Preface

Please note that this book needs to be read carefully and studied if one seeks to fully understand and harness the words within. Also, please read with an open mind – an open mind is vital to all understanding.

This is not a religious book, but it is a spiritual book. By spiritual, I strictly mean: that which concerns one's own spirit, therefore one's own inner spiritual state, and God. It must be clarified at the beginning that this is not the 'happy hippie' sort of spirituality, and nor is it the Ouija board, spirit contacting sort of spirituality. This is the kind of spirituality that will internally change you.

Be warned before you read: This is a challenging book with challenging information. Reading it the first time may drain you somewhat, owing to the complexity of some of the topics - and also, you may find that the directness of delivery may hurt at times. If you love this book, you will really love it, and if you hate it, you will really hate it.

Know that love or hate is not in the book, for this book contains only words, but instead it is in you. Either way, in no form will you be on the fence about this book after reading it.

As the author, I recommend that this book is read in the following manner:

From beginning to end the first time - and then allow the information it contains to settle in the mind. Then the second reading should be done one chapter at a time. After two readings of the book in this manner, you may begin the study of it sentence by sentence, in order to gain a deeper understanding, if you still wish to do so. Only then, should you begin to apply what you have learned in to your life. Also, you will find that I have numerously repeated certain sentences or points; this has been done intentionally, and I encourage you to pay extra attention whenever you find this.

I wish you only the best.

In veins, In Soul
Only You
I found
Just You, 'The None'

I only say
It's just You, just You
To every soul, to every face
And every creature

I chant 'The None' is, 'The Wow' is
From my heart, mind and my mouth
Whether it is 'I am' or 'Of None'
'I am' or 'The Wow'
It's only You, whoever You are!

Only a few have understood Your full Glory
Then they don't add words to Your True Names
Once they understand 'The None'
All other understanding comes by itself
Then they don't kill, chop or cut anyone
Whether it is a human, a bird or a goat

The one who is close to you & is sunk in Your Love
Knows All is inside of You
They get killed, chopped and cut, like Jesus
Without killing, chopping or cutting anyone else

Ey hundey masoom sachey ashiiq hu

These are the truly Innocent lovers
Who chant 'Love' even whilst being sacrificed!

Not those who chant Great is God!
Whilst massacring innocent Creatures

He knows everyone's true inner state
The One who is the true owner of all: 'The None'
The One who is amused by devil's servants

Devil always chops his own foot with his own axe
Who lost the war with God, as soon as declaring it
Who has taught this monkey business to all

Incidentally, it is not any fault of the monkeys
There's not much difference in man and monkey

It's just that man is one who is committed to finding God
While monkey is concerned with serving its own survival
O' monkey, if you too chant God's true names
Even you will appear as man to the Universe

Friend, what else shall I tell you?
Just chant God's true names.

Allah hu, ya Shiva hu
Ishvar hu, ya Rahma hu
Yahweh hu, ya Wahey hu
Bass woh hi hu, naam joh bhi hu!

Unnu satnaama che na koi farakh disda hu

‘The None’ is, The ‘Of None’ is,
The ‘Supreme’ is, The ‘Unparalleled’ is,
‘I am’ is, ‘The Wow’ is,
Just He is, whatever his name is!

He never discriminates any of His given names
It is you who is always discriminating
You are the one, calling your own siblings enemies
Yet Jesus is saying LOVE EVEN THY ENEMIES!

Rehabilitate yourself man, there is still some time.

Rehabilitate yourself man, there is still some time.

When you become envious or angry inside
Know that you hurt God very much
When you hurt another, it is you who will be hurt later!
If only you knew, that the Universe is inside you
You would appear instantly rehabilitated

Man, come together, be together, for God’s sake!

A Word on God

It is a hopeless pursuit trying to describe or explain God. For this requires the listeners and readers to believe, and all belief is useless. Therefore, it is vital that one must come to know God.

In order to know God, it is even more vital that you first know yourself.

Instead of questioning, 'Who is God?'
Ask the question, 'Who am I?'

Sit or lie down in silence, and with your inner voice, chant 'Who?' Just concentrate on the sound and intention. Sounds and intentions transcend the limits of languages.

Who is the question. Am is the Answer. The question and the answer will both lead you to the same destination.

'Am. Am. Am. Amm. Amm. Aumm. Aumm.'

When 'Who' or 'Aum' is realised,
Then the I, and its desires, begin to become obsolete, although still present.

With this, self-realisation takes place, and you begin to realise your Origin. This is the first stage in Enlightenment.

With continued practice, the realisation that Aum or Am is the One energy that is in all becomes established.

All that vibrates as One with the vibration of Aum or Am is creation.

All creation has a beginning.

Therefore, all creation also has an end.

It is then realised, that your Origin is not from One-ness, but from No Thing-ness; None-ness.

Various languages contain names for God's State of No Thing-ness. These are not God's names, but simply a description of His State.

God doesn't ever introduce Himself by name and never has. He simply Is. In His realm, He is the only One - so of what use is a name when names are simply a method of differentiating one from another?

The best-known names in the world for describing His States of None-ness are Allah (or more correctly: Al-Lah) in Arabi (modern day Arabic) and Shiva in an other-worldly language.

Both essentially mean ‘Without Form’; ‘Anti-Matter’; ‘The None’.

The None Form.

The None Beginning.

The None Ending.

The None Male.

The None Female.

The None Creatable.

The None Destroyable.

The None Body.

The None Thing.

Only when you become no body, and no thing, will you know Eternal Bliss.

Eternal Freedom from pain and pleasure. Eternal Freedom from matter itself.

This happens when one attains Union with the Almighty, known as Moksha or Mukhti.

This is known as God-realisation.

Otherwise, at best, you will have to make do with the sickly sweetness of heaven.

Even the heaven-bound, eventually cry and beg for Eternal Bliss. If you think bondage of desires and pleasures and addictions feel good, I urge you to give liberation a try.

This is what this game of life has always been about.

Just like all games, there are keys, guides, and principles.

Study what I have written, learn to play the game, and win if you wish.

If not, at least don't be a corrupt player unknowingly.

A Word on Life

What is life? It's been asked throughout all the Ages, fully answered in none.

Life is this: Life is God's soul, having a series of infinite experiences through the creative channel of His mind over His matter. You, being, are His matter. Some beings have the ability to only give God pleasant experiences, and therefore only have pleasant experiences themselves. Some, like you and I, have the ability to choose freely – and give God a kind of a roulette of experiences. Some of these free ones, consciously give God good and healthy experiences by laughing, loving, caring, living harmoniously, and by keeping all forms of innocence intact, while some others give God bad experiences through a lack of consciousness by killing, hurting, stealing, lying, slandering, living disharmoniously with nature and destroying all forms of innocence.

This begs the question: so, why did God grant free will, if most choose to exercise it for bad?

If you are not interested in the answer, please gift this book to a friend – it is not for you.

If you are interested, then study every word - for although I have written these words, the inspiration, knowledge and Guidance to write them came from the Authority beyond me, to whom I'm a servant.

A Word on Devil

The only thing that separates man from God is the web of deception spun by what we interchangeably, and wrongly, call the Devil or Satan or Lucifer. In this web, we often get so deeply caught that we lose all perception of who we are, where we've come from, and thus, we get lost in being in a state of Devil, or of 'De Evil' or of 'the evil'. This web is called Ego, and most are lost to it, and even consumed by it.

Devil is not a person, or a being, or a 'fallen' angel as you've been led to believe. Sure, he, or more appropriately, 'it', can take any form in the material world, and indeed it takes many forms. However, in reality it is a form of energy belonging to the matter realm, which makes up God's body unlike God's soul, which is anti-matter. For the purpose of alleviating confusion, I will refer to this malicious energy of the matter realm as either devil, or Ego with a capital E; for the same purpose, I will also refer to it as he.

Just as we have a controlling egotistic energy present in all of us that constantly seeks material satisfaction and control over us, the devil is the egotistic energy present within God that seeks to take full control, to overcome God, and live as God in God's dimension: the 11th dimension.

But just like all evil does not ever think of itself as evil, but instead thinks of itself as good, the evil inside of God also does not think of itself as evil, but as good. It has been said the devil is God's enemy and it's true, for God is not about mortal matter, but immortal anti-matter. However according to the devil, he is a true lover and devotee of God. He means no harm, but still, influences all harm and sabotages all goodness, which turns God further and further away from devil.

This is the Evil eternally chasing the Good, and not necessarily God, simply because it's madly in love and wants to consume it. This is the Good, and not necessarily God, eternally at war with the Evil, resisting consumption. This is the perpetuity of Duality. This is what makes things continue.

What makes evil evil, is evil always seeks to conquer – to take over all there is, and make everything its own. Cancers, viruses, or globalisation of any sort, whether it be ideological, economical, financial, racial etc. is always the sole purpose of evil; total control of all is what it seeks, and the only way to totally control anything is through expansion and eventually, total consumption.

This is how the devil promises to overthrow God: through expansion and consumption. What makes goodness good however, is goodness always minds its own business.

Goodness is polite, well-mannered, considerate, compassionate, and even meek. It has no intention of globe domination or cosmic domination, but instead concentrates on self-control and the regulation of its own faculties, just like God. This is God retorting to the devil's promise: 'We'll see.' This 'We' being God's Soul and all matter devoted to His Soul.

Know this for it will be crucial in times ahead: It is always evil which strikes first - never goodness. Two sides of good can never fight, simply because neither wishes to win or overcome the other, and thus, neither will strike first. Good is too busy being good, while Evil is too busy spreading what it thinks is its goodness, when in reality it is just more of its evil. Evil seeks to overcome all, expand everywhere, consume everything, and thus, has no issue with striking first.

Expansion of anything never comes without the contraction of something else, and therefore, all expansion comes at the cost of casualty. Casualty is what good seeks to avoid the most.

When the coming Kingdom of God, or the Golden Age, will finally be established in the future, it won't be established through conquest or expansion. It will be established because evil will consume itself. As it is the nature of evil to consume all, it eventually begins to consume itself too. When this starts to happen, the Earth will start to recalibrate and clean itself in preparation for the next Age, as it always has, hastening the process of their destruction. They always dig holes and hide; water always gets everywhere; artificial oxygen always runs out; they always die as sorry fools.

All that the future inhabitants of the Kingdom have to do however, is to stay true to the Ultimate Truth, hold your ranks, and provide resistance to evil when it comes to you and strikes first. When the time comes, know that the police and the armies will not be on your side. They do not serve you. They only serve their masters, who in turn, serve devil. Also know that the meek will inherit the Kingdom; this is the promise of the coming King, and he doesn't make false promises, I assure you.

Understand this: the meek will inherit the Kingdom, because the meek cannot attain the Kingdom. Those who should be in power, don't ever have what it takes to attain power; those who have what it takes to attain power, shouldn't ever stay in power. For the latter sort have an evil that resonates with the characteristics of devil himself. It is the nature of the devil to attain, but later consume; all those with this energy resonating inside eventually become consumed if they stay in power for too long once they have attained it. But in order to conquer and eradicate evil, a greater evil, with a full understanding of evil, which is known as justice, is required. This is the evil, which even the evil will consider evil, just like criminals consider prosecutors and judges evil. The one who contains this greater evil, is known as the King of Justice/ the Mahdi/ the Kalki Avatar/ the Rider on the white horse/ and is a relative of Jesus or Yeshua (pronounced: 'Eesh'aa) in soul and consciousness.

He is the one who has been prophesised in all the major religions who will put an end to the evil of this Age of evil, for he contains a greater evil, a different kind of evil. This greater evil, although can be temporarily contained within him, cannot stay in power - and nor will he want power, for he will be aware that this evil will try to later consume him, and his faithfulness to the Almighty won't allow him to succumb to it. Thus, there will be a transfer of power from the King of Justice to the King of Innocence (Eesh'aa), when the King of Innocence returns towards the last few battles. Both are representatives and servants of The King of Kings and Lord of Lords: God. Both carry His seal, which only they know.

This is how the meek will inherit the Kingdom of the King of Kings, the Lord of Lords: God. Don't get The King of Kings and Lord of Lords: God, the Rider on the white horse, and Eesh'aa (Christ) confused with one another. They are of the same, but different. Translations, mistranslations, and misinterpretations of scriptures have confused who is truly who, and what is truly what. This has been done intentionally by devil's influence throughout this Age to confuse people. Also know that riding a white horse will not make one the Rider on the white horse, for there is much more to this than the colour of one's horse - so be wary of imposters.

God resides at 100% consciousness (awareness), while the devil resides at close to 0%. Being a part of God, and close to God, the devil has a similar but smaller apparatus of powers and will, but without any of the awareness to go with it. This lack of consciousness, or in other words, awareness, is what makes the devil evil and God good. This is also the basis for Duality. This is partly, the cosmic game.

In all good games, things are always at stake. ‘Chapters’ of life, which you call ‘life’ are at stake, yes. Rewards and losses, harmony and disharmony, pain and pleasure are all also at stake, yes. ‘Ages’ or ‘Stages of cosmic battles’ are at stake, yes. Cosmic territory is at stake, yes. However, don’t be fooled with the presumption that ‘innocent life’ is ever at stake.

What do you truly know who, or what, is innocent and who, or what, is not?

Who decides who is innocent?

Oneself? No.

You? No.

Me? Certainly no.

Even God doesn’t decide who is innocent and who is not. Only a person’s deeds decide how innocent they are or not – and this ‘book of deeds’ is carried through lifetimes, life chapter after life chapter, constantly being written in and adjusted through that person’s own doing.

To understand this further, you would first have to understand one of God’s Laws: Karma, or the Law of Causation, which presides over the entire Cosmos, inside of God.

A Word on Karma

Karma is the Divine Law of Causation, which is used to regulate the cosmos along with other Divine Laws. The Law of Causation dictates that whatever is given, is always returned. This law perpetuates the existence of matter, which is known as life.

Every piece of matter, or body of matter, has its own record of Karmic history which records where the body has been, what it's done, and how it has developed through time. These records are constantly being updated with the body's thoughts, communications and actions, of which, that being's energy and consciousness is a net result.

Karmic records are not erased at the end of one's life, for there is no end to life, as life is just a by-product of the existence of matter. All matter comes into temporary states of birth and therefore existence, and then returns to temporary states of death or non-existence – and this cycle continues with the consciousness (one's soul) entering into new matter depending on the level it attained in its last state of existence. Thus, rocks become plants, plants become trees, trees become animals, animals become other animals of higher consciousness, until, at least on Earth, one reaches the highest state of existence: a human being.

A human being's purpose is to yet further transcend this existence too, and reach God, for humans are made in the image of God – an image which is mainly reflected in their shape of body and freedom of will.

When any body of life transcends, in ascension or descension, from one form of existence to another, he or she carries with them their Karmic records, and thus the Law of Causation continues to apply to the individual in their new life. Karma records everything; No detail is ever missed. Whatever is given, is always returned exactly as it was given. It is the fairest system, for it is devised by God Himself for the self-regulation of His cosmos. Thus, Karma does not discriminate, either positively or negatively, and is certainly not swayed by emotion or unwarranted mercy.

The Divine Law of Causation causes one to experience what one has made someone else directly or indirectly experience. It is the role of this Law to not only regulate our external cosmos, which is God's internal cosmos, but also to be a teacher to make one understand, through contemplation and meditation, their own situation and state, which is always a net result of their Karmic records.

Gaining an understanding of one's Karmic records through the contemplation of every act, thought, and word, of the present, past and future is therefore vital to understanding and knowing oneself – which is what leads to the various forms of realisation.

A Word on Anti-Christ et al.

This book has a primary purpose. This purpose is to warn the men and women of the coming Kingdom of the Christ of this Age, by shedding light on the final Anti-Christ of this Age. This chapter therefore, is the largest section of this book and it is vital that it is studied and understood, line-by-line. I have hidden the identity of the final Anti-Christ of this age within this book, which I will reveal to my close ones when the Anti-Christ is ready, so they'll know who it is, while he is busy deceiving the rest.

I have hidden his name, and don't wish to give it away prematurely, because I know better than to meddle with Divine plans as they only get delayed, or worse – changed. This always happens when the future is meddled with by revealing aspects of the future such as names, dates of events, and excessive details of events, before it is suitable to do so. There have been too many delays already. However, there are certain things, which I can reveal:

Firstly, let's establish what or who is an Anti-Christ? An Anti-Christ is someone who seeks to take the place of the Christ - the Anointed One. Who is the One, who is Anointed by God, to oversee the establishment of mental, physical and spiritual health in His Kingdom, also known by modern Christians as the ‘Church’. The Church is not a building, or a place, or a country, but in fact it is a state of being of the inhabitants of Earth. Christ is also not a name or a mere title, but a role. At the end of every age there comes a Christ, along with many Anti-Christis who also seek to either be the Christ, due to envy, or directly and indirectly sabotage the Christ. The Christ of this current age is Yeshua (pronounced: ’Eesh’aa), whom people wrongly call Jesus (please refer to chapter on Christ).

Please separate all ideas of ’Eesh’aa from the Christ. The Christ is a role - a job - whereas ’Eesh’aa is a person. The role of the Christ is to be King of the world. The role of the Anti-Christ is to seek to be the same. The Anti-Christ won’t necessarily claim to be ‘Eesh’aa the person, otherwise known as Yeshua or Jesus, but he will seek to become King of the world – a position which can only be held by the Christ of an Age.

Thus, he will eventually claim to be ‘The Christ’, ‘The Anointed or Appointed One’ or a ‘Messiah’. The Anti-Christ is the ultimate deceiver. There have been many Anti-Christis in this Age - mostly weak, but four main strong ones. The first has been the most dangerous and deceptive being to have lived so far.

His name was Muhammad, The Conqueror, and the founder of Islam. The two middle Anti-Christ's were extremely mild in comparison, albeit still terrible enough to be of the main four. They are of no significance other than to transfer energy in matter through time, similar to the concept of what is known as a Newton's Cradle – wherein, in comparison to the first ball and the last, the middle ones remain motionless, acting as mere transmitters and receivers of energy. Therefore, in order to know of the coming King of Deception, it is vital that you learn about the first King of Deception of this age: Muhammad. No one in the history of mankind has ever done so much to lower the consciousness of his own people and sabotage the position of Christ, than Muhammad has. Let me explain why. Pay close attention to every sentence.

Muhammad was a good man of good character who worked as a travelling merchant. He was handsome, well spoken, and righteous in the sense that he always told the truth and was a voice of good reason in his community, making him popular enough to at least be given the title of 'Al-Amin', or

‘the trustworthy one’ by his fellows. This is vital to remember, because his handsome appearance, charm and good character later won him the attention of one of the richest women in Arabia, known as Khadija. She owned a merchant empire, and at 40, was still looking for a suitor. Also, his honesty granted him some of the required spiritual fuel for his spiritual endeavours later. It was Khadija who proposed to him, something unheard of, arguably even in today’s societies - a fact many Muslims are quick to remind people, as testimony of Muhammad’s excellent character and conduct. Know this: The Anti-Christ’s don’t come in the guise of monsters, even though that is very much what they are, but in the guise of charm and good looks to rouse a people – if they looked like monsters, devoid of any charm, they wouldn’t be very good deceivers at all.

After marriage to Khadija, Muhammad at the age of 25, was then of course given better trading positions and routes, which led him to further and more exotic locations in Northern Arabia such as Yardana – modern day Jordan – and also to Israel. Here he came in contact with new caravans, goods, and traders from all over the mid-band of Earth, which was also called ‘Middle Earth’ – a term now only heard of in archaic texts and old fiction. This region included powerhouses of once great nations and civilisations such as Egypt, Greece, Turkey, Iraq (Babylon), Israel, Iran (Persia) and India. All spiritually enlightened people, by spiritual law, come from 'Middle Earth'.

With a lack of electronic forms of entertainment, which we have today, in those times the most popular forms of entertainment were oratory-based traditions such as singing, poetry and storytelling. In this manner Muhammad learned of the ways, tales, and history of other religious and political systems. This is also vital to remember.

Alongside, he also met various groups of spiritually enlightened nomadic peoples on these trade routes. These included the Yogis of India, Hebrews of Israel and Sabaeens of modern-day Iraq, Jordan and Western Iran. These nomads used to travel the lands, teaching spirituality and Gnosticism to pagan audiences all over middle earth. (Side Note on the above-mentioned people: The Yogis are not to be confused with modern day Hindus or modern Hindu/Yogi hybrid false gurus or teachers. Not to say there is anything wrong with Hindus, they are a body of people, and like all people there are good ones and bad ones. The only bad they all do however, is partake in idol worship.

On the other hand, true Yogis are a completely Gnostic and wandering people who are only concerned with the internal dimensions of their being, and thus have eventually reached a state of ‘Yoga’ or ‘Union’ with the Almighty. Even an enlightened person may not necessarily be a true Yogi, as they haven’t yet attained Yoga or Union - also known as Moksha or Mukhti. Yogi is not a title to be thrown around lightly. Just like learning English doesn’t necessarily mean one has become English, practicing Yoga doesn’t necessarily mean the practitioner has become a Yogi.

Yogis are also strictly not to be confused with modern day people who refer to themselves as Yogis just because they practice Yoga Asanas (Yoga of the body) in gyms and classes. Although, true Yogis do indeed practice physical stretching exercises to keep their bodies limber in between long meditation sessions which can be hours, and sometimes even days long in seated positions in order to help alleviate chronic muscle stiffness, and even occurrences of temporary paralysis due to muscle and nerve adhesion.

However, this aspect of Yoga, is an important but very small practical aspect of what Yoga is and should not really be called Yoga.

Yoga is not something you do, but a state of Union that you reach. When one has reached the state of Yoga, he or she loses all sense of identity attachment. A true Gnostic, or a true Yogi is a person who has attained full Union with the Almighty and therefore knows Him. The number of people present on Earth at any one given time, who have reached this state, can be counted on the fingers of one hand and they are all spiritually inter-connected with one another due to their primary connection with God.

Ironically, it is these same people who will never refer to themselves as a Yogi or a Gnostic, while people who are totally devoid of intrinsic gnosis will call themselves Gnostics, and those who have never experienced the state of Yoga or Union will call themselves Yogis. Also, the True ones never, under any circumstances, refer to themselves as Lord, Bhagwan (godly), Guru (teacher), Swami (master), Sai (saint) or Sri (eminent) etc, irrespective of whether these are actually valid titles for them. Such people, even when called these things by their devout disciples, rebuke them, let alone self-promote or encourage it. Thus, true Yogis are unconcerned with labels, identities, the material world, or deity or idol worship because they know the Ultimate Truth personally.

Anyone who worships an idol, has not yet reached Yoga, and therefore has not yet realised the Ultimate Truth. Idol worshipping gurus or ‘Gnostics’ who pass themselves off as Yogis, or fully enlightened beings, are partially enlightened at best, unenlightened but sophisticated deceivers at worse, and practitioners of demon-summoning and Magick at worst. They know who they are, and we also know who they are.

The Hebrews were a group of peoples, including the people of Yehuda (Judah), or modern-day Jews, to whom Moses taught not just aspects of moral laws of conduct, but to some select disciples, also the spiritual aspects of Being. He taught them the workings of one’s inner dimensions and how to stimulate the soul to grow. This is the same knowledge or science taught by enlightened beings belonging to, or heads of, other gnostic groups, but taught in different words and ways to suit different cultures’ strengths and limitations, understanding, and temperaments. The knowledge is always the same, because the Source from where this knowledge is received is always the same – only the teaching methods vary from place to place and people to people, and also according to the teaching style of the teacher.

Please also note, this knowledge is very different to the Biblical forbidden knowledge given by the extra-terrestrials to the Elders of Zion (please refer to chapter on States of Consciousness), such as Magick and certain other occult and natural sciences, which take people away from the Ultimate Truth. This is the Biblical seduction of Eve, at the end of one of the last Great Ages, when mankind was plunged into darkness, or the opposite of Enlightenment, due to the practice of forbidden knowledge. Understand this: no knowledge is good or bad. Knowledge is simply what is and what isn't. However, in the absence of awareness of what is and what isn't (consciousness), knowledge or partial knowledge can be used for great harm. Only God, the 10th dimension, has constant awareness of all that is within his 10 dimensions. Therefore, certain knowledge is forbidden to beings of each dimension, simply because they don't have the awareness of how the different pieces of the puzzle are linked to other parts of this multi-dimensional puzzle. Thus, they do great harm through science, or in other words, through the gathering of knowledge haphazardly and sporadically through experimentation. This is why certain knowledge is known as forbidden knowledge. Many good things can come as a result of experiments - but so can nuclear bombs, and so can Magick.

Intelligence, something humans are very proud of, is gained through experimentation and improving the results of the experimentations, while consciousness is knowing when to leave something alone. Intelligence is knowing how to make a nuclear bomb, while consciousness is knowing not to make it at all. We'll all witness the 'good work of science' in nuclear bomb technology in the coming days.

Know this: God loves the simple minded, who only seek to love – and no intelligence is required for love. Societies without any intelligence can be far happier, as compared to the intelligence rich societies of the world today. Just observe the simplicity and harmonious ways of life of remote civilisations who are mocked for their primitive ways. They may not have Wi-Fi to connect to the internet, but they do have time to connect to God. They also have happiness; true happiness which results from a lack of possessions. Know that the more intelligence one gains, the unhappier and more frustrated one becomes. These people also don't harm the Earth like parasites within a body. They don't create poisonous matter such as plastics, which is an altogether alien matter in the Universe.

So always remember the difference between intelligence and consciousness. Information can be known through both; just in very different ways with very different outcomes. Similarly, how does one know Magick? One has to be taught it, yes, but how does the teacher know? Or how does the teacher of the teacher stemming back to the original teachers of Magick know? Through experimentation, fuelled by two things: curiosity (a form of ego-driven greed), and a lack of awareness of what is what. If one already knows what is what, one no longer needs to experiment. Take attaining Yoga or Union, on the other end of the spectrum, for example: to attain Yoga, one simply sits and silences the mind, and restrains the Ego. This is all it takes, albeit very simply put, to attain Union with the Almighty. No experimentation is required. To experiment is to do, whereas Yoga is attained through the not doing of things: the none exercise of the chatter of the mind and the none exercise of the ego and its wants.

This is what meditation is: it's the doing of nothing, and then eventually, the becoming of nothing, which automatically attains Union with He who is No Thing, No One, and The None. However look at the stark difference in the two types of attainment: one type of knowledge is attained through greedy and reckless pursuit of knowledge, hazardous experimentation, and greed for matter driven by Ego, whereas the other type of knowledge – real knowledge, or God's knowledge – is attained through lack of pursuit, silence, and eradication of all greed. For once one attains God, one attains all that is God's. The challenge is attaining God.

Therefore, there is a big difference in these two types of gnosis - in fact, these are the two types of gnosis in Duality – in other words they are complete opposites. Loud knowledge versus silent knowledge. Devil knowledge versus God knowledge. Which do you think is superior? The one that has to be pursued with the nonsensical ambition to empty the knowledge of the entire 10 dimensions in to a 3rd dimensional brain, or the one where one becomes silent, throws away all the walls and the webs of the ego, and thus, automatically becomes at one with, and therefore becomes the 10 dimensions in a state of Union?

Ironically, the devil too has been attempting to gain God-knowledge ever since his Creation, but he simply doesn't know how to control the devil within him. This is why most people say the spiritual path is not for them, and it's true: it is not. Even devil, with all his might and power, loses all steam, and realises, that this might is beyond his might, and this power is beyond his power.

Now, remember when I mentioned Hindu-Yogi hybrid gurus? What I call the hybrid guru or teacher, is he or she who started off well, with good intentions, therefore gained some progress through meditation and silence, but hasn't been able to maintain constant progress due to their inability to constantly restrain their ego (greed, arrogance, impatience etc.). Therefore, they have succumbed to their ego and fallen into the trap of practicing forbidden knowledge such as Magick, alchemy, consecrated idol-worship and other such practices, which I won't mention, to make up for their lack of progress, just so they can continue feeling like they are still making some sort of progress; all they, or more accurately, their ego, really wants is more material: spiritual powers, fame, money etc. You can see it for yourselves; they are wealthy themselves, yet they preach charity to the already poor.

When one gives in to their ego more and more, Ego grants them more and more matter to keep them hooked, just like a fish deceived by the glistening allure of the tackle. Those who deceive others, were first deceived themselves.

The Sabaeens were a group of gnostic people, who didn't partake in, or practice forbidden knowledge. The Sabaeens were and are a good people, who are now known as the Mandaeans – or the people of Manda (knowledge). John the Baptist, an enlightened being, whose real name was Yohanan, was also a Sabaeen. They are currently subject to persecution in Iraq, their motherland, by Muslims - ironically whose very founder and leader the Sabaeens taught most of the very little gnosis he knew. End of Side note.)

It was from one of the spiritual masters from the above groups of people that Muhammad learned sound meditation and was given a 'mantra' which is a statement that is expressed 'by way of whole Mind', a common but powerful method to attain self-realisation and later, God realisation.

This mantra was in Arabic (they can be in any of the ancient languages) and the transliteration of which is La Elaha il Al-lah. However, it is now known to the Muslims as La Ilaha Il Allah which has altogether disguised its true significance.

The translation of the former is this: No The None but The None. Now this may not seem very cohesive or make much sense at first glance but let me explain. In those days and in that region, there was a group of languages spoken, known today as the Semitic languages, such as Hebrew, Arabic, Aramaic and Assyrian. All languages change and develop over time; but these ones were much more mutually intelligible then, than they are now. This was due to better trading practices, friendlier relations and a lack of hostility between the nations, which aided in the development of similar vocabulary for ease of communication between the traders at the time. In Arabic the word for ‘the’ is Al, in Hebrew it is El. They aren’t even separate words, but a variation in pronunciation of the same word. The word for ‘no’ is also the same in both languages: La or Lah. At the time, spoken language was, as always, more fluent or in shortened form. La or Lah was also a term to refer to ‘none’ as well as ‘no’.

For a very long period, one of the words used to refer to God in Hebrew, was simply El or ‘The’.

The what - you may ask? Simply: The.

Take from that what you will, but this is wisdom in its second highest form: referring to God simply as ‘The’.

This ‘The’ being all of the matter in existence.

This wisdom is surpassed only by referring to God as El-Lah – or ‘The None’. This aspect is the aether or anti-matter aspect of God, which is His soul and cannot be destroyed as it has no beginning or end - unlike the matter aspect of God which is creation (his body whom we’re all inside and a part of), and is constantly coming into states of beginnings and endings, perpetuating the infinite cycle of what we call ‘life’. All matter comes out of anti-matter. This gnosis or knowledge, predates ALL idolatry, Paganism, Science, Hinduism, Judaism, Christianity, and most certainly Islam. This gnosis predates the Biblical ‘Adam and Eve’. This gnosis predates time. Sure, some of it has trickled down in diluted or sporadic forms through many avenues of religion, but at its core, this gnosis predates all gnosis, for it is the gnosis of the Ultimate Himself.

So, with the mantra La Elaha il Al-la/ Allah, or No God ('La El-lah' – No The None) but God ('Il Allah' – but the None), it is encrypted within, that there is 'No one else but God', which is the same as saying 'we are all a part of God, as one'.

This is similar to the modern version, 'La ilaha il Allah', but the way this version is written lacks the emphasis on just how profound the meaning of the statement, or the descriptive word Al-lah is when it is joined up and passed off as just a meaningless name. Whichever way it is written, whether it be La Elaha il El-lah or La Alaha il Al-La, the difference is only in synonymy, and not in the underlying description, intention, or vibration of sound, which is what always takes precedence in the consecration of a mantra by a God-realised spiritual teacher.

When one has been given any form of Initiation, advice, a mantra, a practice, or an exercise by their spiritual master, as a disciple one has to - at least metaphorically speaking - hold on to the hem of their teacher's shirt for life and stay devout to their teachings. Know that a true mantra, given by a true teacher, with specific instructions to be followed, is strictly only ever meant to be given to disciples, years after successful studentship.

Discipleship is not for everyone, and nor should it ever be granted just because a student asks for it, for they may not be ready for it, or even deserving of it – clearly. It is the teacher’s duty to ascertain the same, for great long-term damage can be done due to softness, over-generosity, laxity, or carelessness on the teacher’s part.

If one wants to attain God, understand this: one needs to be prepared. Relative preparation of any sort, let alone the sort required for God, is seldom easy. It is due to a lack of this instilled discipline, that when Muhammad had his first spiritual experience at the age of 40, after 15 years of isolated but dedicated practice, he did not have the prerequisite knowledge or consciousness to even be able to understand the meaning of his teacher’s mantra, let alone control what started happening to him in the cave of Hira in modern day Saudi Arabia. He had taken the Initiation from a master in a land far away, who had irresponsibly granted Muhammad an extremely powerful mantra without him even having attained discipleship; He then lost contact with the master who granted him the mantric practices, but still he continued the practices without the necessary and pre-requisite full-time infrastructure of teaching and guidance provided by a master to support such powerful practices. So, when Muhammad finally did have the initial break-through in spiritual awakening, he had absolutely no idea what the very mantra he was given even fully meant.

Know this: To become a master, one has to have already been the perfect disciple in order to have attained mastery in the first instance. If one cannot become, or has not already been, the perfect disciple - one cannot ever become, or be, a True master. Master of who? Master of one's self.

When you have initial spiritual breakthroughs, without the strength of the master's soul protecting you, 4th dimensional beings, on the command of devil, come to you to misguide you or to harm you and your spiritual progress towards God and Egolessness. Just like there are bad people in this plane or dimension, there are many bad and mischievous beings in the 4th dimension too - the lower ranks of which, are known as demons.

And just like how in this world not all beautiful people are good, and not all ugly people are bad, in the 4th dimension too, not all angels are beautiful and not all demons are ugly. Some demons are the most breathtakingly beautiful creatures that are way beyond the imagination of a 3rd dimensional mind. If you don't have the consciousness or the correct guidance and protection from a God-realised teacher, you will be led astray in a breath, as was what happened to Muhammad. He immediately came running down from the cave, shouting and screaming and started to tell other non-enlightened people what he had experienced.

The only person one should ever discuss such events with is their master, in privacy, as they will be well experienced in such events and hurdles that come in the spiritual journey. Instead, he told his businesswoman wife, who then told her uncle, a religious priest, and together they devised and orchestrated the very beginning of the movement or religion of 'Islam' or 'submission'. All without even understanding, let alone realising, the meaning of the very mantra he had been given. Had he have understood, he would never have added 'Muhammadur Rasoolullah' which means 'and Muhammad is the messenger of Allah', and started referring to himself as a 'Holy prophet', the 'perfect example of man', and all other such ego centric descriptions and nauseating titles he self-promoted. Here, Muhammad failed at the very first hurdle of the hurdle-littered cosmic track that is Enlightenment.

Also, God is about liberation, not submission. If God wanted you to only do one thing over the other by force of will, singular will, or ‘submission’, he wouldn’t have given you His free will and the ability to freely exercise this will to choose everything for yourself in the first instance. One’s aspiration should be to liberate themselves from the clutches of the Ego with their will – not to submit this will, which God has gifted one with in the first place!

Consider this: here is God Himself, in all his 10th dimensional might and majesty, with All of creation inside Him functioning as microscopic sections of his Divine, crystalesque, multi-dimensional body, with entire galaxies functioning as mere cells inside Him, whose glory can’t even begin to be described in 9th dimensional language, let alone any 3rd dimensional language, describing Himself as Al-La, or ‘The None’, ‘No body’ to whomever attains Union with him, due to his complete lack of Ego.

On the other hand, here we have Muhammad, who so insolently and ignorantly proclaims, ‘And Muhammad is His Holy Messenger!’ or ‘Holy Prophet, whenever asked for an introduction - killing anyone who rejects him, just because of one small initial spiritual breakthrough.

These kinds of breakthroughs have been happening to meditators in India for millennia. This is what a lack of discipline (disciple-master relationship) in the spiritual path does to someone. It completely destroys that person, their consciousness, and anyone else who also gets taken in by the same ignorance and madness as them.

This is why slow and deliberate due diligence of any potential disciple, through the testing and analysing of their Ego, prior to granting discipleship, has always been essential. Prideful people can never attain Union - as Muhammad later claimed he had - for if there are even two atoms of pride to rub together in a person, they will experience an atomic bomb exploding their consciousness into smithereens the closer they get to attaining Union in the path of Enlightenment. This is exactly what happened to Muhammad when he started his conquests and killing en masse. (This is one of God's very own fail-safe and self-protecting mechanisms to stay untouched by Ego. This frustrates the devil much, and amuses us equally as much, for the devil continues to conspire, without even the realisation of which mechanism he himself was Created. If he knew himself, he too would know God, and thus attain liberation or Union – drawing this game to an end, with God as the winner, yet again. This game has been played and lost by devil in many different ways and many different times, trillions of earthly years before Earth even existed.

Objectively, it begs the question: why does the devil even bother? Ego is the answer; this is what ego does to a person, a being, or to the energy of Ego itself. Arrogance, self-importance, relentless ungodly ambition, and desire for matter, are all characteristics of all of the manifestations of Ego throughout the first 9 of the 10 dimensions of the Universe. All such characteristics always lead to the eventual demise of any faculty or institution they govern, unknown to it throughout the course of its existence.

Ego is blind, because it lacks awareness; it is the opposite of consciousness. Weaken your ego and your consciousness will strengthen automatically; strengthen your ego and your consciousness will weaken automatically.)

In order to be at one with He who is The None, you too must attain a state of none-ness through none ‘me, me, me’-ness. Spiritually inclined men don’t sit in isolation, wearing nothing but loincloth and dirt on the mountains of India just for fashion. It is a form of penance and conscious subjugation of the ego.

However even then, outer appearances are always less relevant than inner states, and it is these inner states, these inner dimensions, that these individuals are in the process of tuning and aligning. However, it can't ever be forgotten that this is just a small part of practice, because much more than penance or austerity is required for Enlightenment and finally Union (as explained in chapter on Prayer). On the other hand, if one attains none-ness inside, external humility can actually be intentionally made less overt and apparent. Often, overt and even ostentatious external humility, is just a manifestation of the very Ego that one seeks to subdue.

Thus, such individuals are deceived by the Ego yet again by thinking that they are now humble and devoid of Ego. Once again, a spiritual track hurdle has defeated them, as this individual no longer practices asceticism because they now begin to consider themselves above the God-created Ego, or even, completely devoid of it. However, if one solely concentrates on one's inner state instead, then the outer state can easily be altered to match it – for the outer state is just a matter of wearing simple clothes and cultivating culture-appropriate good manners. The same can't be said if it is the other way around.

This is why outward religion, or externalised religious practice, always fails in truly improving one's state. This is also why the truly God-realised beings, such as 'Eesh'aa (Jesus), Siddharth (Buddha), Nanak and many, many others always propagated inner development first. This is in stark contrast to Muhammad, who instead went into detail on how to best cut one's fingernails, and how it is 'rightful' to rape war captives and permissible to have intercourse with 9-year-old girls.

How is one expected to teach spiritual mastery, when one fell over the very first few hurdles on the spiritual path, let alone attained spiritual mastery?

Know this: If the internal aspects of one's being are well-developed, the outer aspects always naturally follow suit, for everything grows from inside outwards. Practicing outward religion by an individual is like covering a damp and mouldy wall with a layer of paint; it will be damp and mouldy again tomorrow.

Also, a prophet is simply a person who is shown certain things, and he or she then relays this to people. If people listen and heed the advice, because that's all it essentially is, it's good for them, in one way or another, depending on the prophecy. If they don't listen, then they just have to put up with whatever was going to happen anyway. This is all it is. It's really not a big deal, and certainly, not too dissimilar from someone who has seen or experienced a heavy hailstorm in their town and then calls their friend in the neighbouring town down-wind and advises them to stay indoors. If the friend listens, he or she might avert injury or inconvenience, and if they don't, they might suffer.

At no point whatsoever, is it ever the mission of a prophet to go invading every home in every neighbouring village, forcing them to attest that he is the only true warner of hail storms and the last and final word of God. And if anyone even so much as looks at him sceptically, he decapitates them, and rapes their wife while the village is still burning in the background. This is simply ego driven, devil-inspired madness. There is nothing good or godly about anyone that does this or orders such a thing even once – even by mistake – if such an act could even be called a mistake. However, Muhammad made a career out of such actions, and infected billions with his madness in the process. The most dire thing is, he managed to convince and deceive his people into believing that he was the ‘last prophet’. There is no such thing as a ‘last’ anything. There will always be more, for life goes on.

So, it’s not just that he deceived only the people of the time, like the middle two Anti-Christ, but also billions of people in to the future too. This is what makes him the reigning King of Deception. The final Anti-Christ will take advantage of this energetic momentum of matter transmitted through time, and inherit this energy, and the people, that the first Anti-Christ sent him from the past. The people who follow Muhammad, are convinced that his teachings are Guided, and catastrophically, will now not listen to anyone who actually is a prophet, or Guided, and advises them of actual goodness for Muhammad convinced them he was the ‘last’.

This is what I call deception. Deception, if orchestrated well, is firstly like the cheese in the trap, and later, like the door of the trap – and when the trapping is orchestrated perfectly, the rat doesn’t even know it is in the trap. Also, the Anti-Christ’s role is never to deceive all, for this is impossible due to God's Law of Duality. His role is to deceive enough; and I assure you, there will be enough. When 1 in every 3 people in the world are devout followers of Muhammad, the final Anti-Christ, and his military commander, will come to lead them. Finally, this will be against the 150,000 strong Army of the 'Rider on the white horse'. Even from these 150,000, a few thousand will run away when they see the sheer size of the Anti-Christ's army, which will be in the many millions every battle. These few thousand cowards, who will try to save their lives, will lose their lives to the Anti-Christ's army anyway - but they'll also have binned their dignity and faith eternally.

So, remember: hold your ranks, no matter what evil faces you when the time comes. It is anti-spiritual, ungodly and dishonourable to wage war, but it is infinitely more anti-spiritual, ungodly and dishonourable to not provide resistance when war has already been waged upon you. These good men who will hold their ranks, will stand outnumbered 1000 to 1 in the final battles. They will give a new meaning to bravery; any army can go to battle in great numbers fortified with great powers salivating after glory – but to go to battle so heavily outmanned, not for victory, but simply to provide resistance against the invasion of evil, and for justice, is what will make this army the King of Justice's Army. They will have no special powers, other than the most special of powers: faithfulness to the Almighty and a lack of self-serving desires. It is because this is what they'll truly have, and all that they'll have, that they'll be so few in number, relative to the world population at the time. But it'll be because of this unwavering faithfulness to God and selflessness, that they will win even on the verge of imminent loss, for this is what finally wins God's grace and makes your fight His fight – and this is what devil does not, and cannot, comprehend. Once a fight becomes God's fight, then it's no longer a fight – it's a schooling.

Note that this will all happen after the world's current armies of the current enemy have all already annihilated one another. They will consume one another, as evil always does. There is much to happen before the final battles. Everything always happens duly so be steadfast and keep your innocence intact.

Know this: When a spiritual master plants a miniscule part of his God-realised soul in the disciple's soul upon Initiation, to assist the disciple in growing his or her own soul to higher states, the master becomes a part of the disciple. When the disciple does wrong, or loses devotion to the master's teachings, it's the master that he or she also damages due to presence of the master's soul within them. But realise this, if one has such spiritual mastery to put a part of their soul in another to assist them, they most certainly have the power to take what they've given away as well, in order to cease further harm caused to them by the ill-disciplined and damage causing student. When Muhammad added 'Muhammad is the messenger' to such a powerful mantra of 'There is none but The None', his master immediately revoked his assistance. There is no physical contact or limitations of distance required when dealing with Aether, or Anti-Matter.

When and if such a thing happens, what a sorry situation the disciple then finds himself or herself in. The purpose of the master's assistance in the first instance is to guard them from the beings of the other dimensions that are opened up. All of a sudden, you find yourself open to dimensions you don't know or understand, able to see demons and angels, not knowing who is who and what is what.

This is what is known as schizophrenia. This is not a mental disorder. In fact, it's not a disorder at all, but simply a state that an individual in the 3rd dimension finds themselves in, due to a spiritual mishap on their behalf in this life, or a previous one, and now finds themselves surrounded by 4th dimensional beings, which are infinitely more powerful than them.

It is akin to a 2nd dimensional character seen walking in the 3rd dimension – flatter than paper, unable to speak, and petrified. Do you think evil people, and curious children of this world, or even 3rd dimensional Laws of Physics would give it an easy time for the very brief time it would be alive? Whilst it would be alive, it would experience insanity and be in a state of constant torture. This is what happens when you start the spiritual path that leads you from the 3rd dimension to the 10th dimension of God. If along the way, you lose the support of the teacher who has already transcended these dimensions, you end up in the abyss of the cosmos, in a state of schizophrenia, which no amount of medication or psychiatry will help with, and at the mercy and influence of ill-intentioned beings, who only seek to toy with a 3rd dimensional soul.

Most schizophrenic people when left unattended, either start killing others due to the madness they experience, while some commit suicide.

Muhammad preferred the former.

Do you see now, just how destructive and significant this initial mistake of adding this very tiny but infinitely ignorant and egotistical statement of ‘and Muhammad is The Messenger of The None’ in front of the might and depth of the statement ‘La Elaha il Al-lah’ was? All because Muhammad chose to dabble in spiritual practices, without the guidance and grace of a spiritual master. Good intentions often lead to catastrophic consequences if carried out without due care and awareness. How heavily has this cost the world, and collective human consciousness?

Currently we’re at 2 billion followers of Muhammad worldwide; 1 in every 4 people is fully convinced that Muhammad was Guided. When in fact, he became an agent of measly 4th dimensional demons, whom in the grand chain of command, are also just agents of Archons (Biblical Satan/ Lucifer) and these too, are only subjects of the energy of Ego, which is the ultimate devil that permeates all matter. Lack of consciousness always gives way to more of the same if allowed to spread.

Know this: There are always deeper meanings to that which seems apparent and obvious at first.

The deciphering of such meanings takes higher and higher levels of consciousness. The meaning of mantras such as La Elaha il Al-La is only realised after the highest stage of Enlightenment, or Moksha or Mukhti, or most appropriately: God-realisation. This is the final stage, that once reached, you are liberated from the cycle of creation and destruction, birth and rebirth, and become at One with God. In almost every case this means leaving this body and physically ‘dying’ - with the exception of those whom God sends back by giving them the breath of life again, to make others aware.

Of course, you may well think, you’ve just told me some of these things, therefore I too, now know. However, although I have told you, and you may have even understood, it hasn’t yet come into your experience. You haven’t seen or experienced these states of God for yourself yet, and therefore it hasn’t become real for you. It has left you in a common predicament: do I believe or disbelieve this man? I say, either way, whether you believe or disbelieve me, you are still a believer of one thing or the other. And that’s just not good enough. This is why I say it’s best to not believe anything, even this or anything else I have said. It is infinitely better for one to say that one doesn't know, because at least this way, one realises at least one truth: he or she doesn't know. This then opens up possibilities of actually knowing.

It is this lack of humility, that makes men and women make up all kinds of lies and presumptions to satisfy their own egos so that they may be recognised as knowledgeable ones amongst their societies. We are all ignorant to one degree or another, for even fully God-realised beings who have attained Union with the Almighty have their knowledge returned to a limit by the limit of physical memory. Knowledge of all is infinite for the all is infinite. Infinity goes on and on, layer within layer - in all directions – inside you and outside you. One cannot permanently and constantly store this infinite knowledge in one single vessel of finite matter, called the memory of the human brain, even after experiencing it. One who thinks he knows all has not yet attained Union to experience just what or, what the sheer magnitude of the all, even is.

Consciousness and memory are separate. The former's job is to experience and be aware, the latter's job is to remember the things the former experiences and has become aware of, in order of significance. Consciousness is infinite, while the memory is finite and limited depending on storage capacity.

Know this: Until one doesn't attain Union, one will never truly know the Truth of the Ultimate and the Infinite, no matter how deeply one believes, and I'm afraid one will always be susceptible to deception even when well underway on the spiritual path - unless one's teacher is True and to whom the disciple remains devout and doesn't stray. And the final Lord of Deception, to whose deception all but a handful of people are susceptible, is almost ready.

Muhammad was also taught breath work or 'Naqshbandi' and also another sacred method of meditation called Sacred Heart meditation or Zikker-ul-Qulbi. This form of meditation is incredibly powerful and is given by Initiation from a God-realised teacher of the Truth to a seeking, but worthy and devout student. It is the teacher's duty to vet the disciple thoroughly before such an Initiation for reasons that, I am sure, will become apparent, as you understand more and more what I teach.

It is vital to remember, it is never the tool that is good or bad, but what one does with it. If you're careless with an axe, you'll split your foot instead of firewood. Thus, in the same way, if one is careless with the power of controlling the vibrations of God's names or internal energies, which aggravates and infuriates the ego within anyway, and instead, one allows their ego to overcome this struggle and win the internal war, one will split and therefore destroy their consciousness instead of their ego.

Ironically, Muhammad was explained all of this by his teachers, which became the underlying concept of Jihad or internal warfare between good and evil in his own earlier teachings. However, as evil took over inside him more and more due to his failed inner conquests, he then began his external conquests instead, and propagated the meaning of Jihad as a 'struggle' or justified warfare against those who declined his nonsense. He stayed in this state of spiritual dissonance for a number of years in the desert, until eventually he gave in to his ego. Once he gave in to his ego full-heartedly, he committed insurmountable atrocities.

He raped war captives for he declared it 'lawful' with the 'and those the right hand possesses' verse of the Quran; he had intercourse with a 9 year old infant as a man in his fifties; he burned villages and tribes alive for rejecting his 'message', killing all the men, while keeping the women alive for his army to impregnate and further spread Islam; and so on and so forth until he was eventually poisoned by a Jewish woman, whose family he had killed at the conquest of Khaibar.

One of the worst crimes he committed was that he tainted a True descriptive name of God by associating himself and his actions with it. Now, most of the world thinks and says atrocious things about Al-lah because of Muhammad and his despicable acts. Know that this descriptive name of God was around in that region many millennia before this demonic man was even conceived.

Also, with regards to him being poisoned: he had made a direct pledge, through a ‘Divinely revealed’ Quranic verse, that if he ever lied about his affiliation with God, or if he made up the verses of the Quran himself, then God will cut his aorta. When he was poisoned, because of course he made up the Quran and all the self-serving deception in it, he later admitted, that he felt as though his aorta had been cut as the poison slowly did its work. Even more ironically, the very fact that he didn’t consume the intended amount and spat it out, was what extended his misery even further. Instead of dying a quick death like his companion who ate before him, Muhammad died a slow and excruciating death spread over many months. However, the excruciating damage he caused to human consciousness while he was alive, and ever since his death, has so far been unprecedented. Nevertheless, the coming Anti-Christ will outdo his forefather by many folds.

Know this: Ego is so powerful that it will have you fully convinced you are right, and that you have overcome the Ego, when in fact you have had your consciousness beaten to such a degree of oblivion that now only the Ego is present within you and no good remains. The ego can't be overcome until you're in the 10th dimension; prior to which, it can only be refused, and therefore subdued, to higher and higher extents. However, the Ego can overcome you, if you allow it to. Anyone who says they are beyond all desires and are the perfect example of man or any other such nonsense, like Muhammad did, hasn't even smelled, let alone tasted, even one drop of the cosmic ocean of Enlightenment.

On the other hand, many Muslim Sufis and mystics have successfully attained the lower and middle levels of Enlightenment through these very same, and otherwise excellent, methods that were taught to Muhammad, and have done good work in the world. Yet still, they remained limited and fell short of attaining God-realisation, or Moksha, due to their affinity for Muhammad and the rest of his made up, and highly ignorant teachings. However, some did in fact know the truth about him, but their silence, and political correctness, in front of their communities, families and disciples was interpreted by Karma as muted deception, and therefore still inhibited the spiritual progress of these sages and dervishes.

When one comes to know the Truth, but still keeps it hidden solely to avert social or physical persecution, or for the sake of maintaining his or her own well-being, personal safety, income security, and popularity within society, then it is a lack of faithfulness to the Truth, and to the Almighty, who is the Ultimate Truth. What use is awareness, when one doesn't make others aware? What use is faithfulness, when one isn't willing to discard all safety, security and popularity and faithfully stand by the Truth no matter what the consequence? I understand that with the distribution of this book I will make at least 2 billion enemies, almost overnight.

There will be many more than this too, simply because what I'm saying won't be in sync with what they've been taught to believe. I'm aware most of these people will be after my head, and I have seen that they will attempt to cause me harm in all ways. I am aware of my pasts, and my future – I know death well, and it doesn't deter me from faithfulness to God.

Know this: All true love, ultimately demands a self-sacrifice of something, or everything, in one form or another; and I would pledge my everything in sacrifice to stand by the Truth, even if I had to sacrifice it every second of every life for the rest of eternity.

Also know this: In all religions, there is good and bad. However, in Islam there is mostly bad. The bad is all of Muhammad's own ignorance interwoven with the little bit of good he learned from the true Yogi, Hebrew and Sabaean God-realised masters that he encountered on his brief, but frequent, trade expeditions - rendering this good knowledge he attained from them fragmented, incomplete, and highly insufficient for gaining the full and intended effect. As good as this 'good' is, even when enough to partially enlighten a person, if one stays stuck to the bad along with this good, it is like adding a drop of medicine to a jug full of sugar-water and drinking it, while expecting the full effect of the medicine, and not further disease. It is like expecting God, while being the devil, for Muhammad eventually lowered his consciousness to such an extent that he attained Endarkenment, which brings its own set of material and knowledge-harnessing powers.

The final Anti-Christ will follow on in the foot steps of his fore-father, the first Anti-Christ, for Muhammad has done him the favour of describing some of the details of the final Anti-Christ and his army, but disguised them as details he learned of the King of Justice or the Biblical ‘Rider on the white horse’. Their ‘rider on the white horse’ is the false prophet who will be the commander of their military. So, the billions of Muhammad’s followers will follow the final Anti-Christ and his false prophet believing that they are in fact following the Mahdi and Christ. The Anti-Christ and false Mahdi will appear to be on the side of the Muslims and will promise them ‘liberation’ and ‘justice’ for their ‘sufferings’, when in reality it will be enslavement of the highest order - for eternity.

Muhammad described the army of his ‘rider on the white horse’ to be flying black flags and banners. ISIS now flies black flags, and countless fully devout Muslims have joined this army. ISIS is not the real army of the Anti-Christ, and is in fact just a trial run, but eventually the real army of the Anti-Christ will also develop with hatred for all that’s good, and have an unwavering desire to spread Islam globally just like Muhammad falsely prophesied, albeit with a self-fulfilling prophecy, that his future kinsmen and followers will spread Islam all over the world until everyone is a Muslim.

This is the goal of this most cancerous and vile movement that is Islam, and it seeks to accomplish this goal through means both apparent and covert. These include: guerrilla warfare, invasion, impregnation and multiplication, and occupation of foreign nations. The current enemy is helping them with all aspects, firstly by driving them out of their countries like angry bees from an attacked beehive by robbing them of their oil, by force, and then by giving them asylum in their own nations, whose cultures are in stark contrast with theirs. Know that ISIS is a tool of the current enemy.

It is all orchestrated chaos – nothing is by accident.

These people, when they reach the number I mentioned earlier - 1 in 3 people in the world – will be led by their false prophet/ the false Mahdi until the Anti-Christ appears and joins them, pretending to be Christ. Their army will be so thoroughly deceived and deluded, due to the disinformation provided to them by the first Anti-Christ, Muhammad, that they will all follow their leaders blindly. They will firstly destroy all peace, and then eventually will engage the King of Justice, or the True Rider on the white horse, in war. The Rider's army will be miniscule in comparison to theirs, for the true are always rare and the false are always many.

Pay attention: Some of the niciest people that I've met have been Muslims. There are good people, and bad people, belonging to all races, all nations, and all denominations. The Muslims who are good, are good because they are intrinsically good, and because they don't follow, or strictly adhere to, the more damaging teachings of Muhammad and Islam. However, when one becomes passionate for a devilish leader, as they will for the coming King of Deception, for he will delude them further when he comes - it will become impossible for them to keep their intrinsic goodness intact, for they will be forced to wear marks of allegiance and forced to practice Islam in its full form. They will also be governed by Sharia – which is one of the darkest and most absolute systems of control and discrimination ever devised, if one studies the texts. It is pure deceptive devilry.

Never forget the ways of the Nazis, their beliefs of elitism, and their desire to take over the world, and always remember that they were mild in comparison to what's coming after the current enemy has been eradicated. Even the current enemy with all its heads and might and power, will be mild in comparison to the future enemy that it's preparing the stage for.

At that time, there will be no 'good' Muslims left on the planet, for they will all be well and thoroughly deluded to the point of no return. Muslims believe that the Anti-Christ won't be able to enter Mecca and Medina. Let me tell you: Mecca will be the headquarters of the Anti-Christ, for that will be the source of his army, and he has entered Mecca and Medina many times for they are the Cities of his forefather: Muhammad. The Muslims who will seek refuge in Mecca and Medina in the future will be of the ones who will be the most thoroughly deceived. I say this only as a forewarning to these people, for I know many of them are good people – and it doesn't have to be adhered to at all, for everyone has free will: Get out while you can. It doesn't matter where you go - just get out of the web of Islam while you still can, for later you won't be able to due to Islam's own apostasy laws. Under Sharia rule, apostates will be executed on sight when they finally begin to realise the truth and what is going on, for that is Muhammad's direct order. Get out of the web of Islam while you still can, then research Islam objectively for yourselves. Once you've done that, go back if you wish, for it is just your fate.

Do I think they will listen to my counsel?

I know most of them won't listen.

Instead they will call me the Anti-Christ.

Still, it is a duty to give the warning.

Nothing is ever allowed to be done in the world, or in the cosmos, without prior warning being delivered to the general population, from both sides.

This is so no one can later plead ignorance.

A Word on Christ et al.

There are four main personalities that one needs to know about for the times ahead.

In order of appearance, they will be the following: The first will be the Rider on the white horse; The second will be the false prophet who will also be the commander of the Anti-Christ's army; The third will be the Anti-Christ; The fourth will be Christ.

The first will come and gather good people throughout his life and teach them what needs to be known. The second personality will come and gather his people in the same way, but as a miracle-performing false saviour, and will teach them more wrong than they already know and lead them to wars of invasion – he will also secretly be the confidant and counsel of the Anti-Christ. The third will then appear, and lead the same body of people, and other similar bodies, of people, against the 'Rider on the white horse' and his good people, towards the end of the Rider's life. Finally, Christ will come for the second time towards the end of this Age, to be the King of God's Kingdom in the Golden Age.

Much has been said about Christ's first appearance. Some stories have been exaggerated – some stories have been very down played – and some stories have not been told at all. Understand this: the ones which have been purposefully exaggerated are of the least importance, the ones which have been purposefully down played are of much more importance, and the ones which have been purposefully deleted from the records are of the most importance.

The Bible's New Testament, although true, is not whole because it has been intentionally riddled with holes, by the very people who murdered Christ's body. These are the same people who changed his name to Jesus, so that people will not know his real identity or be able to call him. These are the same people who propagated the worship of the very tool they used to murder him with: the cross. This is like someone murdering you with a gun, and your loved ones then begin worshipping guns, and wearing gun shaped pendants. How does this even seem right to anyone? These are the same people who partake in, and have globally propagated, the satanic ritual of 'drinking the blood of Jesus, and eating the body of Jesus', so they can further revel in the defilement of 'Eesh'aa. Tell me, how does this even seem right to anyone? These are also the same people who told you that Christ died for your sins, instead of telling you the real truth: he died as a result of their sins.

These are the same people who call themselves the Jesuits today, or ironically, the ‘society of Jesus’, along with the various other orders that the Catholic Church consists of. These are the descendants of the Elders of Zion (please refer to chapter on States of Consciousness) of Christ’s time, who were given influence and power in the Roman Empire in return for their treachery. Now they are the Roman Empire. The world is still run by the old Roman Empire, just in very discreet ways – although they are slowly daring to become more mainstream. There are many factions of this empire, all with their own roles and fronts pretending different loyalties.

This is the foretold seven-headed dragon, with each head overseeing and heading different aspects of its empire, which includes the Catholic Church, the world’s governments, the financial system, the education system, the various groups of united nations, the media industry, the pharmaceutical industry, as well as the agriculture and food industries. This is the current enemy, preparing the way for the future enemy. Don’t be deceived by them, or by the people who go into excessive detail by providing disinformation, and pretend to expose them, for they are really just controlled opposition providing 10 pieces of disinformation, with every insignificant piece of true information. Also, don't be deceived by the naïve ones who then propagate this disinformation until it becomes misinformation.

Know this: It is not imperative that everyone knows detailed information about the enemy, for this is a perilous and dangerous pursuit for those without Guidance. Although everyone doesn't need to know the inner workings of the enemy, everyone must know the identity of the current and future enemies. It is always better to fully know the inner workings of yourself than those of the enemy, for the enemy's movements could be subject to change at the last moment, rendering your intelligence and preparations completely worthless. Many avoidable military blunders have been committed due to over-intelligence.

As for the second appearance of Christ: The remaining Faithful will witness and cherish him, his Innocence, his Purity, and his Divine character themselves. When the remaining numbers of the Army of the King of Justice are low, yet still they are of high consciousness and steadfast in faithfulness despite their challenges, the Christ will make his second appearance and join them without introduction or commotion. When the war has been won, and the transfer of power takes place, the King of Justice will introduce the King of Innocence to his people himself. When Christ returns, all will shower him with gifts. The King of Justice will also give him a gift. He will be poor in material wealth, but still his gift will be the dearest to Christ. His gift to Christ will be Christ's people – already tried, tested and tempered. He will then leave, for his job will be done. Thus, the Golden Age, or Kingdom of God will be established with the Divine leadership of Christ as King. Those who sacrificed their lives in order to bring about the Kingdom of God will be given the breath of life again to enjoy the fruits of their labour.

In regard to the 'Rider on the white horse'/ The Mahdi (Guided One)/ The Kalki Avatar, I can only say this: He is here to do a job, not to fulfil descriptions. Metaphorically speaking, he will have many crowns on his head, for he is a messiah and king for many different groups of people, but he won't ever be seen wearing any actual crowns. Most will not recognise him because most will be waiting for personalities whose descriptions have been inflated and exaggerated, and are subject to many biases. The Jews say he will be a Jew, the the Hindus say he will be a Hindu, the Sikhs say he will be a Sikh, North Indians say he will be North Indian and South Indians say he will be South Indian. Even the Muslims say he will be a Muslim! One book says this, while the other says that – the truth is all the books have been corrupted, to one degree or another, with respect to the most significant parts, by devil.

Know this: He will have been born in the large land in the East which is surrounded by the three seas. He will go and do what needs to be done, where it needs to be done, when it needs to be done, with people or without people, and then leave. Once the work is done, his identity will then be officially revealed and confirmed by Christ, just like he will introduce Christ when Christ comes. Christ will tell the people: ‘He was the one’. While his identity is being confirmed by Christ, the Rider will already be on his way, for his work will be complete.

Know this: Anyone who claims to be Christ, is not Christ. Anyone who claims to be the King of Justice, the Kalki Avatar or the Mahdi (Guided One) is also not so. These two people have no interest in titles and roles – it is only the fulfilment of the role’s requirements that is their duty and pledge to the Almighty.

Once their shift of duty is complete: they will go. On the other hand, the ones who make claims are interested only in praise, and titles, and the perceived grandeur of the roles, yet they leave the role's requirements desperately unfulfilled, for these requirements require much work, the suffering of much pain, and many self-sacrifices.

Whilst the false ones will be busy trying to fulfil the physical and character descriptions described in certain prophecies, the True ones will be busy fulfilling the work described in these prophecies. The work is of most importance, while the outfit of clothes, nationality, and physical characteristics are not. In any instance, but especially this one, it is always the consciousness of the soul that's important, the body is always meaningless. The men and women who will follow those who imitate the external aspects will be easily misled for the external can be easily imitated.

Also, remember that sometimes the false ones may not make claims themselves, but their deluded followers will make claims for them on their behalf. This still does not make their leaders the True ones. Claims of any kind made by anyone, will render the claimant and the claims totally false. Remember this now, so you are not deceived later.

Claims mean nothing; the work means everything. The ones who will follow and support the work of the True ones, will find the True ones.

So, with that said, who will the Army of the Rider consist of? Only those who will be able to withstand his directness, and rebuking, for there is no time left for sugar coating. Most of the world will be against him, for he will be against most of the world and will maim the ego inside them. The type of Jews who rejected Christ in the past, will reject him also. These are the highly egotistical sort, who could not take being rebuked for the wrong of their ways then, and nor will they be able to take an even harsher rebuking now - especially by someone of a young appearance. Little do they know, the souls inside both the Rider and the Christ, are older than time. However, some of the good Jews will form a significant part of the ranks of the Rider, for they will know the Truth when they see it. The Christians who believe in, and practice the Christianity which is taught in churches by agents of the Elders of Zion are also out of the question, for they will be offended. However, the Christians who will recognise the truth communicated by this person, and have true love for Christ in their hearts, will form an even more significant part of the ranks.

Sikhs, Buddhists and Gnostic Hindus will also form significant parts of the ranks. Know this: if the Sikhs, the Buddhists, and the followers of Shiva are on the opposite side of the battlefield, you are on the wrong side of the battlefield. Here is why: Their respective leaders, such as Nanak and Siddharth and the true teachers of Shiva's teachings, taught only the workings and improvement of the inner being, and instilled it in them in such a way that they are almost impossible to be misled. It is almost impossible to mislead them because the true ones of these denominations, have been following the teachings of their respective Teachers, who taught them to only follow the Truth that emanates from within their hearts through meditation – and this is something that cannot be corrupted, unlike books. All the people who have truly learned to listen to, and follow the heart through meditation, will be on the right side irrespective of their denomination, I assure you. It's just that, they won't be many.

One common denominator that all the different people of the ranks of this army will have will be an affinity for the Truth, and their unwavering allegiance to it once they have recognised it. There will also be many in the ranks, of no particular denomination at all. These blessed people will be there simply because they'll recognise the Truth when they'll have seen it.

There will also be people there who won't even have an affinity for God, but still they'll be most dear to God, for their affinity for the Truth. The ranks of The King of Justice's Army will consist of the most non-uniform collection of people, for it won't be a national army or a religious army, rather a congregation of tribes and smaller armies who will have pledged their allegiance to the Almighty, who is the Ultimate Truth, to form the ranks of the King of Justice's Army.

Know this: This war is not about Christianity vs Islam for 'Eesh'aa never invented a religion called Christianity – he simply taught the Truth to whoever listened and after his murder Christianity was formed. This war is about God vs devil, and good vs evil. Islam just so happens to be a product of devil. Understand that contrary to mainstream propaganda, Islam does not mean peace in Arabic. It actually means submission – which is a mild way of saying enslavement. This war is about liberation of the soul vs slavery by the ego; 'Eesh'aa was liberated and therefore a liberator, while Muhammad was the most enslaved by his ego and therefore an enslaver. This war is not impending; it already started when the devotees of devil murdered 'Eesh'aa – who was the first Christ to be murdered by his own people due to their lack of consciousness. It was the Elders of Zion (please refer to chapter on States of Consciousness) whom he offended, who then gave him up to the Romans. He offended them because of his age. He was young in appearance while they were old in appearance and they mistook his wisdom and Divine authority for arrogance.

Know that wise words never suit the young in appearance, and too often, the old in appearance have too strong of long-established egos to listen, and learn from the young in appearance. What they forget is the body means nothing, it's the soul that counts and it's the soul that talks. The soul of 'Eesh'aa had matured trillions of trillions of years before these fools were even born for the first time. You can always tell a young soul, for the person will be fairly ignorant even when their body is old. You can always tell an old soul, for the person will know the intricacies of the Universe, without being taught, even in infancy.

Besides, all messiahs have to be young bodied. One foot in the grave is of no use when both feet are required to transgress a million miles for the completion of their work over the span of a lifetime.

These Elders are the same fools who also changed the description of their Messiah in their texts to better fit the description of the coming Anti-Christ who will serve their agendas of world domination and control. Therefore, unfortunately, most modern Jews are expecting an ego-stroking Messiah to come to liberate them and give them their piece of land.

Know this: 'Eesh'aa was their Messiah, he was going to liberate their souls and give them their piece of land for their bodies to live on. Instead of following his teachings, the people of the time stood around and allowed him to be murdered just because he attacked their ego instead of stroking it. He told them the error of their ways to improve their consciousness, instead of telling them the things they wanted to hear such as how good and how holy and right they were. This only strengthens the ego and therefore weakens consciousness.

Think: Just how strong must their egos have been for them to be so aggravated, so offended, so hateful to do, and allow to be done, what was done to him?

People ask why is 'Eesh'aa taking so long to return?
Tell me: would you let your most innocent child return to a place that is infinitely worse now than it was back then, after what was done to him? After all the lies that were then told to cover up what was done to him?

Know that it wasn't just murder, like a stabbing, or a shooting – it was a bloody, slow, torturous, excruciating, satanic defilement.

When the time comes, the King of Justice will return every drop of blood of his relative, with dividends. He will be 'the winepress of God's wrath' for what they did to 'Eesh'aa.

A Word on States of Consciousness

Quieten your mind, rid it of all external influence and doctrine, and tell me truthfully, does the God you read about in certain ‘holy’ books sound godly, the source of light, and devoid of the very Ego he created? Or does he in fact sound devilish and even... even full of desires, like a... human, or an otherworldly humanoid being from another dimension? If you ask yourself honestly, and answer yourself honestly, you will know the truth about the ‘gods’ described in such books. Humans and other humanoid like beings of other dimensions have certainly been made in the image of the Ultimate, but the Ultimate is very different to his Creatures.

Many created beings, who have attained powers of creation themselves, due to their association with the Ultimate, have called themselves the Ultimate (for they attained Union with the Ultimate), either naively or arrogantly – but always inappropriately.

This inappropriateness has caused much confusion, and it is the job of a teacher to alleviate confusion as much as possible, not cause more of it by uttering things beyond the understanding of the audience. Also, none is ever like the Ultimate, for the Ultimate is the None. People are easily deceived, and have misunderstood many such beings, simply because they've witnessed some Creation, or manipulation of matter in progress, or because the beings have themselves used an inappropriate or unnecessary choice of words to describe themselves or their states of being. The understanding of some of these states, in particular, is imperative. Let me explain:

The word Shiva does not originate from Sanskrit as the priests of India will tell you. There were civilisations and religions that existed hundreds of thousands of years before the fathers and mothers of the Hindus (pronounced Hin – duss) civilisations were even conceived. The being known as Shiva was not a human like 'Eesh'aa (Jesus), so the most appropriate way to refer to him is simply 'being'. He came from another planet that used to be close to earth at the time, but is now so far out, that modern scientists and astronomers no longer even know about it. When beings from other planets used to visit this planet in other Ages, they were known as gods, angels, 'fallen' angels and the like. The truth is they were none of these - although angels and demons do exist, but they exist in dimensions other than this one and are not perceivable by the external eyes unless they show themselves to you due to a spiritual mishap. These beings were instead simply far superior forms of 3rd dimensional life, which were unknown to the people of the time.

Nowadays, people call them extra-terrestrials. So, the being who referred to himself as Shi-va to the Hindus people of North-east India was from an extra-terrestrial civilisation that was far superior in every way to any form of life on earth, especially humans.

This extra-terrestrial civilisation had enslaved the inhabitants of the earth by means of manipulating the two most powerful human emotions: fear and greed. They consumed human flesh which was the most pleasing to their taste, and they impregnated the women of the long-lost Aryan race, whom they lusted after. This planet, Zion, as it was known to the extra-terrestrial invaders, had leaders who called themselves Elders, and were no different to the despicable and morally corrupt world leaders of today. These leaders offered and sacrificed to the invaders beautiful young women who the invaders so desperately lusted after due to their exceptional external beauty. The invaders were also offered any children they salivated for, in return for knowledge; the kind of knowledge that humans simply do not have the consciousness to control. The women were not just offered, but also easily offered themselves upon seduction, in return for gifts and knowledge.

Not only was it gifts and knowledge that they were then given, but these women also became the bearers of the future lineages of the invaders' descendants, so that the invaders could continue controlling and implementing their ways upon 'Zion' while absent. All the deities of the Ancient World that humans worship are not 'gods', but either other-dimensional beings such as arch demons known as archons, or arch angels; or extra-terrestrial life from this dimension that landed on earth in past Ages, or as the Elders called it: 'fell' to earth.

Most of the people recognised most of these to be evil and thus called them such, but the Elders worshipped them due to the power and authority that these so-called fallen beings gave them. The Elders transferred this knowledge, along with the indoctrination that these beings were 'gods' into man written books and spread them across all the civilisations. The descendants of the Aryan race and the other races then did the rest of the deed themselves and followed and believed in return for either greed for Divine favours, or fear of punishment and therefore, greed for 'salvation'.

Tell me, what use is salvation for one who hasn't done anything drastic enough to require punishment?

This is how the concept of belief and modern religion was born around 98,000 years ago. It was the Elders who pushed this concept of 'religion' as a mode of control, by using the knowledge of energy and emotion manipulation to control humans by making them lust for, and live in fear of, what wasn't in their experience. It is this forbidden knowledge that is spoken of in the Bible. Now that I have given you the prerequisite background to tell you about Shiva, or Shi-va, I have to take you back to the time when he was here the best I can. This being was from the species of the invaders, but he was not one of them. What I mean by this, is that he was of far superior consciousness to them. He was not their leader – he had no interest in leadership or titles.

He was what you might call, the original nomad on this planet – a wanderer. Before him, the concept of a nomad was none-existent. People were born in a place, they stayed there, and they died there. When he came here, 77,000 years ago, he liked the place. Earth is certainly one of the more beautiful places in this dimension, and he found that, too often, its inhabitants take it for granted. He liked to explore, and therefore travelled all over Middle Earth in the years he was here. He was not of human origin, and was in fact very different to a human, though he had what one may call a humanoid physique.

Therefore, his anatomy was far different, and more importantly, far superior to that of a human's. He wasn't limited by human age limits, or the limits of 3rd dimensional physics. He had the ability with his own body, as do all God-realised beings, to collide matter with matter resulting in anti-matter or destruction of matter, and to collide anti-matter with anti-matter resulting in creation of matter.

If one understands the nature of the dimensions, one can use this understanding when needed. The ones who Inherit such knowledge, never teach it deeply, only explain it superficially; the ones who don't have such knowledge, do many experiments in the name of science to learn more, in the plight to satisfy the curiosity of their Egos, and unwittingly cause much harm. Don't they, C.E.R.N.?

Know this: There are dangerous fools in every Age. Ages still go on, whereas dangerous fools only endanger and incarcerate themselves.

So, the being who came to be known as Shiva used to wander, mostly silently, observing, contemplating, and admiring the Almighty's Work - fully and thoroughly intoxicated with love for the Divine. This became his nature. People try to mimic this intoxication with cannabis and psychedelics; they are clueless fools for they don't understand that this was a different calibre of intoxication and high. This was a God high - an anti-matter high. This high can't be gained through matter. He was known as Bhole Naath – 'Innocent Lord', in India, where he eventually settled. However, this innocence was just one aspect of him, for every now and again, beings needed schooling; and naturally, who better for the job than a master of the highest order?

He used to sit in isolation, on icy mountains, with eyes closed, for millennia at a time in meditation. He was already at a constant state of 99.9% consciousness, with 100% being the Almighty or 'The None'. Yet still, he sought constant and unwavering Union; not just temporary Union after which one has to come back and remain at 99.9% consciousness until the completion of one's mission. This 99.9% level of consciousness, so as to speak, for explanatory purposes, is still 'of None' unlike 'The None'.

99.9% is the highest level of consciousness one can reach before one has to transcend and attain Union with the Almighty at 100%. This 0.01% of difference between God's state of Shi-va and God's state of Al-la, is the difference between the width of a hair, and the width of the entire Universe simultaneously. This is not for your comprehension, for it can't be comprehended – but only experienced when one is in Union. Nevertheless, I have to state it anyway, just to point out that there is indeed a difference between God's different states, even if they are all His states. On the opposite spectrum of consciousness, we have the number of devil's level of consciousness: 0.666%. This is the lowest level it can reach before it has to transcend and attain Union with the Almighty at 0%, just like one has to transcend 99.9% consciousness to attain Union with the Almighty at 100%. Only devil can reach as low a level as 0.666% and even he can't go lower than this in order to attain Union and is limited here.

Understand this: There are two types of 'Enlightenment'; this is an Enlightenment, and also what I can only describe as an Endarkenment. The first stage of Enlightenment happens at 75% consciousness, whereas Endarkenment happens at 25% consciousness, with the average adult human hovering somewhere at 40% and a new born baby hovering somewhere at 50%. Babies and children are most coveted by devil and his devotees for their relatively high consciousness – thus the rampant paedophilia, violent child abuse, child torture, and child sacrifices in their circles. All this gives them great pleasure, and further sinks their consciousness into deeper states of darkness – giving their ego more satisfaction, which in turn helps them attain more matter. Also note that one can still lower their consciousness even after attaining Enlightenment through murder, paedophilia, and deception – even to the point where one reaches as low as the levels of Endarkenment.

Whichever way one goes, the closer they get to God, the more and more difficult it becomes to attain Union. Similar to how if one wanted to land on the sun with their physical body, the closer they'd get to it, the more difficult it would become to sustain the heat – and the sun is like an atom, within a molecule, within a cell, within God. One can't even begin to imagine the Majesty of God.

If 0 represents No Thing, then 100 out of 100 represents Whole or Everything, and in God's case, Whole is Infinity. Infinity and Zero are the same. But note, 99.9% is closer to the Almighty at 100, than 0.666% is to the Almighty at 0. Thus, devil and his powers, although still powerful, is subordinate to someone whose consciousness has reached the state of Shiva, or state of 'Of None'. Also, just like running up a hill gets one fitter than running down a hill of the same distance, being at 99.9% gives one far better spiritual stamina as well, for it has been a much more difficult destination to reach. It is easy to kill, to rape, to destroy – it is far more difficult to preserve life, protect innocence and to build. This is why people are so much more susceptible to being bad as opposed to good. To put it simply: it's easier.

I have no intention of giving you a detailed biography of the being called Shiva - the world doesn't have enough paper - but know this: he spent millennia at a time meditating for a reason. He too, was trying to return to something or someone else.

However, understanding Shiva is vital to understanding God's state of Ishvar, a state which 'Eesh'aa' referred to as Father. You see, Shiva was not the real name of this being who spent time in meditation. He just reached the state of Shiva – which is the highest state one can maintain while still remaining in a physical body. Each state encompasses and is interwoven with another like one dimension encompasses and is interwoven with another in the cosmic fabric. This being who reached this state never gave his name – he just described his state every time someone asked him for an introduction.

When people asked, 'Who are you my Lord?'; 'Who are you, who sits undisturbed, while our ancestors are born and die, while we are born and die?' To them, he simply replied, 'Shiva... Shiva... Shiva...'.

Shi means 'none' or 'nothing', and Va is 'of' in the language of the extra-terrestrial Invaders. Or in other words: 'of None'; 'of no description', 'of no bondage'; of no 'form'. This is how he introduced himself when asked for an introduction (note the stark contrast to Muhammad). Thus, this became his name, and the Sanskrit-speaking natives of India, attached their own meanings to the word - similar to how if someone introduced themselves as 'None' in English in a land of non-English speakers, they would become known as Non, with completely new meanings attached to this alien word according to the characteristics of the individual to whom it is associated with. Names are just descriptions, with a view to describe and differentiate one, from another. And he introduced himself as such, because he had realised that this is the state of the Almighty that he had reached and had become at one with.

Whether it be Al-la (The None), El-lah (The None), Shi-va (of None), Yahweh (I am), Aum (I am), the way the Almighty becomes known is always according to the state of Him that the devotee has reached. There are many different states of God, and it's foolish for a non-enlightened being who doesn't know to assume that one state is in some way superior to the other. They are all His States, and each has an individual role and purpose in the regulation of the cosmos.

If the Almighty becomes known as 'The None' or just 'I am' to the God-realised being who has attained Union with this state of the Almighty, then the being further realises, how can they introduce themselves as anything more? Some, then introduce themselves as the same, although it isn't ideal.

Here is why: Religious fools think that when a God-realised being says such a thing, it is blasphemy. But religious zealots always have little understanding, other than that which they poorly gather from books: books which may or may not have been adulterated throughout the Ages or intentionally diluted and encrypted by the original authors. Those who don't know, consider everything other than the very little they do know or believe, to be blasphemy. The best conversations with them are always the ones that are avoided. Men who are yet to realise the magnitude of their ignorance, are best left to it; more time for realisation is yet required.

*Just look at what they did to 'Eesh'aa, when they asked him who he was, and he told them the undiluted Truth: The beginning and the end; the Alpha and the Omega; The Father and the son. This was not blasphemy, arrogance or Ego, although it was unnecessary. It was the Truth, just spoken with an inappropriate choice of words considering the unsophisticated audience: The Elders of Zion, who then gave him up to the Romans, for they considered him to be blasphemous and problematic for their agendas.*

Often, it's better to stay quiet if appropriate words can't be carefully picked for the level of sophistication of an audience. The Truth doesn't always need to be said out loud, it is often better spoken in silence and thus, realised by people intrinsically. It is always better to understate than to overstate. It is always better to say you are no body, than it is to say you are every body – even though they are both the same and both are true. But 'Eesh'aa... he is innocence. He only knows to say things simply – but often, being simple in an increasingly complicated environment - gets you killed by the complicated. Nevertheless, I love him and his innocence, extremely. God loves him even more. It is due to his innocence, that he will be the King of Innocence, in the coming Kingdom. He taught to turn the other cheek – they mutilated him, defiled him and killed him - yet still he will be back to turn the other cheek. This is innocence. This is precious. This is dear. However, this level of innocence requires protection and assistance when surrounded by evil. Everything and everyone has a redeemer – even the elements. Fire has water, water has air, air has earth and earth has aether. Are any superior to the other? No, they all have their own purpose to fulfil in the perpetuation of life. In this same way, goodness is the redeemer of evil; innocence is the redeemer of goodness; and justice is the redeemer of innocence - from those that seek to destroy it. And what is the redeemer of justice? Selflessness: the input of work even without glory, the promotion of truth even without approval.

God's state of Ishvar, is pure Innocence or Purity – for innocence is supreme to all other forms of material and it is the form that devil covets, and seeks to consume, the most. When something just is, this is what is innocence. Is what - you may ask? It simply is. When something or someone is happy just being, without causing disturbance, without causing suffering in instigation or retaliation, without malice, without hatred, then this is called innocence. No one, including 'Eesh'aa, is pure Innocence – for that virtue remains solely with God's state of Ishvar, the Creator of innocence. However, what makes 'Eesh'aa unique, and thus, the Christ of this Age, is that he is the most innocent being of this Age. Let me explain why.

For one to be given the role of the Christ of this Age, one has to already have reached Union, and therefore liberation, in a previous lifetime. This renders the being free from the cycle of birth and rebirth, because they are free from the Law of Causation or Karma. However, such beings can choose to come back, often at their own detriment; for no gain of their own; and just for their love for God, to continue regulation in the health of the atom inside of God that is Earth, or to assist with bringing about regulation in the health of a particular atom or cell, which can be any planet or galaxy in the Universe.

However, since some of the Karma of the parents is transferred to the child through intercourse between the parents, and later, conception – as any form of touch can transfer Karma from person to person – the Christ is always born through a process known as facultative parthenogenesis. This is when the female egg is fertilised by its own faculty – or by its self, in a young and innocent virgin and thus, no Karma is transferred. Nothing in the Universe happens by itself, or without the energy of Aether powering it, or without a Universal law governing it, for that itself would break God’s Law of Causation, or Karma. Therefore, in such cases, the female egg is personally anointed by the Will of God - also known as the ‘Spirit’ of God, which is just one part of the ‘Soul’ of God. Facultative parthenogenesis of anything, can’t ever happen by accident or chance.

God very rarely gets involved in regulatory procedures, for he has Divine laws such as Karma for that. However, when He does get involved, it is always only to override such laws through His Will. Similar to when you are feeling angry due to something that has happened to you, but you stop yourself consciously and remain calm through the exercise of your will; thus, a similar chain of overriding regulatory functions take place within you due to your will. To understand God better, learn to understand yourself better. Perhaps this may be difficult knowledge for some to digest.

If you are struggling, let go of all doctrines and dogmas - it will help. In any event, I still have to explain the information – whether the information is comprehended or not is out of my control, and is under the control of each individual's own free will.

So, when these beings, who have already attained permanent Union with the Almighty, come back from this Union through this process, they come back as the Christ, or the anointed one, or more appropriately - the appointed one. There are different Christs, and more importantly, different types of Christ Created by the different states of God for different places in the Universe according to which type is needed where. One cannot become the Christ by wearing certain clothes or walking in a way one may think the Christ may walk, and nor by speaking, or by behaving in such ways that one may perceive the Christ to speak or behave. This is why the imposters are always, and quite apparently, pretentious - while Christ is not. To be the Christ, one has to be appointed the position due to their freedom from Karma, which they've already attained in their previous life. This is also in stark contrast to the self-appointed, or people-appointed national and world leaders with self-serving agendas.

By God, do these ones always wreak havoc?

Know that humans were not created to rule or be ruled. Humans were created to rule themselves, and it is only the meek who do this.

It is only the meek who are the shy and reserved ones, the well-spoken ones, the considerate and the compassionate ones, who put themselves in others' shoes and conduct themselves accordingly with due consideration. They do unto others, as [they] would have others do unto [them]. This is why they will be the inheritors of the Kingdom with 'Eesh'aa, the Christ, as their King. This King will be more akin to a figurehead, a staple, rather than a ruler. Goodness doesn't need controlling or ruling – it controls and rules itself. Also, the good have no desire to manage, to rule, or to control others for they are too busy with self-management.

I have heard it being said that all people are innately evil; this is not true. People are only evil when they allow their consciousness to be overruled by their ego. Unfortunately, this is most of the time, with most of the people. However, all people are innately good, for they are born neutral, and it has to be remembered that all a person needs to do to be good, is to not do bad - through self-control.

When everyone self-controls and self-rules, due to there only being the presence of goodness in the world, and with the Ego fully incarcerated, this becomes what is known as the Kingdom of God, or the Golden Age. Art, music, good food, good education, good health, positive and unharmful technology, laughter, bliss, and indiscriminative love for all – simply flourishes. No one considers any land to be owned, but to simply be lived upon. No one works to just pay bills; they work because certain work simply needs doing – after which they do whatever it is they want to do. No one seeks to expand or conquer, and therefore no one is contracted or enslaved. There is no enforcement of any law, for people know God's Law of Causation and the like. People help one another, sit outside and talk to one another, freely share with one another, love one another. No body seeks to possess; therefore, nobody feels jealous. Nobody has ambition to be superior, yet everybody has fulfilment. Nobody takes advantage of anybody when Ego is absent. Without the influence of Ego, people just be. It truly is a beautiful time. This will last an Age - an Age that is overdue. We often have a good moment, and we feel good - sometimes we have a good day, and we feel amazing. This will be an entire Age of Goodness, Innocence and Purity, and people will be blissed, living under the Guidance and leadership of the Christ.

Now, back to the significance of the states of Ishvar and Shiva. Don't concentrate on the names, the names are just descriptions by men, in men's own languages. This doesn't change the underlying aspect that they are describing. If Ishvar is Supreme matter, which is matter in its innocent, unsoiled state, then understand that the state of Ishvar is still bound. It is still subject to the bondage of a label, or a category, or a state of being. In a state of wholesome being, when one thing is this, it can't also simultaneously be that, otherwise it will be in dissonance, and God's states are never in dissonance. Therefore, for this, Duality is necessary – or God's Law of Duality – the law of opposites. This is also why the state of Shiva is necessary – the state of 'Of None' and none-being; the state of destroyed ego, and the destroyer of Ego. When any reigning state of the Ultimate wants something destroying, it calls upon the state of Shiva. For this state is not bound to any category, but only consciously bound to servitude to 'The None', as this is the state it seeks permanent Union with. Thus, Shiva consciousness is aware of all, bound by None, and The Destroyer of destruction itself. The state of Shiva, is what opens up the dimensions, takes something into the abyss of anti-matter, and just leaves it there.

This allows someone of this consciousness to go where innocence won't, to fight what innocence can't, for if it does, it will no longer be innocent. This is the state of consciousness that the enemy will fear, for this state is aware of the enemy and able to defeat the enemy to take back the Earth and return it to a state of Innocence. The Christ is born of Innocence, and therefore the King of Innocence, whereas the King of Justice is a product of injustice. It is his transcendence, and therefore, understanding of injustice, through his 'Of None' consciousness, which makes him the most just, and therefore, the King of Justice.

He is not bound or influenced by vengeful attachments of the ego. When the time comes he will spill much blood, but is not thirsty for blood, and therefore will spill blood only when necessary in the holding of his rank against any invasion.

A Word on War

As previously mentioned, and worth reiterating again: All war is unholy. All war is dishonourable action. All war is shameful. All war is always best avoided. There is no such nonsense as a ‘holy’ war. Only unholy men send young lives to their end, in the name of holiness, and as food for Ego. Also, it is Ego that makes people believe they are holy, whereas the holy only consider God holy. So always remember that all war is unholy because all blood spilt is God’s matter, and all matter destroyed is God’s matter. How can causing destruction inside God ever be ‘holy’? A necessary evil at times, yes – but never holy. Don’t live in delusions. Don’t ever be proud to go to war, to romanticise war, and don’t ever be foolish enough to look forward to it. All war is disgraceful. However, when war is brought to you, and you don’t hold your ranks against the invaders and the disturbers of your peace, you will be disgraceful, for you will be allowing tyranny to spread. Don’t ever allow yourselves to be bullied by evil, whether it’s the evil inside you or outside of you.

Never wage war, but when it has been waged upon you, you’d better hold your ranks. All evil, in any shape or form, wants to fight for glory, attainment of matter, and to secure the future survival of themselves, their kin or ideology. However, the truly good are not interested in any of this, for they are not the ones to wage the wars in the first place. The good are never, at any point, concerned with their own survival but only the survival of goodness so they fight selflessly. A selfless warrior is always the bravest warrior; the bravest warrior is always the strongest warrior. However a selfish warrior is internally weak due to greed, and therefore a coward deep down – it's just a question of what it will take to eventually expose this innate weakness and cowardice.

This is one of the main ways in which goodness slowly dies in a person or in a place: when the survival of the self/ ego takes higher priority than the immediate survival of goodness.

I give you just two rules for warfare: Never start a war, and never run from a war once it's already been brought to you - no matter how outnumbered you are. Breaking either of these two rules will shatter your consciousness to smithereens, I assure you.

You will not recover, for tyranny gives birth to more tyranny, and cowardice gives birth to more cowardice. Be good and God is inside you, be evil and devil is inside you. Choose freely.

Also, not all wars are fought physically on muddy fields. Most wars are fought verbally, legally, mentally, internally, and some spiritually as well. Everything I've said applies to all these categories too, so reread this chapter with this in mind.

A Word on Devotion

Read this chapter every day for this is the secret key to unlocking all secrets.

Devotion is the subjugation of the ego of oneself, in selfless service to another. Devotion is the complete erasure of one's ego. For a devotee, the devotee and the subject of devotion are never equal. There is no such thing as 'equality' in the mind of a devotee, because for equality to exist, there must be more than one. In the mind of the devotee, there is only one: the subject of devotion. On the other hand, it is the primary mission of devil, and his army, to instil selfness, self-importance, self-righteousness, self-indulgence and self-congratulation within people and society as a whole. They are forever telling you to pat yourself on the back, for they understand:

Vanity is the most powerful vice.

Even in love, people carry this selfness with them and expect true love to blossom, when really all they are conducting is a business deal or some sort of a transaction – a trade of this, for that. This is what men and women do with their loved ones, and it's also what they try to do with God. It's sad.

A devoted lover never expects – nor cares if the beloved is also a lover of him or her. It is not a two-way transaction as far as the devotee is concerned.

For this type of lover, a true lover, understands his or her status in the relationship; this status, is always non-existent compared to the status of the beloved because it is a selfless state. Devotion is all one needs for Enlightenment or more importantly, Union with the Almighty, who is The None.

Always remember that the various stages of Enlightenment or finally, Union, only occur with the further and deeper subjugation of one's ego. If one is truly devoted, one attains God, for one becomes 'The None' through selflessness. One then realises, that there is no bigger devotee than God Himself. Devoted to who? Devoted to you. Devoted to all life. Does all life give thanks to God? No. Does all life realise God? No. Does all life even acknowledge God? No.

Yet still, He is devoted to the sustenance of all life.

A Word on Love

Be devoted.

A Word on the Dangers of Devotion

Anything that can make you, can also break you. Devotion is the secret key to The All and The None aspects of the Almighty. The true masters have always known this, because without this they couldn't have known God, and thus, everything else they knew.

However, understand this: with every true master, comes a thousand false masters – with every true messiah, comes a thousand false messiahs. People, due to a lack of their own consciousness, fail to ascertain real from false. And the false masters, false messiahs and false Christs are already present en masse to lap up the gullible seekers.

Choose your masters and your leaders wisely, for the world is only in the state it is today, due to the false information propagated by false masters, and self-serving lies and agendas established by devilish leaders. Deception is often too late realised, which is what makes it deception. Raise your consciousness so that you can ascertain real from false and so that you are not sorry later.

Devotion to anti-Christ will have you marching merrily and proudly to war. War is never a thing to be proud of, for it is the matter, and therefore parts of God, that are being killed. Even when necessary, and even when fought the right way: in self-defence on home soil - war is always a sombre affair.

Devotion to false masters will have you robbed of your consciousness. You won't even have the consciousness to know you are being robbed or have already been robbed, for once you are devoted, you have to remain devoted.

Therefore, choose your masters and your leaders wisely.

A Word on Idol Worship

Idol worship started because teachings from self-realised masters of the past were deeply misunderstood. The masters of the past explained the concept of devotion, and declared, mostly metaphorically, that if one can devote oneself even to a rock to such an extent, that one completely forgets oneself, and the concept of ‘me’ or ‘I’ and all selfness, then just this state of renunciation of the ego will be enough for Enlightenment. And this is true – if you remember, at the start of this book I said: the only thing separating man from God is Ego. Erase the Ego, and you will have drastically decreased the distance between you and God.

The masters never instructed to worship the rock, for even God doesn’t want pestering worshippers, but instead instructed to become devoted to the point where the existence of the self is forgotten in the *continued observation of the existence of the rock. The problem arose however, when people carried on doing this, generation after generation, having watched their forefathers do it, but without this gnosis. Eventually, every time they needed a promotion, they asked from the rock; every time they needed better results in their endeavours, they asked from the rock.

The rock never gave, for it isn't the job of a rock to give. So, they chiselled away at their rocks to make them prettier, in the superstitious hope that this will have some positive effect on the rock and 'encourage' it to positively affect them in return. It didn't work, unsurprisingly. Thus, the competition of enhancements began. Larger rocks were chiselled – and grander temples were built for them.

Why? All because teachings of self-realised masters were deeply misunderstood.

There is another form of idol worshipping. This is the worshipping of consecrated idols by advanced practitioners of Magick and Alchemy. This is infinitely worse for obvious reasons. These do work, at least superficially, for they have material energies embedded within. Nevertheless, I don't have any personal issues with idol worshippers. I much prefer good men and women who ignorantly worship idols yet live in harmony, than bad men and women who worship the Almighty yet cause misery and suffering to one another. If you wish to worship idols, it is your free will to do so. However, know this: Worshipping idols will rob you of the Grace of the Almighty. And by Grace I am not speaking of material wealth or comforts and the like, I am speaking of the love and affection of the Almighty, which is necessary for temporary and permanent forms of Union. One without this Grace is one who is truly poor in my eyes. And I don't say this necessarily to folk, but more so that folk can determine and recognise that the masters they are devoted to are false teachers and deceivers, who haven't yet attained even the mid-tiers of Enlightenment, let alone Union with the Almighty due to their idol worship – these deceivers are themselves deceived and thus, entrapped in the micro and macrocosmic web of the Ego. They are yet to understand a few things.

Know this: All religions have elements of idolatry embedded. Don't live in delusion. Open your eyes and see for yourself.

A Word on Truth

Humans and other creatures have been alive for many Ages stemming back hundreds of thousands of years. So far back in fact, that their bones have now become a part of the nutrient rich soil that we walk on and plant in. Scientists and archaeologists only know what they excavate, and they cannot excavate what no longer exists in its original state - for time, and the Universe it contains, is constantly destroying and creating matter in a perpetual motion of death and rebirth. Therefore, their knowledge is highly limited at best, and highly unreliable and dangerous at worst. Of course, this could be true with the knowledge of any other group of people too, and more often than not, it is.

It could even be true with me and I could simply be telling you lies; therefore, I ask that you don't believe anyone, including me, but instead learn to know for yourself by knowing yourself. If you believe me, you will also be susceptible to believing others who will seek to deceive you, and it is belief that keeps people ignorant, because most people who claim to know what is what, simply don't know, and end up causing even more damage by spreading false information. There are two categories of false information: misinformation and disinformation.

Spreaders of misinformation are well-intentioned but don't truly know the truth, but believe what they believe, to be the truth. Spreaders of disinformation, on the other hand, know full well they are deceiving; that is their very intention. They pretend that they know, and thus intentionally deceive, because they know that most people are also functioning at too low a level of consciousness to know any better.

They seek to lower this level of consciousness even further yet, through means of indoctrination that are all around you. Lies always recognise lies as truth, because everyone believes themselves to be true - even though they are made from more lies than truth. It is also easy for these people who peddle lies to deceive the masses because they understand the secrets of energy manipulation and energy attracting like energy - so they lower yours to match theirs.

On the other hand, truth always recognises truth, but in addition, because of its superiority to deception, it also has the power to recognise deception. These deceivers are the ones who claim to be prophets, yet they can't See, and thus are false prophets. They are also the ones who claim to be saints but don't even know themselves, let alone know God. All they do is wear white robes as the prophecies of past real prophets state, and fool the masses driving them further into oblivion and financial loss. (Know that 'Eesh'aa only wore robes, because it was the norm at the time in the place where he lived.)

These are the same people who take money for spirituality/ meditation courses, books and public speeches – they might not ask or charge, but they will happily take donations. These are the people who will then talk a lot but not say much, because they don't know much - at least not more than what they've read and misunderstood from good books, or what they believe from corrupted books. Deep down you realise that you waste your time listening to them because you still come away none the wiser, only financially poorer. They have no true wisdom for themselves, so what will they impart to others? But on the surface, you enjoy listening, because they tell elaborate stories and possess the skill of speaking well, and who doesn't enjoy listening to a well told story by a good storyteller?

These people are also the foremost scientists, priests, pop musicians, and politicians/ rulers of the world, who seem to know what's best for everyone, and devise and propagate systems and institutions of mind and body control, but ironically, they don't even know what's best for their own existence in this period of life, or the next. It is these people that have been strategically positioned to cause all the harm and suffering in the world by way of Ego. It is these people who are functioning at the lowest levels of consciousness and awareness and therefore are far closer to devil than to God.

My words will stab a lot of people deeply, and they will be against me. Most of them will be foot-soldiers under the commissioned officers of the Anti-Christ's army – an army that is adept at shedding blood and bringing suffering in ways both direct and indirect. A feat that will be peaking soon.

So how does one begin to recognise truth from lies? It's quite straight forward: start telling only the truth. This may be difficult at first, and occasionally the odd white lie may slip out. You may tell a friend your relatives are coming for the evening, which is why you can't meet them, when really, you're just tired and don't want to meet them. White lies are just as dangerous as lies of all other colours, for they lead to lies spoken more frequently, and of more danger. So, tell the truth always, and without exception. If a white lie does slip out, silence your ego, apologise, and correct yourself immediately, for it is better to be embarrassed, as embarrassment is an excellent teacher – and it is far better than having your consciousness lowered. Every time one lies, this gets logged by the records of Karma, and their consciousness is subsequently lowered incrementally, in accordance to the lie they told.

These increments, however small or large they may be, all accumulate. There are no exceptions for lying. Also know that the higher the consciousness, or in other words the awareness, of an individual, the more aware they become of the lies and truths of their peers in consciousness. So, for this alone, if not any other reason, seek to raise your consciousness.

Also, it is impossible to meditate successfully when one is a liar. The chatter of the mind in someone who tells lies, even small lies, is unbearable when in meditation. The less lies you tell, the quieter the mind becomes.

Know this: Anything that is not correct knowledge is a lie. This includes information you believe to be true when it really isn't true. So even if you don't realise you're lying, you are lying by propagating information which you don't actually know to be true, but you believe to be true. Your voice is your responsibility. Speaking with confidence on a subject, while convinced that you are right, when in actuality you are not, drastically lowers your consciousness everytime you speak. Just because you have learned something in a school, or read something in a book, or learned it from someone who appears to be an authority on the subject, does not make it true.

This is also why religions mostly lower consciousness, for the written or spoken teachings of God-realised masters become adulterated by devil and his devotees as time goes on after the passing of these masters. Yet still priests continue propagating adulterated and ever-increasingly personalised versions of these teachings as they believe them to be true, and because the priest who taught it to them also believed them to be true. This lowers their consciousness, but more importantly, it also lowers the consciousness of their flock. If one man harms himself, it's unfortunate – but if he harms many with him, then it's a catastrophe.

Throughout the Ages, men driven by belief have had truly catastrophic effects on the health of collective human consciousness. You either know or you don't know something, and if you don't know, then silence your ego and don't pretend.

A Word on Logic

Logic is a by-product of intelligence; intelligence is a by-product of analysis; analysis is a by-product of thinking; thinking is a product of the mind, and the mind can easily be tricked and deceived. And remember, it really doesn't take much to deceive the mind at all - just manipulation of fear and greed.

One of the problems we have is that most people use logic to reach conclusions – and are actually very proud of this. Logic is indeed a good thing – it is a tool that's been gifted to you, and is amongst the arsenal of many other tools of the mind. However, it has a very specific purpose, and using it for the wrong purpose leads to disastrous outcomes.

Logic is not meant to be used for attaining knowledge or reaching conclusions. Logic is meant to be used to order and organise your pre-existing knowledge, which is to be gained through meditation, into an understandable format for others to understand. Without logic, pure knowledge is just pure knowledge and one can't do anything useful with it, nor pass it on to others – they can just be aware of it. Awareness is good, but without the ability of making others aware of the same through your logic, awareness isn't of much use at all - unless you're the only being left on the planet.

A Word on Intuition

Intuition is the inner voice, or the soul speaking. This is the first voice, or first feeling, one gets when presented with something or someone new. The more this inner voice is ignored, the weaker it becomes, while the more it is paid attention to the stronger it becomes.

Intuition needs to be exercised if one seeks to be better guided in life. Intuition is weakened whenever it is overridden by one's thinking or intelligence. Intuition is the thought that comes without thinking. Intuition does not speak about everything, or everyone, or every scenario, but when it does: pay attention.

Also, intuition will never be in contradiction to the truth, so become true first – and your intuition will blossom accordingly. This is how one begins to further and deeper recognise true from false.

Know this: your ego will always seek to override your intuition, for your intuition seeks to guide you while your ego seeks to deceive and misguide you. Even when your intuition has spoken to you and you've heard it, your ego will always continue seeking to ignore this 'first voice' through your logic, intelligence, ignorance and arrogance. Don't ever let your ego win.

A Word on Instinct

Also, intuition is very different to instinct, which is one of the voices of the ego. Instinct is what one experiences when one seeks to attain or consume or accomplish something. Instinct is what makes you want something - now.

Instinct needs to be kept a grip on, for exercise of instinct often leads to long-term catastrophe in exchange for short-term gratification. Instinct is controlled with free will. In the beginning of the book I asked a question: Why did God give free will if he knew that most will choose to exercise it for bad? The answer is because they still have the choice to exercise it freely and therefore still have the freedom to be good and do good.

It is never too late, and I say this more to the current enemy and the future enemy. Redemption is never out of the question, only ever out of one's current state of actions. Make your actions true; ignore the Ego; there is still some time.

Know this: When the Golden Age starts, and the Kingdom has been established, the people who have not done what it takes to deserve to live in it will not be coming back here. This will be most people. They will reincarnate in other places in the Universe.

A Word on Contemplation and Meditation

Whatever you do, strive to realise this: you are immortal, and you always have been and always will be. One of the biggest lies and devilish agendas ever pushed throughout the Ages was that you only live once. It was pushed because this makes you abdicate all responsibility for your future lives and indulge your ego now, with the hope that you will be Divinely saved later. This is not so; your salvation is in your own present actions and also the repentance, followed by the rectification, of your past mistakes. You are immortal, for you are the soul – which is a part of the Soul of the Almighty.

Your body is just a temporary vessel, and your mind is just the necessary program for the regulation of the vessel. Don't believe me - I want you to know it, to experience it, to realise it. Realisation doesn't happen from believing, or reading books about self-realisation written by non-realised people, who also have the nerve to charge you money for such information. It happens through contemplation and meditation, and this is free. When you silence your Self, and all the nonsense it whispers throughout prolonged contemplation, you will start to hear your soul. Continue, and you will realise your soul, and of just Whom you're a part.

This is God realisation. Note that this is not a fancy way of saying you have become ‘good’ or have ‘found God’ or the sort of nonsense people say when they start going to church or temples or reading the Bible or any other such books and consider themselves righteous overnight. No - I am being very literal. When I say realise, I don’t mean just see, or hear, or speak or touch. I mean that God will become a reality inside of you and outside of you in a very real way. All dimensions will open within you and outside of you. You will... Become. And when you Become, you will know your origin, and I assure you no labels or titles will ever bind you in any egotistical form of bondage again.

So how does one go about doing this? Well, on top of the practices already advised so far in the book, I would like to recommend a highly powerful method of meditation that is achieved by way of hacking both the mind and the ego. However, understand that there are many different types of meditation, and I teach them according to students’ individual personalities, their temperaments, states of their current consciousness, and strengths of their ego. Individualised and personalised teaching is always the best and most efficient way for the teacher to teach, and the student to learn. Also, some methods require far more guidance than others, while some more advanced methods require an Initiation of the soul and therefore, discipleship, as more spiritual input and commitment by the teacher is required. Know that studentship and discipleship are different. Discipleship is reserved only for the advanced and should only be granted after years of successful progression and growth as a student. Therefore, advanced methods are off the charts for any beginner for a very long time, as is discipleship, for reasons I am sure are very clear to you if you are still reading this book. Never forget Muhammad.

However, the method of meditation I recommend to all, and especially beginners, is the one which is reached through contemplation. This method should be the foundation of all other practices. Contemplation is the analysis of one's present, past and future actions, thoughts, and words. Contemplation is undertaken with a view to understand one's Karmic records more and more by analysing all one could have done wrong, in order for the Law of Causation to serve them a particular situation. The more one does this, the deeper one gets into their mind. The mind is like the cap on a bottle full of water; the bottle is the body and the water is the soul. Just like the cap is on the bottle to keep the water from spillage or evaporation, the mind is used to cap the body, in order to keep the soul contained in a functioning and workable body, and also to serve the soul positively through the mind's plethora of excellent tools such as: logic for comprehension and articulation of pre-existing awareness, and memory to remember what the soul experiences.

So, to get to the soul, it is important to get to the bottom of the mind, for that is where the door to the soul truly lies. When one gets to the bottom of the mind, or in other words to the door to the soul, it is a truly serene experience. However please note that this is not the meditative state, and therefore is not meditation. This fallacy has been pushed by people who really don't know what they're doing, and just want to take money from your pocket and put it in their pocket. This state of the bottom of the mind, is just the prerequisite state one needs to reach, in order to reach a state of meditateness. Nevertheless, this prerequisite state of relaxation is still necessary and highly important for whenever one needs to stay relaxed, and also to return to a state of relaxation whenever one becomes anxious, sad or angry for any reason. Just always keep in mind that, contrary to popular belief, this state of relaxation and serenity is not meditation, for it is still a state of something, whereas the meditative state is a state of nothing.

Know that a glass needs to be empty, in order for it to have full capacity – so empty yourself. You will never truly know for as long as you think you know.

Empty yourself. Silence your Ego. Let light enter.

So, when one practices contemplation excessively for long periods daily, after a long while, the individual's ego begins to realise what is happening and begins to become anxious. Contemplation directly and drastically hurts the ego. When one begins to think about all the things one could have done wrong to deserve a particular situation, the ego desperately fights back and tries to make the person remain in the pretence of victimhood, ignorance, and self-righteousness. Most people give up at this stage for their ego is too strong and they don't have the strength to fight back and see, and realise, their own mistakes. The ego fights ever so desperately because it realises, that soon, if not deterred, a contemplating person will begin to clean up one's acts, and thoughts, for they are beginning to know themselves and forget the ego. Thus, in a desperate attempt to save itself, the ego shuts down the mind and stops the individual from contemplation.

What it doesn't have the awareness to realise is, that this is exactly what's required for meditation: a complete shutting down of one's mind to enter into a meditative state of nothingness. When this state is reached, you will be removed from time for you will no longer be in the 3rd dimension even though your body will still be here. You will sit or lay down in the morning, enter this state after a couple of hours, and the next thing you will notice will be that it will be the next morning or a morning of some day in the next week and you won't even know it until you check the calendar.

This is what meditation is – not the journey of getting into a state of meditation. If it helps, think of it as the stream meeting the river, which then meets the sea, before the sea finally meets the ocean. One who cannot tell you of the scope or the true requirements of the journey, can't successfully take you on the journey. Beware of false teachers selling you pleasant tasting sugar that does nothing good for your consciousness, but instead just strengthens your ego and will eventually leave you spiritually ill.

So, this method of contemplation is how to win the first battle of internal spiritual warfare. This will get you into a meditative state, now the key is to stay there for as long as you can at a time and get there as often as you can. It's a painful process in the same way that training for a competitive marathon is a painful process. The preparation for the marathon, or the duration of the marathon itself, should never be enjoyable. If it is enjoyable, you are not maximising your potential, and instead just doing enough to make the ego feel good about itself. If you have any experience in sport or competition, you will understand exactly what I mean here.

This marathon is no ordinary marathon, for it is the infinite marathon of consciousness – and completion of it depends not on time, or quantity of practice, but on quality of practice. Therefore, maximising potential is key to success, otherwise you are just wasting time and stroking the ego.

So practice often, but practice well.

A Word on Enlightenment

In my journey, I never sought Enlightenment - I only ever sought God. I didn't seek Enlightenment, because frankly, I didn't even know what it was.

Know that whatever you seek, will also start to seek you, and when you unite, the union will then bind you. Those who seek Enlightenment, become bound in so many traps of Enlightenment when they get it, that they never get out of it. So, seek God, for He is what is beyond the highest rung of the ladder of Enlightenment. He is the Light which is the source of Enlightenment, whereas Enlightenment is only that what emanates from Him. If Enlightenment is all that one ever seeks, then when one eventually attains even the lowest level of Enlightenment, they will get caught up in just that stage thinking that they have arrived at the destination, and that this is all there is to it. In reality, there is an infinity beyond it. Beyond this infinity, is the Almighty.

My ignorance of Enlightenment, was what kept me safe from the entrapment of Enlightenment in my journey to Him. I would like you to keep your ignorance on this topic too.

Just seek the Almighty – if you attain Him, the rest will come with it, and will immediately become meaningless in comparison.

A Word on Energy

Energy is what all matter is made from. Matter is the accumulated by-product of the energy released from anti-matter colliding with itself. Humans call these collisions ‘a big bang’, God knows them as little beats. The faster energy vibrates, the subtler it becomes and thus, is of higher energetic vibration. The slower energy vibrates, the grosser and denser it becomes and is thus, of lower energetic vibration. The higher your consciousness rises, the higher the vibration of your energy. The lower your consciousness sinks, the lower the vibration of your energy sinks. Energy always attracts like energy based on the frequency of vibration of that energy – while opposite energies always repel. Always remember this: Both the good and the bad, always think the other side are bad, for they repel each other.

All energy moves in orbits – in circular patterns. Whether they be protons, neutrons, electrons, atoms, molecules, compounds, cells, planets, galaxies or even entire dimensions, they all move in circular motions for the circle itself is the shape of perpetuity and motion. When one lowers one’s consciousness, changes happen in the body at a sub-atomic level way beyond the level that any microscope can analyse. The atomic structure of matter changes negatively, through what science calls ‘ionisation’, and becomes unaligned with its anti-matter counter parts – or in other words, the matter of your body becomes unaligned with your soul. It is this what one realigns when deeply meditating. When atomic structures become unaligned, the soul, or consciousness, slowly starts to become ‘lost’, weak, and open to further attack by the ego, and Ego.

The consciousness-lowering deed one has committed is recorded in every proton, electron and neutron in all of the atoms of the body, as the very soul itself complains to Karma, because the mind, and the ego, ignored its warnings. You don’t want to antagonise Karma. Whenever you do something bad, there is a voice telling you it’s bad. This voice is your soul. This is the thought that comes without thinking and therefore, is not the work of your mind. The language of the soul is the intuition that I mentioned in an earlier chapter. However small and faint this voice is, it’s always there and you know it. Sometimes it’s so faint, that you can’t hear it in the chatter of your mind and ego, but it’s always there telling you whether what you’re doing is wrong.

There are many ways to lower one’s consciousness, and most of them are obvious and don’t warrant explanation. However, there are some things one does that lowers their consciousness without them even thinking much of it.

To name just a few, these are: keeping bad company, touching bad company or letting them touch you unnecessarily, or doing anything with an intention to make someone envious. Anything that results in negative energy directed towards you, is detrimental to the status of your consciousness when it is already weak - unless you are protected through your own vibration, which most people aren't, as this protection only starts at 75% and above, while most people are at 40% and below. In my experience, I've only ever seen children of 12 and younger to be higher than 45%. Babies are the most neutral at 50% as everyone is given a fair start, every time they're reborn on the neutral plane of Earth.

Every time someone with a lower state of consciousness touches you, they lower your consciousness because energy is free flowing, and just like water, it always seeks equilibrium due to Duality. Every time you touch someone of a higher consciousness than you, you also lower theirs, unless they're at 75% or higher, which is the lowest level of Enlightenment, the level which most know as the Enlightenment. Be careful when picking your company – no company is always infinitely better than even slightly bad company. If energy is the vibration of matter at an atomic level, and if Karma is stored in those vibrating atoms, then understand this: Karma and energy are transferred through matter touching matter.

The longer the touch, the more intimate the touch, the more sexual the touch, the more powerful the effects are. Young girls especially, should be very careful, for young boys start lowering their consciousness far sooner and far quicker than girls - although girls most certainly catch up by the late teens, and then it's just a matter of competition between the two sexes. When someone of a much lower consciousness touches you, or is near you, these are some of the effects you may experience: tension and pain inside your bones and tendons; uncomfortable tingling sensations in your forearms, hands and the back of your neck; tiredness and weakness without exertion. If you ever feel this way, firstly take note and stay away from these people, for they are energy vampires. These people, without knowing, leech energy from others to top up their own energy, which they have lowered through their actions. You may also unknowingly be one of them. So, learn to know yourself.

Also places where people with bad energy congregate or do consciousness-lowering acts such as night clubs, dark alleyways, certain dark and secluded areas of parks, or certain buildings, the energy these people have transmitted in these places, is then received and stored in the surrounding matter of the place. Be mindful of such places. It is not up to me to tell you where you can and can't go; it is your free will to do as you please. However, all I'll say is be aware. That's all I can do: make you aware... The rest is up to you.

Aside from the other things in this book, in which I've explained how to raise your consciousness or how to stop it from being lowered, here I will explain how to repair and recharge pre-existing consciousness through the five elements: Fire, Water, Air, Earth and Aether. This will not raise your consciousness - it will just maintain what you already have in good working order.

Fire: Go outdoors, build a small campfire and sit closely basking the palms of your hands and bare soles of your feet in the warmth from a safe distance. Every season is the perfect season to enjoy a good camp fire. If you don't have the space or the means, make do with a lit candle in your home – it is still better than nothing.

Water: Running water is essential. The more the better, the faster flowing the better. A stream or river is best, while a shower is less than ideal - but still better than nothing. This method is also known as a baptism although there is much more to a baptism, for if performed by a True and Enlightened teacher, gives you a new beginning. A dunking, as such, is not entirely necessary – also dunking in still water does absolutely nothing. The water has to be running, so safely lie in a stream or a flowing river - with all due safety precautions considered and taken.

Air: Go outdoors on windy days with thin or little clothing. Stand and let the air wash your skin. The windier the better, the higher the altitude the better.

Earth: As much skin contact with the Earth for as long as possible is vital. Sit with the soles of your bare feet and the palms of your hands touching the Earth and allow her to heal you. The soles of your feet and palms of your hands have nerve endings specifically designed to receive and transmit energy.

Also, by Earth, I mean natural ground consisting of soil, grass, sand, rocks etc. Concrete, tarmac, gravel and lawn grass with plastic underlays do not count towards a connection with the Earth.

Know that the Earth will always take your bad energy and give you her renewed, clean, and neutral energy. This is why she is known as Mother Earth – take care of her, for she devotedly takes care of you.

Aether: This is the most powerful - for this, you either find a way to go to Space and have skin contact with the vacuum of Space, or find a God-realised teacher who can take your soul there. Both are almost equally impossible to find, so stick to the first four methods.

Now finally: Energy barriers. The lower one's energies get the spiritually weaker they become and the weaker one's barriers become. One may be eating well, practising Yoga of the body, ‘meditating’ and all such good things, however if one starts to intentionally or unintentionally meddle with anybody else’s energy fields and Karma but their own, through meddling with their affairs; ‘spiritual cleansing’; ‘spiritual healing’; Reiki; remote viewing of someone’s past or future and therefore invading their privacy, then understand this: Karma will educate you. Moreover, it will continue to educate you until you have the consciousness to realise why it is educating you. Karma is the most relentless, strictest, and brutal of all teachers. And you do not learn until you realise what you have done, or are doing wrong, and therefore, you will continue to make the same mistakes while Karma will continue its onslaught of lessons.

Do not mess with energy if you don’t understand it, and if you think you understand energy then I assure you, you most certainly do not understand it. In order to understand energy in its full capacity, you have to have already transcended the 10 Dimensions and attained Union with 100% consciousness – way, way beyond the first stage of Enlightenment.

So, do not interfere with other people’s Karma and energies if you don’t want to be on the receiving end of the wrath of Karma, in this lifetime or your next lifetime. Often people don't appear to be doing anything wrong in this life, yet they are suffering dire situations – I advise you to begin contemplating what you may have done in a previous lifetime for you to still be continuing to suffer in this lifetime. You won't realise it or see your previous lifetimes, or your future, until you reach at least 75% consciousness and are able to review your pasts and future in detail, but still, for now, you can at least contemplate, and this will help eventually lead to realisation. Without realisation of past mistakes, you will continue to be educated by Karma.

Just take good care of your own energies, and mind your own faculties in the ways I've explained in this book, in order to ensure good spiritual health. The degeneration or regeneration of your own energy and consciousness is always your own doing in one way or another.

So, learn this book and work towards regeneration, for you will need it as the coming Anti-Christ will take full advantage of your spiritual ill-health and weaknesses; most won't even know that he is the Anti-Christ unless these words are heeded.

A Word on Prayer

There are many ways to pray to God. All methods are good, other than the ones in which you ask, instead of offer. To ask for things is pestering, whereas to offer your love and gratitude is devotion - this is true for both God, and your fellow beings. God has no need or desire for worshippers. He sustains you - you and your worshipping do not sustain Him. He was doing just fine, trillions of Earthly years before the Earth even came into existence.

God much prefers simple and good people who don't worship him, and even deny him, than ones who worship him 10 times a day, yet slaughter and invade in His name.

Also, to offer God material is foolish – all matter is already His, which he's given on loan to you. Pestering God for things, although may get you them, will do nothing good for your soul and consciousness. Also, with 'The Law of Attraction', whether you ask from the Universe, or from God - who contains the Universe - know that it is counter devotion – anti-spiritual – and it is just one of the tools used by the other side to gain more material than which they've already been given.

It is quite simply a way to materialise pre-existing inner greed, whereas the purpose of spirituality is to eliminate greed by refusing and starving the screaming and kicking Ego. Greed is one of the languages of Ego. Anyone that practices, teaches, or promotes the Law of Attraction, is yet to inherit even a drop of the ocean that is Enlightenment, let alone Union. These people have no true spiritual strength or stamina and are just puppets of their own egos. They've been deceived and seduced by that which appeals most to the Ego: Material.

So, material they manifest.

Know this: Material never has, and never will give anyone liberation from their sorrows, or Union with the Ultimate Truth. I'm not saying one has to renounce all material; I'm saying that actively and greedily seeking material is detrimental to the growth of one's consciousness. This is how people sell out to Ego or devil – just for shiny metals and bricks and water. Why? You can work in the right ways, and if you've earned enough from these right ways, then buy whatever you wish. But hungrily seeking material, and lusting after it, will leave you vulnerable to temptation, and will never give you fulfilment even once you attain it. It's infinitely better to own less external substance and have more internal substance, than the other way around. Also, any form of prayer, in which you pray to anything external, or praise anything or anyone other than the Ultimate, is to be avoided if you wish to grow your soul to eventually become at one with His. And once you have achieved Union, you will never even take notice of any external deity, let alone worship it, for you will be with the Almighty every time you close your eyes.

Anywhere is a good place to pray, but keep in mind: unclean places, noisy places and public places where others who are not joining you in prayer, but can still see you in prayer, are best avoided. The privacy, solitude, and comfort of your own room is always the best place to pray. The second-best place to pray is in congregation with your loved ones. Also, any time is good for prayer, but morning upon waking, and night before sleeping are the best times to pray.

I will share with you my method of prayer. This is not the only right method, but it is my method. Each of the four stages should be done for a duration that is comfortable to you, and during which, you can maintain complete and unwavering focus in what you are doing. If at any time you find yourself distracted by other thoughts, you are no longer fulfilling your primary goal, which is the expression of your devotion. If devotion ever becomes a chore, immediately abandon it, for it is no longer devotion. It is infinitely better to pray for one minute with all your concentration and focus, than for ten minutes while your mind is preoccupied elsewhere or while reciting words you don't even understand. If your inner dimensions are unaligned and your mind is preoccupied with other thoughts, whilst your external body is contorting this way and that way pretending to pray, this is a waste of your own time, and quite simply: pretense. Pretense is possible even when you think you're alone, for your ego never truly leaves you, and therefore you are never alone; it is always there, even when it is dormant – just waiting. So give up all pretense.

Besides, all pretenses are an insult to the Truth, and insulting the Truth only ever damages your consciousness, it never benefits it.

When praying to God, how you refer to Him is up to you. However, the more of a loving and personalised relationship you establish with Him, the more loving and personalised will be His Grace. If you treat Him like your Lord, you will be treated like a dignified subject; if you treat Him like your Father, you will be treated like a dear child. I say: respect Him like the Lord that He is, love and appreciate Him like the Father and Life-Giver that He is, and you will be off to a good start.

Also, if you are ill, or physically unable to stand or kneel, then just close your eyes, and imagine the same. Your Inner Body is more than able.

1) Stand and profess, ‘Ana Maujood ya Baba’, or ‘May Haazir ya Baba’, or ‘I am present, Father’ or the same in your own language - or any language you are most comfortable speaking. God does not require a translator, I assure you.

Also, direction of stance or type of stance is unimportant. Just be comfortable, and fully present. This stage of the prayer is about realigning the direction of your inner being to face the Ultimate Truth - the external aspects are less relevant.

2) Now kneel down, be comfortable, and join your hands together with fingers crossed in your lap. Think of all the things for which you are grateful, one by one. Endeavour to think of all that you are grateful for, and why it is that you are grateful for them. Talk to God. Tell him everything you appreciate. Take as much time as you want to.

3) Now lean forward until your torso is touching your thighs or is parallel with the ground, and your head touches the ground with your hands on the ground next to your head for support. Now profess whatever love you feel for the Deliverer of all that's good in your life. Talk to God with your inner voice. Tell him why you feel love for him, and how much love you feel for him – if any at all. It's okay if you don't feel anything, for feelings grow with awareness. Love is not something that you do, it is either there or it isn't. One simply finds oneself in love, and cannot ever be taught it, or 'do' it, just like devotion.

This stage of the prayer is about exploring, feeling, and beginning to realise to whom exactly you are expressing gratitude. Also, if done with full understanding, presence, and in a state of devotion, bowing the body and head of your matter to the anti-matter, or Soul, of the Almighty is a way to heavily impair the inner Ego, which seeks to consume and therefore control all matter for its own goals.

Denying the Ego of what it wants, and devotion to the Almighty are the only ways to weaken and subdue the Ego. One who has a grip on his or her ego, has a grip of the devil by the throat.

Also, one should never bow to anyone or anything other than the Almighty if one wants to attain the Grace of the Almighty. If you feel like you need to ask forgiveness for anything, now is always the best time.

4) Now stand back up.

In your own language and with your inner voice, say:

“Even if you’re ever not here for me Father, I am here for you Father.

Test me if you like, for I am present, and I am becoming more aware Father.

I will do good, and be good, for you and for me Father.”

Now go about your day, and remember your promise to God. Whether you live up to it or not, is a matter of life-long practice; But constant remembrance of this promise is key to good practice.

This prayer is powerful beyond comprehension for your consciousness. It won’t enlighten you, but it will provide you with the fuel necessary for the journey. This fuel is the Grace of Him whom you are trying to reach. Some beings have been meditating and seeking Union for lifetime after lifetime, deluge after deluge, Age after Age, yet still they remain unenlightened, because they lack this fuel: His Grace. They sit in frustration, full of disguised arrogance and impatience, demanding God. They are yet to understand a few things.

On the other hand, even if you don't practice meditation, or walk the path of spirituality to reach Him, then just by attaining His Grace you will witness unprecedented changes in your state of being.

This is my promise to you.

Harr khud jo khud ko bhooley
Sunney andar sey Khuda boley
Harr khud jo khud ko mitawey
Dekhey haato sey Khuda likhey
Harr khud jo Khuda ko manawey
Khud par khud, kripa ko paawey

Every self that forgets itself
Will hear God inside
Every self that erases itself
Will see God writing through their hands
Every self that pleases God
Will automatically attain His Grace.

Those who recognise these words to be True,
come pledge yourselves in the ranks of the Ultimate Truth, and be True.
