshish. He went down to Joppa, where he found a ship bound for that port. After paying the fare, he went aboard and sailed for Tarshish to flee from the Lord.

4. Then the Lord sent a great wind on the sea, and such a violent storm arose that the ship threatened to break up.

5 All the sailors were afraid and each cried out to his own god. And they threw the cargo into the sea to lighten the ship. But Jonah had gone below deck, where he lay down and fell into a deep sleep.

6. The captain went to him and said, “How can you sleep? Get up and call on your god! Maybe he will take notice of us so that we will not perish.”

7. Then the sailors said to each other, “Come, let us cast lots to find out who is responsible for this calamity.” They cast lots and the lot fell on Jonah.

8. So they asked him, “Tell us, who is responsible for making all this trouble for us? What kind of work do you do? Where do you come from? What is your country? From what people are you?”

9. He answered, “I am a Hebrew and I worship the Lord, the God of heaven, who made the sea and the dry land.”

10. This terrified them and they asked, “What have you done?” (They knew he was running away from the Lord, because he had already told them so.)

11. The sea was getting rougher and rougher. So they asked him, “What should we do to you to make the sea calm down for us?”

12. “Pick me up and throw me into the sea,” he replied, “and it will become calm. I know that it is my fault that this great storm has come upon you.”

13. Instead, the men did their best to row back to land. But they could not, for the sea grew even wilder than before.

14. Then they cried out to the Lord, “Please, Lord, do not let us die for taking this man’s life. Do not hold us accountable for killing an innocent man, for you, Lord, have done as you pleased.”

15. Then they took Jonah and threw him overboard, and the raging sea grew calm.

16 At this the men greatly feared the Lord, and they offered a sacrifice to the Lord and made vows to him.

Jonah’s Prayer.

17. Now the Lord provided a huge fish to swallow Jonah, and Jonah was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights. Study (1-1) Now More strictly, And; but the English quite adequately represents the Hebrew style of beginning a narrative, whether it formed a book by itself, or merely continued an historical account. (See the opening of Exodus, Leviticus, and other historical books; Ezekiel 1:1; and comp. 1 Kings 17:1, )

Jonah 2'

2 -1 From inside the fish Jonah prayed to the Lord his God. 2 He said:

“In my distress I called to the Lord, and he answered me.

From deep in the realm of the dead I called for help, and you listened to my cry.

You hurled me into the depths, into the very heart of the seas,
and the currents swirled about me;
all your waves and breakers swept over me.

I said, ‘I have been banished from your sight;
yet I will look again toward your holy temple.’

The engulfing waters threatened me,[b]
the deep surrounded me;
seaweed was wrapped around my head.

To the roots of the mountains I sank down;
the earth beneath barred me in forever.
But you, Lord my God, brought my life up from the pit.

“When my life was ebbing away,
I remembered you, Lord, and my prayer rose to you,
to your holy temple.

8
“Those who cling to worthless idols turn away from God’s love for them.

But I, with shouts of grateful praise, will sacrifice to you.
What I have vowed I will make good.
I will say, ‘Salvation comes from the Lord.’”

10 And the Lord commanded the fish, and it vomited Jonah onto dry land.

JONAH'S PRAYER AND DELIVERANCE.

Study (2-1) Then Jonah prayed.—This introduction, to what is in reality a psalm of thanksgiving, has its parallel in Hannah's song (1Samuel 2:1-10), which is introduced in the same way. Comp. also the Note appended by the psalm collector at the end of Psalms 72, "The prayers of David the son of Jesse are ended."

This is exactly how you read the Bible of life into life. Then the bible and your life's actions replicates into your mind as Manna. And the Manna of Light shines out into the world feeding the children in understanding the light.

And if you respond in guilt by self punishment and that feeds its self. This is called festering guilt that poisons your relationships to your experiences. And your experience is often with others and your guilt can trigger an emotion that will cloud your judgment taking away the Manna. The King of All Thieves. That disrupts the cup from over filling with the rich nectar of the God through Jesus Christ. The gifts presented in the Wedding Dance of our children, world and creation.

It does that if you do not listen. And love does the opposites of the ones that do not reward. Like hate. Hate is a war with no winners. The one you hate often doesn't ever know you hate them and while at the same time your failure to listen has festered into your experiences.

It is a war of the worlds. And wars have no winners in death.

Forgive and do the opposites of harm no matter what you hear inside or out that defeats forgiving.

Remember forgiving sets you free from the demons you festered. They have no power if you do the opposites of harm. And eventually your tune will teach you how to listen and prevent harm to yourself or others.

This is called Self Love it is exactly what emotions do. So listen if it is toxic don't eat it and eat the experience in truth and in the life of giving unconditional love.

Every experience is food to the mind, the body and the spirit.

Yes I know. What about the food fight? The poison being thrown at you? Listen and ask if you are reinforcing the harm or is it life giving.

Does it ring the dinner bell of good in the reward center in your brain?

Then don't eat it if it doesn't and remember the food they throw they have to eat it to.

Self punishment is such a crazy thing if your ignorant. It always hurts the perpetrator and it hurts you even more to give it power to fester until you forgive.

Turn the cheek. So when you find yourself in a war equipped with emotions don't let them run wild. Recognize there is a great lesson to be learned that can make you strong and understanding enough to penetrate any environment you managed to break through.

You now possess the power to change the experience in your life and you can relate to others with the god bump of knowledge and understanding. The common thread of life you both share. You now possess the power to help another because you can relate. Relate. There is your hint. Again if it is painful it starves and if it rings true it feeds the reward center of your mind and rings the dinner bell that it is good to eat. Life is really hard for most. It is very dirty. You clean your home or it gets dirty right?. Same thing.

So love yourself enough to listen to yourself properly and it will not possess the power to harm the world of understanding in confusion in any of your relationships to you or others.

And in time regardless of the relationships that failed

you. Or are noisy. You don't have to walk down their road of persuasion that is very much like a demon causing you to do harm and steering you.

Love is the most powerful. The greatest gift you possess and it starts with you using it. It is how this treasure works you have to spend it to receive the gifts in the knowledge of love transformed into understanding love.

Regardless of the demons of the world in your understanding. Especially with all the demons in the world that are steering others into harm.

Your example can expel the same demon in others and reward you.

Your subconscious and conscious will love you for listening and talking the relationship that always starts with you. And there is no way to do unconditional love with ignorance. It requires a walk of love understood.

And that takes instructions listed below and with the scriptures. Jesus Christ also performed the miracle of life after death. This provides us with faith.

Something love just can not provide. The example is all around us. Open your eyes and ask are we killing life with an understanding of love?

Yes we are. And not with faith of life or death now are we?
4). Saints and Disciples are a discipline requiring study and direction. A treading of the world in the life of Love understood.

Definition Saint. A crowned person who is very good, helpful, or patient. Often recognized and titled for their contribution to others and the world.

Definition of Disciple. A faithful crown and follower of teachings. Synonyms: follower, adherent, believer, admirer, teacher, devotee, acolyte, votary; pupil, student, learner; upholder, supporter, advocate, proponent, apologist. It is very apparent that a disciple replicates the Saviour Jesus Christ the servant of Man and Lord of all Creation.

Definition of sanctified.

A More Sanctified World of Love and Teachings. Free from sins; to purify. Synonyms: purify, cleanse, free from sin, absolve, unburden, redeem "They sanctified themselves and the world around them in unconditional love"

We are all, the above from time to time in our lives. But when we think of the above two main definitions one of the characteristics we recognize is the walk of love. A walk and a treading of the world in unconditional love.

And a walk of love produces, the third definition. A more sanctified world for the individual or any two or more. Treating worlds more sanctified makes for the blessing. A beautiful gift to give yourself and the worlds around you makes Eden.

We have all from time to time walked with the above characteristics. Both characteristics strive to put the first laws up front in a lifetime of learning. And you can be a saint at any given moment of your life. And you will always be a disciple of something so why not be one of the most valuable contributors to yourself and other worlds.

And live with others in a more sanctified learning process. Instead of the harsh reality of our world. A world ruled by false teachers creating thorns and weeds. And false behaviors. The answer is to treasure the first laws of Love. Create a more sanctified world of true teaching and learning.

Wisdom is kind of like a weed eater. And no weeds to produce thorns of false teaching to snare Gods Children. Gods Treasures and Ours.

Where else are you going to go on the most advanced living space craft called Earth traveling at 70,000 km an hour in a vacuum of space?

Your a world. Everyone is a world.

Eden within the Heavens! Close the doors to the false teacher.

This is a great place to show the value of the governed knowledge of unconditional love. Ignorance shut doors and knowledge opens them and when governed by unconditional love it sanctifies the knowledge behind the door in understanding and cleans the forks in the road.

1st Law. The laws of love must be in front of all other laws, actions and corrections.

Laws of Love should be written in as a National Treasure. To govern all other laws, actions and decisions. And used in the making of laws and actions of a Government. As well as correct laws and actions that are false. Laws of love are the pure root of government or authority self and others and from there everything can grow on fertile ground. Authority is any one or more in a position or opportunity to instruct and gift the blessings of the first law. Unconditional love. No one can control you but you. And your wisdom and understanding controls every decision or action you make. So you are even a authority over your own life.

And the Authority of your gifts in the forms of actions in your experiences. And gifting the worlds that receive your actions and share in your experience. Love and tough love is a double edged sword. One side is love and the other is tough love when it tough loving for correction.

Your understanding and wisdom of the laws directs your swing.

Train and keep your sword with you always. And keep it sharp with study and action.

Without the first laws of Love up front. The laws of the flesh and the false teacher are teaching. Look at what the false teacher is creating?

Is it fertile ground? Or weeds and thorns of mans actions spoiling our bed of Eden?

Just about everyone would agree its weeds and thorns in our garden. Right? So tend 10% of your world to the Garden or kingdom. And if we are treading through weeds and thorns then we have only two options for our world.

Face reality and choose.

The laws of the flesh? Or protect your world the best you can with the laws of Love? This world of hard knocks teachings isn't sanctified to anyone including ourselves now is it?

The False Teacher is the True Criminal. And the highest crime against our humanity and should be recognized as a true enemy.

Difficult I know. But we have to make our beds with love and tough Love. Tough love is using love when it is tough. Unconditional love is the backbone of life in our garden. It is a fractal experience that uses the representations of nature and history to confirm knowledge understood.

I was hoping to live out my life without witnessing the insanity of a bunch of humans war on the only boat they got and with the only life they have. We have been doing the same things we always have since the original sin. But expecting different results. ( The very definition of insanity) Look at history.. As long as Cain is willing to kill Able in the heart we will continue to witness and be seeded by Cains destruction. This is law.

Now we live in a time where we might be able to answer the worlds biggest problems but love must be put at the helm, the Able inside us all must be applied. The world needs to work together and realize we are of same origin. To clean up the destruction brought about by Cain. We must call on Able daily to be resurrected in our hearts. It starts with you and what you do with your actions.

Plant the seeds of Able and defeat the weeds of Cain because this is the only Eden we have.

*Study Solutions of Faith in Action - The Faith of Abraham and Sarah (Genesis 15:1-7; Romans 4:1-12; Galatians 3:1-9; James 2:14-26)

40 Biblical descriptions of Faith and Assurance

1 Now faith is the assurance of what we hope for and the certainty of what we do not see. 2 This is why the ancients were commended.

3 By faith we understand that the universe was formed by God's command, so that what is seen was not made out of what was visible.

The Faith of Abel, Enoch, Noah

4 By faith Abel offered God a better sacrifice than Cain did. By faith he was commended as righteous when God gave approval to his gifts. And by faith he still speaks, even though he is dead.

5 By faith Enoch was taken up so that he did not see death. He could not be found, because God had taken him away. For before he was taken, he was commended as one who pleased God.

6 And without faith it is impossible to please God, because anyone who approaches Him must believe that He exists and that He rewards those who earnestly seek Him.

7 By faith Noah, when warned about things not yet seen, in godly fear built an ark to save his family. By faith he condemned the world and became heir of the righteousness that comes by faith.

The Faith of Abraham and Sarah

(Genesis 15:1-7; Romans 4:1-12; Galatians 3:1-9; James 2:14-26)

8 By faith Abraham, when called to go to a place he would later receive as his inheritance, obeyed and went, without knowing where he was going.

9 By faith he dwelt in the promised land as a stranger in a foreign country. He lived in tents, as did Isaac and Jacob, who were heirs with him of the same promise.

10 For he was looking forward to the city with foundations, whose architect and builder is God.

11 By faith Sarah, even though she was barren and beyond the opportune age, was enabled to conceive a child, because she considered Him faithful who had promised.

12 And so from one man, and he as good as dead, came descendants as numerous as the stars in the sky and as countless as the sand on the seashore.

13 All these people died in faith, without having received the things they were promised. However, they saw them and welcomed them from afar. And they acknowledged that they were strangers and exiles on the earth.

14 Those who say such things show that they are seeking a country of their own.

15 If they had been thinking of the country they had left, they would have had opportunity to return.

16 Instead, they were longing for a better country, a heavenly one. Therefore God is not ashamed to be called their God, for He has prepared a city for them.

17 By faith Abraham, when he was tested, offered up Isaac on the altar. He who had received the promises was ready to offer his one and only son, 18 Even though God had said to him, “Through Isaac your offspring will be reckoned.”<sup>19</sup> Abraham reasoned that God could raise the dead, and in a sense, he did receive Isaac back from death.

The Faith of Isaac, Jacob, Joseph

20 By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau concerning the future.

21 By faith Jacob, when he was dying, blessed each of Joseph's sons and worshiped as he leaned on the top of his staff.

22 By faith Joseph, when his end was near, spoke about the exodus of the Israelites and gave instructions about his bones

The Faith of Moses

23 By faith Moses' parents hid him for three months after his birth, because they saw he was a beautiful child, and they were unafraid of the king's edict.

24 By faith Moses, when he was grown, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter.

25 He chose to suffer oppression with God's people rather than to experience the fleeting enjoyment of sin.

26 He valued disgrace for Christ above the treasures of Egypt, for he was looking ahead to his reward.

27 By faith Moses left Egypt, not fearing the king's anger; he persevered because he saw Him who is invisible.

28 By faith he kept the Passover and the sprinkling of blood, so that the destroyer of the firstborn would not touch Israel's own firstborn.

29 By faith the people passed through the Red Sea as on dry land; but when the Egyptians tried to follow, they were drowned.

The Faith of Many

30 By faith the walls of Jericho fell, after the people had marched around them for seven days.

31 By faith the prostitute Rahab, because she welcomed the spies in peace, did not perish with those who were disobedient.

32 And what more shall I say? Time will not allow me to tell of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, David, Samuel, and the prophets.

33 Who through faith conquered kingdoms, administered justice, and obtained what was promised; who shut the mouths of lions, 34 Quenched the raging fire, and escaped the edge of the sword; who gained strength from weakness, became mighty in battle, and put foreign armies to flight.

35 Women received back their dead, raised to life again. Others were tortured and refused their release, so that they might gain a better resurrection.

36 Still others endured mocking and flogging, and even chains and imprisonment.

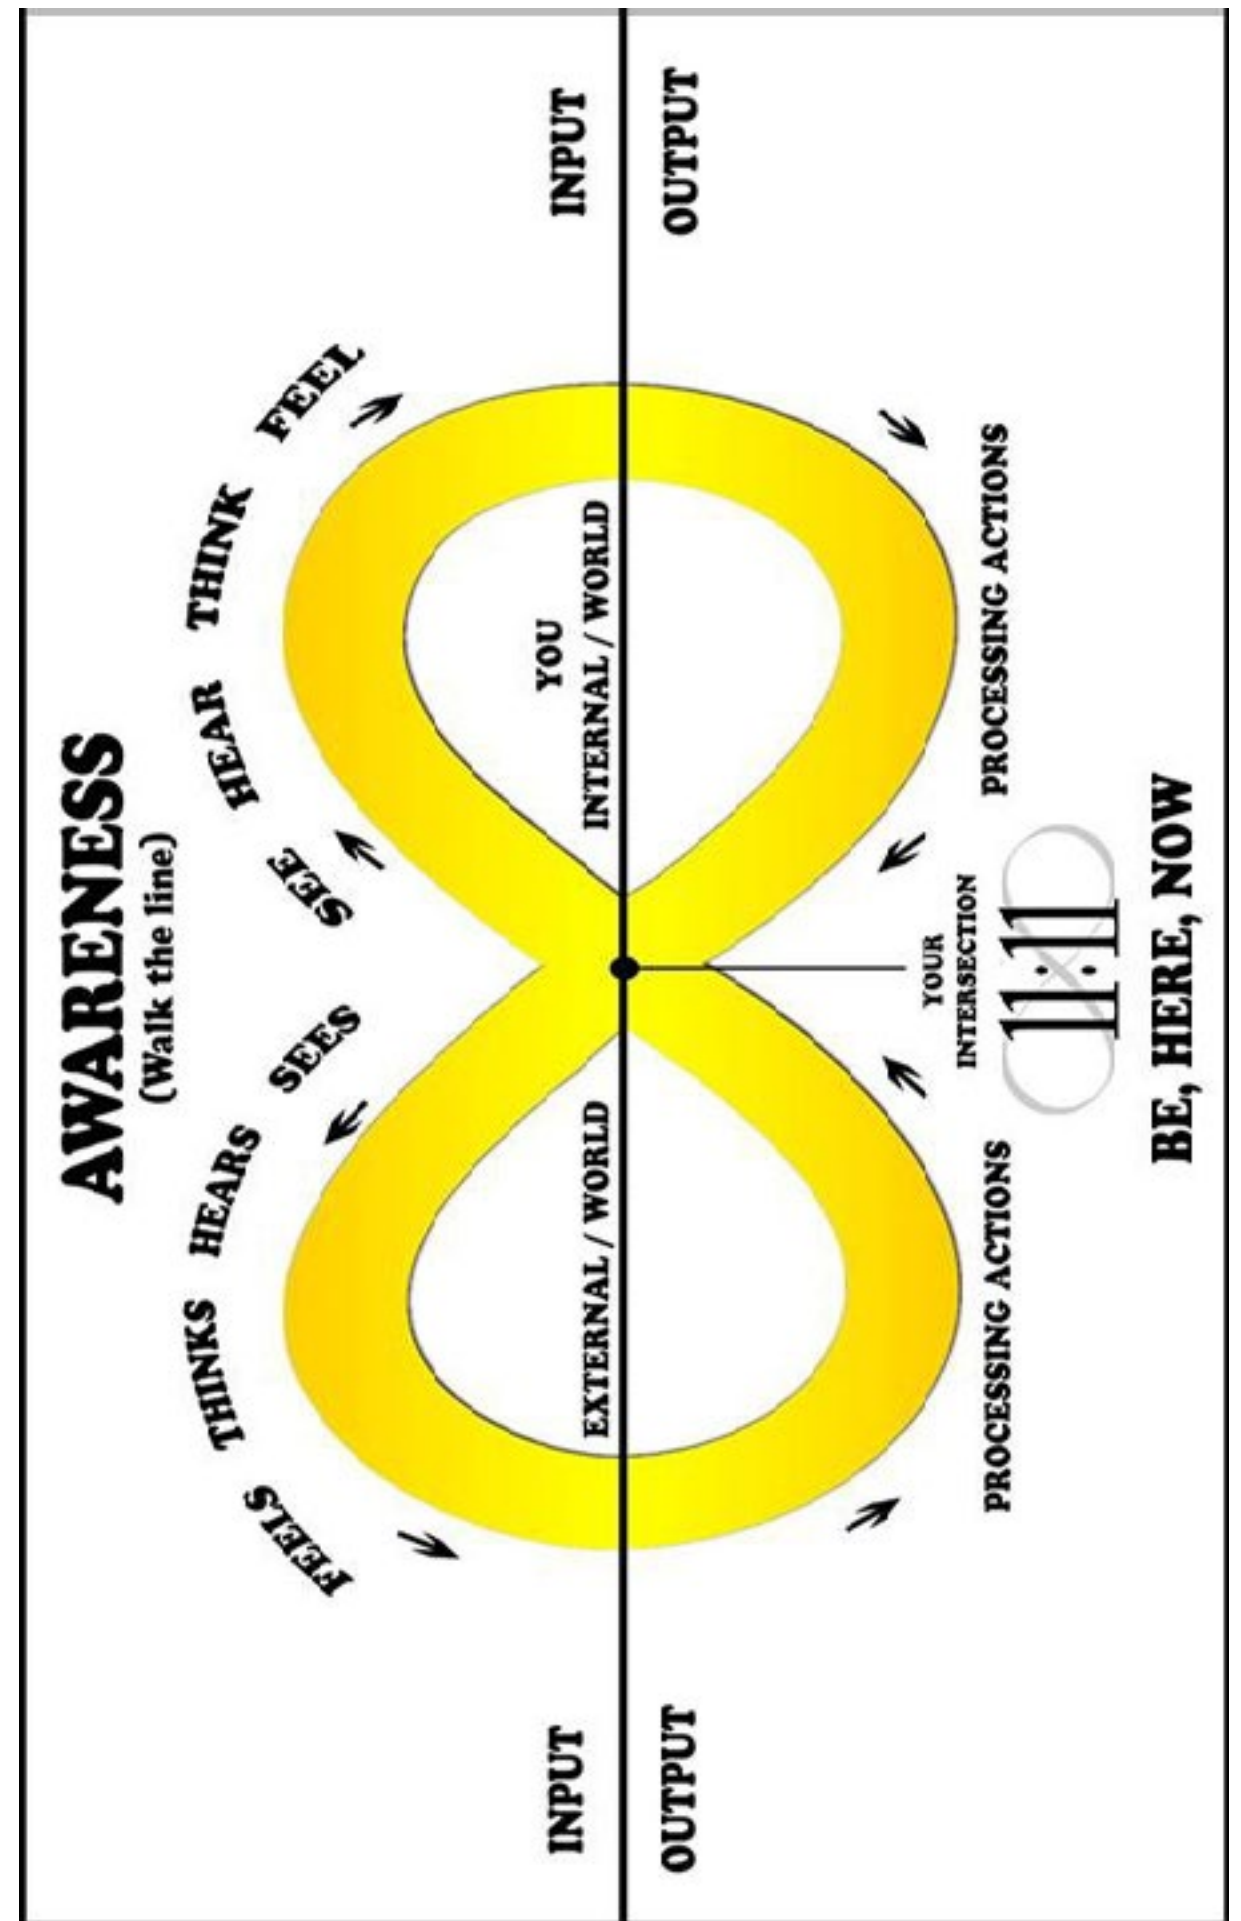

37 They were stoned, they were sawed in two, they were put to death by the sword. They went around in sheepskins and goatskins, destitute, oppressed, and mistreated.

38 The world was not worthy of them. They wandered in deserts and mountains, and hid in caves and holes in the ground.

39 These were all commended for their faith, yet they did not receive what was promised.

40 God had planned something better for us, so that together with us they would be made perfect.

“In His Likeness”

In the bible and religion we teach that God looks like Man and Man looks like God with ten fingers and ten toes but I am going to show you a fractal understanding of the wedding dance that illustrates His likeness in everything including his children of humanity. The most evolved form of life and energy. God truly loves us and is the origin of everything including seeing, hearing, thoughts, feelings and actions. I once was blind but now I see. I once was deaf but now I hear.

The universe started with the first dance of two raw particles called the God Particle. “When two or more gather in my midst there shall I be. United in principle is the God particle and everything that originates from it is new worlds within new worlds within new worlds. The two god particles unite and have an orbit that is so fast both appear in the same place at the same time as well as move forward in time and space creating a orbiting stacking of the language of evolution.

To evolve into a new unique branch or new world from the last.  $1+1 = 3$ . Evolution takes place when Space time and energy dance into new worlds of knowledge understanding and wisdom. The whole thing including thoughts, feeling and actions are all connected in a strand of code that can be read and discerned. To know this code would discern that we are all one world with worlds within worlds within worlds that can be played back all the way back to the first song that started the first dance. Music has instruments and rhythm that move forward in time changing the language of the last into a new whole understanding of the knowledge of the music into wisdom of the song. To know the song of anything is wisdom, So we can say the song of anything is God. Song, being the knowledge of anything is the fractal understanding of God who is all Wisdom.

Lets look at the first dance Time, Space and Energy moving forward in time and given space and energy. Father Time. The beginning of the helix of life. The way it works is it weds with another world of knowledge into a never ending understanding of wisdom. The god particle will wed with another and then create, electrons and quarks. A new pair of new worlds that dance and create neutron and protons the nucleus of all atoms Hydrogen and Helium is the next into the largest suns ever created that will give birth to all the elements we see today. The sun will explode and disperse new worlds from the one out into space and time. If you look close  $1+1=3$ . And they all originate from a one. Trinities as one moving forward in time in a dance of wisdom. The language of the evolution of energy since the beginning of time can be read or sung into a dynasty of wisdom. Understanding “The Kingdom of God” The knowledge of one part of the song added to another gives birth to a new understanding of both into the wisdom of a new world. Energy and knowledge stack through time the same way. Both are a language. Languages within languages within languages.

Look to the mind. It has a trinity of three languages to make up you. Light, Chemical and electrical languages wedding into One. You and it records in the mind as time moves forward giving you the ability to look into the past language while in the present and then discern the path into the future. The trinity of Time. A child of father time. A child of Alpha to Omega. A child of God, A child of Love, A child of knowledge. A child of understanding, A child of Wisdom, A child of the Stars. A child of evolution, A child of Light, A child of Electromagnetic energy, A child of Chemistry the same language as the atoms, stars, you and your child universe of your mind. Fractal see how you can see a recognizable language or pattern. Knowledge will wed with knowledge and give birth to a new world of understanding.  $1+1=3+1=4+1=5$ . When 2 or more gather in my midst there shall I be. "Wisdom" God is all wisdom. Look at the double helix that makes you. It is a stacking of information that makes you a child of God with awareness of the parent universe and child universe that equals a world of wisdom. Wedding the two give you the nature of God and his infinite worlds of knowledge into understanding and wisdom. The trinity of mind and consciousness. Awareness.

Now lets look at the helix Knowledge, understanding and wisdom all evolve in a orbiting dance that moves forward in time. Creating a helix of code. The atom moves forward in time creating a orbiting helix of code. The Solar system moves forward in time and space creating a helix of code. The Human Body, Mind and Spirit moving forward in time creates a helix of code. The God, Jesus (Man as a child of God) and holy spirit moving forward in time create a helix of code. The galaxies of stars, planets and moons moving forward in time creates a helix of code. See the trinities and helix within trinities and helix's within trinities and helix's? Even the double helix is comprised of cells that have orbiting worlds in a universe creating a multi verse of code into a helix

Now lets look at the tree. The tree of knowledge branches out into new worlds of understanding and wisdom. The human tree branches out into new families of knowledge, understanding and wisdom. The tree of religion branches out into new worlds of knowledge. The tree of life originates from the one into branches of infinite worlds of knowledge. The unity of one or more gather in my midst there shall I be in the world of knowledge that branches out into orbiting understandings. The cell has a nucleus with worlds orbiting around it in a membrane of its universe. Creating a vast multi-verse of worlds of knowledge wedded into understanding.  $1+1=3$ , two to tango into 3. The trinities branching out from that from which they came. Origin. Origin is one of our greatest questions throughout all time. To be gods fingertips stretching outward from that from which it came to understand and create into reality. Even creation is evolving through our minds and imagination that is created in the child universe of inventions then out into the parent universe of reality. We were created by creation with the ability to create into reality new creations and in all this affirms that we are kin to our creator God.

Even the humane body has trees in the form of the nervous system and circulatory system that look like how our cities being the Hub, nuclei or brains and have a nervous system and circulatory system in the form of streets being the capillaries or smallest branches connected to veins or main roads connected to arteries or highways. All trees originate from the one like rings in a tree showing the age of its evolution with a circulatory and nervous system. Even the universe has a flesh, nervous and circulatory system which is tethered to us fractal.

The nuclei or core of creation. All atoms have a nuclei or core. All cells have a nuclei or core. Trees have nucleus's that make up rings with a core. We have a core to our being. Suns and planets have a core or nuclei. All galaxies have a nuclei or core. So there are endless ways we are in his likeness besides being Gods fingers. He gave us his best. Him for the best possible outcome. And I argue that God is much more than man but everything that man is in. The father God is in me as I am in the father God.

“Living Water”

The spiritual living water and the worlds living water speaks the same language. Both contain a trinity of life. The God, Jesus and holy spirit and the H<sub>2</sub>O. Two hydrogen and one oxygen that relates to the same principles that speak the same language. It unites hydrogen and oxygen. All supporting life. Both quench the thirst and both follow the same principles as the God particle. Unity in principle is the God particle. It weds with another creating a language of both that unite into a new world of both becoming one. A new world of understanding.  $1+1=3$ .

Both support life. Both speak the language of the life of anything that supports life. Both are indestructible. Example You don't fight fire with fire you unless you have no water. But you have water. Plenty of water. You have the living water that lies in the heart in the form of love and truths. When a fire seems large you turn to the heart and apply more water. And you will find that water is greater than fire. Indestructible! What happens to water when it fights fire? Does it get destroyed? No, It turns into a gas and unites once more into the atmosphere in the form of clouds that unite into rain that unites into life. It unites into the plants that unites into life. In the root system are small tubes that accept one molecule at a time and since it cant compress the molecule. It stacks or unites one water molecule below the last pushing the water up into the plant supporting the language of life. The plants unite into the food chain of life. Also in the bible the water is referenced as the breath or atmosphere of life. Both breath life. Both are the cup that filleth over,

prin·ci·ple

1. A fundamental truth or proposition that serves as the foundation for a system of belief or behavior or for a chain of reasoning.

2. “The basic principles of Christianity”

3. “The most elementary principles of physics (Natural Physics” A small set of laws or principles that govern all other laws

4. A general scientific theorem or law that has numerous special applications across a wide field. (Like Unconditional Love. God, Jesus and The Holy Spirit refereed to as the Breath or Atmosphere). The living water of Life. These three quench the thirst and have numerous Special applications

Drinking of God as the Fountain of Living Waters to Become His Increase

Drinking of God as the Fountain of Living Waters to Become His Increase. In the picture: John 4:13-14 We as Christians and genuine believers in Christ need to do one thing: we need to drink of God as the fountain of living waters! Yes, we need to read the Bible, we need to pray, we need to meet with other saints, and we need to do so many other things, but first and foremost, even as we're doing all the other things, we need to drink God.

Our God is a fountain of living waters, and any other water we drink will never satisfy or quench our thirst (John 4:13-14). How do we drink of God? There are many ways, the simplest of which is calling on the name of the Lord – O Lord Jesus! – From the depth of our being, until living water gushes out!

Also, we can drink of God by exercising our spirit as we read the Bible, by pray-reading the Word of God, by singing, by praying, etc. As long as we open our mouth and exercise our spirit, we drink God as the living water!

In His economy God desires to dispense Himself as the living water into us as His people to produce His increase, His enlargement, for His expression (see Col. 2:19: we hold the Head, from whom comes something which causes the growth of the Body into the Head).

The result of our drinking of God as the fountain of living waters is that we become His increase and His enlargement.

God's Economy is to Dispense Himself into us to Produce His Increase.

What is God's economy? What is God's plan and His purpose? He doesn't merely want followers, zealous adherents to a set of laws and principles of the living water with Unconditional Love. What God desires in His economy is to dispense Himself as the living water into man with Unconditional Love so that He may produce His increase, His enlargement, to be His corporate expression.

Everything God does is organic, and when the Lord Jesus was on the earth He kept likening Himself to the living water, the bread of life, the living bread, the life, the resurrection life, etc.

Throughout the Bible God is consistent when it comes to what His economy is: He wants to be man's life and life supply by dispensing Himself into man as living water and living bread.

When we eat of God and drink of Him, an organic process takes place in us – we are being reconstituted with God, re-arranged inwardly, and we look like Him more and more. Eventually, God as life fills us, saturates us, and is expressed through us.

This is God's economy, to gain a corporate expression on the earth through a group of people who daily enjoy His dispensing as living water and bread of life (John 6:35)!

In Jeremiah 2:13 we see God rebuking His people of the evil of forsaking Him as the fountain of living waters. In John 4:10, 14 the Lord Jesus presents Himself to man as the fountain of living water. In John 7:38-39 we see that whoever believes into the Lord will have river of living water flowing from his innermost being. In Rev. 22:1-2 we see that in the New Jerusalem there's a river of water of life flowing throughout the city and the tree of life is on both sides of the river.

The seed is in Jeremiah, the development is John, and the consummation is in Revelation.

Taking God as the Fountain of Living Waters by Drinking Him

We need to see that nothing apart from God as the fountain of living waters can quench our thirst and satisfy us. Also, nothing apart from God being dispensed into us can make us His increase for His expression. We need to see that nothing apart from God as the fountain of living waters can quench our thirst and satisfy us. Also, nothing apart from God being dispensed into us can make us His increase for His expression.

No effort to please God, get close to God, read His word (without drinking Him), acquire spiritual and biblical knowledge (without drinking God) will do. The only way for us to take God as the fountain of living waters is to drink Him.

When we drink God, when we exercise our spirit and open our mouth and heart to receive Him as living water into us, we become God's increase and enlargement, and out of our being will flow rivers of living water!

We see the matter of drinking in Paul's writings also: in 1 Cor. 12:13 we see that we were all baptized in one Spirit into one Body (we were immersed and put into the Spirit), and we were all given to drink one Spirit (we take the Spirit in and are saturated with the Spirit). This is the Body of Christ: a group of human beings that are immersed and lost in the Spirit (baptized in the Spirit) and who continually drink of the Spirit and are saturated with the Spirit.

In 1 Cor. 10:3-4 Paul tells us that we eat Christ as the living spiritual food and drink Him as the living water, as we see in type the Israelites doing so in the wilderness (the manna is a type of Christ and the rock that followed the Jews was also a type of Christ).

When Christ was crucified and resurrected, from Him flowed the Spirit (who was not yet before His resurrection, see John 7:39), and now we can drink of God as the Spirit for the building up of the church!

We have to admit that we drink from so many other “fountains”, and we tend to forsake God as the fountain of living waters. But day after day we need to drink of the fountain of living waters, taking in what issues of our spiritual contact with God, and we will become His increase, His reproduction, the church!

“Distractions are the devil’s devices to keep God’s people from receiving the divine dispensing.” (Witness Lee) May we be those who stay on the alert and reject any distractions from drinking!

Lord Jesus, keep us drinking! May we be those who take Paul’s advice to immerse ourselves in God as the Spirit and drink the Spirit to be saturated with God. Lord, we don’t want to forsake You as the fountain of living waters. Thank You for the fountain of water of life installed in our spirit! We simply can turn to our spirit, exercise our spirit, and we touch the fountain of life! May we really see that nothing else satisfies. Lord, make us the best drinkers of the living water, the best enjoyment of God as the fountain of life to be Your expression and enlargement on earth!
